HEAD OF SEMINARY OUTLINES BROAD EDUCATION

Dean Main, addressing the students last week, said: "We are indebted to the historical tradition of our institution for the values that influence us today. The life of the past has left its mark on us."

Sigmund Freud's "The Interpretation of Dreams" is a cornerstone of psychology today. It has been translated into many languages and is widely studied by students and professionals alike.

Head of Seminary plans to continue the tradition of excellence in education at Alfred University.
SCHOOL SPIRIT IS LACKING IN SOME ACTIVITIES

It has been noticed lately that the attendance at some of the student activities at Ag School has not been what it should be. The Ag editor has to use this space for such announcements, but it has become imperative to do so.

In the first place, the attendance at the Christian Life meetings on Sunday evenings has not been as large as it could be. A Christian education will not hurt anyone, and these meetings do not last a great length of time. They are out in plenty of time to allow students to put their heads and do their studying for Monday. Interesting topics are discussed by the speaker and by the students present.

In the line of social activities, the attendance at the Country Life Club weekly meetings has been poor. It seems that, if there is not a dance every Tuesday night, there is nothing interesting happening. It has been the policy of Country Life to have a social hour at least once a month, the other Tuesday nights being devoted to discussions of timely topics in the country. In this case, it does not hurt anyone to learn about current events and the outcome of the problems facing the country.

In conclusion, interest in Ag School activities is very much lacking, more so than it was last year. It seems that just a certain few of the students turn out to these affairs and it always turns out that those same students are the ones that have the highest marks in school, even though occupied in outside activities.

If this article has made any impression on those that are staying away from school activities, this space will not have been wasted. If it does not have any effect, the fact is proved that many are too selfish to develop the right spirit.

Let's see everyone out next week and the rest of this year.

BEAUTY ALFRED

The village of Alfred has a fine opportunity this season in its annual beauty pageant by acquiring the Henry Huntington property, now offered for sale and making it into a village park. That property and the hunting property together, would constitute a most attractive public park. Now is the time to have foresight enough to begin such a plan.

The University should soon use a part of the property across the street, together with the Collins lot, for the site of a big, modern, Assembly Hall, or Chapel. Such a building, to accommodate a thousand people or more, is an urgent necessity as was shown by the big celebration of the completed campaign, last week. Such a building should be on Main Street, accessible to the citizens of the town.

For a completion of less open space, by the erection of University buildings, the village should provide at once for a village park.

The property just mentioned is ideally located for it, and at least a part of the property is now available. I think patriotic interest would prompt the owners of both properties to make reasonable terms of purchase by the village.

These properties are at present no addition to the town and can not be used without great expense and much rebuilding. It is hoped that when the buildings are removed there will be wonderful possibilities for adding beauty and attraction to the town.

Now let us all do some "team work" to beautify the village of Alfred.

FOOTBALL SEASON NOT AS GOOD AS NEXT YEAR

A glance over the scores which the Varsity and the Interclass offer- ing football teams would indicate a mediocre season. It must be remembered, however, that scores are not the final judgment. It is indeed true that there is a great opportunity in football to boast a team that has won all, or nearly all, of its games; but this does not mean that it is better able to boast a team that has taken defeat without alibis; a team that has fought hard but not licked. It has fought hard but not defeated this season, but it has not out-fought. It has been defeated but not licked. It has been out-played this season, but it has not been defeated.

The University football teams have been out-played this season, but it has not been out-fought. It has been defeated, but not licked. It has fought hard and played clean football.

But to glance back over the season.

Alfred held the great Allegheny team to a 40 tie, which was more or less of a feat, when the difference in weight is taken into consideration. Allegheny weighed probably 100 pounds more than the team making up the Alfred eleven and averaged 150 pounds.

Niagara had 0-0 and she also produced two teams. Their combined weight of 450 pounds would have weighed the Purple and Gold. But fails defeated the Alfred eleven 142, with a team that matched that of Allegheny for weight.

Hamilton College was defeated 7-6, but the following week Thiel invaded the Alfred field with a larger and better team. It was a Sequoia School and out-played the Varsity 14-9.

The Minnefaul team, though slightly beaten, was pushed down in defeat last Friday.

This year's team was made up of many new men, inexperienced in college football. Each man has played well and hard and next year, with the loss of only three seniors from the squad, it is expected that Coach Wea- bacher will have a fine team, which will make a respectable showing among any class B team in the state.

Coach Weabacher should not fail to receive the credit he rightly due him. Handicapped with a small squad, he has done the best he could, and it is reported that the football team was only one of his team who made up a team worthy of representing Alfred.

The Christian Association wishes to thank the alumni of Alfred University, who made last Thursday's Student Dinner a success.

HEAD OF SCIENCE DEPARTMENT
TRACTION STEPS IN MEDICAL EDUCATION

Dr. Ferguson Speaks of the "Counsels of Our Present Day Tendencies in Medical Education."

At a recent special meeting of the American Medical Association, Dr. Ferguson gave a well-developed address under the above title. The trend of medical education in this country, he asserted, has been towards the simplification and reduction of the number of medical students required to finish the course of study, and the increase in the total number of medical schools.

Dr. Ferguson believes that the improvement in medical education since its inception in 1906 has been that relating to the entrance requirements. The increase in the number of medical schools has made it necessary to reduce the number of students required to finish the course of study, and the increase in the total number of medical schools has made it necessary to reduce the number of students required to finish the course of study.

Perhaps the most rigid requirement of the Council of Medical Education since its inception in 1906 has been that relating to the entrance requirements. The increase in the total number of medical schools has made it necessary to reduce the number of students required to finish the course of study, and the increase in the total number of medical schools has made it necessary to reduce the number of students required to finish the course of study.

Y. W. C. A. HOLDS FORUM MEETINGS

Y. W. discussed "The Worthwhile Life" Sunday evening. The fact that the number of students enrolled in the course of study has been reduced from one hundred and twenty-two to sixty-five during that time. A second noteworthy result has been the reduction in the total number of medical students. In 1894 there were approximately ninety medical students in this country, which figures should be contrasted with the 13,500 students in 1920. As the period of maturation of students having the necessary qualifications, the Council increased from 4.5% to 16.2% in 1894. Hence, you see, that as the annual number of totals, students, and graduates have been decreased from about forty per cent in 1894, and the number of better medical colleges is nine times larger than in 1894, and have selected better qualified students and graduates in nearly eight times larger.

It is worth while to inquire as to what the Council on Medical Education means by an approved college of Arts and Sciences. To quote further from their report for 1930: "By an approved college we mean one whose standard has been vouched for by some trustworthy agency in whose methods and qualifications we have confidence. To be recognized, a college must have sufficient scientific equipment and staff, and the necessary qualifications for the premedical sciences. It must have a membership of not less than forty percent of students and graduates (independent campus teachers. Membership in some national organization or the recognition of a college will be favorably regarded, and in the absence of such membership, careful investiga- tion will be made of the cause of dis- cussion. It must maintain national standards for admission to its Fresh- man class. Unlike liberalism in the ac- quaintance of certificates from second- ary schools unapproved by approved standardizing agencies will be regularly approved by the Council as a failure to meet the entrance requirements on part of the college. The number of better medical colleges is nine times larger than in 1894, and have selected better qualified students and graduates in nearly eight times larger."
