

From the Editor . . .

We Failed . . .

The purpose of this editorial is to insult your intelligence: we are going to draw a diagram.

The only thing that was accomplished by last week's editorial was to prove that the disease "self" is even more prevalent than we dared assume. It was hoped that the contrast between the Hungarian appeal and the Buffalo incident would be quite evident to a thinking student body.

In Hungary last week a number of students marched out in the cause of freedom only to be cut to ribbons. The previous week a few overly-spirited students are presumed to have marched off to Buffalo, etc. How the latter could take precedence over the immediacy of the first is beyond our comprehension.

As we go to press, if we may be so crass as to put it in these terms, the students at Alfred feel $35 worth of moral responsibility toward the needs of the Hungarian people. It is rather disheartening to find that, on a college campus supposedly populated by maturing men and women, students can't see past their next exams or big weekend date. The terrifying thought is that someday many of these "thinking" college students will be in a position to formulate decisions that will directly affect the lives of others.

It has been suggested that the FIAT won a victory in the Senate last week. Our only feeling in the matter is that we have failed. We have failed to impress upon the student body what it means to show compassion toward the needs of others.

The Death of an Idea . . .

The Alfred Student Christian Fellowship is planning a series of discussions on the topic of sectarianism on the college campus. Since the scope of the meetings has not yet been clearly defined, we are not certain whether the group is going to consider activities on other college campuses or restrict their discussion to the aspects of sectarianism here.

The group's topic has been a recurring theme on this campus for a number of years; it wasn't so long ago when the Fiat Lux started a forum with the fraternities to discuss the same issue. . .

It's a story entitled "The Death of an Idea." The authors were the Interfraternity Council and the student body of Alfred University.

The story is a rather short farce that has more characters than plot development. It goes something like this: Once upon a time a Fiat staff took the time to meet with all the fraternities on campus in an attempt to make some sense and establish a logical approach to the sectarian problem on campus rather than resort to the ineffective procedures that had been used in the past.

The "Fiat," the "forum" (or idea), and the "Interfraternity Council" made a fairly compatible threesome. Though sporadically strained, the group held a number of meetings and progressed until at one point over sixty fraternity men sat together and discussed the problem somewhat intelligently. There was an untimely separation for a few months during the summer, but at the last meeting of the group, it was decided to continue the forum the following semester.

Chapter Two of our story began the following semester. The Fiat was approached by the President of the Interfraternity Council. He felt that complete responsibility for the continuance of the forum should be handled by the Council. We were pleased that the Council wanted to assume the task of carrying on the forum within their organization.

The last chapter ended something like this; we stood there watching "Idea" and Interfraternity Council walk from the Fiat office hand-in-hand. We felt that our story was to end happily, but it ended in tragedy because neither has been heard from since.

The above editorial is not intended to insult your intelligence but to bring you to use it. Attend the next meeting of the A.S.C.F. Sunday, December 2. And if anyone knows the whereabouts of "Forum" or "I. F. Prexy" please put them to work, if not return the important one to the Fiat office.

Yale University to Donate $3500 To Hungarian Freedom Movement

Yale University has collected nearly $1,000 and has pledged an additional $2,500 toward the cause of the Hungarian people.

This came as the result of a five-day working rally. The rally began Wednesday, November 7, when a group of students gathered at dinner and decided to try to get some action on the plight of the Hungarian refugees of Russian aggression, with particular stress on the need of those students who had escaped to Austria.

The next day a meeting was called which was attended by representatives of all major organizations on campus. As soon as this group had set Monday, November 12, as the date for a mass rally, the publicity for this rally was set in motion. Campus and local papers, posters, leaflets, and the use of a public address system insured everyone's knowing about the rally.

At the same time fund-raising apparatus was set up. Captains were chosen for each dormitory; solicitation stations were placed in all strategic locations; pledge sheets were made up and distributed. The speeches for the rally were arranged, and student groups were urged to pledge publicly at the rally. The International Rescue Committee and the World University Service, both with headquarters in New York, were consulted, and descriptions of the need in Hungary and exactly how the money was to be used were obtained for distribution.

On Monday night, November 12, some 1300 people crowded the major auditorium, where they heard students and faculty leaders give "impassioned but restrained appeals." William C. DeVane, dean of Yale College, contrasted the role of the University as a calming influence with the function it performed at the rally. He asserted that the "times call for something more than sympathy; they call for action."

The Alfred drive to collect money on behalf of the Hungarian people will continue until just before Christmas vacation.

Campus Vote

Last Tuesday, the Student Senate decided to conduct a campus vote on the Buffalo painting incident. All University students will have an opportunity to cast a ballot for or against the assumption of financial responsibility, by the student body through the Senate, for the recent pre-football game episode.

Voting will be held from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., Wednesday, December 5, through Friday, December 7. Senators will conduct the balloting in the Student Union.

Near East Talk

There will be a meeting of the Political Science Club at 8:30 p. m., November 27, in room 3, Kanakadea Hall.

The meeting will feature a discussion on the Near East. All are invited to attend.

Mara and Company to Interpret In Dance "The Legends of Cambodia"

The Thursday after the student body returns from the Thanksgiving recess the second Forum, Mara and her dancers interpreting "Legends of Cambodia," will be performed.

Mara and her group have played in every country in the Far East as well as in Paris, London, the United States, and Canada. She has been featured on TV's "Show of Shows" and was a consultant to Jerome Robbins for the Siamese dances in "The King and I."

Mara, of Russian and French parentage, was born in Manchuria, grew up in Cambodia, lived in China, Java, and Maylaya and was educated at The Sorbonne.

She has studied under the famous dancers of Asia: Ram Gopal of India; Ngadimanga, at the Sultan's court in Java; and in Cambodia with Noce-Rei at the palace of Pnom Pehn.

"Legends of Cambodia," which she will perform November 29, was composed by Mara "in the particular spirit, grace and beauty of Cambodian dance. She uses the Cambodian dance idiom in the same way as other choreographers create dance in the idiom of classic ballet. For her themes she has drawn on the folk lore of Asia.

Cambodian dance is of ancient origin and is believed to be linked with the vanished Kingdom of Angkor Vat. The six-square-mile temple of Angkor was recently discovered after hundreds of years buried in the jungle of Indochina.

Of Mara and her group the New York critic of "Dance Observer" wrote, "A fine demonstration of how exotic dance idiom may be used to produce an intense dramatic effect on western audiences. . . . Alongside of her status as a serious dancer, Mara's delectable humor made for a theatrically satisfying experience."

Letter to the Editor

Editor
Fiat Lux
Dear Sir:

This past week all houses on campus received a letter from Student Senate President, Erf Porter. The subject of this letter was the Senate's motion to the effect that "Every student be assessed proportionately to the amount of damage done to the University of Buffalo's campus." Included in this letter was the statement that the Student Senate had previously agreed almost unanimously "(1) That a letter be sent to the proper administrative and student officials of the University of Buffalo apologizing for the action on the Thursday evening prior to the game. Actions or action of presumably Alfred University students. (2) That the responsibility of these actions be assumed, not by the particular students involved, but by the student body as a whole."

Erf later writes that he assumes the student body wants to "assume the responsibility (moral and financial)."

This is the greatest point of contention in the letter, to me. I think he is assuming too much in feeling that the student body as a whole should take the responsibility for the vandalism of a few. There are students on this campus who came here with the express purpose of gaining an education and a more mature outlook on life. Is it the fault of the student body that we have those enrolled who are obviously not striving for such goals?

Sincerely,
Suzanne Koster

To the Editor:

Your editorial of November 13 deserves a well done. It is frequently mentioned, but bears repeating: In the name of a whimpering humanity, we must remember that as John Donne said so long ago: "No Man is an Island, but part of the Main."

To consider your editorials together for a brief moment — The problem presented is this: The price of vandalism as opposed to the price of moral responsibility. The contrast of college spirit against voluntary giving for an oppressed people.

I cast one lost vote toward this proposition: In monetary terms — assessment for the Emergency Appeal for the Hungarian People and for a voluntary contribution toward restitution of the Buffalo incident. This is something we can do: The results would amaze even the most hardened cynic. If this proposition is given serious consideration, it would do much to restore the limping faith I share with so many others. Again — WELL DONE.

Philip W. Meriam

Older men declare war. But it is the youth that must fight and die. And it is the youth who must inherit the tribulation, the sorrow, and the triumphs that are the aftermath of war—Herbert Hoover.

Student Senate Explains Duties

The Student Senate was presented at the November 16 assembly. Erf Porter, president of the Student Senate, introduced the officers and committee chairmen and explained their functions.

He pointed out that the Senate is the only elected representative body on campus, that it serves to conduct programs or to see that they are conducted, and that the students' needs are served by the Senate.

Erf then asked various officials and committee chairmen to report on the achievements and progress of their activities.

As a final note, plans for an all-campus vote was announced for the purpose of determining the assumption of financial responsibility for the damages done to the University of Buffalo. The vote will be taken after Thanksgiving.

CLUB NEWS

A. O. C.

Frank Roger, president of the Alfred Outing Club, has announced that persons planning to ski this winter should bring ski boots back with them from Thanksgiving vacation, as skiing will begin as soon as there is enough snow. Much of the skiing will be done on Swain Hill in Hornell. Details will be disclosed after vacation.

Various activities were discussed at the AOC meeting Tuesday night and it is probable that the club will sponsor the following: roller skating at nearby rinks, swimming at the YMCA in Hornell, horseback riding at a stable near Dansville and snowshoeing around Alfred. These activities will be open to all students interested in participating.

A. S. C. F.

The Alfred Student Christian Fellowship held its Thanksgiving service at Howell Hall November 18. Following the organization's worship service and program, the group attended a union Thanksgiving service in the Seventh Day Baptist Church. The congregations and youth fellowships of the Union Church and the Seventh Day Baptist Churches in Alfred and Alfred Station also attended the service.

BUSINESS CLUB

Mr. G. C. Durkin of the personnel department of Eastman Kodak, was the guest speaker at the Business Club meeting November 8.

In his talk, Mr. Durkin stated that college students should be concerned with three factors in a job interview. The interviewees should make a complete self-analysis of the field in which they desire employment and should analyze concerns in the fields of their choice. Most concerns make this easy by their publication of company literature. The speaker stressed that the interview itself is not a contest between interviewer and the potential employee but merely an opportunity for both persons to get acquainted. Few questions should be answered by a yes or no, but if answered in this way they should be qualified.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB

Last week's meeting of the International Club was held in the home of Mrs. Brasted in Hornell. There the club met a group of young American couples from Hornell and the surrounding area. Mrs. Brasted played host to both groups for Sunday evening supper.

BADMINTON CLUB

At a meeting of the Alfred University Badminton Club held at South Hall on Sunday, it was decided that the possibility of having top national badminton players exhibit their skills on the campus would be advantageous to all interested students.

In order to provide more opportunities for all those who are interested, badminton practice will be held every Friday at 7:30 p.m., and every Sunday at 2:30 p.m. Instructions will be provided for all beginners.

FRENCH CLUB

The French Club had its monthly meeting Sunday evening at Kenyon Hall. Short talks were given by Camille Crofoot, Gertrude Hoehner, and Linda Fink, who also showed slides, concerning their experiences in France.

Props Present Problem But You Never Can Tell

by Bonnie Gross

Question: What do a Victorian dentist chair, a saddle-bag ottoman and a mortar and pestle all have in common?

Answer: All are "props" to be used in "You Never Can Tell."

"Props" is theater jargon for "properties," which are any items within the walls of a set. There are hand props, such as a walking cane or a telegram or a cigar; these are items handled by an actor. There are set props, which include the furniture and the "dress" or "trim," which are the extra decorative touches, such as flower vases. Sound effects — creaking doors and tolling bells, for example — and visual effects not caused by light — rain, snow and smoke — are also included in the props department.

This year, Sylvia Johnson heads the Footlight Club's prop department. Sylvia's first job is to read the play and list by acts and scenes the necessary items. She then checks this list with the director, Professor C. Duryea Smith III, to eliminate the non-essentials and to add any extra props he may want. The third step is often the hardest: obtaining the props by begging, borrowing or stealing them; they may also be rented, found or made.

Props are acquired from many sources. In "You Never Can Tell," the dental tools are borrowed from Linda Rahl, who uses them in wood sculpture. The mortar and pestle are lent by the chemistry lab. The bell pull is made. In college productions most of the props are made, but occasionally Lady Luck ferrets out an item. This was certainly the case last year, when an old-fashioned baby carriage with a tasseled umbrella was needed. The frame of one was found one day in a field on the outskirts of town and students were then able to reconstruct the rest of it.

Even after Sylvia has procured all the necessary items, her job is only half-completed. The second half entails their use during the performance. The props are placed in order of their usage on prop tables on either side of the stage.

Miller Changes Beneke's Name

When Tex Beneke and his orchestra play in Alfred for the Interfraternity Ball November 30, the featured vocalist will be a pretty young lass named Nancy Drew.

The Beneke orchestra will supply the "Music in the Mood" while Tex and Nancy will do the vocalizing. Featured in the Beneke list of songs will be all of the ones made famous by Glenn Miller, just as they originally sounded with Beneke on the vocals.

Beneke first got his nickname of Tex from Miller. Tex joined the Miller organization through the recommendation of Gene Krupa.

When Miller started toying with the idea of putting his own band in the field, Krupa told him of the great young saxophonist he had heard while on the road. Miller promptly wired Beneke to come to New York.

When Beneke shuffled into the hall where the Miller crew was rehearsing, he extended his hand to Miller and smiling broadly he drawled, "Hi'ya Glenn, Ah'm mighty proud to be heah."

"Get out your horn, Tex, and let's hear you play," said Glenn, and from that time on it was "Tex," and not Gordon Lee Beneke.

At each table, Sylvia or an assistant stands ready to hand a prop to an actor at the proper time. If the actor carries it offstage, it must be replaced on the table in its original position; if it is left onstage at the end of the scene or act, it must be retrieved. Between performances the props are locked up in the prop closet located on the extreme right portion of the stage. After the final show, the borrowed properties are returned as soon as possible to their owners, and the others are stored in a permanent prop closet for use in a future play.

SPANISH CLUB

Plans were made for the November 28 meeting of the Spanish Club at a meeting of the committees of the club held last Tuesday.

Two interesting and unusual films on Spain will be shown, followed by a round table question and answer period on the customs and culture of Spain. The meeting is open to everyone.

The scenes shown included different aspects of the life of the people, their shrines, statues and gardens.

SENIOR ENGINEERS

Alfred's senior ceramic engineers are presently on their annual plant inspection trip, to see first hand a cross section of the ceramic industry as it exists today. The trip, which began Sunday, November 11, will last through Saturday, November 17.

The forty-nine students accompanied by faculty members, C. W. Merritt and R. M. Campbell, will tour such places as the Glen Gery Shale Brick Company, the Universal Atlas Cement Company, the U.S. Steel Corporation and the Philco Corporation. The tour covers New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

What young people are doing at General Electric

Young engineer sells million-dollar equipment to utilities

Selling electric equipment for a utility substation—a complex unit used in power transmission and distribution—requires extensive technical knowledge of the products involved. Men who sell such complex equipment must also know a customer's requirements, what will best fill his needs, and how to sell the merits of their products to the executives who buy such apparatus.

One such man at General Electric is 31-year-old Allen J. Clay, an apparatus sales engineer serving the electrical utility companies in the Philadelphia-Allentown area.

Clay's Work Is Important, Diversified

For Clay, technical selling is not a door-to-door job. As a representative of General Electric, he must be ready to discuss customer needs with vice presidents or help solve intricate problems with skilled engineers. His recommendations are based on his own engineering background, and are backed up by the know-how of the Company's best application engineers. His interest in working with people carries over into his community life, where he takes a part in many local activities—Rotary, Community Chest, Boy Scouts, and his University Engineering Alumni Association.

27,000 College Graduates at General Electric

Allen Clay is a well-rounded individual who has come to be a spokesman for General Electric wherever he goes. Like each of our 27,000 college-graduate employees, he is being given the chance to grow and realize his full potential. For General Electric has long believed this: Whenever fresh young minds are given freedom to make progress, everybody benefits—the individual, the Company, and the country.

Educational Relations, General Electric Company, Schenectady 5, New York

ALLEN J. CLAY joined General Electric in 1946 after receiving a B. E. E. from the University of Virginia in 1945. A naval officer during World War II, Clay managed the Charlottesville, Virginia, office from 1950 to 1955.

Finnerty Sets Mark; Frosh Bow

by Mike Alexander

Alfred completed its dual cross country campaign whitewashing the University of Buffalo 15-44 on the Saxon course, Friday afternoon.

The victory gave the Warriors their highest win total in AU history as the club had a 7-1 record. Two of the wins came in the big meets at Canisius and in the New York State championships.

Buffalo took its second defeat of the campaign after also having won 7 dual contests. The other defeat was at the hands of the Buffalo State squad.

Once again Frank Finnerty's record breaking performance topped the varsity action. Frank ran the 4.35 mile course in 21:56.6 which surpasses his old mark, set earlier in the year against Cortland, of 22:17.5.

The closest man to Frank was Carl Blanchard who was 1:20 off the winning pace. Carl pulled from the pace with about 40 yards to go and just did not have the Saxon team mates for the second spot. All received the same clocking. Third went to Larry Sweet with Joe DiCamillo and Dave Wilcox completing the sweep.

Bob Grudzein, the first visitor to finish, took sixth followed by teammates Carmean Parisi and Ken Becker. Rounding out the top ten were Saxons Larry Eaton and Doug Smith.

Preceding the varsity run was a freshman race that saw the Baby Bulls edge the Saxon yearlings 26-31. Larry Lauer took the win for UB in 15:35.1, establishing a mark as this was the first time the course has been run.

Buffalo's Doug Lang and Don Hughes took second and third with the first finisher for Alfred Charlie Williams who just did miss getting the third slot by one step. Norm Gath, Sanford Smith and George Glaess came home right behind Williams.

Buffalo's Horton took eighth with AU's Schaub, Jaffey and Shaw right behind him.

Intramural Basketball

Anyone interested in entering a team in the intramural basketball league is requested to submit the entry to the IM Board by November 29.

Disa and Data

by Allen Siegel

The winter sports are slowly edging the fall sports out of the picture for another year but there is still lots of big news on the football and cross country scenes.

The athletic department has announced that in '58 the football team will have an eight game schedule again with both American International and Kings Point dropped.

Added to the schedule will be two of the nation's 18 undefeated teams last year. In '58 Juniata College of Pennsylvania will visit Merrill Field. This club has lost 1 game in the past three years. Also playing the Warriors will be Trinity College of Hartford, Connecticut, another unbeaten club in '55.

Next year the football club will play the same schedule as '56 with home clashes against Cortland, St. Lawrence, Buffalo and Brockport.

This corner has also been informed that the AU Quarterback Club dinner, under the leadership of Al "Kampus Kave" Rawady will be held at the American Legion in Hornell December 6. At this time the twice in a row undefeated Saxons will be feated.

Word also has it that there probably will be an informal dinner for the State Champion harriers . . .

Coach Tuttle's boys really brought the trophies home this year . . . Here's hoping for the best in the NCAA's.

For those who didn't know it the final football win was number 175 in the books for AU . . . Don't forget the opening basketball game is December 1 in the Men's Gym against Brockport.
