He also attended the Armored Forces School at Ft. Knox, Ky. In 1943 he was assigned to Princeton University as Prof. of Military Science and Tactics prior to coming here as Commandant.

Four enlisted men of the cadre staff also left last Monday. They were Master Sgt. Thran, Corporal Rageni, Pfc. Petrey and Pfc. Whately. This leaves a total of 9 in the cadre staff.

Four Business Majors Finish Practice Work

Barbara Bloss, Janet Secor, Doris Cunningham, and Eileen Hannell, seniors in the Business Department, have recently completed a two-weeks' practice training period in various offices. Miss Cunningham who is a business and also a Spanish major worked as an English-Spanish bilingual secretary with the American Foreign Insurance Company in New York City.

Miss Hannell worked in the office of Dr. Erwin A. Conroe, Assistant Commissioner for Professional Education of the State Education Department in Albany. Dr. Conroe is a former dean of Alfred.

The other members of the class of '44 majoring in business are preparing to teach and have recently completed their practice teaching. Margaret Lord spent two weeks at Hornell High School, Marie McDermott was at Canisteo High.

An Individual Problem

In our early childhood we used to read stories of the beautiful princess who married Prince Charming and lived happily ever after. As we grow older we read of devoted couples who married and lived a normally happy life together. Now, however, as we begin to think about such problems, we wonder if we have been suffering under the illusion that a happy marriage is merely a marriage to be thought about but never realized.

Girls of today who wish to marry—girls who are mature, old enough to attend college and supposedly old enough to think through their own problems reasonably and make their own decisions—are confronted with writing a case history of their marriage, are made to feel that marriage is sinful.

Not only are they required to write diaries of their private lives, but, in addition, they must live from day to day wondering whether they will be allowed to remain in school for committing such a crime. All this because someone has dug up an old rule stating that Freshman girls may not marry. In bringing this rule to light we are reminded of lawyers, who, having a final chance to prove their case, burn the midnight oil searching through old books to find a rule—any rule—which will, perhaps, save the day. It doesn't matter to them whether the rule is out-dated, or whether its logic is relative to today's social standards. It proves their case. Since, however, such a rule does exist, why hasn't it been publicized? In like manner, why aren't rules which college students must follow printed in the handbook or the college catalog? And even if such a rule does exist, what justification is there for requiring a paper to be written on one's marriage and courtship? The very conservatism of individuals who adhere to old rules and refuse to accept principles and morals applicable to modern ethics and social standards seems quite contradictory to a logical college individual.

True, there are many problems involved in marriage. But these are such that only the individuals (and no outsider) can solve. They, and only they, should think through their problem and decide. Once their decision has been made it should be accepted and ancient rules should give way to those of modern society.

A Reciprocal Duty

When we send our representatives to Congress we expect them to act in the manner which will be most beneficial to us. While at Congress we expect also that our representatives will try to bar any form of legislature which might impair our freedom. When a problem is one of great importance our representatives feel that they must have the opinion of their supporters before continuing. Once their decision has been voiced, the leaders do their utmost to carry out the wishes of the voters. If slight changes are made, our representatives, realizing that the benefits of the big principle outweigh any faults which changes might create, do all within their power to insure the law's being passed. When the law is put into operation we are expected to follow it. So it is in our own college community.

A few days ago the new rules and regulations of the Women's Student Government went into effect. Before this final step could be taken, however, many problems had to be solved. Our WSG representative weighed each rule of the old constitution carefully: they threw out and they added; they accepted and rejected; they revised and they laizze faired. They gave us as much freedom as they believed good for us. Since these regulations would give us more liberty than any previous ones, we heartily and unanimously approved. The rules were ratified by the Senate with but few minor changes—these all to our benefit. This set of rules is designed to give us the greatest possible degree of self-government. This set of rules offers the opportunity to prove ourselves worthy and capable of accepting the responsibilities relative to a happy community.

The Women's Student Government has undertaken a great responsibility. But the responsibility is reciprocal. It is our duty to cooperate with the WSG in following its rules and regulations. We made them. We must live by them.

Alfredians In The Service

By Eileen Hannell

Elizabeth Jarrett Huntley ex '45 will enter the W.A.S.P. at Avenger Field, Texas on April 15.

Boo began her flying career at the Hornell Airport while a student at Alfred. Since then she has flown at Watsboro, N. Y., Coldwell, New Jersey, Richmond, Virginia, and New Orleans, Louisiana.

She is at present eligible for her commercial pilot's license, having flown in ships ranging from 65 to 600 h.p.

Mrs. Huntley began her ground schooling here and completed it at Newark Academy, Newark, New Jersey. She has also acquired her instructor's rating in navigation and C. A. P. The Fiat had a card from Rhoda Ungar '45 on March 19:

Dear Editor:

Just a line to let you know my new address—WAVE Barracks, Quonset Point, Rhode Island. Arrived here yesterday after a 7-day leave. The base is tremendous and has two towers, one for sea planes and one for land planes. We start work as control tower operators tomorrow.

I do appreciate the Fiat an awful lot, even though I don't recognize so many of the names any more. I'll be very content if you don't overlook me on the mailing list.

Rhoda Ungar

Pvt. William H. Beazell ex '46 has been moved from Bloomington, Ind., to the Medical Battalion at Camp Campbell, Kentucky.

Lt. M. R. Nadler ex '44 gives his address as McClellan Field, Sacramento, Calif.

Pvt. William Eisenberg ex '46 was shipped from Ft. Benning, Georgia to the 246 Inf. at Ft. Jackson, North Carolina.

A/C Johnny Heebner ex '44 and A/C Al Cooper ex '45 left Chapel Hill and are now rooming together again at the U. S. Naval Air Station at Glenview, Illinois. Both men like their life out there—especially being so near to Chicago "the best liberty town in the Country."

Pvt. Rodney Burns ex '46 is stationed at Camp Grant, Illinois.

A/C W. B. Paul ex '45 is attending bombardier school at Tyndall Field, Florida.

Sgt. Wilson B. Carpenter ex '43 is in Australia now with the 513th Med. Hospital Ship Plat. % Postmaster, San Francisco, California.

Pvt. Roger Corsaw '35 was shipped with the Fighting Engineers from Camp Reynolds, Pennsylvania to an APO in New York.

2nd Lt. Dave Armant '42 wrote us a nice letter from Base WX Stn. Stewart Field at Newburgh, N. Y.

Greetings!

Just a few lines to let you know I have changed my address—and also my title. Received my commission at Chicago University on Feb 28th along with two other Alfred Alumni—Jack Haackner '41, and Bob Turnbull ex '44. Was very lucky in getting this post for my first assignment. Stewart Field is a very new field located near the West Point Military Academy and was originally set up to give flying training to West Point Cadets. Now, we have a large class of regular aviation cadets, as well, who are getting their advanced flight training.

My work here is very interesting and I really like the set-up—especially because this is the closest I've been to home since starting my army career 18 months ago.

I've been receiving the Fiat very regularly all this time and have greatly enjoyed all the news about good old A.U.—especially the items about alumni in the Service. I hope to be able to make a short visit to Alfred sometime soon, while I am stationed here in New York, but don't know just when I'll have the opportunity.

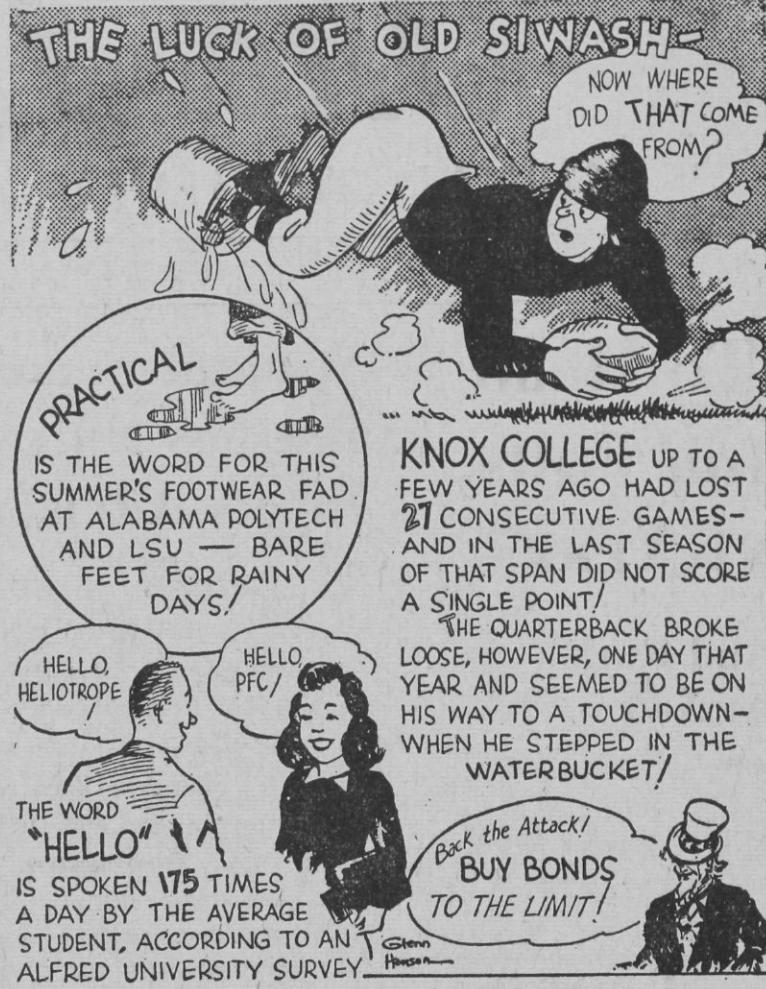

I really appreciate your sending the Fiat to me and hope you will keep up the good work.

Please give my best regards to all the pros and any of my old friends who are still around there.

One View

By Alvin Glaser

A war within a war is now being fought in this country. It is a war between conservatism and liberalism. During the little more than the decade of the New Deal existence, the liberals have been in power. Labor has been organized to a greater extent than ever before and it has wielded more and more influence on the government. The masses have benefited from the social welfare measures that have been passed by the legislature, and the conservatives, with their ideas of laissez-faire and individualism, have been shoved into the background.

The conservatives, however, are not taking this sitting down. They have slowly recuperated from the depression and their newspapers are once more strongly advocating the principles that existed during the boom days of the 1920's. Both straightforward and subtle propaganda, in large quantities, has recently been fed to the public prescribing big business and what it stands for as against government control and the growing power of labor.

If the mass of people are desirous of further benefits, they must be willing to fight for them. They must not be content with going to the polls once every four years and electing a president who they believe will give them what they desire. The present situation in Washington shows this to be exactly what it is—wishes thinking. The masses did not go to the polls in 1942, but the advocates of big business and conservatism did. They elected men who were in agreement with the principles prescribed by this group.

The New Deal and liberals have now lost their majority in Congress and that is the reason for the passage of labor to strike; that is the reason for the passage of the Federal Vote bill which in reality does not give the soldier a real chance to vote in the 1944 elections; that is the reason for the tax bill being passed over the Presidential veto even though it taxed the poor to a greater extent than the rich.

These are just a few of the measures that have hurt the masses to the great delight and advantage of the aristocratic few. No, the masses cannot gain their goals by going to the polls every four years. They must wage a continuous fight and pool their resources just as the conservatives are now doing. They must vote at every election so as to guarantee the election of men favoring them and their ideals. They must gain control of at least as many newspapers as are controlled by big business so as to be able to counteract the propaganda and views of this class. They must send lobbies to Congress to put forth their views. And the complete education of everybody must be carried out by the masses, as the conservative and big business interests have only educated the people to the principles of individualism and laissez-faire.

The masses must be on their guard when this war is concluded. For while they are celebrating the victory big business will be busy trying to garner every possible plum just as they did after the last war. The masses must be on guard against the reaction that usually sets in after a war. Such a reaction is what the conservatives are hoping and waiting for and such a reaction will tend to thwart the public welfare measures and the greater control of capital by the government that the masses are desirous of attaining.

Only if the masses work together and keep a vigilant eye on the doings of the big business and conservative groups can they hope to succeed in gaining their ends. Only if they now join hands can they thwart the reaction that will set in after this war and thus keep social progress from being stagnated for the next few decades. It is up to the people as in their hands lies the power to create either a true and liberal democracy or a government run for the benefit of the few.

Like To Try It?

If you take a midnight stroll around Alfred some time, you're not apt to see very many lights burning, but I can practically guarantee that there will be some on in at least one building. What building? South Hall.

It's really a place that's continually full of activity, but few students and teachers other than the ones in the business school appreciate all the work that's done in the place.

What do you think it would be like to have somebody shooting words at you one hundred and twenty words a minute and expecting you to get it all down? Well, the business students know it's no easy job.

How would you like to type for ten minutes at sixty words each minute and come out with less than five mistakes. Try it some time and see if you don't appreciate the business students a little bit more. Just remember that they type for at least ten hours a week and those typists are very often the ones who are burning the midnight oil in South Hall.

Did you ever see an accounting problem that was twenty pages long? Well, the business students wade through problems like that for a whole year.

There might even be some potential lawyers in the business department. At least, all the students have a taste of law in their business law course.

Next time you look at a business major, put a little awe and admiration in your glance and remember how hard they work.

Max Habicht Addresses IUNC At Bryn Mawr

Max Habicht, addressing the Inter-collegiate United Nations Conference Friday night at Bryn Mawr College, voiced the prevailing opinion of the Assembly when he said, "Organized Peace is NOT impossible."

The Conference opened Thursday with a plenary assembly figuring Dr. John Linberg, Bayard A. Osborne, and Mrs. Harrison Thomas as principal speakers. Dr. Linberg, the critic of the conference, and a member of the financial and economic sectors of the League of Nations Secretariat, spoke on international etiquette and technique. Mr. Osborne, President of the Conference, laid down some of the fundamentals upon which a successful treaty must be founded, while student delegates treated the various aspects of the problem in more detail in panel discussions. Open debate concluded the session.

All day Friday was taken up with the meetings of the four commissions. In the Political Commission the delegates resolved that an international organization be set up in which the United Nations would be a nucleus, other states being admitted by a two-thirds vote. It was to be a bicameral legislature, was to set up a World Court, an international Police Force, to recommend disarmament, administer colonial mandates, and set up other functional organizations.

Think It Over

(Continued from page two) thing to do." Weren't you one of the ones who complained when the price of the movie tickets went up a nickel? Weren't you one of the ones who complained that it's just "a little dump"? How often have you expostulated on the strict rules? Didn't you once tell your roommate that there ought to be a law against eight o'clock?

Next time you're ready to get mad at Alfred, stop a minute and think. Weigh all the evidence and you'll always come out with the same answer—this is just one of the best little colleges you'll find any place. Just remember how anxious you were to get home for vacation but then think a little bit more and remember how anxious you were to get back here after vacation.

A Rare Book

One of the rare and interesting books owned by the Library is an old Bible of John Rogers, the Martyr.

Rogers (1500-1555) was the first of many Protestant reformers to be burned at the stake during the bloody persecution of Queen Mary's reign.

The original translation of the Bible into English was done by John Wycliffe about 1384. Wycliffe's work was revised by William Tyndale, whose revision was more widely circulated because of the invention of the printing press. Miles Coverdale continued the work of Tyndale by adding his own revisions. It is this Bible, called Cranmer's Bible, after the Archbishop of Canterbury, who wrote a preface for it, that was published in 1549 as a second revision of the Great Bible. It was preserved by John Rogers and his family and brought to America by a great-grandson, James Rogers.

Debussy's "The Engulfed Cathedral" was written in 1910 for the piano. It was written about the old Breton legend that when the sea is transparent in the clear light of morning, out of the waves rises the cathedral of Ys, its bells tolling, its priests intoning, slowly to return again to the depths where its enchanted sleep is resumed. There are three musical ideas, one suggesting plain chant and the organ, as if played by phantom fingers; another representative of the quiet sea; the third like the slow swelling of the waves.

Although Bach wrote much for the organ the "Arioso" played by Director Wingate is an example of Bach's use of his own material in various forms. It appears as the Sinfonia to the Cantata No. 156 "Ich Steh' mit einem Fuss im Grabe", and the slow movement of the Clavier Concerto No. 5 in F. minor as well as for a violin concerto in G. minor.

Rubinstein's "Kammenoi-Ostrow" was written in 1852 while Anton was on a visit in June to the beautiful, idyllic home of the Grand Duchess Helena Pavlovna on Kammenoy Island in the Neva River, and is a reflection of the summer enchantment and green peace of this northern island. As an encore, Dr. Wingate played the ever popular Gounod's "Ave Maria."

College Assembly

By Mrs. Evelyn T. Openhy

For the first time in its history the village church was the scene of a college assembly on Thursday evening April 6. But it was no stranger to the church who gave the program for Dr. Ray Winthrop Wingate, Director of the Music Department of Alfred University has for many years been both choir director and organist of the local Seventh Day Baptist Church.

Dr. Wingate selected a program which he felt particularly appropriate to the Easter season and one which covered several periods of musical literature.

The program included: "March of the "Holy Grail" from Parsifal—Wagner; "The Bells of St Anne de Beaupre," the chimes of St. Anne Church, Beaupre, Canada (actual notes)—gathering of the faithful—chanting of the Choir "Bonne St Anne, prier pour nous"—the procession—the Miracle—benediction—bells in distance. (Beaupre, St Lawrence River 1916)—Russell; "La Cathedrale engloutie," The Engulfed Cathedral—Debussy; "Arioso"—Bach; "Kammenoi-Ostrow," Reve Angelique—Russian Easter—Rubinstein.

The March of the Holy Grail from "Parsifal" by Richard Wagner was an especially apt choice for this music-drama is a traditional Good Friday performance at the Metropolitan Opera in New York. The Bells of St. Anne Church in Beaupre, Canada, written by Alexander Russell, a well known organist who graduated from Syracuse University, also was expressive of the religious fervor associated with this season.

Debussy's "The Engulfed Cathedral" was written in 1910 for the piano. It was written about the old Breton legend that when the sea is transparent in the clear light of morning, out of the waves rises the cathedral of Ys, its bells tolling, its priests intoning, slowly to return again to the depths where its enchanted sleep is resumed. There are three musical ideas, one suggesting plain chant and the organ, as if played by phantom fingers; another representative of the quiet sea; the third like the slow swelling of the waves.

CAPITAL to CAMPUS

A. C. P.'s Correspondent Reports from Washington

Los Angeles—(ACP)—It would be a mistake to abandon the manufacture of synthetic rubber after the war, according to Dr. Thomas L. Jacobs, assistant professor of chemistry on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California.

Admitting that synthetic rubber at present is not entirely satisfactory for every use, Dr. Jacobs says the remarkable achievement of American industry in creating a huge synthetic output in two years may be matched by laboratory discoveries which will result in greatly improved products.

The production of synthetic rubber has moved so fast there hasn't been time to carry out as much research as might be desirable," the chemist pointed out. "Even so, passenger cars made from synthetics can be of nearly the same quality as those made from natural rubber, and further improvements are possible."

An advantage of synthetic rubber is that it can be manufactured to suit certain uses, for instance, it is possible to make a gasoline-impermeable synthetic for lining fuel tanks in airplanes.

Dr. Jacobs suggested that after the war it may be possible to manufacture synthetic rubber at 15 or 20 cents a pound, at which price it might compete economically with the natural product. However, he declared that there are fundamental difficulties in the present polymerization process of synthetics and that further improvements may depend increasingly on theoretical research into the nature of the rubber molecule and the way it operates.

State College, Pa.—(ACP)—American trappers can solve the nation's fat salvage problems and enrich their returns on furs, Dr. P. F. English of Pennsylvania State College's wildlife research unit says.

A single skunk will yield as much fat as many housewives could collect in a week and in Pennsylvania alone, 200,000 skunks are trapped annually, he adds.

Since one of the first rules for proper fur treatment is to clean all possible fat from the pelts, it was said trappers can expect higher prices for careful fat collecting.

Easter Service Conducted By Rev. A. N. Rogers

Sunday morning, April 9, an Easter Sunrise service was held on the top of Pine Hill. Rev. Albert N. Rogers, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist Church at Alfred Station gave a message preceded by hymns, trumpet solo, and scripture reading.

Following the service a group of thirtytwo young people met at Dr. Ben R. Crandall's home for refreshments and a hymn sing. This service was sponsored by the Alfred Christian Fellowship and the SDB Christian Endeavor Society.

A Negro girl, Rosalie Terry of Philadelphia, was chosen queen of the midwinter formal dance of West Chester State Teachers college, 90 percent of whose student body is white.

The United States now enrolls more university students than all the rest of the nations of the world together, reports Dean Edwin A. Lee of the University of California.
