Excused Time for Support Staff Employees

Support Staff employees who were not able to leave at their regular time due to the emergency situation on campus Tuesday afternoon, April 8, 2008, may request of their supervisor an equivalent amount of excused time to be used prior to May 31, 2008.

Support staff employees should record the time as "excused" and note that it was due to the April 8 emergency.

Employees were released at different times, so the excused time should reflect only the amount of time in excess of the employee's regular shift. Supervisors will be responsible for approving the use of the excused time, and for verifying the amount of time taken as "excused" on each hourly employees' timesheet.

If anyone has not already handed in their timesheet for the April 6-19 pay period, please do not record additional time worked due to this emergency situation.

Any questions should be directed to Human Resources or Payroll.

"Using DNA Sequences
To Trace Lemur Evolutionary History"

Biology Honors Thesis Seminar

Lemurs are a unique group of primates found on the African Island of Madagascar. By following the occurrence and inheritance of genetic mutations, Leslie constructed a phylogenetic tree that illustrates the evolutionary relationships between species of lemurs. She will describe how one conducts this type of evolutionary analysis and discuss the implications of her work on both the evolutionary relationships with lemurs and on conservation efforts in the highly threatened ecosystem of Madagascar.
