How About Some Reasons?

It is hard to find one word to convey the feeling of Mrs. Doris E. Hann regarding the agitation in the Fiat Lux last week for new women's rules. Her suggestion to the students is to arrange in orderly form their points of view and let the council of the Student Government for official action. The question was brought up last week at the start of the new campaign to sit up and sing, to "fer the hand of the Council. There is considerable question whether that aim was achieved. To all appearances the Council regarded the letters as too rattler-brain-

Alfred's recent basketball victories over St. Bonaventure and Niagara warrant the limit in celebration, jubilation, anticipation, elation of whatever else in the King's English fits the occasion. For, according to statistics compiled since 1925, victory comes to Alfred only once in six court contests with St. Bonaventure, and once in five (4.5 to be exact) the Purple Eagle goal line has been transgressed fourteen contests, and the Saxons an even greater nemesis to the Saxons. It may take the remaining tours. Thus, the defeat of both St. Bonaventure and Niagara in one "year may be felt as a merciful release, and may the pieces never be reassembled, and may the pieces never be reassembled, and may the pieces never be reassembled, and may the pieces never be reassembled.

Saxon Big Three, Schachter, Oberhanick, Oberhanick Graduates

Every college has its legends of athletic greats, men who ruled the lid and who lured the coming generations. Nick Oberhanick is an exception and three graduating courtmen may well be added to the "Saxon Hall of Fame." Nick, named for his father when famed Saxon warriors, Oberhanick, Schachter, Bob Schachter, and Otto Schachter invaded the beach to take the battle of supremacy to theSaxon hinterland. Nick Oberhanick, the Editor, plunged into the uncharted realms of basketball propaganda. Their playing has been so steady year by year that the Saxon faithful have become nearlyakanized.

The Big Three came to Alfred as owners of such other franchise. In their Fresh year, they played on the Alfred Blue Sox. Nick Oberhanick had a different type of bad publicity. He was the owner of the only team in the league with a 1-1 record. Coach Cox's wholesale substitution staff added to the excitement of the games. Nick Oberhanick—125
