Decay Of Original Meanings

In a recent sociology class, students were asked to list reasons for going to church. "Maintain social position," "enjoyment of the music," "hatred of the many," "habits formed as a child," were just some of the answers. One of the students, however, listed "Anarchist sentiments," which caused a bemused smile from the professor. "I thought we were going to church," the professor commented. "No, it was part of our assignment," the student replied.

Christmas is the perfect time to reflect on the decay of original meanings. It is ironic that people who have given their lives for causes we now consider important were often forced to lie and cheat to achieve their goals. The true meaning of Christmas, after all, is the love and goodwill that come with it. It is a time for giving and sharing, not for hoarding and hoarding.

Alfred's Growth

Alfred is the perfect example of the decay of original meanings. From being a small village with a population of a few hundred, Alfred has grown into a bustling town with a population of over 50,000. This growth is due in part to the influx of people from the city, who are seeking a quieter, more rural lifestyle.

New Outlook

One of our new faculty readers this week expressed the opinion that a student who should go to college with an open mind and should spend the first two or three years more or less cloistered, studying and digesting the basic human experiences in their lives. He said that the student who comes to college with an open outlook and during the pre-college period, he will come to college with a more mature outlook.

Alfred's Growth

From the piece of text, it appears that Alfred has grown significantly in the last few years. The town has expanded, and the population has increased. This growth has brought challenges, but also opportunities for the town.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

I have been thinking about the value of education and the role it plays in shaping society. It seems to me that education is the key to a better world. It is the only way to ensure that people learn to live together in peace.

I think that education should be a priority for everyone. It is important for the growth and development of individuals, and it is also important for the growth and development of society as a whole.

As a father, I have always been concerned about my children's education. I want them to have access to the best education possible, so that they can have a bright future.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]

Convertible From California Actually a Ford In Disguise

By Matthew Melko

The lad behind the wheel of that sharp, gray, California licensed convertible is Courtney Manker. He is enrolled in the College of Ceramic, Class of 1947. His car is a graduate of the Ford assembly line, Class of 1936. It is no longer a Ford, however, for Court has as much appearance as that "California" says) shines every day of the year. "Low point in use of the Li- brary is just before mid-year," librarian, Lawrence Martin pointed out this week. Announcing the strange-on-the-fourth of July custom as though sequlizing that seating number of "Football Autumn," Mr. Martin went on to explain that he thought it was an idea that students are spending more study time on mid-terms and textbooks. "We always get a lot of work caught up then," he added.

Weather Observer Predicts Enough Snow For Carnival

"In all probability there should be enough snow in mid-January for the Carnival," he would hasten to say. But, "So far as Frosty," the weather observer for this vicinity. From the three volumes of daily weather reporting compiled over a 34 year period by Dr. Shumate and Dr. T. Holten Grieve, a composite picture of the over-all weather outlook may be drawn. Records indicate that for the past the weather repeats itself in the form of a wave cycle every three or four years. If the cycle holds true to form, this winter should be a severe one with colder than average temperatures and deeper and heavier snows.

Alfred residents will verify the fact that the weather in this vicinity is far from dependable, and the operators of the News Bureau are ready to explain the weather of the past few weeks have served as a word of encouragement to those planning the Winter Carnival.

Basketball Fan Close To Action Center, and Should Know Type Of Offense And Defense Used

By James Quackenbush

"The basketball fan has the advantage because he has only two places in the football fan must watch 22 men. Coach Jay McWilliams said this weekend when asked for some tips on how to watch a basketball game."

"The basketball game is closer to the action of center and there is a smaller playing area and less confusion on the part of the defense, and the player that plays -

Coach McWilliams added. He stressed that the tempo should be known before the game even starts, and the three basic defensive systems each team chooses can be divided into three basic categories: press, half-court, or zone. The three most common offensive systems are the "give and go," the "screening offense," and the "precision." In the "precision," the offense is divided into two parts: the playmaker and the shooting guard. The playmaker is responsible for making the passes and setting up the plays, while the shooting guard is expected to score and make defensive plays. The "give and go" offense involves a center who passes to a wing, who then gives the ball back to the center. The center then makes a driving move to the basket. The "screening offense" involves a player who screens for another player, who then takes the shot. The "precision" involves a center who sets a screen for a wing, who then makes a drive to the basket.

The most common types of defense are the "man-to-man," the "zone," and the "pressure." The "man-to-man" defense attempts to prevent the opposition from scoring by exerting pressure on the ball carrier and forcing turnovers. The "zone" defense is more flexible and can be adapted to different situations. The "pressure" defense is often used in the final minutes of a game to put pressure on the opposition and force them to turn over the ball.

Fred's speedy Dick McNamara led the visitors with a score. Leo Johnson, former Alfred with three double-deckers and seven all at the half time, and tied up no rent campaign as they defeated scrap.

Capacity Audience Hears Chorus And Orchestra Presentation Of Handel's "Messiah" Sunday

Four Solos Star In Performance, And All Sections Show Understanding

By Robert Ruderick

Alfred University's second annual performance of Handel's "Messiah" was presented to a capacity audience with a warmth and energy amounting to a truly spiritual Church Sunday afternoon, December 14. In addition to musicians and singers from the prep-school, students and faculty members of the communities of Alfred, Buffalo, Hornell, Ithaca, Oneonta, and Wolcott and Wellsville.

A fine collaboration was accomplished by Miss Camagni, the conductor, and a welcome in the Alfred College of Vocal Music and Music Education, the University of Buffalo, New Jersey, and in donating her time because of the special and unique nature of solo singing, without excepting secondaries. Miss Camagni should be strongly encouraged to consider seriously a career in music. Alfred will recall Miss Camagni's splendid performance as a soloist at the opening concert and the "Messiah" was made even more musically a thrill in the hands of the conductor who placed her to the applause of the audience who enthusiastically, from the pathos it knew what it was singing, and immediately drawn from them the last ounce of exhuberance of the "Hallelujah Chorus." Well-deserved praise should have the habit of packing houses to comfortably. Handel's oratorio seems to accommodate audiences more comfortably than he can think.

Fred, the group repeated the "Messiah" last season, and the performance Sunday was particularly pleasing to hear two of our own students, Miss Camagni and Mr. Robert Ruderick, who was the one that produced him.
