Alfred University Visiting Professor of Painting and Drawing Stephanie McMahon exhibited her work along with three other artists in a show titled "Naturally: Looking at Looking at Nature," earlier this month, at the Hartnett Gallery, University of Rochester. McMahon earned a bachelor of fine arts degree from Alfred University, and a masters of fine arts degree in painting from the University of Texas-Austin. Her recent exhibition work demonstrates an important impulse in contemporary art, showing multiple perspectives and interpretations of nature addressing the concerns of global warming, bioengineering, bioterrorism, biodiversity and renewable resources.
