AG COMMENCEMENT

Twenty-three to Graduate

This year's Commencement activities of the Agricultural School began last Sunday, when most of the students from the class of 49 and the township people and college students, assembled to hear Pres. Davis deliver the Baccalaureate sermon at the normal service. He delivered an eloquent and inspiring address which was especially fitting for the occasion. In speaking of the universal law of growth, he emphasized that the first essential points in agricultural growth were equally necessary in human growth—daily, spiritual. Those teachers Pres. Davis pointed out, as faith, which plants the seed; sacrifice, which allows Twenty-three to Graduate.

FACULTY AND ALUMNI

Dr. Norwood says in Silver Springs last Thursday, after a business men’s organization.

Mr. James Pitts ’15, of Silver Springs was in Alfred last week looking for teachers for the coming school year.

Profs. Davis visited Syracuse University and Hamilton College last week, in the interest of the Financial Drive of the College of the State

Prof. W. A. Titworth was in attendance at a College faculty meeting in Washington, D. C. He has also been doing some work in that vicinity this week, in the interest of the Improvement Fund.

Mabel Hood ’17, has a new position as private secretary to Dr. Leon I. Shaw of Washington, D.C., who is National Recorder and Treasurer of the Alpha Chi Sigma, a National Chemical Fraternity.

On the 16th Dr. John A. Lapp, LL. D. of Chicago will deliver the first letter that I carried away with me as a result of contact with the faculty and alumni discovery of the two associations will take place in that building.

AGGIES TOUR

Four successful trips with Aggies last Monday morning loaded men with the Annual Bandwagon and Live Stock management a year or a few days through western New York, visiting the best farming sections and largest dairy centers of the state.

No serious accidents occurred in any of the trips, all the men reporting a very interesting and instructive time. The party’s first stop was at Waterville, which the men agreed was an even greater work of Nature than Alfred’s gorges and ravines. Going on to Ithaca, the men had half a day to visit the only State College of Agriculture in the State, which occupies a large part of the upper Cornell campus. A glimpse of Cornell’s athletic field showed them training in football, lacrosse, baseball and track. After leaving Ithaca, the party visited the great experimental stations of the College and the little Cortland Valley on the way to Syracuse.

The men were much interested in the fine dairy herds in this center of the Holstein section. Turning east at Syracuse, the party drove through the rich farmlands of the Genesee Valley and the Lake region, stopping at Batavia and Rochester. At the latter city, the party went through the stores, coffee houses, hotels, downtown and city squares. The last stop of the trip was at Niagara Falls, where the party spent a week, visiting the different spring and summer resorts. The trip took a trip which was so greatly worthy with the commercial and agricultural instruction gained.

SIGMA ALPHA GAMMA

The nominating committee for S.A.G. has proposed the following nominations for the ensuing year:

For president: Isabel Mack, Winifred Green.

Emma Shroeder and Elaine Clarke were previously nominated for president, but both declined. Hence, the S. A. G. girls voted that “In case unforeseen circumstances arise which make it impossible for previous Council girls to accept the nomination for president of S. A. G. girls who have never served on the Cornell may be up by the nominating committee.”

Senior Dormitory Representative: Mary VanHorn, Margaret Newsinger.

Junior Non-Dormitory Representative: Gladys Davis, Tina Burdick.

Junior Non-Dormitory Representative: Elizabeth Ayers, Margaret Gasper.

Sophomore Dormitory Representative: Laura Stillman, Grace Husssey.

Sophomore Dormitory Representative: Eileen Hayward, Fredericka Vosler.

TO THE MAN WHO IS OUT A LUCK

Don't feel too badly, brother.
As you walk your single trail,
You'll find there seem enough, old boy,
'Twixt you and the Jordan.
Just calm yourself and deeply breathe
The fresh and clarulent air,
And think of beauties fair.
It's never known to fail.

So ponder calmly, partner,
And the girls you might have kissed.
You're still numbered with the Benedicts,
And there's other ladies fair.
And remember you're a single man.
There's time enough in future days,
And the girls you might have kissed.
You're still numbered with the Benedicts,
And there's other ladies fair.

THE LIBERTY BOND
By Walt Mason
I've a hundred dollar bond, that I bought from Uncle Sam, when the war was in high gear, and I've not sold it since.
It's a document I prize, with its coupons twenty-four, and I wish with all my heartfellt sights, that I had a dozen more.
People try to get my bond, handing me all kinds of bunk, but I won't be sold or pawed, or be swapped for any junk.
"Come buy a motor car," says the daceur, baled and brazenly.
"I will take your bond at par, if you'll pay the rest in cash."
"I have acres under-water farm where all kinds of fish are spawed," says the shad, who不准 accounts charge you
"I may have it for your bond."
All the get-rich-quick schemes come and beaver over my door, and I smile at their remarks till their talk become a bore.
Then I say, "You've eroped and fooled, and you've argued and you've lied, all to get my cherished bond, with its coupons and coupons."
