University Singers Give A Christmas Program

The Alfred University Singers will perform Handel's Messiah in the Men's Gym, Sunday, December 11, at 8:00 P.M.

The Singers will be composed of 75 voices and 5 soloists, and a chamber orchestra of 20 will accompany them. Dr. Melvin LeMon will direct the group. Mrs. Ada Seidlin will accompany on the piano.

Choruses, recitatives, and arias have been selected from the oratorio to form an hour long program.

Xmas Vacation

Any student who intends to remain on campus during the Christmas vacation should notify the Dean of Men immediately.

Honor Society Taps Women

Alpha Lambda Delta initiated two new members on Thursday, December 8, at the Campus Center. They are Judy Stark and Grace Robertson. Alpha Lambda Delta is a national honorary fraternity of freshman women of high scholastic attainment. A 2.5 index for the first semester or a cumulative 2.5 index for the freshman year is required for admission.

On Sunday, December 4, Alpha Lambda Delta in cooperation with Owens held its orientation tea for all freshman women with an index of 2.0 or over. The purpose of the tea was to acquaint prospective members with the requirements of the organization and its purpose.

What Is Your Opinion Of The Kennedy "Youth Peace Corps?"

During the recent Presidential Campaign, Senator John F. Kennedy detailed a "Youth Peace Corps" program which will offer young men the opportunity to serve as ambassadors of peace for three years in lieu of military service.

The Peace Corps, often called the Point 4 Youth Corps, proposal calls for a body of young men and women of above-average intelligence and zeal to enlist for a period of three years in a type of Foreign Service. For one year they would be given intensive training in the needs, language, and interests of a country. For the remaining two year period they would participate in both government and private technical assistance programs in that country. They would probably be most valuable in the village and rural areas where their semi-skilled labor will prove most useful.

The FIAT LUX would like to know what the Alfred student Alfred student thinks of this proposal. We hope you will avail yourself of our "Letter to the Editor" outlet to acquaint us with your opinions.

On Nov. 1, Sen. Kennedy presented his ideas on the program. The following is an excerpt from his speech:

"Whoever our next President may be—whomever he elects as his Secretary of State—their efforts for successful foreign policy, their efforts for peace, will depend in large measure on the men and women who must carry out that policy. A program for peace can be no better than those who implement it. Our stature abroad can be no more respected or influential than those who speak for us. The policies may be decided at the top—but they are planned and executed here, and accepted or rejected abroad, at a somewhat lower level.

"To win the peace—to prevent another war (and it will not be a war of words)—we need more than words, more than the committees, conferences and goodwill trips. We need a stronger America, militarily, economically, scientifically and educationally. We need a stronger free world, a stronger attack on world poverty, a stonger U.N., a stronger U.S. foreign policy and, above all, a stonger foreign policy staff that is dedicated to peace.

"The harsh facts of the matter are that in three vital areas we have been ill-staffed and ill-represented in the struggle for peace—in our disarmament plan—in our diplomatic and foreign service—and in our technical assistance to under-developed nations. On the other side of the globe, diplomats skilled in the languages and customs of the nation to which they are accredited—teachers, doctors, technicians and experts desperately needed in a dozen fields by under-developed nations—are pouring forth from Moscow to advance the cause of world communism."

"Thinks of the wonders skilled American personnel could work, building good will. There is not enough money in all America to relieve the misery of the under-developed world in a giant and endless soup kitchen but there is enough know-how and enough knowledgeable people to help those nations help themselves.

"I therefore propose that our inadequate efforts in this area be supplemented by a "Peace Corps" of talented young men willing and able to serve their country in this fashion for three years as an alternative to peace time selective service—well-qualified through rigorous standards—well trained in the language, skills and customs they will need to know—and directed and paid by the ICA point four agency we cannot discontinue training our young men as soldiers of war—but we also need them as 'ambassadors of Peace'."

"This would be a volunteer corps—and volunteers would be sought among talented young women as well—and from every race and walk of life. For this nation is full of young people eager to serve the cause of peace in the most useful way."

McMahon Believes Education Is Our Primary Concern

by J. F. McMahon

Today as never before, the people of our country are concerning themselves with education. Each day brings its news releases, magazine articles, specials reports, and new books. "Education" is the catch-word of the day; everyone is in favor of more and better education, and all who are in a position to allocate money for its support are either doing so or are preparing to do so. Directors of industries, foundations and trust funds, individuals and legislators all are sharpening their pencils with a view toward allocating more and more money for teachers' salaries, student assistance, new buildings, new campuses, educational equipment, and educational research.

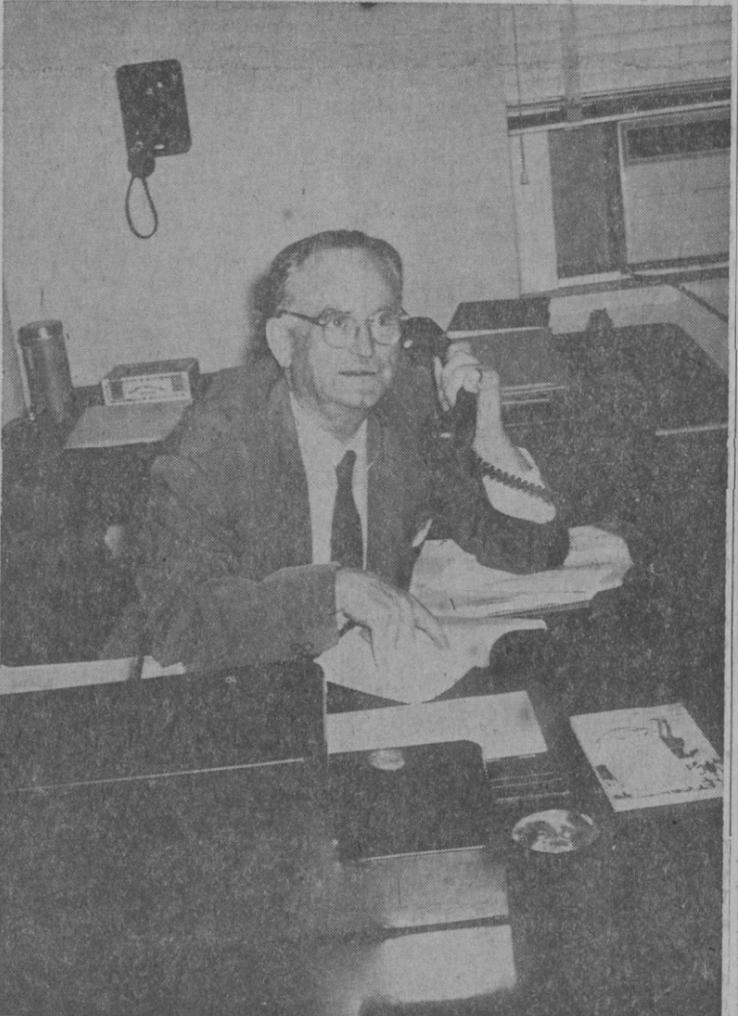

Numerous articles and talks are evidence of the concern that is being given to the financial and other aspects of education. However, the basic question remains: "Why all the fuss about education?" To say that Russia has done this or that may serve to call our attention to certain facts, but it does not answer the question. Therefore, let us consider briefly one answer to this larger question.

Education must be promoted and advanced because it is through education that we learn not only how to recognize and meet our immediate daily responsibilities but also how to prepare ourselves for those responsibilities that will be our tomorrow. During the early years of our lives, our parents or guardians and our teachers, carrying out their responsibilities, saw to it that we learned to walk, to ourselves, to read, and to study; talk, to feed ourselves, to dress and they even dared to hope that we would learn to think for ourselves. At about the time we came to college, we had learned enough to be responsible for providing food, clothing, and shelter for ourselves. As we look back on the early years, we realize that our educational development was supervised by others and that we concerned ourselves little, if any, with its planning or direction. Furthermore, if we are at all analytical, we conclude that all we have previously learned has been to help ourselves with no particular reference to helping others or cooperation with others. Now that we are in college, we find ourselves with new and ever-changing responsibilities. From here on out we are expected to think and act for ourselves; the very planning or direction of our personal development has been shifted from the shoulders of others to our own. We who have been so fortunate as to have been prepared for college, so fortunate as to be financially able to go to college, and so fortunate as to have been accepted by a college have some serious thinking to do concerning our responsibilities. Everyone along our educational paths has said that we are capable of greater than average accomplishment and that we are worthy of continued financial and educational investment. We in our human modesty have agreed ties and for such leadership as we may be called upon to give."

The directors of industry, of foundations, and of trust funds, the individuals and the legislators who will be allocating money for education are not doing so in order that we shall have more take-home pay than the less educated person or that we may be able to lead a more leisurely life. They will be allocating these funds trusting that by their judicious use we shall be made much more aware of the responsibilities that with them. However, do we understand what we have declared by coming to college? We have, in essence, made an unspoken declaration of the following nature and substance: "We recognize that we are being offered opportunities that are being denied other worthy persons, and we know that we shall be expected to carry greater responsibilities than those who will not have our opportunities. We realize that there are great challenges facing the American people of the world. We are determined to prepare ourselves for greater than ordinary responsibilities are ours and that we shall be prepared, willing, and able to carry effectively our share of our country's and the world's burdens.

Those whose responsibility it is to advance our country's way of life are not concerned so much with that fact that we were not first to put a satellite in orbit as they are with the fact that too many of us do not fully appreciate our individual responsibilities in regard to present day affairs nor understand how desperately important it is that we carry them out. It is our responsibility to see to it that each of us carries his share of the load.

Common Market Plans Offer Kennedy Hazards

by Robert Johnson

The European Economic Community created by the Treaty of Rome in 1957 constituted a major advance toward the post-war goal of European unity. The six nations—Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, West Germany, Luxembourg, and France—pledged themselves to "establish the foundations of an ever closer union among the European peoples." They set as their goal a common market with no national trade barriers, the abolishment of customs duties, and the establishment of a common assembly, council and court of justice.

In recent years, the industrial output of Western Europe has increased steadily. Growth since 1957 has been three times greater than that of the United States, and the continent did not experience the American recessions. The Common Market, as the EEC is commonly known, has enabled its members to employ this new economic power more forcefully than was previously possible.

A large foreign program was recently introduced to foster the economic and social development of the Community's former African dependencies. In addition, exports of those countries will enter the Community duty free, while the right to tax imports from the Community will be retained. In this manner, trade preferences held before independence will not be forfeited. This policy will especially aid members of the French Union, who send sixty per cent of their exports to the Common Market. As a result of these preferences, however, Community tariffs will be raised against other African nations. This action will have severe repercussions in Ghana, Nigeria, and Kenya, which ship one third of their exports to Community members. All three are Commonwealth members and as such are involved in a dispute which may prevent the Common Market from fulfilling its potential.

The absence of the United Kingdom from the EEC has placed a major stumbling block in the path to European unity. Concerned with Commonwealth commitments, the British consider it unprofitable to join the Community. They cannot offer trade preferences to both Commonwealth and Community members and still maintain a viable economy. The Commonwealth nations, themselves, have warned

From The Editors . . .

" . . . keep the patient quiet and warm, and UNDER NO CONSIDERATION move him. Call a Doctor."

These or similar words have a ring of familiarity to anyone who has ever participated in the most elementary of Red Cross or other first aid courses. During past years in Alfred, this has become an increasingly hard rule to follow. This may be accounted for because of two basic reasons.

First, there seems to be a general lack of information on the part of the students as to the proper channels which are necessary for the enacting of this rule. In order to obtain the aforementioned medical attention in your place of residence, it is first necessary to inform and convince one's head resident of such need. The head resident or you, must then in turn notify the Dean of Men or Dean of Women as the case may be. It is then the Dean's duty to notify the doctor.

This particular rule was made to incorporate consideration at Alfred University for the medical profession . . . i.e., do not call the doctor in the "wee hours" for coughs, sneezes, aches, pains, and other minor symptoms of colds.

However, even more importantly, it seems to have been made with the idea of covering up what we mentioned before . . . that other basic reason why it is increasingly difficult to obtain medical attention at a residence. Namely, in Alfred, there is no adequate medical facility for a school its size.

At face value, it would seem that indeed, one physician might adequately be able to tend all the health problems encountered by students in the course of the year. However, we must footnote this statement with the fact that this one doctor also maintains a practice within the Alfred community itself. The Alfred community, needless to say, like all other communities, suffers among its population during the course of the year, assorted maladies which time-wise must claim medical attention.

From day to day, as the student population coughs and sneezes, the infirmary efficiently allots each his portion of pills in rainbow shades. These are often the subject of much campus humor, but never the less effective in general. During the course of the week, run-down students also have access to the doctor for their yearly cases of Mono, etc.

However, on weekends, and during those "wee small hours of the morning" . . . consideration hours . . . a student is occasionally struck (as recently illustrated quite vividly) with something which borders more on a serious nature than the "minor aches and pains accompanying a cold" which are so picturesquely described on every aspirin container.

At times like these the student tends to forget channels designated for obtaining medical attention. "Call a doctor," is taken at face value and employed. It seems it would tend to relieve a great deal of anxiety and distress on both sides of the fence if this could be rephrased to read . . . "Call the Resident Physician of Alfred University, a full time employee hired for the sole purpose of serving the needs of University students and staff."

Before Home and Christmas . . .

by Dr. Melvin H. Bernstein

In our Alfred microcosm, in our Campus Center, you sip a coke or coffee while the ceiling amplifier showers the new jazz like stars over your head. You drift into the dim T.V. room, take an old-fashioned posture in a modernistic chair, light your most fashionable filter-tip cigaret, and watch in the framed picture the soap-opera heart of America, the gun-speaking, paladin-ennobled, saga of Western America, the Perry Mason private-eye mind of urban America refresh and invigorate our American idealism. For a stop to conversation, study, or boredom, you climb the squeaking stairs of Alumni Hall and park your body and mind in the companioned dark and watch Hollywood tell us what our dreams of bosoms, Ben Hur, and Bathsheba are made of.

In your room you leaf through the picture store of Life magazine (a subscription paid for by a fond relative). As you study you dial your radio low, pulling in mournful hillbilly music to accompany your assignment in the ambiguities of Hawthorne, the probabilities of thermodynamics, or the relativism of sex mores among the anthropophagi. Pharaoh and Nero were gentlemen compared with some profs.

Outside your window, nature is arranged in obsolete picture postcard fashions that Jackson Pollock or de Kooning disdains. The student next door (your bullsession buddy and confidant) tonight has the phonograph playing the "Pathetique". It's a signal: no bull session tonight; it's time to be alone.

As you pass a dorm room on your way out to the poolroom (or down to wash your gym clothes), someone turns on the news to catch only the weather report, then clicks it off in the middle of a marvelous announcement of a miracle remedy mass-produced to give millions millenary happiness—NoDoze or Sleepeze. You're not sure which. Besides, you're happier with Dristan; secure with a pocket-size package of Kleenex; assuaged by the rhythmic massage of your gums by doublepleasured Wrigley's Gum. On the chair in the downstairs lounge someone has left a copy of MAD comics.

From where you stand you see the Library lights. They're on when the lights are out in 10 Downing Street or in the Department of State Building. Louder than the light is the clackety-clack of white pingpong balls over the greentopped tables in the well-lighted basement room in the Center. You slap slap your side pocket to feel the paperback (insurance that you have something to read, something to mollify the hungerpangs of mind), and you walk. You pass the dorms in front of which sentinel lovers guard the doors like the masonic lions before the 42nd St. Library. You'll see (her) • (him) (Mom) (Dad) (kid sister) (kid brother) soon . . . only two weeks, 14 days, 10 days of classes, four tests, 327½ miles away . . .

The stars are frosty clear. There's a moisture ring around the moon. The public light is on Howell Hall. The feather on Alumni Hall swings in the wind. The lights go out in the Library. The cars (like horses) pull away from their parking stalls near the movies and (unlike horses) show their red taillights in pointed retreat down the hill. The Christmas tree is alight down near Prexy's office.

Back in your room you switch on the desk light, pull out a box of stationery with the university seal on it and Saxon Warriors rampant. You write:

"Hi! I'm sorry I've not been writing more often. But I've been busy. I don't know anything that uses time up more quickly than thinking. I've never before thought such long thoughts and deep thoughts. With a thousand students around me I've never felt so lonely. With thousands of books around me I've never felt so accompanied.

"I miss you. Vacation's coming. I'll be glad to come home. But if I show an anxiousness to get back, don't be disturbed. I feel like an iron filing feels in a magnetic field. And you know what? I like it.

"If you're thinking of Xmas gifts, please hold off. I have a list of paperbacks I want to own, a baker's dozen of LP's I want to bring back, and the names of some off-Broadway shows we just gotta see. I hope there's enough gold left in the country and in Ft. Knox for these things. We can balance the budget by going to the Metropolitan Museum of Art. It's still free, I hope.

"I hope you're satisfied with the election results. According to Kennedy, we're still a frontier country. It's good to know. In the meantime, I'm homesteading it up here. I hope the sixties will be good to us, and that we'll be good for the seventies. I'll explain when I see you. Love and stuff, X."

HAVE ALWAYS HAD an abiding hatred for the bottom crust of rye bread. There is no particular reason for making this point, except that whenever I think of Fort Lauderdale, I think of rye bread. There is no particular reason for that either, but I have been thinking of Fort Lauderdale. Fort Lauderdale is "where the boys are." Right now, that is. Most of the time, serenity reigns in Fort Lauderdale. (The Chamber of Commerce will hate me; they say it never rains in Fort Lauderdale.) But, for two weeks, twenty thousand collegians descend on this peaceful community and take it apart, peace by peace. They call it Spring Vacation, but it's more like amateur night at Cape Canaveral. They capture Florida and throw the Keys away. But I shouldn't joke—not while people are holding mass prayer meetings for an early hurricane season.

This is "where the boys are." And girls, too. Such girls, it makes you dizzy to look at them. If you look long enough, you reach an advanced stage of dizziness called aphrodisiac. It's like being in love. That's what happened to me, and it will happen to you, too. Everywhere you turn—beaches full of them, motels and hotels full of them, cars full of them, pools full of them, bathing suits full of them. Ah, bathing suits . . . when the man said, "It's the little things in life that count," he must have been thinking of bathing suits. But mostly, it's the girls.

Girls in love, girls in trouble, bright girls with a future, not-so-bright girls with a past, rich girls in the lap of luxury, poor girls in any lap that'll have them, girls of every size and discretion. It isn't any wonder that this is "where the boys are." And the things that happen are wacky and wild and wicked and warmly wonderful "where the boys are." Someone should make a movie about it. Hey, someone did! M-G-M calls it "Where The Boys Are," starring Dolores Hart, George Hamilton, Yvette Mimieux, Jim Hutton, Barbara Nichols, Paula Prentiss, with Frank Gorshin and introducing popular recording star Connie Francis in her first screen role. You'll want to see all the things that happen "Where The Boys Are."

Student Outlook

Two national scholarships for college senior girls are being offered for 1961-1962 by the Katharine Gibbs School. These awards were established in 1935 as a memorial to Mrs. Katharine Gibbs, founder and first president of the school.

Each scholarship consists of full tuition ($935) for the secretarial training course, plus an additional cash award of $500. The winners may select any of the four Gibbs schools for their training—Boston, New York, Montclair, or Providence.

Winners are chosen by the Scholastic Committee on the basis of college academic record, personal and character qualifications, financial need, and potentialities for success in business.

Each college or university may recommend two candidates and each candidate must have official endorsement. Students who may be interested in competing for one of these awards may obtain full information from the college placement bureau.

Erie Railroad

A representative of the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad will be in the Campus Center on Tuesday, December 13, from 10 a. m., to 5 p. m., to sell tickets.

Students coming back Monday evening should sign up at the desk for bus transportation back to campus if it is desired.

Attention Seniors

Company representatives coming to Alfred to interview seniors for prospective employment have been complaining about the lack of interest shown. By not responding to these interview opportunities, you are hunting future classes as the company representatives will not waste their time coming to a campus that shows no interest in them. Seniors, let's get on the ball and show them that Alfred students can and will take their place in the world outside.

CAREER OPPORTUNITY PAR EXCELLENCE!

When a hundred people fall ill after a banquet, someone has to find out why, learn the extent of injuries to each victim and settle the claims.

When a corporation charges that one of its employees has stolen company funds, someone has to check the extent of the loss, talk with the suspect and perhaps seek a confession in order for the corporation to recover under its fidelity bond.

When a building under construction collapses, killing and injuring workmen and causing great property damage, someone must determine the cause and costs, and pay for the damage.

True, there are various government agencies that are sometimes interested in such occurrences and make their own investigations. But frequently the most exhaustive and careful checking is done by the insurance investigators because the insurance company must pay for these losses.

Liberty Mutual Insurance Company has a career program for claims investigators who work on just such cases. The company hires only trainees for the department, and all promotions are from within.

Our representative, Karl R. Ulroy, will be on the Alfred campus on the 24th of February, 1961, to recruit college men.

If you wish to make an advance investigation pending Mr. Ulroy's arrival, you can obtain further information about the job and the company at the office of Paul F. Powers, Dean of men.

Fiat Requests Commentary; Kennedy Recommends Plan

Britain against the formation of more cohesive European ties at their expense. They threaten retaliation if their trade preferences are adversely affected. Since forty-five per cent of her exports are sent to the Commonwealth, it is doubtful that the United Kingdom will soon move to enter the EEC. In fact, it has been moving in another direction.

Under the leadership of Britain, six nations—Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Portugal, Switzerland, Austria—have united with her to form the European Free Trade Area. This is merely a trade organization and does not presently aspire to political unity. A twenty per cent tariff reduction among members was recently announced. The full economic potential of Europe, however, can never be realized until the two rival blocs have been reconciled.

A strong move in this direction is being made by the EEC. At the September meeting of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, the Community announced that it will adopt a common tariff lower than the average of the individual members' tariffs. This has been offered in an attempt to induce other European countries to enter the Common Market. It is hoped that the GATT talks will lead to a compromise between the EEC and the EFTA.

In an earlier effort, the Action Committee For the United States of Europe, a Community branch, recommended that Britain and other European nations join in the formation of a single European executive, proposed direct election of a European Parliament and advised the formation of a coordinated foreign aid program. The present nationalistic cravings of Charles de Gaulle and a general go-slow attitude throughout Europe, however, make adoption of the proposals a distant possibility.

The United States is presently supporting the Common Market and is growing impatient at British reluctance to reach an agreement. A European trade war, hinted at by Britain, would hurt American trade and weaken the West's position throughout the world. Britain has also threatened to withdraw her troops from West Germany, thus crippling the NATO alliance. This move would lead to the destruction of a cornerstone of American foreign policy. The chief task of President-elect Kennedy will be to use American influence to bring about a merger of the two groups before their European tug-of-war pulls the Western alliance apart. Kennedy will also have to deal with de Gaulle, who has flatly stated that the EEC will never be transformed into a single European state. Union of Europe is the ultimate aim of the Treaty of Rome.

Individually, the European states cannot compete with the United States and the Soviet Union. If they are to exert influence in today's world, they must combine their efforts behind a single purpose. This will be a difficult task, one which will bring initial hardships to many people, yet it is a necessary one, and must be accomplished. Both the European Economic Community and the European Free Trade Area are steps in the right direction. Unfortunately, the steps lead down different paths. The Western world will benefit greatly if these paths merge into a single broad road leading to European unity.

Dr. George Young is Editor Of New Book Entitled "Fuel Cells"

Dr. George Young, associate professor of chemistry, is the editor of a recently published book on fuel cells which generate electricity from common fuels without burning them.

The book is entitled "Fuel Cells." It concerns the devices which convert the chemical energy of common fuels directly into electrical energy. Their principle advantage is far greater efficiency than can be obtained by the conventional three-step process of burning to produce heat, using the heat to run an engine, and using the mechanical power to run a generator. "Fuel Cells" offers a scientific analysis of where and how fuel cells can be applied at present and when and under what conditions they may be employed in the future.

The 14-page volume edited by Dr. Young is based on a Symposium at which he served as chairman. The symposium was sponsored by the Gas and Fuels Division of the American Chemical Society during its fall meeting in 1959.

A.U. Senior Has Poetry Published

Fred Grayson, a senior at Alfred University, has had his poem, Symphony of Spring, accepted by the National Poetry Association for publication in the Annual Anthology of College Poetry. This is the second of Fred's poems to be published by the Anthology. An English major, Fred lives in Great Neck, N.Y., and is a brother of Kappa Nu.

The Anthology is a compilation of the finest poetry written by the college men and women of America, representing every section of the country. Selections were made from thousands of poems submitted.

Student Wives

There will be a meeting of University student's wives on Sunday, December 11, at 7:30 in the University Room of the Campus Center. Refreshments will be served, and everyone is welcome.

Guild Will Hold Sale on Sunday

The Alfred Guild, an organization of upperclass ceramic design students, will hold a sale of art work on Sunday, December 12, from 12 P.M. to 9 P.M. The work in the sale will have been judged for a desired quality by Mr. Turner, Mr. Cushing, and Mr. Wood, all of the Design Department. This system enables the Guild to keep up the desired standard of work which they feel should represent the organization.

During the sale, Mrs. Cushing will give a Raku demonstration. This is the Chinese ritual of making teapots for their tea ceremony. A glaze kiln, containing student ceramic work, will be opened to give some idea of how ceramic ware is produced.

ANNOUNCING:

AIR FORCE OFFICER TRAINING SCHOOL FOR COLLEGE GRADUATES

Three-month course leads to a commission as a Second Lieutenant. If you are graduating this June, you may be eligible for admission to the new Air Force Officer Training School. Successful completion of the three-month course wins you a commission, and a head-start on a bright, rewarding future in the Aerospace Age.

The School is open to men and women college graduates with certain technological and administrative skills. If you are selected for the School, you will receive Staff Sergeant pay while a trainee. Graduated officers may later apply for advanced training and graduate study at government expense. Male officers may also apply for flight training as pilots or navigators.

For the career-minded young officer, the Air Force way of life can be stimulating, exciting and full of meaning. He will be serving himself, his family and his nation. This is the Aerospace Age. It is a time when a career in Air Force blue has so much to offer the young man or woman who qualifies.

The Air Force is seeking only a select group of college graduates for admission into Officer Training School. However, we'd be happy to send detailed information to any senior who is interested. Just write: Officer Training School Information, Dept. SCO 12, Box 7608, Washington 4, D.C.

There's a place for tomorrow's leaders on the Aerospace Team. U.S. Air Force

Fiat Previews 1960 Grapplers

by Larry Schechter

On Jan. 7, the Saxon wrestling team opens up its season against Union here at Alfred. The following is the tentative starting lineup for the Purple and Gold Matmen:

At 123lb will be Junior John Gutierrez who finished with an 8-1 record last year. Filling the 130lb slot will be either Junior Herb Oliver or Sophomore Ten Linder. Either Dave Frey or Linder will wrestle at 137lb. Bill Crosetta is the tentative 147 pounder. As it stands now the 157lb class is open and upperclassmen with wrestling experience are welcome to try out for this spot.

If any of the grapplers fail to get down to their required weight, Sophomore Richie Sigal will most likely move into the 123lb slot and each consecutive man will move up one weight class.

At 167lb will be Dick Gross who has three years of college wrestling experience. A newcomer to the team is Bob Preston at 177lb. Coach Yunevich describes Preston as a "tiger". Senior Dave Daigault will be the Saxons' heavy-weight wrestler.

There are several openings on the frosh team and any interested freshmen with experience should report to the Gym from 3:00 to 6:00 p.m. on any weekday. The frosh have two matches scheduled so far, both of which are at home. The first will be against Alfred Tech on Jan. 16, and the second is against the Buffalo Frosh on March 1. Two more matches will be arranged for the frosh.

Alex Zoldan was chosen to the ECAC First Team North as starting tackle.

After Hours

In the football game between Kappa Nu and Delta Sig for the intramural football championship Delta Sig won 22-6. Delta Sig's standout was team work. This makes the 2nd year Delta Sig wrapped up the football trophy. Tom Sage's brilliant running was outstanding, as was Jim Kornish's deadly eye and rubber arm. KN was handicapped by the loss of two starters, Steve Steinberg and Howie Gabe, who were away on a basketball trip.

The standings in Volleyball as of this week are as follows:

	WON	LOST
Lamba Chi	6	0
Kappa Psi	7	2
Klan	9	3
Kappa Nu	9	6
Cannon	8	7
Delta Sig	5	7
Stompers	2	7
Bartlett	3	9
Tau Delt	2	10

The results of the past week are:

November 28
Lambda Chi 3	Cannon 0
Kappa Psi 2	Cannon 1
Klan 3	Bartlett 0
November 29
Klan 1	Kappa Nu 2
Cannon 3	Delta Sig 0
Tau Delt 2	Stompers 1
November 30
Cannon 3	Bartlett 0
Kappa Nu 2	Delta Sig 1
Lambda Chi 3	Tau Delt 0
Kappa Psi 3	Stompers 0
December 3
Kappa Nu 2	Cannon 1
Bartlett forfeited to	Delta Sig
Klan 3	Tau Delt 0

FROM THE SPORTSDESK

by Stu Kellerman

The earth hazily revolved around him as he reached for the finish line. Then, in an instant, his momentary nausea was swept away by relieving calm. Larrie Sweet finished his last cross country race for Alfred University.

We've long been fans of Larrie's, from the days in which he swallowed the dust kicked up by ex - teammate, Frank Finnerty, until his recent emergence as one of the all - time greats of Saxon athletics. His superior natural ability, aided by innumerable hours of practice, has made him a member of the nation's cross country elite.

Larrie Sweet

"Sweets" led the 1960 harriers through an undefeated season in all dual and triangular contests and wins in the New York State Meet, and Canisius Invitational. As a fitting ending to an already brilliant year, he was the first Alfred runner to come across the finish line in the squad's eleventh place performance at the national championships.

Probably, the pinnacle of his career was his recent second place finish in the I.C.4A. meet held in New York's Van Cortland Park, where he just fell short of defeating Brown University's Bob Lowe. As a surprising aftermath, he soundly trounced Lowe in the N.C.A.A. meet.

A large part of the credit for Sweet's success is due to mentor, "Doc" Tuttle. "Doc" donates all his spare time to "his boys." He's not a harsh martinet, but as Larry says, "he manages to get you to work anyway."

In September, we ominously looked forward to a mediocre cross country season. Only by the constant dependability of

Cagers Down Brockport St. In Opener

by Stuart Lestch

The Alfred Saxons opened their 1960-1961 basketball season last Thursday night with a thrilling 68-66 victory over Brockport. Alfred held a commanding lead from midway in the first half until the last minute of the game. At that point, Brockport cut the Saxon's eight point lead to two points. The game was highlighted by Alfred's fine defense and Loren Eaton's rebounding. Eaton grabbed 23 rebounds. High scorer for the Saxons was Steve Steinberg with 20 points. Close behind Steinberg was Mike Mishkin with 19 points. Brockport's high scorer was their Little All-American Dick Kraft with 24 points.

Brockport jumped to an early 18-15 lead with eleven minutes gone in the first half. Mishkin then scored on a driving layup, a hook shot, and a set shot to put the Purple and Gold into a 21-18 lead. With three minutes left in the half, Steinberg scored ten straight points to increase the Alfred lead to 31-24. The half ended as the Saxons led 37-28.

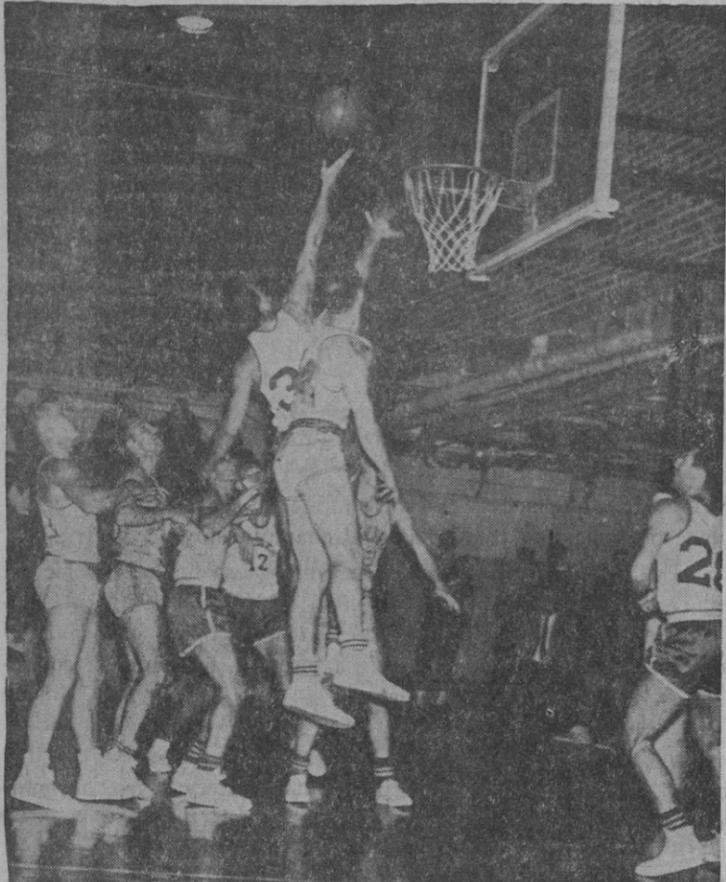

The second half saw Eaton and Howie Gabe take over the scoring and keep the nine point Alfred lead. Eaton scored a driving layup. Gabe then added six straight points and Eaton again put in a layup, bringing the score to 47-38.

With 40 seconds left to play, Alfred held at 68-60 lead. Brockport's Bob Gumaer sunk a foul shot, Kraft also scored a foul shot, Dick Boardman hit with a layup, and Kraft scored a layup to bring the totals to 68-66. The game ended with a scramble for the ball.

The Saxon frosh also opened their season on a winning note with an impressive 79-64 victory over the Brockport freshmen. Dave Lefkowitz was high scorer with 24 points, although he fouled out with twelve minutes remaining in the game. Next in scoring were Nick Ferreri with 16 points, Murray Lindsley, 14 points, Pete Rowan, 11 points, and Fank Romeo, 9 points. The frosh showed a lot of hustle and played an inspired game.

Joe McLarney fights for a rebound in second half of Brockport game. Phil Redstone, Loren Eaton, and Al Walker are the other Alfred players.

Hoopsters Lose To U. of Rochester

by Stuart Lestch

Last Saturday night, the Alfred basketball team suffered their first defeat of the season losing to the University of Rochester by a score of 77-65. The Saxon's trailed by only three points at halftime but Rochester's height proved to be the deciding factor in the second half. The Alfred freshman won their second straight game by downing the Rochester cubs 69-62.

Early in the first half, Alfred jumped to an 11-8 lead on the merits of Steve Steinberg's jump shots and Henry Landman's set shots. This lead was short lived as Rochester's 6-7 and one half center Jim Sweet dumped in four layups to pull Rochester ahead. Mike Mishkin kept Alfred in contention hitting on a layup, foul shot, and jump shot. Rochester then went ahead 34-25 but Steinberg scored eight straight points as the half ended with Rochester leading 36-33.

Rochester's Tom Flynn and Mike Berger opened the second half with eight points to put Rochester into a ten point lead. Steinberg, Mishkin, and Joe McLarney then brought Alfred to within five points of the Yellowjacks. With 12:25 remaining to play, Loren Eaton fouled out. This gave Rochester dominance in rebounding and they jumped into a 14 point lead.

Then with 5:05 left to play, Steinberg drove in on a fast break but his momentum carried him past the basket. He lost his balance, fell, and was unable to remain in the game. Steve was kept overnight at Strong Memorial Hospital for observation and was reported in good condition.

FROM THE SPORTSDESK

Joe DiCamillo, Jim Scot, Bob Lwcowicz, Charley Williams, Larry Sweet, and Dan Speck, was the squad able to roll up victory upon victory.

Of course as Larrie was quick to admit, "it's always great to have a group of spectators in your corner." Dean Gertz, Dean Powers, Doctor Myers, and Miss Tupper were the core of a small group of weary fans who came out on Saturday mornings to offer moral support to the squad. It's a shame that in both home contests, only a sparse handful of spectators was waiting at the finish line to greet the harriers as they completed the gruelling four and a half mile trek.

Lysle "Spike" Garnish, Hobart College's basketball coach, died last Sunday morning. He had been at Hobart for ten years after a twenty year stay at the University of Rochester.

Candidates for varsity and freshman wrestling are urged to report to the gym for daily practice between 3 p.m. and 6 p.m.

Freshmen will have matches if enough turn out for a full team.

Cross Country

by Bill Stutman

Shortly before the Thanksgiving recess, Alfred's varsity cross-country team made its final appearances of the season as it ran in the ICAAAA Meet in New York City and in the NCAA Meet at East Lansing, Mich.

In the ICAAAA Meet, Larrie Sweet ran the finest race of his varsity career as he took second place in the meet. Trailing at the start, "Sweets" kept on moving up and at the half-way mark he was up with the lead runners. Larrie fought hard against Bobby Lowe of Brown all the way, but finished a few yards behind him.

In the NCAA Meet, "Sweet's" captured twelfth place running against the finest competition in the country. Although Alfred placed nineteenth in the ICAAAA and eleventh in the NCAA, it must be noted that Alfred was the only "small" school in the meets which featured such track giants as Army and Penn State. The Harriers made a fine showing against overpowering competition.
