

PA&SS to Present AIDS Forum

Darryl Moch

An AIDS forum will be conducted on Thursday, Nov. 12 at 8:00 p.m. in Susan Howell Hall by Michael Hirsch and attorney Michael Clousen. The forum is being sponsored by Student Affairs.

Michael Hirsch will discuss such topics as: the nature of AIDS, who is at risk, how to prevent the disease, and the latest research and scientific breakthroughs. He will also discuss the nature and meaning of ARC (AIDS Related Complex).

Michael Clousen will discuss the legal aspects of AIDS while focusing on questions concerning individual rights and responsibilities, the legal aspects of this growing disease, public health issues, AIDS and public schools, and the issue of privacy rights for AIDS victims.

Jazz Band to Perform Nov. 15

Laurel Buckwalter

The Division of Performing Arts will present Festifall, an evening of jazz and contemporary music by the AU Chorus and Jazz Ensemble, on Sunday, Nov. 15 at 8 p.m. in Harder Hall.

Under the direction of Laurel Buckwalter, the chorus will perform six numbers including Duke Ellington's "It Don't Mean a Thing if It Ain't Got That Swing", Stevie Wonder's "Overjoyed" and "Memory" from Cats. Accompanists are Paul Cuddihy and Laurie Smith, with Bill Bretson on bass and Jeff Greenwald on drums.

Special features include Dr. Steven Fry, professor of chemistry, singing the table of elements, and Dr. James Rausch, presenting the positive aspect of nuclear war in "We Will All Go Together When We Go." Four faculty members, Doctors Furlong, Laughner, Fry, and Rausch will present four ways to approach a writing assignment in "The Book Report" from "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown." N. Shashidhar will make his debut on jazz violin, performing "Billy" by Stephane Grapelli.

The AU Jazz Ensemble's program will include "Take Five" by Brubeck, "Birdland" by Zawinul, "Night in Tunisia" by Gillispie, and "Jumpin at the Woodside" by Basie. Mr. Tom Evans directs the group.

Dance and Play Highlight AU Social Calendar

Darryl Moch

For the past 13 years the Student Affairs Office has offered the Performing Artist, Writer, and Lecturer Series. And this year is no exception. We've already seen and heard many outstanding artists, and there are many more to come this and next semester. Some of the upcoming events include:

On Nov. 11, PA&SS will sponsor the Joffery II Dancers in an evening of exciting dance.

The Joffery II Dancers are a smaller version of the Joffery Ballet Company who are preparing to go into the major company.

On Nov. 14, from the same series comes the Tony Award Nominee Musical "Pump Boys And Dinettes." This play has been presented on tour around the United States and Canada. Curtain time is 8:00 p.m. in Holmes Theatre, Harder Hall.

Trustees Convene for Meeting

Sean Hartnett

With the fall academic semester half completed, the Alfred University Board of Trustees once again convened in Alfred.

The Board, comprised of 33 individuals, meets three times a year to discuss school policy and current issues that affect the university.

The main topic of discussion on the Oct. 30 agenda was the University's position on endowment investments. Also discussed was the proposed 9.6 percent raise in tuition.

"Most of the concern and conversation was on the University's future posture with regard to investments as a part of the endowment," said Dr. Edward G. Coll, president of Alfred University.

Attention was focused on the investment concerns of the endowment due to the recent loss suffered in the market crash that occurred two weeks ago. According to Coll, "We lost, I guess on the worst scenario, about $6 million."

The University had $24 million invested in equities under an endowment insurance program designed to cease trading in the event that the market floor reached $19.4 million. The system did not withdraw trading until the floor reached $18 million, which resulted in the loss of approximately $6 million.

In addition to addressing the investment crisis, the Board continued through with their Strategic Plan. The Strategic Plan was adopted by the Board last year to forecast and map future goals of the University.

The designed plan entails for another raise in tuition for the 1988-89 academic year. The Board passed a 9.6 percent increase in tuition and a 6.0 percent increase in room and board.

These tuition increases are the beginning of a plan by the University to raise the standards of living and education at Alfred University. "We have to start bringing things up to standards and provide the students and faculty with the best possible facilities we can," President Coll commented, explaining the purpose of the tuition hikes.

The Strategic Plan calls for the refurbishing and modernization of existing facilities, addition of new facilities, and acquisition of new, high caliber faculty. The Board adopted the plan in the hope of putting Alfred University, according to Barron's Guide, in the "Very Competitive-Plus" category.

Noll Provides a Weekend of Music for A.U.

Stephanie Schermerhorn

Davis Gym was enveloped with rhythm and blues Friday, Nov. 6, as WALF, Alfred University's college radio station presented the Motor City guitar slinger, Robert Noll and his band Blues Mission, who performed in front of an estimated crowd of 350.

At the start of the evening the majority of the crowd was seated, but as the night and the music progressed fewer seats were occupied creating less room on the dance floor.

The band played two sets but the audience was not about to let Blues Mission get away without an encore.

The following night, Saturday Nov. 7, the Student Senate, WALF, the Fiat Lux and the Saxon Inn banded together and presented a second night of the blues. Once again Noll and his band played the blues, this time at a packed Saxon Inn.

The Saxon Inn proved to be a classic place to see a blues band, dark, smokey and extremely crowded.

Craig Peretz, editor of the Fiat Lux, said, "I was glad that the Fiat, WALF, senate and the Saxon Inn could get together to present some live music. It was a great feeling to help sponsor something that the students really wanted - a second night of the blues."

Mens Soccer ECAC State Champs

Chris DeCerbo

The Alfred University men's soccer team became the New York State ECAC Champions in dramatic fashion here on Merrill field by defeating Oswego 3-2 and then blanking Clarkson 1-0. The Saxons now advance to the ECAC Final Four.

The Saxons finished the year with an impressive 10-2-4 record. This guaranteed Alfred a spot in the ECAC tournament, but was not sufficient to qualify for the NCAA's. However, the Saxons were given the home field advantage for the first two rounds of the ECAC's.

In what will probably go down as the best soccer game ever seen at Alfred, AU eliminated Oswego after two ten minute overtimes, two ten minute sudden deaths, and five shoot offs. The Saxons went into halftime tied 1-1 after a goal by Curt Jacobs. After regulation time, the score was tied 2-2 on a goal by Dave Borland. After twenty minutes of overtime and twenty minutes of sudden death, the score was still tied 2-2.

Robert Noll and his band performsome Blues during their recent WALF sponsored concert.

The game would now have to be decided on a shoot off, where each team alternates on five free kicks. The team with the most goals wins.

Oswego shot first and was successful. Alfred countered when Pedro Oregui hit the first for Alfred. Oswego then made their second only to be matched by Mike Gutch. Both teams then missed their third and fourth shots. Oswego then missed their fifth attempt giving them two goals. Alfred was not going to miss three in a row as Dale Bammel fired in the fifth shot for the victory.

The State Championship game was to be against Clarkson, a team Alfred tied this year at Potsdam. It looked to be another tough match as the first half ended tied 0-0. Alfred then struck at the 36:33 mark as Oregui put in a head shot off a corner kick by Tom Gillett. It was all Alfred needed as Clarkson could only engineer one scoring threat, only to see its shot blocked by goal tender Pantxo Irazusta.

The Saxons have to travel to either New Paltz or Drew University for the Final Four Tournament this weekend.

From the Editor: Street Smarts

Last year, Alfred University's College of Business and Administration was awarded professional accreditation by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business (A.A.C.S.B.). To me, this means that the college of business is educating its students extremely well. Unfortunately, this is not true. The students who attend the business school are lacking, "street smarts."

This does not mean that the business school should be teaching its students the proper way to use a gun or knife. What it does mean is that students are lacking certain skills that will enable them to obtain a position and survive in today's business world.

It is unfortunate when I see students that do not know how to write a resume, cover letter or conduct proper follow-up in the search for a job, students that cannot carry on intelligent conversations concerning politics and world events, students who have never heard of the "power lunch" or even the more fashionable "power breakfast" and students who cannot communicate their thoughts or ideas to others.

The college of business has done an outstanding job in teaching its students the theoretical aspect of the business world as well as providing them with the tools (computers and high-grade textbooks) to be competitive (knowledgeable) in this highly competitive industry. However, theory is only part of the knowledge that is necessary to survive in this industry, one must also know how to apply that theoretical knowledge to real-life situations.

I urge the college of business to implement the following changes in order to allow students to gain their "street smarts" and complete their education.

I would like to see a seminar program (where attendance would be mandatory), similar to the one that the school of engineering has created for its students. Topics could include: the proper resume and cover letter, getting that first job, panel discussions concerning current financial events, individuals discussing their experiences concerning the business world and working with unions.

There should be more emphasis on communication skills. Communication classes, concerning the individual and group presentation, should be mandatory as well as additional English classes concerning writing for the business world.

A program should be established, in the college of business, for the job search. I know that Career and Counseling offers this to students, but I feel their should be more joint cooperation between Career and Counseling and the college of business concerning job placement.

When a student enters Alfred University, he or she should do a "what if" resume with their respective advisor, asking themselves the question, "what do you want your resume to look like when you graduate from Alfred?"

By implementing these changes in curriculum and with the programs I discussed, students can become more marketable and more knowledgeable.

Craig Peretz

To The Editor:

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to the letters of Dr. Dinger and Mr. Pennisi. I realize they feel the students who engage in sex, get drunk, or use drugs are making a mistake, but their approach to changing peoples behavior is unrealistic.

As one of the "children" who has "engaged in sex out of marriage, gotten drunk, and gotten high" I do not feel I am an immoral or irresponsible citizen. The standards I live by are mine to choose, so long as they fit within the mores of society. I am willing to discuss my morals but not willing to have them condemned without discussion.

Mr. Pennisi does not understand the difference between expressing your opinion and impressing your beliefs on others. The difference is in how one's ideas are expressed. Dinger states, "...it is WRONG, both morally and absolutely, to engage in sex..." If Dinger feels something is morally wrong, it can be discussed with respect to the mores of our society. However, if something is absolutely wrong there is nothing left to discuss.

A similar statement would be, the universe is both big and infinite. We would discuss how big the universe is, but if it is infinite there is nothing to discuss. The first case is expressing your belief; the second is impressing or forcing it upon someone. Expressing your beliefs so that they may be discussed is a positive action. However, forcing your beliefs upon others only results in the rejection or blind acceptance of those beliefs, both negative results.

Dinger also suggests that making Alfred dry would be better than the situation that exists now. Until the drinking age was raised from 18 to 21 it was legal for most college students to drink. The drinking age was raised to save the lives of those between 16 and 21 who were involved in drinking and driving. It was not raised to save morals. Our society addressed the morality of drinking with the twenty-first amendment.

In recent years the University has had very few of its' students die in auto accidents. If you want to get drunk in Alfred, you can walk home. Making Alfred a dry town would only result in deaths as students and community members would drive elsewhere to drink. To purposely create a situation where deaths are likely to occur seems very immoral to me and it does not behoove anyone to suggest creating such a situation.

A similar situation exists with sexual activity. Abstinence, however noble, is not a realistic enough solution for the University to promote abstinence as its' only response to sexual activity. Humans will engage in sex, therefore diseases are likely to be transmitted and pregnancies are are likely to occur. Making condoms widely available seems to be a reasonable response to these problems. However, since vandalism of the condom dispensers may be a problem and condoms are available in Uni Mart, it may not be wise or necessary for the school to make them available through dispensers. To purposely create a situation where the transmission of disease and unwanted pregnancy may result from a personal moral decision seems very dictatorial.

I hope my point is clear; if you want change someone's opinion, use rational arguments based on facts. There are good reasons why people should not engage in sex before marriage or use alcohol and other drugs. Use logical arguments to demonstrate these reasons. Statements like, "because it is WRONG" or "because the Bible says so" so not belong in a logical argument. Those dogmatists, who simply tell students what to believe instead of showing students how to reason and think, are a detriment to the students, the community, and the reputation of Alfred University.

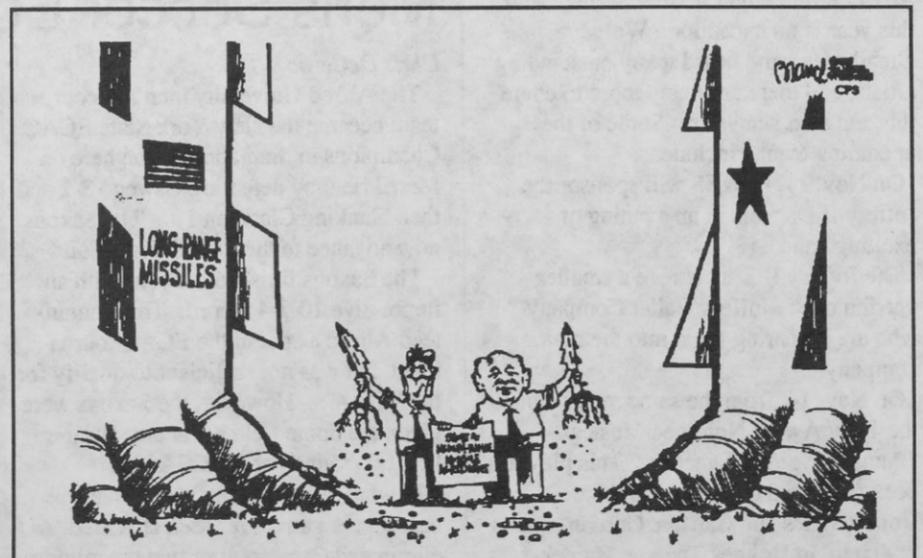

Sincerely,
James F. Reilly

To the Editor:

Could it be that I, John Simmins, am finally writing a letter to the editor of the Fiat Lux after eight-plus years at Alfred? After suffering in silence through the socialist years under Dave Dimock and Tony Mastergiorgio and all those years of putting up with either one or two editions per semester, what could possibly move me to write the Fiat? I find myself in the unusual position of defending Dennis Dinger. If you are not familiar with Dr. Dinger or myself probably don't understand what could be so unusual. Let me assure you that our mutual acquaintances are probably more mystified. Fortunately I find myself in the unique position of being able to defend a person without actually agreeing with him at all. (Alexander Hamilton eat your heart out.)

To put this in perspective, let me introduce myself. I am and have been, for the last eight years, happily engaged in most of the activities that Dr. Dinger finds immoral. I knew when I saw his letter that several fiery and indignant replies were being typed (or written in crayon on the back of an Alex's napkin) and would soon appear in the Fiat just as I'm sure it'll snow in October. I also knew that they would start with: "I am very disappointed and upset..." am appalled and offended..." and the best "It is very seldom that I am so offended..." Blah, blah, blah.

Everybody has got an opinion. I have one. Dr. Dinger has one. All those weird guys who hang around on benches down town have opinions. They are all worth the same. Dr. Dinger did not "impress his beliefs" on any one. He stated them. He didn't attack a condom dispenser with an ax, he just wrote a letter to the Fiat. It's everybody's "prerogative to decidewhat's morally wrong or right," not just Dr. Dinger. We all do it. We tell ourselves we don't but actually it's just a matter of where we draw the line.

The three letters that replied to Dr. Dinger were full of kinds of all kinds of ludicrous and hypocritical statements intermingled with plenty of rationalization for the behavior of the writers. To say that someone has "several erroneous beliefs" and to say it with such righteous indignation points out just how immature the writers are. Now who is imposing their beliefs? I think the people that Dinger worships with are a bunch of kooks.

He thinks I'm a bead-jiggling Catholic who's going straight to Hell. So what? I am completely amazed when I see someone actually write down a letter "Let's not push ourselves back by pretending that academic achievement is the sole purpose of education," and to parade this idiocy around like a rational, adult thought. Is this an example of our "student leader." Where are they leading the students to, the unemployment line?

Finally when some "child" (I'm quoting Dinger to get off the hook) quotes biblical passages like "judge not lest ye so be judged" I'm amused. Saying this to Dr. Dinger is not only hypocritical but dangerous. Dr. Dinger is one of the few people I know in this town who lives his beliefs. Dinger is judging precisely the way he wants to be judged. He may even be judging the way he will be judged. Since he follows the teachings of the Bible he may have a "holier than thou" attitude because he is. Have you ever considered that? I have, even though I'm morally wrong (or at least morally ignorant).

In conclusion, let me state my opinion: Do whatever you want. I don't care. But don't throw a tantrum when someone disagrees. Get used to it.

Sincerely,
John J. Simmins

World Beat: What Happened?

Demetrios Margaronis

• As expected on Oct. 23, judge Robert Bork's nomination was defeated by the senate on a 58-42 vote.

• President Reagan selected Douglas Ginsburg as his new supreme court nominee, a 41-year old conservative who was likely to be controversial because of his youth and limited judicial experience.

• On Nov. 7, only nine days after his nomination, Ginsburg asked President Reagan to withdraw his nomination to the Supreme Court.

Under enormous pressure from administration officials and his own conservative supporters on Capital Hill, judge Douglas H. Ginsburg asked President Reagan to withdraw his nomination to the supreme court.

The judge announced his decision only nine days after he was chosen to fill the seat vacated by the retirement of justice Louis F. Powell Jr. This marks the second failure of President Reagan to fill the court vacancy. His first nominee, judge Robert Bork, as expected on Oct.

23, was defeated in the Senate by a 58-42 vote.

Judge Ginsburg possesses an impressive resume: Editor of the law review at the University of Chicago Law School, clerk for liberal Justice Thurgood Marshall, professor at Harvard, Deputy Assistant Attorney General, he worked at the regulatory affairs executive office at the Office of Management and Budget, then returned to Justice to head the Antitrust Division, and then he was appointed to the U.S. Appeals Court in Washington.

Judge Ginsburg was controversial from the beginning because of his youth and limited judicial experience. In addition, on Nov. 1, the Associated Press reported that Ginsburg, as head of the justice departments' antitrust division, had handled a case dealing with cable television while he held a $139,000 investment in a cable company. Potential conflict of interest questions were aroused.

And then came Nov. 5, when Ginsburg said he had used marijuana once in the 1960, on a few occasions in the early 1970 and as late as 1979 at the age of 33.

It was July 30, 1986, when President Reagan had said, "We will no longer tolerate the use of illegal drugs. The time has come, for each and everyone of us, to make a personal and moral commitment to actively oppose the use of illegal drugs in all forms and in all places."

In addition to these and similar remarks that the President had made frequently over the last few years came recommendations from William J. Bennett, Secretary of Education to Ginsburg to withdrawal. At the same time on the floor of the Senate Sen. Robert Byrd, Senate majority leader, was addressing a question. "What example," Sen. Byrd said, "are we giving to the youth of America by putting in the Supreme Court a past drug user?"

It is unfortunate that the Reagan administration rushed to nominate Ginsburg. The right questions were not asked and the investigations were poor, with one result: the embarrassment of the administration.

Money Matters

Independence Part I

David L. Gruen

Often a student will stop by the Student Financial Aid Office claiming to be financially independent of their parents. A student's feeling of independence and a student's possible qualification as an independent student for financial aid purposes may be two different things. Within this past year, the federal government's guidelines of what constitutes independence has changed dramatically. The requirements are intentionally difficult to meet. This is because the basic premise of all financial assistance programs is that the family has the primary responsibility for paying the educational costs of the student. Financial aid programs are there to supplement the family's expectation.

The federal guidelines for independence are relatively simple for married and graduate students. A student is automatically considered independent if he/she will not be claimed on their parents' income tax return for the current tax year (which for the 1988-89 school year is 1988). For institutional aid, you also must not be living in a residence of your parents or have been claimed on their income taxes for the previous two tax years (for 1988-89 this would be 1986 and 1987).

Undergraduate students must meet one of the following four criteria to be considered independent for federal aid:

- A student must be 24 years old by Jan. 1 of the school year for which he is applying (for the 1988-89 school year this would be Jan. 1, 1965).
- A student must be a veteran of the U.S. Armed Forces.
- A student must be a ward of the court, or both parents deceased.
- A student must have a legal dependent other than a spouse.

Meeting any one of these criteria would allow an student to be independent for federal aid programs. Failing these criteria, the government still allows the possibility of independence if a student meets some further qualification which I will go into in next week's column.

Career and Counseling Comments

Chuck Shultz, Cathie Chester, David Kaplan

For the past few years, Alfred alumni and parents have offered "Externships" at their places of business for the purposes of allowing you to explore your career interests in an actual work environment. Alumni and parents from a number of geographic areas have been asked to participate in this year's program, so that your travel and lodging expenses can be kept at a minimum. The externships will take place during the first week or two of Jan. 1988 when most of you are home for semester break. Last year there were 26 externships offered and we expect there will be at least that number available again for this year's program.

In order to learn more about the possible externships that would be of interest to you, we are inviting you to attend one of two informational meetings which will be held on Nov. 17-18 from 7:30 - 8:30 p.m. in the Video Lounge of the Campus Center. A Directory of Externships and applications will be made available at those times, as well as an explanation of what you can expect from this experience and what your obligations would be as a participant.

Students who have participated in past years have generally enjoyed their experience and have indicated that it was very helpful in giving them insights into a possible career area.

Seniors, have you considered using the time between first and second semesters to do some interviewing at company locations? We think it is an ideal time to allow organizations to learn of your interest in them. In order to take advantage of this opportunity to discuss prospective openings, you need to contact those companies as soon as possible in order for them to schedule you for interviews. Your contact will be in the form of a letter of application and a resume outlining your accomplishments. Our office, the Placement Office for the College of Ceramics and both libraries have directories which list companies and their hiring needs.

Student Senate Update: SUNY Senate President Attends Meeting

Christine Scott

John Ivison, president of the Student Senate at Alfred State College, attended the Nov 4 Alfred University Student Senate meeting to discuss several issues that are of mutual concern to the University and SUNY students.

One issue that was brought up by Ivison was Key Bank and its procedures.

"Key Bank, in the past, cashed checks for people who did not have accounts," said Amy Neubecker, Student Senate president. Ivison explained to the senators, "They [Key Bank] have stopped doing that, because it received $8,000 worth of bad checks last year."

Ivison has spoken to the Senior Vice President of Key Bank Western New York operations who has agreed to meet with the presidents of both senates to address the matter.

"In order to keep channels of communication open," Ivison suggested that the two schools have "senate ambassadors to attend University and Alfred State College's senate meetings."

Concerning old business, the senate discussed drug and substance abuse problems.

The senate will use a survey as the basis for information about these problems, along with assistance from Dr. Gail Walker, associate professor of psychology.

The survey will ask questions pertaining to alcohol and other drugs found on campus, such as psychedelic mushrooms and LSD.

The Student Senate provided security over the Pine Street Bridge for the weekend of the All-Campus Halloween party. The senate agreed that the bridge should be provided with security until repairs are completed, and it will contact the administration, Alfred police department and Physical Plant personnel in hopes that they will provide bridge security during the construction.

Bob Hutter, professor of law, will speak at an open forum concerning off-campus housing on Dec. 1 at 8:30 p.m., in the Parents Lounge.

Landlords and tenants alike are expected to attend the forum and address issues such as housing conditions, deposits, and costs of off-campus housing.

Off-campus representative Demetrios Margaronis, has arranged for the disbursement of "This Week At Alfred" flyers at the Alfred Pharmacy, The Alfred Sub Shop, Shurfine, and the Collegiate, in order to keep off-campus students better informed of campus events.

The senate will also do a survey of students living off-campus. The questionnaire will ask details of the problems faced by those living off-campus and look for solutions to these problems.

Sibley Lecturer Proposes Six Month Vacation

Loretta Murray

Looking for a job? How would you like to work for six months and get six months off to do whatever you want? Sound too good to be true? This is the 6:6 plan developed by Frithjof Bergmann, University of Michigan philosophy professor.

Bergmann, the speaker at the 1987 annual Sibley Lecture, told a crowd of about 100 that there will soon be an increasing shortage of jobs. If the United States wants to avoid "widespread disaster," it must find a way to share the jobs that are available.

Although Bergmann blames technology for the decreasing number of jobs, he said technology is not "inherently ghastly;" however developments in technology have substituted automation and robotics for human labor.

Bergmann said people are so preoccupied that they fail to see what he described as a "tidal wave" of change from technology. If we don't move, the wave will drown and smash us. If we use our imaginations, the wave can potentially lift us to a place higher than we've ever been before.

Bergmann's theory in facing the wave deals with his 6:6 program, currently being developed in Flint, Michigan, for blue collar workers.

After six months in the plant, workers get six months off to "pursue their passions." In some cases a worker may start a small business or continue his education. This is an alternative to permanently laying off workers.

Bergmann's theory behind the 6:6 program is to give workers a large block of time to accomplish some goal.

Shortening the work week to four days could improve the tidal wave problem, but would only give three day segments for completion of some goal. This could lead to procrastination.

Bergmann's theory has been approved by the workers and management of General Motors as well as by the UAW in Flint. Workers like the plan because it lets them "be the somebody they've always wanted to be" during their six months off.

Unions like the 6:6 program because it will double their membership.

Management favors the program because it will increase productivity by decreasing burn out, accidents and absenteeism. People work better when looking forward to time off.

Bergmann's revolutionary ideas about work are to be put into practice within the next year.

Bergmann displays excitement about seeing his ideas put into the marketplace and audiences respond enthusiastically to his outrageous examples.

Computers producing thousands of "molecularly reactivated" pizzas to be stored, instead of workers making them, is one way Bergmann said technology will eliminate jobs.

Stratford on Alfred

Darryl Moch

During the week of Nov. 16-21, Douglas Campbell, noted actor and director, will offer lecture/workshops to the University community.

The workshops will take place on Thursday, Nov. 19 and Saturday, Nov. 21 from 1-3 p.m. in Seidlin Hall 228.

Everyone is encouraged to come out and enjoy this fabulous opportunity. A must for all theatre buffs, Campbell will also present "BLAKE: Innocence and Experience," a one-man play by Elliot Hayes, on Saturday, Nov. 21 at 8:00 p.m. in the Harder Hall Theatre.

For free tickets, all interested students should contact Camille Reed in the Performing Arts Annex or call 2251.

Campbell is a former member of Tyrone Guthrie's first Festival Company, and he is a noted actor who has appeared in more than 30 Festival productions since 1953. He is a co-founder and Artistic Director of the Canadian Players.

Campbell is also a former Artistic Director of the Guthrie Theatre in Minn., and he is the founder of the Theatre North in Sheffield, England. He is known for his acting and directing, all across the English-speaking world from the Old Vick to the Mark Taper Forum to television.

Campbell has performed many roles such as Oedipus in OEDIPUS REX; Othello in OTHELLO; Henry VIII in HENRY VIII; Lopahin in THE CHERRY ORCHARD; and many others. He has made several T.V. appearances, in programs including Hamlet, The Crucible, The Prince and The Pauper, and The Great Detective.

(Performing Artists for Nuclear Disarmament), is in residency at AU through a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Once again, the workshops will be held Nov. 19 and Nov. 21 in Seidlin Hall 228.

Participants need not attend both days, but they must attend Thursday's session in order to participate in Saturday's class. Spectators are encouraged to attend both days and enjoy the lecture/workshops.

Mr. Campbell will also visit various classes in the Performing Arts and English Departments. For a schedule of the visits, contact Carol Shilkett, professor of English, in Seidlin Hall 113.

Students may arrange to "do lunch" with Mr. Campbell by contacting Shilkett.

Bergren Forum Comments on Women's Wages

Christine Scott

On Oct. 28, Dr. Karen Porter, assistant professor of sociology, spoke at the Bergren Forum on Women's Wages and the Gender Gap.

The gender gap, the difference between the average wages of men and women, is currently 30 percent.

Women earn $.70 for every one dollar men earn. This figure neglects variables known to predict wages such as level of education, occupation, experience, and seniority. But studies conducted controlling these variables still show a persistent gap in wages favoring men.

The wage difference has been a problem for nearly a century. "Today the problem is all the more pressing," said Porter, "especially since the female labor force has continued to grow steadily over the past 100 years." Women now account for 42 percent of the total labor force.

Some analysts say that gains have been made, but statistics for the first quarter median weekly earnings for men and women in 1987 show quite a difference in earnings. It is true that women have infiltrated male dominated fields, but these gains have been offset by relative lack of equity in the division of labor, increased costs of maintaining dual-earner households, and feminization of poverty.

Feminization of poverty, explained Dr. Porter, "is when single mothers running households find it nearly impossible to escape poverty because of typical low wages in the occupations they fill, lack of affordable childcare, and the government's attempts to provide employment training for welfare clients."

"If the problem is that women aren't paid enough, is the solution to pay them more?," asked Porter. This solution is resisted because of cultural stereotypes concerning the relative worth of women's work.

The gender gap can be explained by discrimination and the human capital theory. Discrimination occurs when women fill jobs primarily dominated by women. Employers pay less because these positions are filled by women. These jobs or "occupational ghettos" create economic inequities by offering lower pay, fewer benefits, and fewer routes for advancement.

The human capital theory says women choose jobs that they can take time off of without upsetting the employer or depreciating their skills. Women take these jobs knowing they will be paid less.

Studies by Steinberg and Hagner, and others, have proven that women earn less than men, but not enough is being done about it.

As Porter said, "Women are in the work force to stay. For me, economic equity is crucial." Women, as well as men, need to earn top dollar in their occupations.

Good Living

Tom Ahart

Lately there has been a lot of discussion on campus concerning the issue of condom dispensers in the Residence Halls. Naturally, we have heard some strong opinions on the issue: some people are opposed to the idea, some people consider it wise to discuss the possibility, and still others are completely indifferent. My purpose is not to use this column to make any moral judgements or to state my personal opinions on the topic, but to provide some information as to why the University is involved in this debate, and to encourage people to listen to all of the facts before making any decisions.

Sexually-Transmitted Diseases (STDs) have been and continue to be one of America's most serious health problems. The number of cases of STDs continues to increase in epidemic proportions, and since the introduction of the AIDS virus to the general population, the number of people that die each year from STDs has risen phenomenally. It is estimated that in 1991 alone, around 54,000 people will die from complications caused by the AIDS virus. Almost as many Americans died in combat during the entire Vietnam War. Furthermore, it has been shown that college students are in a very high risk group, and more significantly, that they aren't doing much about it (Chronicle of Higher Education, April 29, 1987). We need to be aware that AIDS and other STDs threaten the health and the lives of college students. Students must be made aware of the risks associated with unsafe sex, and that there are many ways to protect oneself from these diseases.

Different organizations and offices here at Alfred are doing a number of things to make people aware of the problem and hopefully to prevent our student population from contracting STDs: the Wellness Committee is sponsoring a survey of student attitudes and opinions about condoms in the Residence Halls; WALF and The Fiat Lux organized a "Safe Sex" theme party earlier in the semester; and on Thursday, Nov. 12, there will be a symposium on AIDS which is sponsored by the PA&SS program.

Intramural Update

Rowdy Doug Dowdy

The outdoor leagues will be concluding the week before Thanksgiving break, with the seventh week of all leagues being dropped. The overall standings through out the fifth week can be found on the I.M. board.

In soccer action on Nov. 2, the Gate Crushers struggled to a 1-1 tie with Traylor; O.T.H. out-aged Barresi 1 9-0; and Inter took time out from their busy schedules to stop AXP. This activity sets up the championship tournament with Inter, Traylor, Lambda, and O.T.H. as the participants barring default. The tourney is scheduled for Nov. 16, with the last week of regular season determining the match-ups.

Football follies of Nov. 3 saw Traylor run away and hide from the Tefticles 66-18 and Lambda dominated Barresi 50-1. Playoffs in football will be held Nov. 17 with Lambda, Nudd, Traylor, Reimer, and Ingram still in contention for tournament berths.

Softball action will conclude on Nov. 12 with tournament semifinals and finals being played this evening. In the semis, Pride will face Zeta Beta Tau while Ad-Hoc will battle Reimer 1 for a right to play for the championship.

Champions in each sport will be awarded a T-shirt; all semi-final teams will be invited to an awards party to be held in the Saxon Inn on Monday, Dec. 7.

McLane Center was hopping on Nov. 4 when 16 teams began play in 3 on 3 basketball and six teams started five weeks of walleyball action. Please make certain to closely check your basketball schedules—your team may be playing two games in one night.

Leagues in 5 on 5 basketball and volleyball will begin second semester.

Rogers Leads Saxon Rout

Jeffrey Brill

Once again, the Alfred football team's playoff possibilities are alive and well. Combined with losses by Canisius (6-3-1) and Cortland (5-4), Alfred's (5-3-1) 48-20 thrashing of previously undefeated Rochester (8-1) last Saturday at Merrill Field put them in a good position for an ECAC playoff berth. Utilizing a run-dominated offense, including Ray Rogers' school-record 244 rushing yards, and a strong defensive effort, the Saxons led early and cruised to the victory.

Alfred continually ran the ball at U of R, not attempting a pass until the second quarter. Coach Jim Moretti said that was the strategy since he and his staff noticed a weakness in the middle of the Yellow Jackets' defense in films they saw and he planned to exploit it.

The Saxons didn't waste much time in scoring as they quickly moved the ball down the field on running plays which led to a 12 yard touchdown run by quarterback Paul McDonnell at 8:16 of the first quarter.

Strong runs by both Rogers and Sam

Goble helped position Alfred for their second score.

A fumbled kickoff and an intentional grounding call against quarterback Dave Boyce put U of R at their 3-yard line, which led to another punt. With excellent field position at the U of R 44, the Saxon moved downfield and scored on a six yard TD run by Rogers.

Tim Murphy's on-sides kick was recovered by Joe Haven on the U of R 41, and once again Alfred was set to score. On third and goal, McDonnell was sacked at the 4-yard line and Alfred settled for a 26-yard Jansen field goal with 3:56 left in the half for a 24-0 lead.

U of R finally had success against a tough Alfred defense, as they quickly drove downfield behind two pass completions to Ben Rizzo and John McKenna and a 22-yard run by Marc Thornton. Fritz Repich then ran one yard for U of R's first touchdown. Andy Milne kicked the extra point with 3:01 left and they trailed 24-7.

Alfred quickly killed any possible Yellow Jacket momentum as they moved the ball to the Jacket 46, and from there Rogers ran 46 yards for a TD with 1:13 left in the half. Jansen's kick was good, and the Saxons had a very comfortable 31-7 halftime lead.

On Alfred's second possession of the second half, McDonnell fumbled a snap, giving U of R perhaps their last chance of getting back into the game. However, three plays later, Bill Rozumalski intercepted Boyce's pass and returned it to the Jacket 42. With a third and 13 at the 37-yard line, Moretti ran a pass play, and it resulted in a 37-yard TD play to Bob Jones who caught the ball despite tight coverage.

With the score 48-13, U of R recovered an Alfred fumble and Rick Harrison scored a meaningless touchdown on a five yard run with 1:59 left. Milne's extra point left the final score 48-20.

Moretti had tremendous praise for U of R's coach Ray Tellier. Last year, the Jackets were 1-7-1 and no one expected them to have a great season. "I can't emphasize enough the great job he's done for their program," Moretti said.

Saxons Falter In Fourth Quarter

Jeffrey Brill

If the inventors of football had proposed a fifty-minute long game, the Alfred Saxons would be 5-2-1 and would be staring the ECAC playoffs right in the face. However, the game lasted 10 minutes too long, as SUNY Buffalo capitalized on Saxon errors to register a stunning 21-20 upset at UB Stadium on Halloween.

The first half of the game was characterized by strong defense on both sides and some key defensive plays. The only scoring came on a one-play drive as quarterback Paul McDonnell connected with Bob Jones on a 35-yard touchdown pass play with 4:20 left in the first quarter. John Jansen's kick was good, and Alfred was on top, 7-0. Two Steve Magera interceptions, one coming in the end zone, helped keep Buffalo in the game.

Alfred extended its lead to 14-0 on its first second-half possession, keyed by a 19-yard run by Ray Rogers. The drive culminated in a three-yard run by McDonnell.

In the fourth quarter, Jansen missed on a 34-yard field goal attempt, and Buffalo started its comeback. Led by O.D. Underwood and costly Alfred penalties, the Bulls drove down field to score on a seven-yard run by Underwood, who would finish the day with 150 rushing yards and two TDs. A penalty gave Buffalo a second chance at a two-point conversion, and they capitalized, as Underwood ran it in and Buffalo trailed 14-8 with 4:51 left in the game.

On the Saxons' next possession, Rogers fumbled at the AU 30, and Kevin Deakin recovered the ball. Soon afterwards, with 1:56 left, Underwood ran three yards for the score. Anthony Calamunci blocked John D'Auria's extra point attempt, and the score was tied at 14.

Deakin once again haunted the Saxons, as he intercepted a McDonnell pass at the AU 40 and ran it down to the AU 3. On the next play, John Hartman ran the ball in for the go-ahead touchdown at 1:29. D'Auria's kick was good this time, and Buffalo led 21-14.

Two pass completions to Greg Prusia for 14 and 49 yards brought Alfred down to the Bulls' 9. On a fourth and goal play from the two, McDonnell completed a pass to a wide-open Joe Haven in the end zone with 29 seconds left. Coach Jim Moretti elected to go for the win with a two-point conversion attempt. McDonnell ran right, avoiding a fierce rush, and then cut left in an attempt to break for the end zone. Unfortunately, he never made it because he lost his footing and fell at the five. Buffalo then sat on the ball and sealed the 21-20 victory.

Equestrian Has Strong Fall Season Start

Bronya Redden

The AU Equestrian Team participated in the first Intercollegiate Horse Show of the 1987 - 1988 season.

The first meet was somewhat of an experiment, since one meet was held on Saturday and was immediately followed by another meet on Sunday. The experiment turned out well for AU, and the first meet seemed to be a warm-up for the second meet.

Riders are looking to earn points in order to move up a division, which would qualify them for regionals. A blue ribbon at Regionals would qualify a rider for the Nationals, which will be held in North Carolina in April 1988.

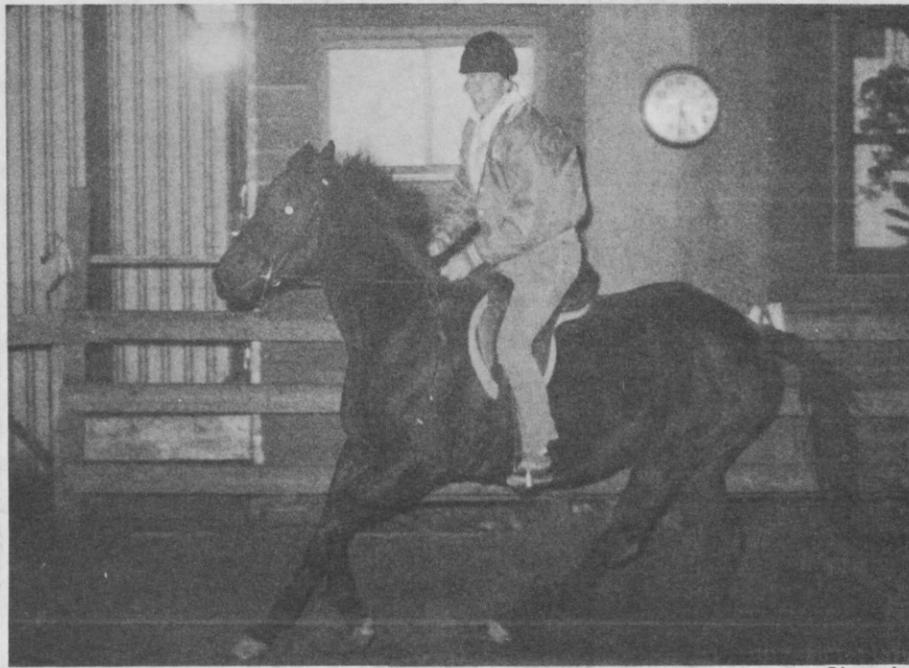

The AU Equestrian team placed fifth out of a field of 18 at the St. Lawrence Intercollegiate Horse Show on Oct. 24.

Placings included: Janet Argersinger, second intermediate over fences; Carmen Bridge, second intermediate over fences; Anne Woods, second intermediate horsemanship; Chris Schultz, third advanced walk-trot; Anne Woods, fourth intermediate over fences; Janet Argersinger, fifth intermediate horsemanship; Heather Bailey, fifth open over fences and fifth open horsemanship; Dan Weeks, fifth beginner walk-trot-canter; and Kim Buck, sixth novice over fences.

Chris Schultz obtained enough points to move up to the beginner walk-trot-canter division and Patty Houseknecht moved up to the intermediate horsemanship division. Both of these riders qualified for Regionals.

AU won the Reserve Championship at the Potsdam Intercollegiate Horse Show on Oct. 25. Seventeen schools competed in the event. Blue ribbon winners included Kim Buck in novice horsemanship, Dawn Haney in novice over fences, and Chris Schultz in Beginner walk-trot-canter.

Other placings included Kim Buck, second novice over fences; Bronya Redden, second intermediate over fences; Dan Weeks, second beginner walk-trot-canter; Carmen Bridge, third intermediate over fences; Heather Bailey, fourth open over fences; Carmen Bridge, fifth intermediate horsemanship; Patty Houseknecht, fifth intermediate horsemanship; Mark Rosner, sixth advanced walk-trot; and Anne Woods, sixth intermediate horsemanship.

Kim Buck, Dawn Haney and Dan Weeks, all new members of the team, helped AU by winning team points which gave AU the reserve championship. Buck participated in the ride-off for high point rider.

The AU equestrian team will compete at Intercollegiate Horse Shows at Cazenovia on Nov. 14 and R.P.I. on Nov. 21.

An Alfred Legend

Jeffrey Brill

An Alfred Saxon trivia test: 1) Name all of the men who have coached Saxon football between 1937 and 1976. 2) Name the coach with the most career victories for Alfred. Had enough time? The answer is simple: Alex Yunevich.

Yunevich came to Alfred University to coach a team that, as he put it, "...hadn't scored a point the year before... I came here with the idea that I wouldn't stay long, but I grew to like it..."

During his tenure at Alfred, six Yunevich teams went undefeated, and only six of his squads had below a .500 record. In 1956, the Washington Touchdown Club honored him as small college coach of the nation.

Almost 11 years ago, Yunevich coached his last game for the Saxons, ending a coaching career that spanned five decades. During that period, the Saxons had a record of 177-85-12.

No other person has left such an indelible mark on the athletic program at Alfred than him. Two former players, Charles Schultz of Career and Counseling at Alfred (grid star in the '50s), Jim Moretti (star quarterback in the early '70s) and Athletic Director Gene Castrovillo gave similar opinions of the man.

All three praised Yunevich as a defensive genius, and as an innovator in defensive strategy. He continually out-thought opposing coaches, despite, as Schultz put it, his simple approach to the game.

Yunevich's keys to success, according to all three men, were his motivational skills and his incredible rapport with his players. Yunevich liked the nature of the Alfred student-athlete. Yunevich knew his players well. He put the player in the place most suited for him.

Moretti gives a tremendous amount of credit to Yunevich in building self-confidence in players. "I've never met anyone his equal... Of all the people I've met, besides family, he has meant the most to me."
