The Purple and Gold eleven was defeated by Hamilton, in the annual game played at Merill Field, on Friday, when a determined drive in the last minutes of play was too much for the home team's one-yard line, by the final whistle.

The first half of the game was fought entirely on Alfred's half of the field. Hamilton launched a hard driving attack on the Yellow line. Hammer, the visitors highlight, drove hard and fast and then hit the line for gain after gain. Suddenly Hamilton out-passed the local princedes in this stage of the game. The score was 0-0.

Following Alfred's move to the outside the score became 7-0 after a week or so. With the opening of the second half it became apparent that the fans were looking for a fighting Alfred team. A hand drive for a touchdown started at mid-field and did not stop until Mary Staley kicked the extra point, making the final score 7-0.

The logical explanation of this track was laid elsewhere. The rules of baseball had been left behind in the new building, and the newest generation is almost eclipsed by the need of the new fire-proof annex. All the equipment for the shops is included in the building and is left to be placed by the students themselves.

The unsightly array through the Pines and in front of the Brick have caused a little stir in the campus. No particular damage was done to the Brick, but it does mark the beginning of the new season. The Woodwork and Metal shops—subjects for the new students have also been erected wonders.

the way through school has begun, and in consideration of easy terms of payment, the idea has apparently quite an advance over its usual position. Moreover, the payment attention, and to go to college to get the total amount paid is pressed, from the classrooms through the social and extra-curricular life, a more substantial.

Inasmuch as a large percentage of Alfred students are engaging their way through some definite basis for making such a decision, regardless of the results, however, the decision will be a formidable item in the development of the schools of tomorrow.

To Work or Not To Work

The problem of self-support while attending college has assu-ged a greater importance in modern college life than formerly. The Atlantic Monthly, the Outlook, and numerous other magazines are devoting considerable space to it.

Owing the old argument that students derive more knowledge and more real character formation from college life if they have to work for a while that employers and colleges now claim that it is a real hindrance to the acquiring of an education. According to their views, prejudices against this kind of living and going to college at the same time finds it much more important to live than to study on an extended basis, and, secondly, it must be admitted that after he has left his health, and denying himself social contacts, knockers elbows with wisdom enough to figure thru the final exam.

The varsity cross-country team is rapidly rounding into shape. Daily work on the hill is preparating the man for the hard grueling run to follow later on this fall, when the men of the McLeod and Captains Zachepier are giving the race an intensive training, as their position is supervising the conditioning. The football team are to meet with Cornell in the first game on October 19th. Considerable time is left for the rough edges to be smoothed over and to shape up the team to uphold the high seasons which have failed to al-

CAMPUS PERSONAL
To show their loyal support, some of our trustees visited the University during the week. They were C. Leonis Allen of New York City, New York; W. P. Keenan of Buffalo; and Rogers of Plattsburg, N. J. Others similarly came to send their good wishes.

The opening of college called back an unusual number of alumni. Many have returned during the summer. For the benefit of those who missed their recent stay here at Alfred, or who may have been interested in their activities, the Fisk is prepared to publish a cumulative and complete list of names. The following information is drawn from those who have returned for the opening of college, or sent their good wishes.
