Play Three Game Series—Delta Sig Takes First—
Beta Phi Annexes Last Two—All Hotly Contested

Beta Phi Omega reigns as champions of intramural basketball for the 1934 season and today held the trophy awarded by the committee. In the three game series for championship against Delta Sig, the second and third games were taken by Beta Phi.

Delta Sig was victorious in the first encounter, 30-26. Clark and Wallace were the big guns for the winners while Shoemaker and Jenkins bore the brunt for Beta Phi.

In the second game Beta Phi came through on the long end of the score, 30-23. Again Jenkins and Schumaker played excellent games. "Red" Gaudy of Delta Sig played an outstanding defensive game.

The last and deciding game was anybody's game. At the end of the first period Beta Phi led by a one point margin, 9-8. In the second period Beta Phi continued to pile up scores until they led 17-12 at half time.

At the beginning of the third quarter, Delta Sig went on a scoring spree to come within one point of tying the score. This period ended 24-23.

The last quarter decided the championship. Delta Sig forged ahead to take a four point lead. Beta Phi came back and retained the lead. The game ended with the score 33-31.

Teta and Schumaker displayed outstanding floor work for the winners. "Bob" Clark and "Red" Wallace displayed a good brand of basket

UNIVERSITY LIBRARY GETS UNUSUAL GIFT

A set of "Foster Hall Reproductions of the songs, compositions and arrangements by Stephen Collins Foster," have been recently received at the Library from Josiah K. Lilly, director of Foster Hall, Indianapolis, Indiana.

Foster Hall, under the direction of Mr. Lilly, has prepared for reference libraries one thousand sets of reproductions of Stephen Foster's works, using first editions where available or earliest obtainable editions where copyright editions are not on file in the Library of Congress. The object of this endeavor is to place in reference libraries sets of these faithful reproductions as a permanent record of the work of America's greatest composer of beautiful melodies, many of which are, and deserve to be, immortal.

Two hundred Stephen Foster songs and compositions, discovered through research by the staff of Foster Hall have been reproduced, to which are added guitar and other arrangements of his own work and also that of others. Hence the sets may be considered complete unless other works by Foster are discovered in the future.

These reproductions place upon record Foster's complete work and will be found useful to students of music and to music lovers generally. They may be used authoritatively for comparison in determining authentic first editions.

Hopkins and Williams To Head Fiat Staff For New Term

Elections which took place at the regular meeting of the Fiat Lux, Tuesday evening, resulted in the election of Charles S. Hopkins as editor-in-chief and Ralph C. Williams as business manager for the coming year.

Both of the newly elected officers were well commended by the retiring editor and business manager, William J. Henning and Donald C. Stafford. Morton Schiffer of the Student Senate was present to take charge of the voting.

Margaret Seese was elected the new associate editor and Mary Emery and Dorothy Saunders were moved up to assistant editorship. Reporters admitted to the staff are Ann Scholes and Barbara Smith. Fiat Staff To Hear News Man Tonight

EVERYONE INVITED

Louis G. Buisch, business manager and assistant-publisher of The Hornell Tribune-Times, will address the staff of the Fiat Lux at the regular meeting shortly after 7 o'clock tonight in the meeting rooms of the paper in The Gothic.

Mr. Buisch will discuss a few of the many experiences that he has encountered in the "newspaper game". His formal subject will treat of the departments of a newspaper and their functions with especial stress being placed on the duties of the editorial department.

Mr. Buisch's entire background has been in the journalism field. His grandfather, Mr. Greenhowe, established the Tribune-Times many years ago. He is well-known throughout this section as a sports enthusiast and will be remembered by many students as announcer over the amplifying system used at Alfred football games last fall.

Undoubtedly the speaker will have an interesting address to present, not only for staff members, but also for laymen. Because of this, it has been decided to open the meeting to students other than those who are members of the staff.

Interclass Meet Shows Good Track Prospects

With three records broken and a fourth almost shattered, track and field fans with the annual running of the inter-class meet today held more enthusiasm for what is expected to be one of the strongest teams in the history of Alfred University.

Events in which new records were established were the medley relay, won by the sophomore class; pole vault, set by Charlie Clark with a 11 foot 8 inches height to better Danny Klinger's height of 10 feet 6 1/4 inches, established in 1929, and the setting a new 20 foot 5 inch distance in the broad jump by Clark to better his own record of last year by 1/4 inch.

In the high jump event, Bill Carrier came within 1/4 inch of the record. Carrier's height was 5 feet 6 inches. The sophomores cut the medley relay record down from 10 minutes 33 seconds to 10 minutes 18 seconds. The team was composed of Hodges, 100

Evelyn Zeiler, studying in Austria, surveys the Austrian situation for the Fiat Lux in a letter to the editor and throws a little light on the subject for American students. As an eye witness, her story gives us the truth of the dealings there, and her letter is published here for the enlightenment of those interested in world affairs:

How It Started

"As to who started it and how it actually got started? Well there are several theories if I may call them such. The truth of the matter is that the French Government which was considerably 'left' was a bit hesitant about loaning Austria any money because of the fact that the Dollfuss Government was at odds with the social democrats, at which the Herr Chancellor held a speech to the effect that he would do all there was in his power to unite with them in fighting a common foe of the Vaterland—the Nazis. The French accepted the Speech as truth and proceeded by giving a sizable loan to Austria. When the trouble broke out in France last month, Mussolini, who, too, is interested in Austria for several very obvious reasons, got in touch with his disciple, Starhemberg, who is the leader of the Heimwehr and a staunch fascist. Telling him that now was the time to strike while France was occupied with her own internal problems and since the 'lefts' had lost their power to a party exceedingly more conservative the latter not as interested in the working party of Austria as the former government had

OPINIONS

ONLY THROUGH THE OPEN AND UNHAMPERED CLASH OF CONTRARY OPINIONS CAN TRUTH BE FOUND.—Glenn Frank

AN OPINION

In regard to the Easter vacation, would it not be more advisable to discontinue this set period and deduct this amount of days from the end of the term. Many of the leading Southern Universities have tried this and it has proven a success. By doing this the student would benefit greatly. It would give them more time to look for a job and if one gets a job, he would be able to work that much longer. By getting out of school in the middle of June, after most schools have closed, a student has little opportunity of acquiring any sort of a position. It would also benefit the students whose home is a considerable distance away, in that they wouldn't have to spend carfare going from and returning to school.

By leaving for home at the end of May, the period that a student stays in school will not be too long. As for the question of homesickness, those who did not become afflicted with this disease in two months and a half will not contract it in four months.—N. S.

SPOTLIGHT

"Queen Christina," featuring Greta Garbo, will be shown here Thursday, April 19th. This is considered Garbo's best picture and one of the best pictures of all time. It is a costume picture of the seventeenth century involving romantic drama rather than historical accuracy. Garbo, portraying the young queen superbly, is backed by this cast of well known actors all doing their best: John Gilbert, Ian Keith, Lewis Stone, and C. Aubrey Smith. It is a picture you do not want to miss.

A news reel and a Terry Toon, "Fanny's In The Lion's Den," will also be shown.

Saturday, April 21st, the feature will be "Let's Fall In Love". This a comedy drama satirizing Hollywood and containing some very pleasing songs by Irving Berlin. Gregory Ratoff, Ann Southern, and Edmund Lowe prove their ability by their fine acting. It is the kind of light entertainment that everyone enjoys.

A cartoon, "Buddy The Gob"; a two reel musical, "Double Crossing of Columbus"; and a two reel comedy, "Auto Biography," will complete the program.

College Groups Broadcast Programs From Hornell

Norwood Gives Talk

Alfred University today had received greater publicity throughout Hornell and vicinity, as the result of radio broadcasts over the temporary radio station set up during the past week in Tuttle & Rockwell's Department Store in Hornell.

From organizations broadcast programs over the station. The Glee Club inaugurated the broadcasts Wednesday night. The program lasted a half hour and featured Dr. J. Nelson Norwood, Acting President, who spoke for some eight minutes on the historical background of the institution.

The Friends of Music, Cholly Clark and his Collegians, and the Inter-Fraternity Quartette was featured on Thursday night. Friends of Music broadcast in a separate program for a half hour. The Collegians and the quartette went on an hour later in a program originally planned for a half hour, but which through numerous telephone requests was extended to an hour.

The quartette was composed of Stockton Bassett, Ralph Tesnow, Carl Scott and Buchholz. They sang twice during the broadcast, the second time because of the numerous telephone requests. Cholly Clark's music also was well received. Two of the numbers played in opening the program were repeated through request. Charles Hopkins was guest announcer for the program.

Ceramic Society Meets To Complete Plans

At the Ceramic College faculty meeting on Friday 15th, plans were completed for the short course in general ceramic technology, art and glass technology. This course is to be offered by the Ceramic College the week of May 20th, for the ceramic workers in the industrial plants of the state. It will also afford an opportunity to industrial men who have not had the choice of college, to have some technical training which should be of help to them. This is part of the program to develop a better contact between the industries of the state and the Ceramic College.

George E. C. Kauffman

GEORGE E. C. KAUFFMAN

By Barbara Smith

Did you know: that Alfred University is the nineteenth school that George E. C. Kauffman, Assistant in Physics, has been connected with, and he was born in the Philippine Islands and has lived in Honolulu and all over the United States.

Mr. Kauffman was born in Camp Kietly, Mindanao, which is one of the largest islands of the Philippine group and is 792 miles south of Manila. His father, who is now retired after 32 years of service, was Master Sergeant in the Medical Corps of the United States Army.

Mr. Kauffman started school at Cheyenne, Wyoming. Then after much moving around in the Middle West, his father was sent to Fort Shafter, Honolulu. There they remained until the war broke out in 1917, when they came back to New York by the way of the Southern Pacific. Enroute they received submarine warnings and were expecting to be sunk any minute.

For several years, Mr. Kauffman lived in many places in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and the District of Columbia. Then he entered Prep School at Stony Brook, L. I. This was the first school that he had ever attended outside of Army Posts. Upon graduating in 1927, he wanted to take up flying. Upon his failure to get into Brooks Field, Texas, he entered Washington College, Chestertown, Maryland. He was graduated from there in 1932, but took a Post Graduate course in Education.

During his five years in college, he was associated with the late President Paul E. Titsworth, who for ten years was President of Washington College. Last year, he came to Alfred with President Titsworth and did some special work for him in developing kodak pictures. When a vacancy occurred in the Department of Physics this fall, he received the position as Assistant Instructor in Physics.

Mr. Kauffman is a member of the Alpha Kappa fraternity at Washington College, the Veteran Scout Association, and the United States Power Squadrons, sea-going organization.

Upon being asked if he were married, Mr. Kauffman replied, "Not yet, Crandall and I are still in the bachelor class."

Engineering Profs Go To Syracuse Meeting

Dean Holmes and Dr. Scholes were in Syracuse last Thursday making arrangements for the Ceramic College exhibition at the State Fair this year. The exhibit is to consist of glass blowing, pottery throwing and the ceramic products put out by the various ceramic plants of the state. The exhibit will be located in the large brick building at the entrance to the fair grounds and it is probable that a large portion of the 300,000 visitors expected will see this exhibit. Here is an important means of acquainting the citizens of the state with the character of the work of the Ceramic College and will doubtless have a direct bearing on applications for enrollment this fall.

LIBRARY NOTES

Stephen Foster and His Immortal Songs

When Stephen Collins Foster died virtually unknown in the poor ward of Bellevue Hospital, New York, seventy years ago, his only tangible assets were found to be a purse with thirty-eight cents. Yet he left to the world a bequest of songs and melodies that have proved to be immortal.

Officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who had heard and loved his songs, transported his mortal remains without charge to his birthplace, Pittsburgh. There he was laid quietly to rest, for it was wartime, and few knew or cared about this wandering minstrel.

But those songs of his somehow persisted. They sang themselves on into the hearts of another generation—and still another.

"Way down upon the Swanee River," "Massas In The Cold, Cold Ground," "The Sun Shines Bright On My Old Kentucky Home," "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming"—how the haunting words and strains sank into one's consciousness!—the composer meanwhile being dismissed with a phrase—"Oh, that's by Foster!"

Nevertheless, down in Kentucky they made into a state shrine the place which, they fancied, Foster pictured as his "Kentucky Home". While in Indianapolis, "Foster Hall," a wonderful museum, had come into being as a labor of love. And in Pittsburgh, his birthplace, a national memorial in his honor began to take shape. Stephen Foster was slowly but surely coming into his own.

With the dawn of the radio, millions more came to know and love his songs. So responsive was the audience that when John Tasker Howard put on a series of Foster programs in the summer of 1933, the resulting "fan mail" was tremendous—and from every part of the Union.

Mr. Howard himself had become particularly interested in Foster while writing his book, "Our American Music" (available in the library). He began to investigate, and the deeper he delved the more fascinating grew his quest. No adequate life story of this minstrel had yet appeared, for the reason that letters and other data had been jealously guarded by relatives of Foster.

Now through the generosity of Mr. Josiah K. Lilly, of Foster Hall, and the cooperation of the Foster family, the full length portrait of the "unknown" singer has been made possible. Stephen Foster, the man, emerges.

New Biography of Foster In The Library

"Stephen Foster, America's Troubadour" by John Tasker Howard is considered by many as being the first important biography of 1934. John T. Howard, author, musician, composer, brings to his work a wide range of musical contacts and experience. Recognized as an outstanding authority on American music, he is particularly fitted for the task of writing the life of America's best loved songwriter, Stephen Foster. Himself a composer (he has published many successful piano pieces, songs, orchestral and choral works) he is familiar with the problems which confront other composers.

Following the publication of his important book "Our American Music," Mr. Howard was appointed music editor of the U. S. George Washington Bi-Centennial Commission, in charge of research into the music of Washington's time, and of planning the music for the bi-centennial celebration held throughout the country during 1932. Recently, Mr. Howard has turned his attention to the radio, and on a nation-wide network has presented two series of programs—one devoted to American music and the other to the life and songs of Foster.

The Foster compositions and biography are now on display at the College Library. At the vesper services at the church on Friday evening, April 20th, Professor Wingate will include several of Foster's compositions.

Prof. Warren P. Cortelyou

PROF. WARREN P. CORTELYOU

By Nathaniel Cooper

Prof. Warren P. Cortelyou was born in the town of Oblong, Ill., on March 28, 1908. He says that the ground is so flat in that prairie land that the streets are all laid out parallel to one another, and adds the town is a perfect rectangle.

He took his elementary and secondary school education in Oblong, spending a great deal of his time playing with toy chemical sets.

At the tender age of 17 he entered the Cooperative Engineering School at University of Cincinnati. Time was evenly divided with working as a chemical engineer and attending classes. After a year at Cincinnati, he decided he could not get enough chemistry there. Anyway, he didn't like to get his hands dirty in the industry. Consequently he transferred to the University of Illinois.

In 1929, he was graduated from Illinois (cum laude) with a Bachelor of Science in Chemistry, after taking a special course in which he took half of his credits in chemistry courses. While a Senior, he was offered the position to teach chemistry at Alfred. He started teaching at 21. It has been estimated that if he retires at the age that President Davis did, he would have put in 50 years of service in Alfred.

He married Miss Elizabeth Ethaline Hartge in 1930, and proceeded to teach her chemistry. Incidentally ethylene is an organic compound with the formula C₂H₄. She absorbed enough chemistry to receive her degree from Alfred in 1932, to reach her present status as Professor Cortelyou's first lab. assistant.

Professor Cortelyou's chief hobby is his radio club. His secondary hobbies are the fabrication of puns, jokes, and witty sayings for the edification of his quan. classes; as well as that of animal training. He has a dog named Cosmic Ray (because he penetrates everything) whom he has successfully trained, to bring his slippers. His wife claims that he tried the same stunt with a canary named Teddy, but the poor bird finally died.

In his five years of teaching Professor Cortelyou has attempted to systematize the teaching of chemistry. He is constantly seeking for better methods and has devised his copyright card system, which proves the bane of every sophomore's existence until he realizes that it is beneficial. All of his records, grades, and laboratory reports are systematically filed. He even kept the size of his clothes on a file card, until he lost it and now has to rely upon his wife to remember them. His best teaching device, however, is his never-failing sense of humor.

Professor Cortelyou is a member of Delta Sigma Phi and Phi Lambda Upsilon, a national chemical honor society.

Our sugar bush party at Mrs. Baker's, Sunday afternoon, assured us that spring is en route. The confirming signs were warm sunshine, fragrant south wind, horrible mud and luscious maple sugar.

Everyone regrets that we could not get the Glee Club broadcast. The repair man had music room floor at the time we should have listened in.

Hello Tom, Ho Dick, Hi Harry. That's about all a fellow heard when he returned after the holidays. It seems as if everyone had jokes to tell. Say—did you hear this one? Soke me if you heard it. Stop!

The fellows are sure lucky to have such swell persons as Mrs. Stillman and Mrs. Emerson as their cooks. Before the fellows left for home they prepared sandwiches for whomever desired them. And—they were glad to do it.

Lishure Mike, that awfully punny man, was in his glory the other afternoon. Be it about the weather, school or animals, Mike has something to say. This particular afternoon, his stooge, the worm, said he loved insects and was always kind to them. Mike replied that he never lost an opportunity to pat a mosquito on the back. (He is about as funny as DeLong's crutch) "Pop" Tesnow imitated Mike and Lishure told him to stop mimicking him. "Pop" promised that he wouldn't act like a fool anymore.

Due to this so-called spring weather, the boys have started to sing those snappy songs. Stan. Orr said that he saw an article in the paper telling how to start an amateur glee club. The real need, however, is an article telling how to stop one.

Do any of you girls know how to play mumbly-peg? If so—Jacobs would like to get in touch with you.

Columbia Man Speaks To College Assembly

Presenting to Alfred's assembly a new type of program last Thursday morning, Mr. Rowland Rogers introduced Dr. John Dewey of Columbia University, to the student body. Mr. Rogers represents the Community Film Talks and he brought Mr. Dewey to his audience by means of a talking picture.

Dr. Dewey submitted for consideration an analysis entitled "Is a Third Political Party Inevitable," and dealing principally with the economic situation in America. The speech and the pictures were prepared before the last presidential election and consequently it was of interest to compare the situation depicted with that under the New Deal.

Stating that the United States is undergoing perhaps the greatest change in its history and that its "rugged individualism" is played out Dr. Dewey enumerated five facts to be considered on our economic drama:

1. Concentration of wealth—2% of the people receive 70% of the income.
2. Overproduction which is really underconsumption.
3. Inflation.
4. The crash.
5. Repealing old devices for recovery.

The only sound remedy for our tragedy is to make wealth a blessing to the whole people. Wealth may be distributed by taxation, credit system (control of money and credit), and by stopping leaks such as wars which use up 70% of the budget or exploits such as big business.

American needs a new political party, the platform of which should be: Fair distribution of wealth; a removal of the causes of war; a building of a workable system of government.

"The Shoehorn Society" announces with pleasure that it has considered pledging Chaplain McLeod upon his own recommendation. The co-presidents, Baron and Bobbypin, two of the outstanding brains of the campus (in the musical comedy college sense, of course) are now deliberating upon the Chaplain's merits. Here is luck to you Chaplain. . . . And then there is a Prof., who will return to his Frosh Drafting class anything that is lost. It seems that two co-eds would like to know whether or not they will be returned their confidence in men. . . . Jane Kline is persistent, so here goes. She says, "My ideal must be tall and rugged. Looks make little difference, must be broad-minded, domineering, and an intelligent conversationalist." You don't mind if I add "red" hair. . . . Which one of the present Frosh, when applying to Alfred last summer, carried on the following correspondence: Dean to the prespective Frosh: "You are granted admission to the class of 1937." Frosh to Dean: Why must I wait four years to enter college? . . . Then there is the Junior who yells I. W. W. in his sleep. So they say. . . . Everybody seems to be regaining consciousness after the chaotic conditions of the past few weeks. A certain student thinks that this is the season for broken romances—of long standing, too. Really we can think of two proofs of this. How ex-cruciating! Might add, however, that several other young lovers have had the epidemic in a lighter form, and seem to be recovering nicely. . . . A blond Frosh is still in a daze about the grade on her card. Maybe, it was just a chemical reaction. Anyway stay in there and pitch. . . . "Bob" Foote is drawing up plans for a beauty parlor to be operated on the campus. He should try it, then some of these boys with permanents wouldn't have to leave the campus. . . . Seems one of the students met a friendly co-ed on his return trip from New York, via the bus. So he rides on to Syracuse and hitch-hiked back next day.—He insists that the driver did not call out his stop. . . . We found this and thought it worthwhile:

The light that lies in a woman's eyes,
And lies and lies and lies.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

Miss Ruth Greene reviewed at Y. W. C. A. meeting Sunday night four plays which she saw recently in New York.

"The Pursuit of Happiness" was described as a daring, rough and ready comedy of America in the American Revolution, dealing especially with the Connecticut Yankees.

Enacted to perfection by Walter Huston was Sinclair Lewis' "Dodsworth," the story of a retired business man who travels to England with his beautiful wife, only to discover her infidelity and to re-discover happiness in his love for another woman, played by his own wife, Nan Sunderland.

George M. Cohan's acting really makes the Eugene O'Neil play, "Ah Wilderness," which is dubbed a comedy of recollections. The play is concerned with the adventures of a radical on the way to love. Homely family life is depicted.

"But the one I considered best of all," said Miss Greene was, "Mary of Scotland," with Helen Hayes in the title role. This tragedy of Maxwell Anderson's, she explained, followed historical fact very closely and covered six years of Mary's life. It was the Shakespearian type—part prose and part poetry, marvelous as to settings and costumes, but owing its success mostly to the superb acting of Helen Hayes.

INTERCLASS MEET

yard dash; Prior, 220 yard dash; Giannasio, 440 yard dash and Oldfield, 880 yard run.

The meet was staged indoors in the track and field house. This in itself was a handicap to times, heights and distances, as compared to outdoors statistics. Glancing over the summary and in comparison with past indoor meets, however, the marks established this year in the majority hit close to long established records—in the opinion of many, the best indication of what these men will do when they inaugurate outdoor training.

Alfred should have a strong field combination this season, the phase which in the past has been a handicap to the always outstanding track events, when it came to adding up the total points in competition with other institutions.

The Summary:
35 Yard Dash—Won by Hodges; second, Giannasio; third, Hall; fourth, Wallace. Time: 0:4.2.

40 Yard Low Hurdles—Won by Shiffner; second, Bashnagel; third, Boylan; fourth, Scholes. Time: 0:5.4.

880 Yard Run—Won by Oldfield; second, Java; third, Dawson; fourth, Prior. Time: 2:13.5.

1 Mile Run—Won by Java; second, Cibella; third, Hodges; fourth, Tisi. Time: 5:09.1.

AUSTRIAN SITUATION

 been. Starhemberg in a radio speech on Sunday evening, Feb. 11th, said: 'Und die nächste Woche bringt grosse tage für uns'—which means that there are big things in store for us during this coming week.

Raid Houses For Arms

"Their intentions undoubtedly, were not to cause so many deaths, etc, they merely intended to walk into the various party houses and ask them to surrender their arms. You are undoubtedly thinking—well how did the Heimwehr know that they had any arms; Until one year ago the Schutzbundler were an officially armed body and an integral part of the social democratic party which has been in power here since the revolution on the 12th of November, 1918. When Dollfuss politely dismissed parliament and gave himself dictatorial powers he advised or better said, commanded that the social democrats get rid of their army. To all appearances, they did—we had the occasion to see how how much band.

Fat Turns Out To Be Machine Guns

"Another fact which might be well worth mentioning is that a certain hotel in Linz owned by the social democratic party ordered 22 barrels of fat from Czechoslovakia, when the order arrived, in place of the 22 there were 23, since the order only read 22 the railroad officials refused to turn over the other barrel and took it back and opened it—imagine their astonishment to find not fat in the barrel but harmless looking skoda machine gun. I could cite many other examples in which I could make my point clear that the social democrats were getting arms from Czechoslovakia as they say here 'Hauftenweise'.

Conversation Overheard

"The official report as sent out by the government is that a telephone conversation was overheard—since they found that machine gun they were watching the social democrats every move—and they heard one social democrat say to the other—so and so is ill all plans delayed until Wednesday, at which they gathered that the social democrats were going to start something on Wednesday. They, the Heimwehr and armed police entered the headquarters in Linz, told them to hand over their weapons, at which the entire thing went off. From Linz it spread to smaller towns and Vienna was made aware of what was occurring when suddenly at 11 A. M., the trolley cars were lined up all along the streets, no electricity or telephone service could be had for any price—no not even the good old gold dollar. At 12 o'clock I went to lunch, it was impossible to make any headway on the streets, practically every street in the neighborhood in which I live was shut off by means of barbed wire fences, with two machine guns on either side of the fence. By that time rumors were spreading like all fury. It was said that 'Standrecht' was in effect, which means nothing more or less than that all theatres, cafes, movies, etc., were to be closed by eight o'clock, including, too, all house doors—the streets were to be cleared by that time and anyone not obeying the law—was taking life into his own hands. The streets were overrun with police, Heimwehr, army, etc., all carrying bayoneted guns.

According to the Standrecht—all law breakers are liable to the death penalty, which is hanging in Austria since the fall of 1923.

Reporter Stopped By Guards

"I had an engagement that evening at 6:30 P. M. and though I was advised by many of my friends to cancel it, I decided to go in spite of everything—I was really looking for excitement—and believe me I got plenty of it. My engagement was at the other end of the town—twenty minute ride from my home—however, since all of the main streets were barricaded we had to ride through all of the outward lying districts to get there—a might expensive excitement, to say the least. The streets were pitch dark, and at every second corner we were stopped by police, who asked for 'legitimation'. On my return trip I saw two tanks drive up the Marihilferstrasse and out toward the Karl Marx Hof. I arrived home at eight o'clock, and tried to get in touch with my aunt to inform her that I wasn't coming to dinner, the telephones, however, were still not functioning, hence, I hauled my searchlight and my passport and decided to try to get there without first getting a bullet in my back. You see I live one block away from the Aathus and that particularly was the portion of the town which was being most carefully guarded. I got down as far as my corner, was stopped by police and then allowed to proceed but not until I told them where I was going, and why. At the next corner I was stopped again, and this time warned that it was very dangerous to be out on the street at that hour. My passport worked wonders, and the apparent chief sent two armed soldiers with me to the door of my aunt's house. That night it was practically impossible to sleep, a steady thunder of cannon shots were heard at intervals of every half hour.

"When I started this letter to you, Vienna and all of the rest of the world were all keyed up in lieu of the events here, in the mean time, however, as all great historical moments, the revolution isn't even parlor talk anymore. Nevertheless with the aid of my diary, which I kept rigorously during the excitement I'll endeavor to finish this, giving you as accurate a picture of the occurrences as I am able to.

Rumor Cause For Anxiety

"On Tuesday shooting was heard all day, the wounded were being carried into the Allgemeine Krankenhaus, 'Hauftenweise'—Mayor Seitz was arrested—and to top it all off the green and white flag was hoisted on the rathaus. Telephone and electricity were functioning again, the streetcars however, were not, the I Bezirk, which is the main part of the city was still barricaded off. Standrecht was still in effect and at 8 P. M. The streets were completely cleared, rumors were circulated to the effect that the social democrats from Chekoslovakia were on their way to Austria to help the social democrats here. An ultimatum came from Germany to the effect that should Chekoslovakia really intervene they too would march into Germany. Thank heavens that it was nothing more than a rumor—because the intervention of Germany would have caused a free for all.

Bullets Whiz By

On Wednesday, everything had quieted down, a few friends and I went out to the Karl Marx Hof to see what was left of the building. We were all poised and ready to snap a picture of the wreck when lo and behold machine gun bullets whizzed over our heads—believe you me my pulse beat suddenly went up to about 150 and I ran as I never have before. Throughout all of Austria many so-called 'political verbrecher' were hung in Florridsdorf, a small village on the outskirts of Vienna, the fire-chief Weissel when called upon to aid the government turned against them and with his entire man-power aided the social democrats. He was captured and sentenced to hang. He swore, in court, that he had forced his men at the point of a gun to aid the social Democrats, which of course was sufficient evidence for the entire fire corp to go off scott free. On Tuesday evening he was hung. His last wish was that they play the international, which they did. His last words before the rope was pulled were—es lebe die internationale. Enen Starhemberg and Fey said that a man of his calibre should not die as a criminal—they wanted to pardon him, it was impossible, however, in that it would have aroused much discontent—the people would have said they hang the workers but they pardon the intellectuals. I am convinced that a monument will yet be erected to Weissel—he will have died a martyr and not a politische verbrecher.

Social Democrats Start Shooting

"Thursday evening, I had a dreadful experience—it was quite late and I was on my way home—on every corner I was asked for legitimation when I got to my corner, however, I was warned by one of the Heimwehr to be very careful in crossing the streets because the social democrats were shooting on to the streets from the sewers—at every sewer opening stood two soldiers with aimed guns—again the tempo of my pulse was increased manifold.

Funeral For Fifty-One

"The following Tuesday a funeral service was held for the 51 police, soldiers, and Heimwehr who had fallen in Austria, I had the good luck of having a grand stand 'stand' the sight was awful—51 coffins in 51 army trucks in a semi-circle in front of the rathaus. The speeches were the usual mimeographed speeches—the fallen were referred to as heroes who had died to preserve the integrity of their fatherland—and that the mothers, wives, children, etc., who had been left behind should be brave and that the government would concern itself with their future well being. If I'm not mistaken, isn't that exactly what was told the soldiers who enlisted? As for the social democrats no one knows how many of them were killed or wounded—those who were left lost their positions and to-day are helping Austria compete with Germany in filling up the prisons and concentration larger prison camps which were given birth to with the arrival of dictatorial policies.

To What Avail?

"Well with all of the blood shed and loss of life—what has been accomplished? Nothing more than a parallel of Nazi, Germany. Everything now wears a uniform, not a day goes by, but that we don't see at least 5 or 6 parades—and we talk pacifism—with everything in uniform and the countries of Europe arming to their so-called gills. One thing, however, has been accomplished, namely, the Nazi terrorism which was so prevalent before the 12th of February. I am of the opinion that Austria has Mussolini to thank for that—that man yields a mighty influence on this continent, its a good thing for Europe that his policy is one of a constructive nature rather than destructive, as some of his brother dictators."
