

Zupan discusses newest book, 'Inside Job' at Manhattan Institute for Policy Research

4/14/17

On April 7, Alfred University President Mark Zupan discussed his newest book, Inside Job: How Government Insiders Subvert the Public Interest, at a meeting of the Manhattan Institute for Policy Research, at the Princeton Club in New York City.

The book is published by Cambridge University Press.

Zupan also has reviewed his book at an invited talk at the Cato Institute, in Washington, D.C. Jonathan Rauch, a Senior Fellow at the Brookings Institute, was the lead reviewer.

An audio file of Zupan's appearance at the Manhattan Institute is available at:

<https://www.dropbox.com/s/w522gzz9kswxutk/MANHATTAN%20INSTITUTE%20MONO-023.wav?dl=0>

Zupan is the co-author of two previous books, Microeconomic Theory and Applications (with E. K. Browning), published by John Wiley and Sons, and Microeconomic Cases and Applications (with T.W. Gilligan and A.M. Marino), published by HarperCollins.

He will discuss Inside Job: How Government Insiders Subvert the Public Interest, at Alfred University's Bergren Forum on May 4, at 12:10 p.m. in Nevins Theater.