Yale had little trouble running over Alfred in New Haven on Saturday. In the final half, when they held the ball, they fumbled but recovered two touchdowns and a safety. The Yale defense put up a score and a half all over the field, making touchdowns practical at will. Winner and Heim were not the big guns in the Yale defense, getting seven touchdowns between them.

Fairly poor passing on the part of the Ivy foes led to a score of 6-0 for Yale, practically at will. Winner and Heim were unable to pass on account of injuries.

Wanted—A Rival!

After hearing someone seriously request an athletic rival for Alfred University last week, we wondered whether such a request would be in order at this time. Alfred has concluded her most successful gridiron schedule in recent years but the choices of a rival school in the future will come unscheduled. The Saxons of Hamlin are to compete in basketball, football, track, wrestling, fencing, and tennis. Would they make said competition worth its while.

Upon asking for about our would-be opponent we found St. Lawrence to be the only school in our class that fulfilled the above request. Furthermore, St. Lawrence is all ready to be the traditional rival of Clarkson's Engineers. We then began a search into Fairhaven and in vain. No word came from either of these colleges. Both of these colleges appear to be satisfied in the future with the existing relations between themselves and Hamlin.

Another startling disclosure in our investigation showed that Alfred apparently must act as a free lance in her athletic future—a school without an enemy in every sport in which the success or failure of the season might be measured. If any neighboring college or university would hear of our dilemma, we willingly invite her to submit a challenge.

St. Bonaventure
St. Bonaventure was rated once upon a time as Alfred University's chief reason for an athletic existence. However, in recent years, three years ago in fact, athletic relations with the Brown and White were broken—permanently and by mutual agreement. Athletic jealousy between the two institutions had risen to a point of white heat, and in a few instances the rivalry between Bonaventure and Alfred had become established upon a personal basis. Fortunately, both colleges decided upon a separation before matters reached a breaking point.

It seems that the final cause for a fissure came in the spring of 1927 when the college could agree upon the outcome of one of those traditionally hard-fought track meets. Alfred University claimed that they had won the event by a 59-53 score but Bony countered with a 59-63 total in favor of the former institution. The score tie was not included in the contract for the meet—an event which the Purple then returned with a statement that the relay race was not included in the contract for the meet—an event which usually had been run in the past. Both sides then found some grounds to start up athletic relations. Rather a pity that the two institutions are a mile apart in yearly traditional struggles.

Nevertheless, both schools have need of a neighboring rival. Athletic interest has waned of late due to a lack of fiery intensity with which to catch fire. Why not re-establish another agreement, if possible, with Bonaventure and revive athletic teams with a purpose in view?

Ancient History

It is rumored that the deans have found the ideal method for increasing freshman registration. Plans is under consideration for opening a college house in the Social Hall—equipped for students. Those in town could get poetic license and those further away, dog license. The advantage of this over the ordinary marriage license is its expiration after one year.

Coming back to D. C. I'd like to ask what Noah did when the flood was over. Did he climb up into the stands and cheer for Alfred. Noah saved the life of the world by picking pairs. Mr. Noah, how the world has changed. The other day a chap was killed by that very act—he had six cards, three pair.

Which reminds me of a skill practice of Rockne's. He asked his fifty-
