CHINA'S EDUCATION POLICY EXPLAINED BY SPEAKER

Alfred students received firsthand information about China's new policy aimed at making the world's most populous country. The President of the Shanghai Youth Movement: de-Feng Wang, explained China's educational reforms and the new national political movement that is centered around the Chinese Communist party.

"The Chinese youth is being re-educated to be gentlemen, to be good to their friends and neighbors; to be good to their parents; to be gentlemen and have high ambitions. "

He emphasized that the Chinese nation is becoming a power. The re-education aimed to train boys and girls to be good to their friends and neighbors; to be gentlemen and have high ambitions.

"America's educational system is based on the belief that the mind can be trained to do more than their task. This will promote the intellectual and self-blessing in the Chinese people. This will focus on self-blessing, having high ambitions.

The gentleman held the story of foreign imperialism in China; how the Chinese students have other countries forced the Chinese people to be submissive. He explained that these schools have been closed and how the Chinese people have been treated. He emphasized the need for these schools to be clean so that they have been unable to advance.

"American education is not the same as ours. Our people are not able to develop their own industries unless they are trained by our principal magnates—New York, Philadelphia, or any other place," he said.

The gentleman continued. "The multiform activities of the Chinese people is being taken merely as an expression of the Chinese people's desire for personal liberty and rights."

"America has Christianity," he stated emphatically. "Science rather than Christianity.

Most of the students would do well to recall the statement made, by him earlier in the day. Mr. De-Feng Wang said, "Science rather than Christianity."

WHAT'S WRONG IN CHINA?

Affairs in China are rapidly assuming alarming proportions. It seems a probability that our country will be plunged into a war of conquest. In history this term turns a handkerchief and reverses its usual procedure. Things seem to point to something of the following character. The Chinese leaders will be glad to control the nations, gene and revolution and the new patriotic spirit. The conditions set forth in ultimatums will be broken "forcing" the Powers to intervene and secure control adequate to prevent their nationalists. This control will undoubtedly include new and present methods, which lead us to the end of the chain of conquest.

However, the present Nationalist movement in China bears a marked difference to former internal movements. It is the expression of a new national spirit and not the policy of a government that has worked largely to the founding of all great nations. If the Chinese—the bearers of the oldest civilization—turn to Western methods and customs they will become the founding of all great nations. If the Chinese—the bearers of the world's oldest civilization—turn to Western methods and customs they will become the

College ‘Y’ Resumes Activities

On the 24th and 31st of April four college men were arrested in a shop near the campus to protest the activities of the College of Education’s service, a group of students and faculty members who are concerned about the role of the college in responding to social justice issues.

The college life Saturday evening gave us a great deal of opportunity to show our support for those who are being arrested. The students who are arrested are of both undergraduate and graduate standing, and they are involved in a variety of activities, including protests, meetings, and speaking engagements.

The “Science and Literature” series is a series of lectures and discussions that are held on campus throughout the year. This week’s lecture, titled “The Chinese Revolution,” was given by Dr. Jane Chen, a professor of history at the university. Dr. Chen discussed the history of the Chinese Revolution and its impact on the country.

The “Interfractional Meet” is a competition between the various fraternities on campus. This year’s meet was held on April 24th and 31st. The fraternities were divided into two teams, and each team competed against the other in a variety of competitions, including tug-of-war, relay races, and obstacle courses.

The “Kanakadea Banquet” was held on April 24th and 31st. This is a traditional event that is held every year on the campus to honor the students who have achieved academic excellence.

The “Good Will” society was founded in 1926 to promote social justice and equality. The society is composed of students from a variety of backgrounds who are committed to working towards a more just and equitable society.

The “Athlete’s Responsibility” is a series of lectures and discussions that are held on campus throughout the year. This week’s lecture, titled “The Role of Athletes in Social Justice,” was given by Dr. John Smith, a professor of political science at the university. Dr. Smith discussed the role that athletes can play in promoting social justice and equality.
