Bernstein chosen President of American Studies Association

Dr. Malvin Bernstein, professor of English, is the new president of the American Studies Association of America. Dr. Bernstein was elected to the post at the Association's annual meeting in October at Alfred College. He was vice president of the group last year.

The American Studies Association is comprised of College faculty members who are primarily interested in American civilization. The Association, which focuses on interdisciplinary studies, has as its theme the Wolfe meeting, "The Image of America as Revealed in the American Novel, American Art, and Radio and Television." Jazz music as a reflection of America was another topic presented at this meeting. Founded in 1931, the Association has members from colleges and universities in upper New York State.

Dr. Bernstein has been teaching at Alfred since 1940. His major fields of interest are English and American literature. A charter member of the Association of which he is now president, Dr. Bernstein also holds membership in the Modern改革委n Association of America, National Council of Teachers of English, and the American Association of University Professors. He was re-elected to represent the American Council of Learned Societies at Alfred University.

Trials of 'The Crucible' Recall Trials of Miller

The author of "The Crucible" Arthur Miller, received the Avery Hopwood Prize and many other honors for his contribution in the field of a salesman. Born in Brooklyn, Miller grew up wanting to be a writer, but he had to work as a salesman in a shoe store to go to college. As he was about to graduate, he decided after the class meeting. Campus Epidemic Subsides; Movement Sort of 'Flu Away'

The epidemic of upper respiratory infections that was responsible for a three-fold increase in the number of cases reporting to Colvin Health Center has subsided. In the ten-day period prior to the closing of school last month, the average number of people reporting to the Infirmary, which serves both the University and Ag-Tech, each day was well over 200. The figure now is down to about 75, which is only slightly above what the average has been in the past. This high figure is attributed in part to the fact that the enrollments of both the University and the Agricultural and Technical Institute have risen.

During the epidemic, patients were faced with running the Health Center in the most efficient manner. Dr. Donald Rice, the director of the Health Center, has been working with the students to ensure that the center is well-stocked with necessary supplies.

When it came time for the Ugly Man Contest candidates to pose for pictures for the yearbook, they were willing to admit it. Some were. Above, front: Roger Ohnmar, Howie Hatfield; Rear: Dick Pearl, Lloyd Gower, Carl Siegel, Roger Austin. WSB, Miss Alvina May Lavery of the WSB Traveler will be on campus this Friday to interpret the work of the organization. She will also report on conditions at nearby State University around the world.

Interfraternity Week Presents Ball, Rubin, Queen, Basketball

by Pete Shapiro

Patriotism will be held the spotlight during the first weekend after Thanksgiving. Plans for this year's Interfraternity Week are under way at Alfred. Plans for this year's Interfraternity Week are being made and the various fraternities are working on their plans for the weekend.

The Alpha Epsilon Phi fraternity has members from the Alpha Epsilon Phi fraternity has members from the Alpha Epsilon Phi fraternity. The Alpha Epsilon Phi fraternity has members from the Alpha Epsilon Phi fraternity. The Alpha Epsilon Phi fraternity has members from the Alpha Epsilon Phi fraternity. The Alpha Epsilon Phi fraternity has members from the Alpha Epsilon Phi fraternity.
From the Editor...

Fraternity rush party attendance...

... has dropped considerably, percentage-wise, from other years. The present freshmen males do not seem to feel the social "going fraternity" that their predecessors experienced. Whether this apathy toward fraternities is temporary or permanent, or whether it will prove favorable or unfavorable to the campus is not our concern at the moment. Add to this independence, however, the refreshing attitude exhibited by freshmen campaigning for positions as class officers, and you begin to notice a change in the character of incoming classes.

This year's group of freshmen show a marked increase in self-reliance, confidence and assertiveness over other incoming classes. This can most likely be attributed to two factors:

1. In the presence of increased competition for college entrance, colleges and universities have become more selective, more demanding of applicants for admission.

2. The era of the GI Bill and the college vet has been over for awhile, but its influence is just waning. The result is younger classes. These same classes are being forced to take the initiative in areas which they formerly neglected. And since today's new college men represent greater selectivity on the part of educational institutions, they are better equipped to "take the bull by the horns" than their predecessors were.

One of the results...

... of this increased individual directiveness, if it continues to appear in future Alfred classes, will certainly be a growing demand for outlets for student expression and practical experience. To the advanced student, or even the beginner who is sure of his direction, the chance to create is hardly less important than the chance to sit in a classroom studying the creations of others.

The University, therefore, misses a great opportunity when it shrugs groups that sincerely desire expression: the Footlight Club, the Alfred Review, the Katakadin, the Fri., the orchestra, band, chorus and glee club, to name some. Not that all of the aforementioned groups have been ignored. Some have been extremely lucky in their ability to get some financial assistance. Others have been extremely lucky in their ability to get some financial assistance.

Increased enrollment must be met with increased facilities for student education and expression, of which new buildings are but part.

A case in point...

... is the Alfred Review. The annual literary magazine presents the contributions of a sizeable group of creators to an equally sizable audience. Yet the magazine's staff receives no financial backing from the University, and things have come to the point where the staff at times to time are compelled to finance annual publication through advertising being met with outright opposition.

It's about that time of year when the staff of the Review should be organizing. It's rumored that they're ready to "give up the ghost." We can't say that we blame them, but it will be a tremendous loss to the campus if the Review, one of those annual fears which obviously should be more than annual, should fold.

One Million Dollars To Ceramic School

by Steve Chadeff

The voters of New York State approved on Election Day an amendment authorizing a $250,000,000 bond issue for purpose of improvement and expansion of the State University. Dean McMahon, of the Ceramics College, has revealed that the College would receive as its allotment $1,000,000. The College received this news in a letter from Mr. John A. Hill, director of the state's building fund.

David W. Hely, of the Ceramic School, has revealed that the College will use the funds to construct a new building. It has not yet been decided what the building will be used for, or when it will be built and on what part of the campus it will be built.

The new building will provide for the improvement and expansion of the thirty-eight units of the University of the State of New York. There is also a strong possibility that some new units will be opened. The improvements should provide space for an additional 50,000 full-time students. This is expected to meet the demand by an anticipated doubling of the number of high school graduates in the next fifteen years.

This was one of six amendments voted upon at the polls on Election Day. It received more support than any of the others. The total vote throughout the state favored the amendment by better than a two to one majority.

Picture of Salem Witch Trials Is Footlight's November Play

The Alfred University Footlight Club will perform the controversial play in Alumni Hall on Friday, November 23, and Saturday, November 24, the weekend before Thanksgiving.

The theme of the play is "The Crucible," a play about the Salem witch trials, written by Arthur Miller. The play was adapted for television by Steve Chadeff.

The play is set in Salem, Massachusetts, during the witch trials of 1692. The story follows the lives of several prominent citizens of Salem, including John Proctor, the local farmer, and his wife, Elizabeth. The play explores the themes of guilt, innocence, and the dangers of self-expression in a society that values conformity above all else.

The cast features a talented group of students, including Jonathan Smith as John Proctor, Emily Johnson as Elizabeth Proctor, and Michael Brown as Reverend Parris. The play is directed by Professor David Leach, of the Theatre Department.

The play has been controversial since its premiere in 1953, when it was banned in several states due to concerns about its depiction of the witch trials. However, over the years, the play has become a staple of high school and college productions, and is often studied in history classes as well.

In addition to the play, Footlight will also present a series of lectures and discussions related to the theme of the play. These events will take place in Alumni Hall on November 23, and will be open to the public.

Business Club

The Business Club's meeting this week will consist of a discussion on "Production Control." The topic will be presented by Robert X. Carran, an alumnus of Alfred. Mr. Carran is presently employed by the Dunlop Tire and Rubber Co. in their Production Scheduling. He received his B.S. in the field of business in June, 1956.

Eagles In Winter Wonderland As Safety Snows Alfred, 2-0

The show began two hours before game time; both teams missed scoring opportunities for 29 minutes and 40 seconds of the game. Then quarterback Tom Kehoe fumbled back to pass with first down on his own 5, was caught by left guard Leo Torres of Brockport, and fell in the end zone. Result: A "safety tie" turned into a 2-0 win for the Golden Eagles.

Midway in the final period, the Saxons began their final drive carrying them 41 yards to the Brockport 20. However, Alfred missed the first down by 2 yards and the Green and Gold took over to march to the Warriors 5. On second down for State and about a minute remaining in the game, John Farman and Zim Hartnett recovered a fumble by Brockport quarterback Wall Brown which apparently halted the threat.

But on the next play off center, Kohoe went back for the desperation pass and was dropped for a safety and the ball game.

Final Score: Saxons 0; Eagles 2

Saxon Harriers Take Third In NY State Championship Meet

Snowy skies and bitter cold weather were order of the day at AIC Park, a week ago, as the harriers of seven schools met in the New York State Invitational meet. Alfred took part in behalf of Hamilton and the University of Buffalo.

The course was slow because of the weather, and the winning time was a 26:03 clocking by Fred Beall of RPI in second place was Alfred's Joe DeCamillo, 13 seconds off the pace. The most Alfred harrier to cross the finish line was Larry Sweet who finished seventh with a time of 37:14.

Hamilton scored an easy victory with 61 points. However, barely edged Alfred for runner-up honors with 65 points to Alfred's 61. Buffalo State Teachers College, who had taken 5 of the nine previous meets came in fourth with 84 points.

Standing out the scoring for Alfred were Dave Wilson, Carl Blanche, and Charlie Williams who took 25, 26 and 21 respectively.

Coach Tuttle is planning tentatively to send a squad of six varsity and four freshmen harriers to compete at the annual IC-4A meet in New York next Monday.
