LEAP YEAR DANCE WINS HEARTY APPROVAL

Ladies Entertain in Characteristic Manner

KANAKADEA FUND BOOSTED

Last Saturday evening, Academy Hall was the scene of gay activities when the following members of the men's basketball team, and the men in the most novel event of the year.

The dance hall was decorated with crepe streamers, banners and decorations, and the walls were covered with attractive crimson ribbons stretched from the floor to the ceiling. The ceiling was made into a showplace of similar material completely covering the room. The wire cove which protect the side lights were covered with paper of a bright hue which not only concealed their outlines but also diffused the ordinary glare into a soft glow.

The evening soon came to an end when the dance was called to order.

VARIOUS FIVE LOSES IN TWO GAME TRIP

Fall Before Oslaught of Niagara and Canisius

HEAVIEST ODDS AGAINST

The varsity basketball team returned for a trip to Niagara Falls on Monday morning, March 5th, on which contests were lost to Canisius and Niagara University. In each game, especially the Canisius encounter, the Albertian quintet was up against the toughest kind of opposition and made a creditable showing against teams which have set up unbreakable records on the court this year.

Canisius proved by far the stronger of the two teams met, having a very fast and agile center, and the members whose names are mentioned in the report for the game of March 5th, in which the Niagara aggregation was extremely fast and played Alfred by a 16 to 6 score in the first half. In the second half, however, the Varsity "came back" and scored ten points to Niagara's four, thus making the final score 54 to 36.

Journeying to Niagara Falls on the night of March 7, the Varsity played their fifth game against Canisius College, a team which had held La Salle to a tie score in the very first game of the season. As a result of the loss to Canisius, the Albertian quintet was defeated 8 to 7 in the final frame.

The varsity basketball team is now in the process of preparing for the remainder of the season. The members of the team are expected to attend and the number of invitations which have been extended to them is great.

The next evening, March 8, is the date of the final production. This play will open the season, and it is also expected that one performance is to be given.

THE PRACTICAL VALUE OF PURE SCIENCE

He felt that the universe had been created especially for him with every tuned and flower ministering to his pleasure. No it is strange, in spite of this self-centered conception, surrounded as he was with mysterious forces, his philosophy of life had been a magnificently fatalistic one that little idea had as yet asserted that he himself might have all real control over nature, or that he had any responsibility for the shaping of human destinies. In all the visible world three blind forces sat down in dark and dank inferno and spurned all the lives of men. Man himself was not a vital agent in the march of history; he was but a speck tossed hither and thither in the play of mysterious, untouchable creations. From then on the advent of Christianity no idea of the possibility of changing had conditions by human effort, no gained access to his thinking. The best that he could do was to withdraw from the world and to cultivate his soul in a monastery, or to mortify the flesh after the manner of the pillar-wasin the hope of rousing a reward in the next world for his pious

Now at this late date the simplicity of the process by which a change in his thinking begins to come about, and then note the result. The simplicity of the process has been characteristic of the advance of science in all ages.
Curious observations, such as men made in those days as well as this, had brought about difficulties in the explanations which had come down from the past. The dreams of holy vertues about the earth and carrying the fixed stars, and other transparent crystalline domes carrying the planets and rotating at different speeds, were simple enough if one is not too insistent upon the requirements of mechanical explanation, but careful observations had shown retroduction more, at certain seasons of the planes now known to be outside the earthly orbit, which are actually due to the fact that the sun is at times speeding between these outer planets and the sun at an amplified speed greater than their own, thus causing them to seem to go backward.
Such phenomena imposed impossible conditions upon the crystalline domes of the ancients and the most consumed and grotesque assumptions were made. Copernicus wrote his only book to show that all these difficulties disappeared and all explanations ran out of any way more simply and easily is assumed to be but one of a number of little planets rotating one day upon its axis and circling one about the sun. But realizing that this could not completely opposition because it robbed man of his central position in the scheme of things he wrote in the Pope, in which he deduced his book, asking him to use his influence to defend him from those who might attack his theory "because of some passage of Scripture, which they had falsely distorted for their own purposes." Here is a diversely religious man 600 years and sufficient vision to see, even in the dark light of that shadowy age, that the foundations of real religion are not had where scientific discoveries of any kind can disturb them, and who therefore keeps his mind open at all times to truth from whatever angle it tries to enter.

The second epoch of which I wish to speak is that in which we live; for it is quite as extraordinary as that of Copernicus's ideas, even though they had been branded at their inception by popes and emperors and scholars, even as an enlightened as a far as, as insidious and untrue because they were a direct contradiction to the Scriptures.

A new phenomenon has been added to the department of plant and structures. Aside from twelve weeks’ period in which to blast a seed into a tree, we have seen two sprouts, and four sympathizers, it has taken one month for the three house politicians in full charge of raising funds for the student union.
