Seeking Faculty Input on Technology/Media Outreach

"I'm looking to hear from current academics who were in college when computers first started to be integrated into campus life. Roughly, this would encompass academics who finished their undergrad schooling in 1984, '85, '86 or '87. I'm interested in profiling a generation of academics who have spent their careers sandwiched between 1) older colleagues who might be resistant to technology, and 2) younger colleagues who are "digital natives" and don't remember academe before computers. How has being in this position affected how they view technology and the upheaval it has caused in higher education? To be clear, I am not looking for computer-science professors or technology historians (though they are welcome to contribute their narratives). I am looking for all professors, from early adopters to reluctant users, whose experiences in academe straddle the seminal moment computer companies started seeding campuses with personal computers." ### Family Program: 'Majesties of the Pond - Dragonflies'

Thursday, July 22 at 1 p.m.
Nancy Howe Auditorium
David A. Howe Public Library
155 N. Main St., Wellsville

Join us as we splash in the pond and explore the world of dragonflies, one of nature's most beautiful insects. Jerry Schneider, a former teacher and children's librarian, will guide us with an illustrated talk about the most common dragonflies.

A dragonfly/butterfly tee shirt will be crafted at the end of the program. Sign up in the Children's Section is necessary for the tee-shirt craft portion of the program since space is limited. (Participants may bring their own cotton shirts or purchase one for $4).

This library-sponsored program is free and open to everyone.
