AU offers 4-week summer course in Istanbul

ALFRED – "Istanbul 2012: Crossroads of Civilization," a four-week summer course offered by Alfred University, is open to faculty, staff, students, alumni and members of the community.

An information session on the course was held Wednesday, Oct. 12 (last night), at 5 p.m. in Olin 210 on the Alfred University campus.

The course, which is offered just north of Istanbul on the Black Sea campus of Isik University, will take place between July 2 and July 27, 2012.

Students will be accompanied by an Alfred faculty member who has worked with the faculty of Isik University to design the course. In addition to the six credits earned over the summer, Alfred University students will earn another two credits for a spring class on Modern Turkey that precedes the summer travel to Turkey.

As ancient Constantinople, Istanbul was once the capital of the Roman Empire and the most powerful city in Europe. With one foot in Asia and one in Europe, modern Turkey is in many respects the center of today's world, and it plays a vital role in world politics.

With its strong economy and democratic political culture, it is an important bridge to the Middle East for the democracies of the West. The summer course at Isik University offers students an opportunity to learn more about the country and its cultural capital, Istanbul.

Students in the class will study the Byzantine Empire, Ottoman and early Republican Turkey; Politics and Culture of modern Turkey; the role of Turkey in world politics; and elementary Turkish language.

Hagia Sophia at night.

One day a week will be reserved for guided site visits of places such as the Old City of Istanbul (including the Hagia Sophia, Blue Mosque, and Grand Bazaar), the Princes Islands, the Bosphorus, and the Dardanelles.

Community members, including AU faculty, staff and alumni, may take the course without taking the two-credit spring semester course on campus.

More information was available at the Oct. 12 information meeting with Profs. Laura Greyson and Jeffrey Sluyter-Beltrao.

Those who are interested, but who were not able to attend the information session are asked to contact Prof. Greyson (greyson@alfred.edu) or Prof. Sluyter-Beltrao (jsluyter@alfred.edu).

Who was AU's William Augustus Rogers?

By ALAN LITTELL

Who was William Augustus Rogers?

To students and faculty at Alfred University, the name means little or nothing. A university's history is a narrow academic study. Yet the story of W.A. Rogers—he was born 179 years ago next month—deserves a wider audience. For of all the mathematicians and astronomers associated with the western New York school since its founding, in 1836, Rogers, a teacher and researcher at Alfred from 1857 to 1870, was perhaps the most intellectually prolific.

Rogers was also a man of faith. His standing as a scientist and years of grappling with the nature of physical reality—the structure of the universe, the meaning of time, the limits of accurate measurement—suggest conflict with religious belief. Rogers rejected the idea of conflict. He embraced a tradition of savants, dating from the 17th century, that identified science as an adjunct of religion and religion as a buttress of science.

Journalist Edward Dolnick, in an engrossing new biography of pioneers of science, "The Clockwork Universe," points out that for truth seekers from Newton to Einstein the goal of "glimpsing God's plan has always exerted a hypnotic pull." Rogers would have agreed. The Bible, he once declared, expresses "the will of God as revealed to men." And he noted what he defined as "a natural and legitimate relation... between a fundamental religious truth and its scientific examination."

Nowadays, much of scientific opinion takes a different view. Thinkers, for example, like the British theoretical physicist Stephen Hawking exclude theology from the pursuit of material reality. "There are no miracles, or exceptions to the laws of nature," Hawking says. The concept of a supernatural being as the implied designer or creator of the universe "is not the answer of modern science."

Rogers, however, was not a modern, at least not in the sense we use the word today. A man of learning typical of his time, he was the product of two parallel streams of thought: the education in physics and mathematics he received at Brown University, in Providence, Rhode Island, and the strain of biblical scholarship that informed the teachings of his religious order, the Seventh Day Baptists.

Rogers's church had its roots in 17th-century English Protestantism. The sect had separated from other Baptist groups in a dispute over biblical interpretation of the Sabbath. Asserting the authority of Scripture, adherents of the breakaway creed insisted on observing Saturday, the seventh day of the week, rather than Sunday, the generally accepted first day, as the day of rest and worship. From its English roots and an American beginning in Colonial Rhode Island, the movement spread west to Connecticut and New York. Seventh Day farm families settled Alfred in 1807. Three decades later, they established the so-called Select School—a fee-charging secondary school—that in 1857 would grow into Alfred University.

Rogers was born on Nov. 13, 1832, in a fishing village on Long Island Sound a few miles from New London, Connecticut. His father, David Potter Rogers, was a shipmaster and farmer. Father and son traced their descent to a certain James Rogers, who had emigrated from England in 1635, and before him to a 16th-century cleric believed to have been one of the compilers, in 1539, of the first authorized English Bible.

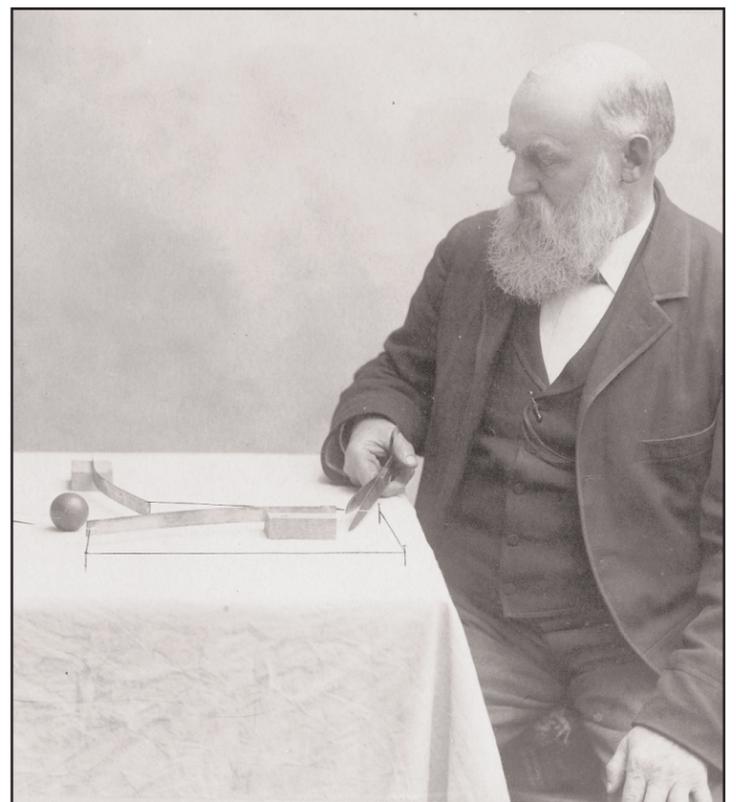

In the mid 1840s, William Rogers attended a Seventh Day preparatory school in central New York. A few years later—the exact date is uncertain—he continued his studies at what had become known as Alfred Academy, an expanded version of the original Select School. In 1853, he moved back to New England to enroll at Brown, a university with close ties to Rhode Island Seventh Day Baptists. Rogers matriculated in an intensive "full course" of liberal education leading directly to a master's degree, bypassing the usual baccalaureate.

The work was demanding. Brown treated its undergraduates as adults. There was no coddling. The philosophy faculty delivered lectures five times a week, with an hour allotted to each lecture and an additional twenty minutes devoted to a written test on subject matter covered the day before. The syllabus in mathematics included calculus, trigonometry and geometry. In "natural philosophy," the term then current for science, Rogers studied physics, astronomy and mechanics. His academic career ranged from the sciences to history, literature, Latin and Greek. He became

ASC Woodsmen's Club competes

ALFRED--Alfred State Pioneer Woodsmen's Club teams came out swinging at the opening competition for collegiate lumberjacks this past weekend! The Finger Lakes Woodsmen Team hosted the Fall Festival Woodsmen competition at Cumming Nature Center in Naples, NY, on Oct. 2, 2011.

Alfred State Pioneer Woodsmen's Club competed against 18 other teams, representing five other colleges (FLCC, Paul Smiths, Cobleskill, ESF, and Ranger School). Alfred State has been training and recruiting club members since the beginning of the semester; with some first-rate returning and new talent. Alfred State entered three teams: a 'Men's 1 team' (varsity squad), a 'Men's 2 team' (junior varsity), and a 'Jack and Jill team' (mixed team of half female and half male competitors).

The meet proved to be a challenge, especially with the cold rainy weather, but the Alfred teams took the challenge and ended the meet with some top honors. The Jack and Jill team came out as the overall champions in their division. They also won several individual events such as: Team Captain George DeWald, construction engineering technology management, Springville, NY, took first in Single Buck; Ali Maher, agricultural business, Geneva, NY, and Tyler Harvey, liberal arts and sciences: math and science (pre-ESF option), Almond, NY, took first in the Fire Build; and Natasha Talbot, agriculture technology, Saint Johnsville, NY, and Stevie Foit, electrical construction and maintenance electrician, Lawtons, NY, took first in the Log Roll. The Jack and Jill squad also took first with the team events of canoeing, cross-cutting, and bow sawing.

The teams earn a percentage of points for each event, with the first place being 100 points for each event, and they compete in 16 different events. The 'Men's 1 team' came in third with a total of 1,266 points, the Environmental Science and Forestry College team was second with 1,272 points, and Paul Smiths College took first with 1,380 points. It was a very tight race with the top three teams. There were also a couple of individual event wins including the team event pack board and fly-cast by Nick Wall, surveying engineering technology, Alexander, NY. The 'Men's 2 team' came in sixth place overall, beating all other 'Men's 2 teams' and even beating one of the other schools 'Men's 1 team.'

The Alfred State team will immediately begin training for the next competition at Paul Smiths College on October 22. The Jack and Jill team will be looking to retain their title, while the 'Men's 1 team' looks to shave that mere 114 points that kept them from first place this past weekend. The 'Men's 2 team' will continue to triumph over 'Men's 2 teams' while whittling down the distance to the senior squads from the other schools.

Prof to talk on Chaplaincy in Corrections

ALFRED—Allison Hicks, an associate professor of sociology at Alfred University, will present “Negotiating Emotional Boundaries in Corrections: Chaplaincy as a Case Study” on Thursday, Oct. 13 (today) at 12:10 p.m. in AU’s Powell Campus Center’s Nevins Theater.

During the forum, Hicks will be discussing her own experiences in the correctional chaplaincy scene. For five years, her ethnographic participation helped her examine the cross between religion and punishment in America.

The primary responsibility for identifying and serving the religious needs of the incarcerated population is put on the chaplains, says Hicks. Correctional chaplains have negotiations of their emotional relationships with their inmates, which is what Hicks focuses on. She will demonstrate the institutional shaping of morality through emotions and norms about emotional management.

Hicks received her Ph.D. in sociology from the University of Colorado at Boulder.

The Bergren Forum, sponsored by the Alfred University Division of Human Studies, meets Thursdays during each academic semester at the University. Participants are encouraged to bring a lunch; coffee and tea will be available.

Future speakers and topics include: Oct. 20--Ann Monroe-Baillargeon, “Inclusive Communities: We all benefit;” Oct. 27--Emrys Westacott, “Galahad v Odysseus: Honor codes in sport and beyond;” Nov. 3--Craig Braack, “How Allegany County Came to Be.”

Tastings, Treasures, Tunes 3!

ALFRED--Tastings, Treasures, and Tunes 3? Yes! Friends of the Alfred Box of Books Library are offering a repeat of the last two years' enjoyable gathering of wine tasting, silent auction, and music. Be sure to circle Saturday, Oct. 29 from 7 to 9:30 on your calendar.

This convivial community event will again be held at the Alfred Village Hall theater, and is not only a wine tasting of several of the best Western New York wines. For those not interested in tasting wines, soft drinks will be available.

DeAnna Harriss, with West Side Wines and Spirits, will be on hand not only to pour wine, but also to make suggestions on pairing food with wines. Hors d'oeuvres--sweets and savories from the kitchens of several Alfred gourmet cooks--will complement the drinks, and Alfred University's Peter O'Connor will provide music.

The silent auction will offer numerous donated items, including various kinds of art, silver, fiber art, glass items, antiques, certificates from local businesses, and services such as gourmet dinners. Every item will provide a “buy it now” price, allowing bidders to snap up a desired item immediately.

Tickets for Tastings, Treasures, and Tunes 3, which are $20 per person, are available at the Box of Books Library as well as through members of the Friends of the Library. In addition, tickets will be on sale at Alfred University's Powell Campus Center from 11:30 to 1:30 on Thursdays from Oct. 13 through Oct. 27.

There are more reasons to support our local public library than can be enumerated here. It is a fact that our village does not have a community center. Perhaps with our vibrant Box of Books Library we don't really need one. This is a place where visitors can go to experience a warm and friendly atmosphere, where friends can meet (and talk), where children are more than welcome, and where everyone is sure to find a good read, great music and videos, and answers to just about any question.

But the Box of Books cannot survive on tax dollars alone. Money raised by the Friends of the Library through ventures like Tastings, Treasures, and Tunes, the annual yard sale, bake sale, and book sale are essential to provide many popular activities in the library. Funds raised have helped provide the library with children's DVDs, books, Wii activities, family movie night, youth meetings, and reading groups, and helped purchase insulating window treatments and shelving for the library.

Join the Friends of the Alfred Box of Books Library in supporting these services. Buy your tickets and come to a grand evening on Oct. 29.

Life of local farmers in 1800s talk topic at Oct. 17 meeting

ALFRED STATION--The Monday, October 17th meeting of the Baker's Bridge Association will begin at 7:30 pm at “The Meeting House” at 5971 Hamilton Hill Road, Alfred Station. Anyone interested in the history of the area is welcome to attend.

At this month's meeting, Thelma and Lyle Palmiter will describe the life of local farmers in the late 1800's. Their presentation will center on information obtained from the diary of Clark Sherman which covers the years of 1890 to 1893. Clark and his son Harley were neighbors of the Palmiter family in Alfred Station. The Palmiters recall many stories they have heard about those days, including one which details the framing of a timber barn by Lyle's grandfather and great grandfather for their Sherman neighbors.

Current students, alumni, faculty and staff will join in the celebration which will take place at the Alfred Unit office in the Alumni House on the Alfred State College campus. Members of the community are cordially invited to attend the reception.

A highlight of the afternoon will be an Arts presentation by a mentor from the Genesee Valley Center in Rochester.

Each local unit of Empire State College is associated with a regional center. In addition to the Alfred Unit, the Rochester Center has units in Batavia, Canandaigua, and Corning/ Elmira.

Bake a cake with all those apples

We have had apple trees in our back yard for over forty years. Some years we've been able to salvage two or three small apples but usually the blossoms get frost bitten or there isn't enough rain. This year I made some applesauce-not a whole lot, but it was sweet and applelicious!

My new Maine cookbook has this recipe. The book's title is A Taste of Maine Recipe Book published by Maine Scene. Any type of apple can be used in this recipe, although they recommend McIntosh.

Maine Apple Cake

- | | |
|---------------------------|--------------------|
| 3½ c. milk | 2 eggs, beaten |
| 4½ c. finely diced apples | 2 tsp. vanilla |
| ½ c. vegetable oil | 2 tsp. baking soda |
| 2 c. flour | 2 tsp. cinnamon |
| 2 c. sugar | ½ tsp. salt |
| ¾ c. chopped walnuts | |

Mix apples and sugar together. Add beaten eggs, oil, nuts, and vanilla. In separate bowl, mix remaining dry ingredients together and add to apple mixture. Bake in a greased 13x9" pan for 60 minutes at 350 degrees.

How far east have you carried the Alfred Sun? The envelope please...

By ARUN VARSHNEYA
Special to the Alfred Sun

So, have you carried the Alfred Sun east of Rotorua, New Zealand (longitude 176° 16') but west of the International Date Line?

The eastern most, or the "EASTest Sun" challenge was issued by Darshana and Arun Varshneya of 28 High Street in the August 18, 2011 issue of the Sun. There had to be a convincing evidence of the presence of the Sun.

And it turns out that Therese and Jon Legro of 1502 Waterwells Road edged them out by a fraction of a degree during their travel from Rotorua to Napier, New Zealand (longitude 176° 56') in an RV.

The award? A (full) bottle of Australian wine. Photo above shows Darshana waving the award prior to handing it over to Therese while the thorn in the middle (Sun Editor and Publisher Dave Snyder) catches up with his reading of the latest issue of the Sun. The location: the northern most corner of the Village of Alfred.

And, in photo to the left, Arun hands over the bottle of wine (yes, it was the same bottle), to Jon, quite appropriately, who is holding on to the latest issue of the Sun.

Keeping up with the same theme...How far west, but east of the International Date Line, have you carried the Alfred Sun? There needs to be a photo displaying reading of the Sun at a verifiable location (the "WESTest Sun").

Photos in an airplane or a ship while cruising through the Date Line are inadmissible. Last date for submission: October 30, 2011.

Arun Varshneya hands the bottle of wine over to Jon Legro during a recent "ceremony" at the north entrance to the Village of Alfred.

HARD TO FIX PROBLEMS

Most local governments currently find themselves in very difficult financial circumstances. It is obvious that there must be some major changes. Unfortunately the rules enacted by New York State and the federal government make it difficult, if not impossible, to accomplish those changes. Some of the apparently “logical” and “reasonable” changes would actually make matters worse. In this article I will attempt to explain a few of those situations.

Last week I referred to some changes in the Medicaid program that New York State was attempting to implement. This week I saw another report that the federal government is threatening to block those changes. The “ObamaCare” Bill passed last year contains a provision that requires all participants to maintain at least the same level of programs and services as were provided when that law was enacted. In other words, the federal government is saying that New York State cannot reduce Medicaid benefit levels. The irony is that for many years NYS has provided far more generous Medicaid benefits than any other state. Even with the proposed reductions our benefits will remain among the most generous in the country. Why should we be penalized? The problem is that the federal government pays 50% of the cost of Medicaid. The potential penalty is forfeiture of that 50% subsidy. Amazingly, by trying to save a small amount of money we may end up losing a huge amount of federal assistance. Does this make any sense?

Wages represent one of the single largest expenses for most local governments. Numerous taxpayers have urged the Legislature to slash employment. Would that actually save any money? Probably not. If an employee goes on “Unemployment” the County would have to pay the full cost since it does not carry insurance for that. Unemployment benefits are typically equal to 66% of an employee’s former wage. Unemployment benefits currently last for up to 99 weeks. This means that laying off employees will typically save only 34% of their wages. However, the analysis cannot stop there. Many employees perform services that are partially funded by state and federal subsidies. If those employees are laid off those services will be discontinued and we will lose most of those subsidies. I have identified several programs where we are likely to end up spending more local money for unemployment benefits as a result of laying off county employees and losing subsidies.

There are other potential “downsides” to laying off numerous employees. Some discharged employees would probably qualify for “retirement.” If so, they would receive their pension and in many cases would also receive “retiree health benefits.” The County would have continued expenses for those employees, but would no longer receive any state or federal funding for subsidized programs. Layoffs would provide some savings over the long term, but in the short term there would be little or no savings. Some departments would experience an actual increase in expenses.

Local governments are not the only ones experiencing budget problems. New York State is struggling to balance its budget. One of its favorite tactics is to reduce its contribution to existing programs, while requiring the County to maintain that program, without any cuts. This recently happened in several different social welfare type programs. The federal government has been running huge deficits and Congress is gridlocked over debt limits and taxes. I will not be surprised if subsidy levels are reduced, even while we are being told we cannot raise taxes.

Finally, the State and federal government are continually passing new laws that impose greater burdens upon local governments. For example, ObamaCare now requires us to provide insurance coverage to all children of employees up to age 26, regardless of whether they are dependents or living at home. How are we supposed to pay for this? There are simply not enough dollars to pay for everything. The next few years will be filled with difficult and painful choices.

A-A Alumni Association partners with Genesee Valley Trust

HORNELL--On Monday, Sept. 26, representatives of the Alfred-Almond Alumni Association (AAAA) met with bankers from the Genesee Valley Trust Company (GVTC) of Pittsford. The meeting was hosted in Hornell, New York by the law office and staff of Bill Pulos, A-A Class of 1973.

The purpose of the meeting was to confirm the new relationship entered between the AAAA and GVTC as the new money managers for the AA Alumni Association.

Since 2000, the AAAA has been actively raising money for its Association scholarship and award programs. Spearheaded by Lee and Donna Ryan of Almond, the AAAA has raised hundreds of thousands of dollars in the last eleven years, most of which has gone directly to worthy Alfred-Almond graduates. In 1999, the Alumni Association gave away a $250.00 award to two Alfred-Almond graduating seniors. Twelve years later, in 2011, the Alumni Association proudly distributed $44,000.00 in scholarships and summer camp awards to Alfred Almond students.

During this time, the investment committee of the AAAA has been investigating ways of making the monies they raise, year over year, work harder for the AAAA, thereby creating an additional way to raise funds and bring more professionalism to the process.

Genesee Valley Trust Company (<http://www.geneseevalleytrust.com/>) is a chartered bank whose mission is to manage money for families, individuals, organizations, not-for-profits and trusts to maximize return, over generations. Organized in 1994, GVTC is a wholly owned subsidiary of Canandaigua National Bank (<https://www.cnbank.com/>), whose holdings are valued at $1,700,000,000.00. GVTC currently has almost five hundred million dollars ($500,000,000.00) under their management alone. Although GVTC manages millions of dollars, they carefully select their clients to retain the ability to personally serve each account and have a personal relationship with the individuals with whom they work.

Recently, the bankers from

GVTC conducted a series of investigative meetings with AAAA officials, in a sense vetting the AAAA, culminating with the meeting held at the Pulos and Rosell law office in Hornell. During those meetings, the prospects of money growth, management and accounting for the AAAA funds were discussed and reviewed.

"The AAAA has always envisioned the opportunity and time when our resources could justify a third-party money manager. It just so happens that GVTC was in the perfect place to help the AAAA investment committee move to the next level in terms of fundraising, earnings and accountings for scholarships. The bankers at GVTC are down-to-earth professionals that bring expert credentials and bearing to our local investment team that we really appreciate. There is tremendous potential for the AAAA going forward" said Lee A. Ryan, President of the AAAA.

Ryan went on to explain that the board members feel that it is extremely important to us that everyone knows and understands that the AAAA has retained what they consider to be top-notch money management to maximize the value and importance of their charitable program and growing scholarship activities.

They want all the donors to trust the management of their funds and realize that GVTC will help the AAAA really put their funds to work with capital preservation and avoidance of downside risk as our number #1 goals.

"They will also help us with the meticulous task of accounting for earnings on dedicated memorial sub-accounts set up by individual donors like Bill Pulos ('73), Glen Feltham ('84) and Scott Yelle ('86)," added Kathy Curran Snyder, Treasurer of the AAAA.

"This is a class organization, and we respect their long-reach and processes and look forward to a long relationship with GVTC," said Bob Baker of the AAAA investment committee.

"Our AAAA board voted in August to bring GVTC on board with our alumni association. We believe this is another 'first' for Alfred-Almond alumni, our school and our surrounding area.

We take this very seriously and we're extremely pleased with our new relationship," said Donna Ryan, secretary of the AAAA.

On September 26th, a series of agreements were signed between the two organizations that authorize GVTC to serve as money manager for the AAAA, thereby allowing the AAAA treasury world-class access to the best minds in the business world-wide.

Bob Carville, GVTC's Vice President for Business Development was speaking for all when he said, "We appreciate your trust in GVT. Our mission at GVT is to provide families and community organizations with investment services designed to accumulate, preserve and distribute wealth over multiple generations. So I think this is a great opportunity to help you grow the objectives and the good deeds of AAAA. Thanks again for having us down yesterday and for the trust you are placing in our entire firm."

Geoffrey Blyth, GVTC's Senior Vice-President and Investment Officer was effusive in his praise for the conservative approach taken by the AAAA: "Thanks, folks, for welcoming us with open arms. We are thrilled to have the opportunity to help you continue the mission of the AAAA. We also take seriously the trust you place in us. GVT will be an honest partner who works hard to allow you to continue to provide scholarship support to Alfred-Almond students. You are all good people. And, we like to work with good people. This should be a beneficial relationship."

The Alfred-Almond Alumni Association was first organized in 1960 and has held annual banquets since that time. Chartered by the IRS as a 501(c)(3) organization, the AAAA has provided more than $225,000 in scholarship and summer camp funds to more than two hundred AACS students over the years.

The AAAA investment committee agreed, with all this as background, that AAAA members and the community at large can rest assured that the AAAA is making every effort to insure the viability and continuity of the AAAA scholarship programs, well into the future.

With this undertaking, the AAAA plans to move forward and attract more charitable donations knowing that all donors have the extra added assurance that their money will be put to its best possible use, by working, earning and giving with the AAAA.

Community Chest

Drive at 17% of goal

Dear Editor:

The Alfred-Almond Station Community Chest has completed its first week of its 2011 drive and, thus far, has received pledges of $6221 or about 17% of our 2011 goal of $36,600. We encourage that you, the people of our community, consider pledging today. As Wes Bentz has always pointed out, our local organizations benefit immensely from your contributions. This week I am selecting the Senior Nutrition Site as our 'poster' organization.

The Senior Nutrition Site is an important organization that receives support from your Community Chest. Each week, lunch is served for our senior citizens at the Union University Church Center. Not only does this luncheon provide a nutritious meal for the seniors, it is also an opportunity for them to meet old and new friends and neighbors. Many of those who live alone enjoy the companionship that this gathering provides. In fact, seniors often come early to participate, and to assist others.

The Nutrition Site is sponsored by the Allegany County Office for the Aging and is regularly attended by our 'elderly' community people. Volunteer drivers are available to pick up those who need transportation. Diners are asked to make a payment for their meal, but this does not cover incidentals such as decorations and other items for festive meals and for birthday celebrations. Sugar substitutes are needed for those on low sugar diets, as well as other required modifications for specialized diets.

A gift to the Community Chest is an opportunity to provide the extras to our senior citizens who have given so much to us and our community over the years. Many of these individuals, although they are on relatively low, fixed incomes, continue to make generous contributions to our campaign. We hope that you will agree that support for the Senior Nutrition Site, as well as our other campaign organizations, provides services that are essential to our community. We ask those of you who have not yet made a donation or pledge to join your friends and neighbors who have made our drive a success again this year. Many thanks to those who have been so generous in this pledge year, as well as in past years.

If, for some reason, you did not receive a pledge card, your donation may still be left at the Alfred Pharmacy in Alfred, the Canacadea Country Store in Alfred Station, or may be mailed to Alfred-Almond Station Community Chest, Box 603, Alfred, NY, 14802. We always look forward to any community support you can provide.

Sincerely,

William Carlson

AU's Fosdick-Nelson to open 'Tablespace'

ALFRED--"TableSpace," an exhibition of ceramics featuring artists working in North America, Europe and the Far East, will be on display at the Fosdick-Nelson Gallery, School of Art & Design at Alfred University (AU), Oct. 14-Dec. 1.

The opening reception will be held from 7-9 p.m. Friday, Oct. 14, in the gallery, located in Harder Hall on the Alfred University campus.

Co-curators for the exhibition are Linda Sikora, professor in the Division of Ceramic Art at Alfred University, and, Albion Stafford, who earned his BFA in 1999 and an MFA in 2007 from the School of Art & Design at AU and is now assistant professor at Illinois State University Normal.

Andrea Gill, professor of ceramic art at AU and a 1976 alumna with an MFA degree, is organizing accompanying artist/scholar presentations being planned for Nov. 8-10.

Exhibiting artists include three Alfred University alumni: Andy Brayman (USA), '98; Lisa Orr (USA), '92; and Robert Sutherland (USA), '01, as well as Paul Eshelmann (USA), Tomoo Hamada (Japan), Sarah Jaeger (USA), Ole Jensen (Denmark), Paul Katula (USA), Sandy Simon (USA), Songgard Marcks (Germany), Mark Pharis (USA), Kari Radish (USA), Sam Uhlick (Canada), and Takeshi Yasuda (UK, Jingdezhen-PRC).

"The Fosdick Nelson Gallery and the Division of Ceramic Arts are excited to present this exhibition representing a cross-section of current ceramic work that addresses the subject of function, and through this, implicates the site of 'table' or other like situations," said Sikora.

"Within this realm of ceramic work, there is a notable broadening of approaches to studio practice," said Sikora. "This broadening, a beacon for us as the exhibition's curators, is fueled by a multiplicity of factors. Examples include: re-invigorated or expanded technical approaches including digital tools; enlivened traditions of model/mold making and object design; global exchanges connecting artists to cultures, skilled labor and industry; new models for sustainable studio processes; and, new models for sustainable careers. Dynamic and fluid, this point in time is noteworthy for its confluence of aesthetic and conceptual attitudes towards practice and output.

"While the exhibition is showing only 14 artists, these individuals represent some of the most vibrant practitioners working with ceramic today. It is our hope that this sampling of work will render visible a landscape of current practice - not to be read as a single commentary or perspective but rather to suggest, observe and question the multiplicity of 'contemporary' in this longstanding pursuit of making for 'TableSpace'," Sikora added.

The artists:

Andy Brayman '98 combines traditional ceramic craft with industrial processes and contemporary strategies to create decorative and functional pottery. Brayman is the founder of The Matter Factory, a collaborative workspace for ceramic objects in Kansas City. He holds a BA in sociology and a BFA in ceramics from the University of Kansas as well as an MFA in Ceramics from Alfred.

Paul Eshelman creates elegant, functional pottery that is largely influenced by Japanese and Chinese craft, the utilitarianism of the American Shakers, contemporary architecture and the practicality of his home state of Iowa. He holds an MFA from the Rhode Island School of Design.

Tomoo Hamada is a Japanese ceramic artist represented by the Pucker Gallery. Hamada comes from a family of potters, with his father and grandfather both prominent in Japanese pottery. Hamada uses traditional methods to create decorative stoneware in complex shapes and designs.

Gill offers ceramic exhibit

ALFRED—Alfred University Professor Andrea Gill's ceramic exhibit, "Weaving Form and Surface," will open at the Cohen Center for the Arts with a public reception Wednesday, Oct. 19 from 4-6 p.m.

The exhibit features a variety of ceramic basins and vases inspired by an image from a decorative Chinese plate.

Included in the exhibit are the images and glaze samples that Gill, a professor of ceramic art, experimented with in preparation for the clay work and surface decorations. The resulting ceramic vessels emphasize the interworking nature of image and shape.

"Weaving Form and Surface" will run through Friday, Dec. 2. Following the opening reception, visitors may view the exhibit by appointment; contact Kevin Jacobs at jacobsj@alfred.edu.

Gill is a professor in the AU School of Art & Design. She holds a bachelor of fine arts degree from the Rhode Island

FINDING A PEARL IN THE OYSTER

The hours I have spent over many years delving through collections of used books for sale have been some of my most satisfying ones. The pleasure it gives me results from several aspects of the activity.

For one thing, this bibliophile regards it as a way to save money fast. I reject buying dozens for every one I purchase. So by not spending money on the many, the cost of the single item is more than paid for. Right?

In addition used books can provide welcome surprises. For instance, new copies of recently published books are generally considered of higher value than used copies, and cost more.

Yet, the other day for fifty cents I bought a used copy of a recent book in a mystery series I like. When I gave it a closer look at home, the title page had been signed by the author! A good bargain.

Fortunately for me, Alfred has a multi-purpose stand at the corner of Main and West University Streets, maintained by Chrystal Dodge. People discard a variety of printed materials, recordings, jigsaw puzzles, toys, and other miscellany there. The takers may, or may not, place monetary donations in a box. The accumulating sums go to Planned Animal Life.

Recently I picked up a thin, yellowed and bedraggled book there. Entitled "The One Hundred and One Best Songs," information on the paper cover further stated, "Published by the Cable Company, Cable Building, Chicago" and "Copyright 1913." I was momentarily confused as cable television did not exist then.

The next phrase, "The World's Greatest Manufacturers of Pianos, Inner-Player Pianos, and Organs," cleared my mind. Furthermore, the cover sketch of a family of four gathered around an upright piano brought back memories of similar occasions.

Just as this well worn music book did, oyster shells can look rough and unpromising on the outside. Unless they are cultured, one may or may not find a pearl inside. The instant I opened this music book, I realized that I had a "pearl" in hand.

Around 1939, my parents bought a Cable spinet piano at the Jenkins Music branch store in Joplin, Missouri, where we were living. My mother, sister, and I began taking lessons from a teacher I only recall as "Alice."

My father's father had been a piano teacher. He gave Inez, the older of his two daughters, lessons. Perhaps because of her exceptional talent, he never bothered to instruct his three younger children.

Assuming that our six hands would be occupying the keyboard practicing for many hours, my father found it needless to take lessons now. Fortunately, my mother learned readily, given a head start by having played the violin when young.

My father disapproved of the possible influence radio programs might have on his daughters. Television was not yet in the picture. So apart from the evening dinner table, our family often convened at the piano before bedtime. As my mother played the accompaniment, we all sang favorite songs from eras before mine.

Probably most of these songs are unfamiliar to today's children. When young, I did not understand all of the words. But as I turned this book's pages, and heard the melodies in my head, I fell into a state of reminiscence.

Since my first name, "Martha," was also the title of Friedrich von Flotow's opera, we had often sung the Irish song he inserted into it, "The Last Rose of Summer." Another flowery item, too, had a special recollection attached to it.

My mother once participated in a benefit stage performance. Although her voice was untrained, she could carry a tune. However, she was reluctant to yield to the director's insistence that she appear as a soloist. Delivered invisibly from just offstage, the anonymous soprano's rendition of Sir William S. Gilbert's and Sir Arthur Sullivan's "The Flowers that Bloom in the Spring," did her family proud.

It would please me greatly if some energetic Alfredians were to organize a community "Old-Song Sing-Along" for participants of all ages. The piano in Alfred Village Hall begs for vocalizing families to encircle it.

Willing pianists, amateur or not, could play the melodies through once before each song is sung. No one else would need to read music. Words could be displayed by a projector and screen.

My expectations include wholehearted warbling, renderings in many accents, loud humming, and silly hamming. The ability to carry a tune would not be required, as I wish to participate.

AU groups to collaborate on 'War and Peace' Oct. 22

ALFRED—The Alfred University Chorus, Chamber Singers, and String Orchestra will team up with the Chester County Choral Society (CCCS), West Chester, PA, in concert to present "War and Peace," Saturday, Oct. 22, at 8 p.m. in the Miller Theater on the AU campus. The event is open to public free of charge.

Conceived as a way to commemorate the 10th anniversary of 9/11, the performance will include "Testament of Freedom" by Randall Thompson, and Ralph Vaughan Williams' "Dona Nobis Pacem."

This masterwork for chorus and orchestra will be conducted by Gary Garletts, CCCS director, with Luanne Crosby, AU professor of voice and chorus, as

Photography being exhibited at OFA

BELMONT--The Allegany County Office for the Aging is displaying the photography of local artist, Judith Hopkins.

Mrs. Hopkins is an amateur photographer who loves capturing a "moment in time" through her camera lens. Knowing that moment will never happen again is part of her fascination with reflecting the images she sees in everyday life. She is especially drawn to the beauty of nature and agrees with 13th century poet, Dante, who said, "Nature is the Art of God."

Judy is most recognized for her images of local scenery, but is excited to share some of her other favorite photographs at the Office for the Aging gallery show. The Office for the Aging show highlights her images of Allegany County scenery, colorful flowers, interesting faces, and the beauty of places she has traveled.

Though Judy's love of photography began as a child, it is only in recent years that she has been able to pursue it as a passionate hobby. She has had no formal training in art or photography, but is always eager to learn more about this fascinating subject. Judy lives in Fillmore with her husband, Ted. Her photography is also featured at the Main Center Art Gallery in Angelica, with wall prints and note cards available for sale.

The Hopkins photos will be displayed at the Office for the Aging through the Fall. Anyone is encouraged to come during regular business hours to view the show.

The Office for the Aging regularly highlights the art of Allegany County residents over age 60. As Stanislaw Lec said, "Youth is a gift of nature, but age is a work of art."

soprano soloist. Christopher Foster, Alfred University assistant professor of music and director of bands, will perform on trumpet. The AU String Orchestra is currently led by David Thurkins while Dr. Lisa Lantz is on sabbatical.

Each choral group will also present one selection from choral literature fitting with the theme.

This collaboration marks the second half of an exchange envisioned by Crosby and Garletts. Susan Davies, former resident of Alfred Station and member of the AU Chorus, is the real link since she is now a member of the CCCS and was the brainchild of the choral exchange. In 2009, the Alfred University Chamber Singers joined CCCS for a performance of the "Rutter Requiem."

Crosby has sung professionally with the Cleveland Opera, Aspen Opera Theater, the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra, Cleveland chamber Orchestra, Orchestra of the Southern Finger Lakes, and the Fredonia Chamber Players. She has been a frequent guest recitalist at Chautauqua Institution.

She teaches music appreciation, American music and world music as well as voice classes and private lessons in voice. Her students have won awards at National Association of Teachers of Singing events and have been accepted into national choirs.

Crosby earned a doctorate in musical arts from the Cleveland (Ohio) Institute of Music/Case Western Reserve University, and master's and bachelor's degrees, both in music, from the State University of New York at Fredonia.

Foster teaches music theory and wind instrument lessons. Foster holds bachelor of music education and master of music degrees from the University of Nevada-Reno, and a doctor of musical arts degree in trumpet performance and wind conducting from the University of North Texas (UNT)-Denton.

Thurkins recently retired from public school teaching holding positions with the Fairport, Wellsville, and Corning-Painted Post school districts. As a performing violinist, he is a core first violinist with the Orchestra of the Southern Finger Lakes (OSFL), first violinist in a string quartet of OSFL members, and in a violin/keyboard duo with his wife, Sherrie.

Garletts earned music degrees at Oberlin College and Duquesne University, and received awards for excellence from both institutions. From 2005 to 2010 he worked as a staff accompanist in the school of music of West Chester University of PA.

'Taste of Wellsville' Oct. 16

WELLSVILLE—Local eateries will once again participate in Alfred State College's sixth annual "Taste of Wellsville" this year, Sunday, Oct. 16, from 12:30-3:30 p.m. This year, the event is being held the same day as the first of Alfred State's two fall open houses and the Wellsville Ridge Walk and Run.

Restaurants and other food purveyors will showcase their tasty signature dishes in "miniature form" at stations around the Applied Technology Campus in Wellsville.

Participating eateries include: Case Catering, Hot Diggity Dogs, Giant Food, L'Italia, Beef Haus, Tops Markets, Short's Grocery/Deli, and Papa Louie's—others may be added up until the day of the event. Tickets for the food (50 cents each—food costs may range from one ticket to several although no food item will exceed $3.50) may be purchased on the day of the event. Ten percent of each food ticket sold will be donated to a local charity/organization. This year's recipient is the Jones Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

In addition to the yummy "eats," the day will feature interactive curriculum demonstrations by Alfred State students who will introduce visitors to the programs and projects underway on the Applied Technology Campus. Last year's event included activities such as Excavator Bowling, Egg Scramble, Backhoe Softball, Tire Rolling, and much more! Tours of the campus will be conducted.

Blood pressure testing will be performed by Alfred State College nursing students throughout the day.

ACCORD Corp. technicians will be on site performing car safety seat checks. Walk-ins are always welcomed; however, appointments for this testing are appreciated. (Appointments may be made in advance by calling Allison Mosher at (585) 593-0792 ext. 1217.)

competent in French and German. He read intellectual and moral philosophy, with a segment particularly congenial to someone of his deep religious conviction: evidence of revelation. Rogers excelled in his studies. On graduating, in 1857, he was elected to membership in the national collegiate honor society of Phi Beta Kappa.

Alfred Academy wasted no time in recognizing Rogers's value as a scholar of distinction; it hired him almost immediately to teach mathematics. At 25, short but powerfully built, with a thatch of dark wavy hair and a full beard, he was a commanding presence on the Alfred campus. In the summer of 1857, he married Rebecca Jane Titsworth, a member of a prominent Seventh Day family; in 1859, he was named professor of mathematics at the recently chartered Alfred University.

In 1863, on leave from Alfred, Rogers registered as an astronomy student at the Harvard University Observatory, in Cambridge, Massachusetts. Eighteen months later—the closing year of the Civil War—he enlisted in the Union Navy, serving as a yeoman (captain's clerical assistant) aboard a gunboat that hunted arms-carrying blockade runners bound for Confederate ports.

At war's end, Rogers returned to Alfred to settle into his old job of professor of mathematics, but with responsibility for a new course offering, astronomy, added to his schedule. Rare for a school Alfred's size, it now had the star-gazing gadgetry to go with the teaching; within months of leaving the Navy, Rogers had completed the task he had set for himself two years earlier: building and equipping (on the site of the present Howell Hall) the campus's first astronomical observatory.

The Alfred University of 1865 suited Rogers well. He was thoroughly at home in an institution that saw itself as a bulwark of his church. Although Alfred today is affiliated with no religious group, in Rogers's time the school bore the unmistakable stamp of its Seventh Day Baptist origins. It accepted as a key role the education of men for the ministry and of men and women for teaching, a vocation revered by the sect.

The notion of sectarian identity implicit in early campus life would not be lost on a future chronicler and president of the university, John Nelson Norwood, himself a Seventh Day co-religionist. In his 1957 book, "Fiat Lux," Norwood wrote that "boasts about the broadmindedness of the founders in omitting any reference to church control in the [university's charter of incorporation] are merely boasts. They are not in fact true.... Certain it is that the control of Alfred University by Seventh Day Baptists was never due to any effective legal tie, but to the simple fact that until near the middle of the 20th century its top leadership and... teaching personnel were of that faith."

Still, for Rogers, tensions surfaced. His relations with the university's second president, Jonathan Allen, a Seventh Day Baptist divine, were said to be distant. Corliss F. Randolph, a contemporary Alfred alumnus and trustee, spoke of a "certain coolness" that had developed between the two men. In a memoir, Randolph wrote that "Allen was extremely sensitive." And Rogers, he added, was "in those days...highly opinionated and overbearing."

Thus, whether by reason of disaffection,

Almost denuded of trees, the Alfred University campus as William Rogers would have known it. (Alfred University archives) restiveness or sheer ambition, Rogers accepted without hesitation when Harvard, in 1870, wrote to offer a prized academic plum, an observatory assistantship.

The school that Rogers left behind occupied a rural backwater of farmers and small tradesmen. The New England world that he entered—Cambridge, the seat of Harvard—was, at first glance, not that different. "Cambridge...had much of the village look of old," wrote historian Van Wyck Brooks in his brilliant survey "New England: Indian Summer." "A low rustic fence surrounded the buildings of Harvard College. The pump stood in the square. The horses stopped to drink at the trough beside it, and cows were pastured in the vacant lots that lay beyond the common." But any kinship with western New York ended at Harvard's door.

That university, then as now, prided itself on being the preeminent institution of higher learning in the United States. It was a magnet for the intellectual life of the country, and in his strolls along Brattle Street or in Harvard Square, Rogers most likely would have tipped his hat to some of the thinking man's rock stars of his generation: to the poets Lowell and Longfellow; the novelist William Dean Howells; the historian and Harvard professor Henry Adams, grandson of one American president and great grandson of another; and certainly to the philosopher William James, almost always seen in company with his close friend Oliver Wendell Holmes, lecturer in law at Harvard and a future chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court—the tall, craggy Holmes still limping from wounds suffered in the Civil War battles of Antietam and Chancellorsville. The Harvard Observatory that Rogers joined was a fully equipped academic department staffed by professionals. As an untitled assistant, Rogers was assigned the task of mapping star positions in the northern heavens for a German astronomical society. But the work was tedious; promotion slow—he would not be appointed assistant professor of astronomy for another seven years. In a spoof of the observatory staged at Harvard in 1929, a character called "Prof. Rogers" sings to the music of Gilbert & Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafore" a refrain that begins: An astronomer is a sorry soul.... He must toil at night though cold it be, and he never should expect a decent salaree....

Rogers was a man of vast intellect and wide interests. At Harvard, he continued to produce and publish a steady flow of research papers, begun at Alfred, on subjects ranging from mathematical astronomy and celestial navigation to micrometry, standards of length and expansion of metals. He filled his lecture notebooks with newspaper and magazine clippings of biblical exhortations, Greek history, rambles on German rivers and theories of art. In 1881—with the first stirrings of an international reputation—he was named an honorary fellow of Britain's Royal Microscopical Society; and the following year, vice president of the section of mathematics and astronomy of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

In 1886, sixteen years after taking up the Harvard post, Rogers climbed another rung of the academic career ladder. He accepted a full professorship of physics and astronomy at Colby University, in Waterville, Maine. By now, the sturdy young man of mid-century Alfred had become, at 54, a balding, portly figure with the flowing gray beard of a church patriarch. Affectionately dubbed "Santa" by his Colby students because of the beard, he was also known for his eccentricities. For example, one story making the campus rounds related how Rogers would board a local trolley, carefully extract the nickel fare from his wallet, present the conductor with the wallet, and put the coin back in his pocket.

Yet even in his Colby years, there was much more to William Rogers than a cartoon cutout of the absent-minded professor. In 1891, his alma mater, Brown, invited him to give the keynote address at the dedication of the school's new astronomical observatory. Uncannily, Rogers foreshadowed in his talk the proposition of an expanding universe expounded nearly four decades later by the American astronomer Edwin Hubble. Rogers cited what he called "fairly conclusive" evidence that our solar system was "hastening with amazing velocity" toward a distant galaxy. "We have only taken the first step in the solution of the greatest problem of any age," he said, "the motion of the solar and [stellar] systems in absolute space...."

But although Rogers suggested in his Brown speech a dawning awareness of the shape of the universe, like virtually all astronomers of his era, he did not, or could not, make that intuitive leap backward in time to what today is considered the cornerstone of modern physics—the theory that all matter evolved from a dense pinpoint of energy predating the biblical Genesis by some 14 billion years.

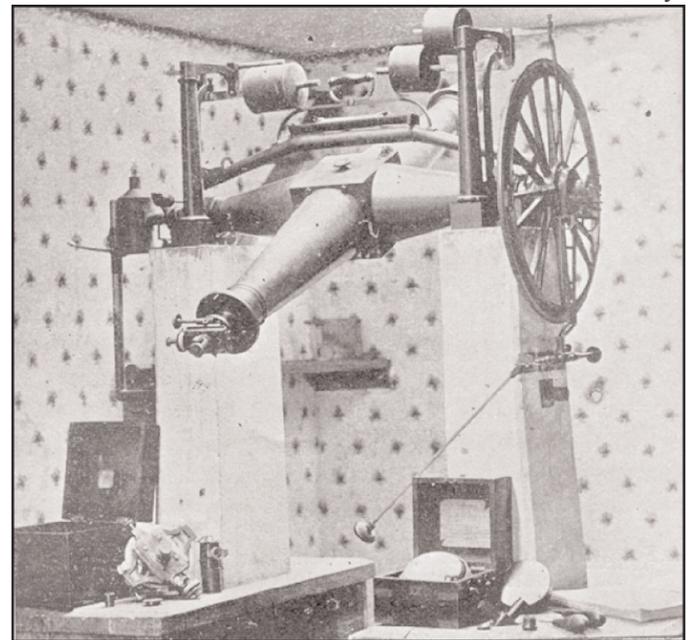

Sometime in the mid 1890s, the young Seventh Day pastor Boothe Colwell Davis, Alfred's fifth president, traveled to Colby to urge Rogers to return to his denominational roots. Rogers was receptive. Davis offered an endowed professorship of physics and said a special building would be erected to house Rogers's classrooms, equipment and laboratories. Rogers agreed to the terms.

Rogers intended to rejoin the Alfred faculty in the spring of 1898. In his letter of resignation to Colby's trustees, dated June 28, 1897, he said "the years which I have spent with you have been the most pleasant of my life." Nevertheless, he made a point of noting that his sole reason for leaving the school "is the desire to spend the remainder of my active life among the people of my own faith."

It was not to be. What Davis of Alfred and perhaps Rogers himself had no way of knowing was that by 1895 Rogers was a very sick man.

In the late 1890s, an old friend of the astronomer's named Edward W. Morley would recall that people close to Rogers at Colby had for several years noticed "progress of disease." Morley was a past president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Morley said Rogers attended the science association's meeting for the last time in the summer of 1896, and that he spent the next summer "in an ocean voyage and a residence in an island climate."

Star-tracking equipment used at Alfred by William Rogers. (Alfred University archives)

But by January 1898, Rogers's health had deteriorated sharply. "He continued to work against all advice," Morley said. "When he became unable to walk"—the illness was identified as an irreversible nerve disorder of the spinal cord—"his [Colby] classes came to his house, and such labors were continued till fourteen days before death came."

Rogers died in Waterville on March 1, 1898. He was 65.

There is a poignant coda to the story. Jonathan Allen, Rogers's onetime Alfred nemesis, had died in 1892. Corliss Randolph, the Alfred trustee, later recounted a conversation he recalled having with Rogers not long after Allen's death.

According to Randolph, Rogers told him that 15 years after moving to Harvard, he met Allen again. Both men were attending a Seventh Day church conference on the Alfred campus. As related by Randolph, "Allen bluntly said, 'Rogers, why did you leave Alfred?' Rogers replied, 'Why, I thought you wanted me to go.' Allen said, 'I didn't want you to go, and was much disappointed that you went.'"

"Both were unusual men," Randolph went on, "of great intellectual power and scholastic attainment. Both were possessed of a certain type of jealousy, and both were highly sensitive, and both drew their cloaks about them...and went their several ways in mental anguish and great discomfort of soul, and to Alfred's inestimable loss."

FIFTY YEARS AGO, OCTOBER 12, 1961

Boothe Colwell Davis, fourth president of Alfred University, will become the second of "Alfred's Great" when he is honored at the Charter Day Convocation, Oct. 19. Dr. Finla G. Crawford of Andover, an alumnus and trustee of the University, will deliver the tribute. Appropriately, it was Dr. Crawford, who as president of the Alumni Association, paid tribute to the retiring president in 1933 at the alumni banquet and in a commencement address. The custom of honoring persons who have been prominent in the history of the University, or to distinguished alumni, was inaugurated last year at the "Founder's Day" exercises. This was the "Appreciation Speech" presented by Dr. Ernest B. Finch, chairman of the English Department, honoring the University's first president, William Colgrove Kenyon. Boothe Colwell Davis served as president of the University longer than any other man—for 38 years from 1895 until 1933. He was elected to the office by the board of trustees only 10 years after he first enrolled as a student...

Editorial—Anyone for Football? Could anyone ask for better football weather than last Saturday, including the players? Wasn't that a disappointing home-team crowd at the Union game, though? The regular hometown folk were there, but the usual neighboring area people were quite absent and those near whom we sat seemed to be more critical of players, coaching, wrong or missing numbers in the program, etc., than was warranted. Isn't the percentage of college students present at the home games disgusting? It's not disgusting, it's nauseating!...

After coming from behind in the last nine minutes to score twice and beat Union 12-6, the Alfred Saxons today looked to their homecoming game with St. Lawrence Saturday afternoon at Alfred. They spotted Union 6-0 lead in the opening period and then trailed until Richie Falcigno banged across from the four-yard line with the clock showing nine minutes in the game. Joe Renwick forced across from the one-yard-line with a minute and 48 seconds remaining to give Alfred the win...

He is employed by The Gunlocke Company in Washington, D.C. as a sales representative. The couple will be wed December 27, 1986, at the Alfred-Almond Bible Church.

The Alfred Saxons gave the No. 1 ranked Upstate New York power Ithaca Bombers a run for their money Saturday, before two fourth quarter TDs gave the hosts a 28-18 win. It was a tough loss for the Saxons, who went into the game with a 3-0 record and a chance for state and national recognition with a win. Now AU must regroup and travel to Canton to take on an unusually winless St. Lawrence team...Ithaca took only four plays to score in the first two minutes of the game. But a 75-yard kickoff return by Jay Radzavicz set up an Alfred score, making it 7-6. After a 5-yard penalty was assessed on the PAT, the attempt was partially blocked. AU rallied from a 14-6 deficit to take an 18-14 lead at halftime with Paul McDonnell hooking up with Bob Jones and Tony Gibbons on 24 and 21 yard TD passes, in the final minute of the second period. That lead held until early in the fourth period, when the Bombers rallied to victory.

The largest student population in nearly a decade has been cause for both smiles and creative problem-solving at Alfred State College this fall. The college welcomed 1,400 new students, who joined some 1,650 returning students to make a total student body of 3,050, up over 9 percent from fall 2000, when enrollment stood at 2,790.

The AU football team (1-4), playing before a Homecoming crowd of more than 2,000 fans, fell to Hartwick, 37-24, Saturday afternoon at Merrill Field. The Saxons opened up an 11-0 first quarter lead only to see Hartwick storm back to claim a 15-11 halftime edge. The unbeaten Hawks led by only five points after three quarters, 29-24, but put the game away with a fourth-quarter touchdown. The loss spoiled another solid effort from AU junior tailback Jesse Raynor (Weedsport), who rushed for 157 yards and a score and caught three passes for 22 yards. Raynor has now run for at least 100 yards in three of five games this season and has 647 yards rushing on the year...

The Dugout--It was a weekend of historic achievements in Major League Baseball as the 2001 regular season came to a conclusion. Barry Bonds of the SF Giants belted out three dingers past Big Mac's amazing total of just three seasons ago and now stands alone as the single season leader for home runs with his (73). Rickey Henderson erased the legendary Ty Cobb from the record books by scoring his 2,248 career run over the weekend and the lead-off hitter reached 3,000 safeties for his career...

Allegany Arc dedicates PWI building as 'Witkowski Vocational Training Center'

WELLSVILLE--Almost 100 people including family members recently attended a special ceremony when Allegany Arc dedicated its PWI building on Andover Road as the "Richard S. Witkowski Vocational Training Center" in memory of former President and CEO, Richard S. Witkowski.

Richard S. Witkowski served more than 20 years with Allegany Arc before retiring in February 2010. He was a dedicated champion for people with intellectual and developmental disabilities.

Richard Witkowski's genuine kindness and caring made him not only a strong leader, but a leader that people could relate to. His deep commitment to helping people with special needs and their families set the highest standard for all employees of Allegany Arc, a standard still strived for today.

He continuously aimed for the best quality of service for people with special needs and was humble when praised for all of his note-worthy accomplishments.

During his tenure, Allegany Arc grew significantly, establishing a community residence for children with Autism and five Individualized Residential Alternative homes. He also created the first program for adults with Traumatic Brain Injuries in Allegany County.

Other additions during his early years at Allegany Arc include opening the PWI Training facility on the Andover Road in 1995 and two other training sites in Wellsville.

Mr. Chris Koehler, Senior Vice-President of Sales and Marketing, remarked about Mr. Witkowski, "Dick never sought or desired the limelight, he allowed others to shine. Dick was gentle and non-confrontational by nature. Like EF Hutton, when Dick spoke people listened. A day never went by without a smile from Dick, or more likely a joke or wise crack. Dick taught us all that though our work was serious, it was important to look at the humorous side of things."

Chris continued, "Dick genuinely cared about the staff at the Arc. He cared about our families. The best leaders in the world are not only experts in systems, processes and regulations; they are experts in our lives. Dick's caring, compassionate style increased productivity and job satisfaction among Allegany Arc employees."

He concluded by telling the crowd, "I am honored that for the rest of my career, I will be working at the Richard S. Witkowski Vocational Training Center."

Richard S. Witkowski's commitment to providing the highest quality opportunities for people with special needs and their families continues today as Allegany Arc's mission. For more information on Allegany Arc, please go to www.AlleganyArc.org.

THE GLORY OF AMERICA

Thursday, October 13

Christopher Columbus was the greatest navigator of his age, uniquely gifted to fulfill his calling as Christ-bearer. He was indeed called to bear the light west to Cathay and the Indies (as another devout navigator would, a general later). But he allowed himself to be diverted from his call by the temptation to rule over what he had discovered. His governorship of the Caribbean was a disaster. Yet even there, he could hear the Lord:

"My hope in the One who created us all sustains me: He is an ever present help in trouble...When I was extremely depressed, He raised me with His right hand, saying, 'O man of little faith, get up, it is I; do not be afraid.'"

For the Birds...

By BETSY BROOKS
Alfred Sun Columnist

Sunday, October 9 was the date set for the annual Allegany County bird count, held in cooperation with the Buffalo Ornithological Society. I can't remember a nicer day – warm, sunny, and with gorgeous fall colors as an added bonus.

Usually good weather brings a poorer bird count, but this time I had a wonderful count, although I only had time to spend a couple of hours in the field. I tallied 20 species in a count area that included parts of Randolph Road, Lake Road, the Vandermark Road and Brown Road.

Especially good finds were a Lincoln's Sparrow, 2 White-crowned Sparrows, a Common Raven, 3 White-throated Sparrows, a Belted Kingfisher, several flocks of Dark-eyed Juncos, a Brown Creeper, 1 Ruby-crowned Kinglet, at least 9 Golden-crowned Kinglets, 6 Eastern Bluebirds, 2 Yellow-rumped Warblers, 3 Eastern Towhees, 3 Song Sparrows, and small numbers of Mourning Doves, Blue Jays, crows, and a few starlings, Canada Geese and House Sparrows.

But the best finds were several big flocks of American Goldfinch (41) and Pine Siskins (35).

I shouldn't have been surprised by the siskins because last Wednesday, October 5, at Braddock Bay Bird Observatory, we banded 518 birds including an astounding 311 Pine Siskins! It was one of best days there since fall banding began 27 years ago. We caught all of the siskins essentially all at once in four mist-nets. The nets were absolutely sagging to the ground with siskins. If they had been feisty little chickadees it would have been a different story with totally frazzled net-pickers. But siskins are placid, easy-going birds that just sit there in the net and wait patiently to be removed. We estimate that perhaps 500 siskins were in the area of the banding station. We actually let at least 50 go unbanded because we didn't want to hold them any longer. It was a day I'll never forget, with an experienced, unflappable crew.

Among the siskins were a few gorgeous fall plumage Rusty Blackbirds. These blackbirds are one of the few species that is more handsome in fall plumage than in spring plumage. (see

Anyway, it looks like it will be a very good winter for Pine Siskins. Now that you've taken in your hummingbird feeders (if the jewel weed was hit by frost last week) it might be a good time to stock up on niger seed for the siskins this winter!

AU student organizes drive for shelter

ALFRED—Alfred University graduate student Julie Ilowiecki is raising support for Domestic Violence Awareness Month by organizing a drive for the women's shelter in Owego, which was badly damaged in the recent flooding.

Ilowiecki is working on a master of science degree in education/mental health. Originally from Montvale, Va., she attended Liberty High School and graduated from Old Dominion University with a bachelor's degree in psychology.

In the aftermath of the recent upstate New York flooding, the women's shelter in Owego is without many basic essentials. Ilowiecki is working with John Dougherty, AU chief of Public Safety, to collect items to support the shelter and help its staff and residents recover from the loss.

Items to be collected in the drive include household items such as dishes, pots and pans; bed and bath linens; personal care products, including baby diapers, shampoo, soap, toothbrushes, deodorant and personal hygiene products; and children's books and toys.

Collection boxes are located at the AU Lea Powell Institute for Children and Families, Sayles Street, Alfred; the AU Wellness Center, Park Street; the Science Center; and the Powell Campus Center at the Domestic Violence Awareness table.

Additionally, Ilowiecki is asking students, faculty, and staff to wear purple on Wednesday, Oct. 19 to mark Domestic Violence Awareness Month.

October has been officially designated Domestic Violence Awareness Month by the U.S. Congress since 1989. Domestic Violence Awareness month connects advocates across the nation who are working to end violence against women and children.

For more information on the Owego Shelter Drive and Alfred University's efforts to support Domestic Violence Awareness month, contact Ilowiecki at ji1@alfred.edu. To learn more

A-A students attend AU Swimming Camp

ALFRED—Emily Kokot of Almond attended the Swimming Camp at Alfred University this summer. Kokot is a freshman at Alfred-Almond Central School. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael and Tammy Kokot of Almond.

Juliana Call of Alfred also attended the AU Swimming Camp. Call is an eighth grader at Alfred-Almond Central School. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Andrew Call of Alfred.

The practice sessions took place in a 25-yard indoor pool inside AU's McLane Center. Swimmers received technical instruction and learned training principles. Campers received a camp T-shirt and a DVD with stroke analysis. Brian Striker, head coach of swimming and diving at AU, served as camp director.

When You Leave Your Job — Don't Leave Your Money Behind

No matter when you leave your job, the money you accumulated in your employer's retirement plan (such as a 401(k) or a 403(b) plan) while you were there can make the trip with you. Just be sure you don't lose it en route.

Penalties and taxes for premature withdrawals or improper rollovers into new retirement accounts are common pitfalls to avoid.

So call an experienced agent to help take this valuable asset to its new destination.

Rockwood kicks AU to 32-29 win over E8 foe Hartwick

ALFRED--Senior placekicker Eric Rockwood (Allegany-Limestone) booted a 29-yard field goal in overtime, sending the 23rd-ranked Alfred University football team (4-1, 2-1 Empire 8) to a thrilling 32-29 win over Hartwick before a capacity Homecoming crowd of 4200 at Merrill Field Saturday afternoon.

Rockwood's field goal, his fourth of the game, came after Hartwick missed a field goal on the Hawks' opening possession of the extra session.

Hartwick forced overtime when the Hawks, down 29-21, scored on a four-yard pass from Dan Brainard to Chris Hose with 3:43 left, then converted the two-point conversion. Alfred drove to the Hartwick 34-yard line on the Saxons' ensuing possession but turned the ball over on downs.

AU took a 29-21 lead with 10:10 left in the fourth when sophomore tailback Austin Dwyer (Hornell) burst through the right side and ran down the sideline on a 67-yard scoring run. Dwyer's score capped a 16-0 AU scoring run over the third and fourth quarters that erased a 21-13 deficit.

Hartwick took a 7-0 lead with 3:35 left in the first before AU took a 13-7 halftime lead. The Saxons scored on their third possession of the game, driving 55 yards in seven plays, with senior quarterback Tom Secky (Bemus Point/Maple Grove) tossing a 14-yard TD pass to junior tailback Tyler DeRosa (Miller Place) with 1:24 left in the opening frame. Rockwood booted a pair of second-quarter field goals, from 24 and 26 yards, to give AU the halftime edge.

Rockwood added a 37-yard field goal with just under seven minutes left in the third and senior linebacker Nick Clark (Canisteo-Grenwood) put Alfred ahead, 22-21, with a two-yard run with 3:39 left in the third. A two-point conversion attempt failed.

Dwyer finished with 119 yards on 16 carries, while DeRosa added 40 yards on 10 carries. Secky threw for 281 yards and a score. Junior tight end Adam Schutz (Geneva) caught five passes for a career-best 109 yards, while sophomore wideouts Justin Oliver (Rocky Point) (76 yards) and Josh Phillips (Camillus/West Genesee) (67 yards) each caught six passes.

Clark led the AU defense with 11 tackles (eight solo) and two pass breakups. Junior nose guard Mike Raplee (Dundee) had five tackles, including a sack, and junior free safety Jon Jackson (Amherst/Bishop Timon-St. Jude) had four solo tackles, an interception, a pass breakup and a blocked punt. Junior strong safety Reggie Pressley (Rochester/Gates-Chili) and senior linebacker Wes Smith (Turberville, PA/Muncy) each had seven tackles.

The Saxons will host unbeaten E8 foe Salisbury (5-0) Saturday, Oct. 15 with the E8 title on the line. Kickoff is at 12 noon.

HITS AND MISSES:

The regular season "Game of the Year" is set in the E8 for the Alfred Saxons (4-1) football program as the visiting Salisbury State Gulls (5-0) come storming into Merrill Field on Saturday. Coach Dave Murray's AU squad barely survived an upstart Hartwick team, 32-29 in OT on a Homecoming Weekend to keep their hopes alive for a conference title. Salisbury is 3-0 in league play, SJ Fisher is 2-0 and the Saxons are 2-1. With a loss the previous week to the Cardinals, this contest is a must win for Alfred University if they are to entertain any hopes of repeating as E8 champs! The high-powered Salisbury team backed up their 70-point explosion over Utica with a 65-23 thrashing of Springfield this past weekend. Ouch. Sounds like Mount Union is headed to Alfred for the day! Salisbury is ranked #18 in the latest D3.com poll while AU is close behind at #23.

In other Division III football action of note it was: SJ Fisher nipping Ithaca in OT (13-10) on the road, College of NJ over Brockport, Hobart rolling along over Union, Montclair State nipping Cortland State by one and Utica rebounding over RPI. With the loss to the Cardinals, Ithaca now has two defeats in the E8 with Alfred on the slate, late and their annual tilt with Cortland to follow. The Statesmen at Hobart are crushing foes right and left. Guessing they have the Liberty League title in a comfortable mode at the moment.

The Hornell Red Raiders (6-0) crushed Dansville on Friday past, 63-0. Yikes. The two-time defending state "B" champs haven't lost in well over two seasons, are set to grab another sectional crown in a few weeks and should make another run at a state title after that. Wow.

It was an exciting win for the Buffalo/Toronto Bills at Ralph Wilson Stadium on Sunday past as they topped the "Dream Team" from Philly, 31-24. The Bills are now 4-1, the Eagles 1-4 and playing more like the "Dumb Team" with mistakes galore. No word from Stu-Waffle-Hair but sure game was enjoyed by all thee A-A graduates. Did get a report from Mike Novak afterwards as he was at contest. Novak, father of a Geneseo women's soccer player.

Patti Kaznowski and Alfred State College Hall of Famer, Barb (Nelson) Lorow took in the Central Michigan-NC State football game this past Saturday. Sitting in a suite that also included Eric Kramer, a former QB with the Chicago Bears. The Wolfpack won.

The NFL lost a true icon of the sport over the weekend when Al Davis passed away at age 82. Young football fans will probably laugh at that but as a diehard Raider fan, Davis was one of the best and a man ahead of his time leading the Silver & Black into prominence. Unfortunately, he should've turned over control of the operation about 8-10 years ago. A coach, GM, owner and even the AFL Commissioner. Characters galore on the old Raiders teams and Super Bowl championships to show for it. The Raaaayders !!!

The UPenn men's soccer team split games last week, losing to Penn State (2-0) but rebounding to top Columbia, 3-2. John & Colleen Baker, Bob & Barb Baker plus Jeff and Lisa Ryan made the trip to PSU to see Stephen Baker and his Quakers lose. On Saturday the team trailed 2-0 and rallied to pull out the win. Unfortunately, Baker hurt his ankle in the game and his status for the rest of the year was in doubt at press time. Daughter Lauren made it to the game to see the Baker crew!

Jess Herbst (Webster Schroeder), Haley Marks (Penfield) and the Vermont women's soccer team (4-7-4) split games last week with Maine and Albany. Herbst had a shot off the crossbar in the 2-1 loss to Albany that was knocked in by a teammate. The Catamounts have three games left ... New Hampshire, Hartford and Binghamton. Hoping to take in the game at Binghamton, maybe riding down with the Herbst family.

Christy Kaznowski and her Western Carolina Catamounts (8-5-1) lost to Davidson last week in women's soccer action.

Skip Sherman's (A-A) baseball team at Genesee CC (15-5) won the WNYAC tournament over the weekend, their third straight fall title. Will wife, Kristy's girls soccer team at Brockport follow suit with a sectional title in high school action?

The Yanks didn't advance in the ALDS ... saving me sleep. A-Rod batted .111 and K'd three-times in the game five decider versus Detroit. Mark Teixeira was a "nifty" .167 and Russell Martin came in at .176. Gosh, wonder why they lost? Not all A-Rod's fault by any means, but has there ever been a more "less-clutch" ... star at the plate than him? The Phils were knocked off in game five in a classic pitching duel as the Cards won that series. WS update ... Texas and Milwaukee. FOX should love those ratings!

Truly saddened to read about the passing of former A-A athlete, Al Vanderhoef last week in this paper. When I was in 5-6-7 grades I used to love going to the Eagles basketball games, watching the likes of Vanderhoef-Vanderhoef-Ormsby-Randolph-Greenspan-Bennett-North, others. If memory serves me correct, Al Vanderhoef and Al Ormsby were backcourt mates at least for one year. Thoroughly enjoyed watching those two play! My thoughts go out to the entire Vanderhoef family.

BOPPER ... not Wopper and FREDWIFE ... won't go there!

Some leftover NYC trip tidbits ... forgot about "falling picture" at Deposit Motel that could've been a disaster, still no vacancies at the Three Bear Inn (but not foggy) and a "lovely" $26 toll to get over the George Washington bridge! 3L living about 2-blocks from Mike Jock, brother of her former SUNY Geneseo teammate in soccer, Rian. Daughter played co-ed soccer on Mike's team Sunday evening past.

Just a great Saturday past of activities. After a brief, quick stint at work it was off to Twin Hills golf course in Spencerport on a beautiful Indian Summer day. My favorite course in the Rochester area. Hooked up with Dom Masotti, father of Bella ... Geneseo soccer, and toured the layout, 98-109. Felt good. After that it was off to the Geneseo-Brockport women's soccer contest and a great win by the Knights, 3-0. A much-needed league win for Coach Wiley's squad. This coming after mid-week blasting of Keuka, 9-0. Yikes. Knights now at (9-3-1) overall. Excellent team gathering afterwards at Glynn house in nearby Holley. Bre Glynn tallied first goal in game to make it all the more special. Alex Strutt (Webster Schroeder) on Brockport team but didn't realize it till well after game.

This week ... Friday soccer at Geneseo versus Oswego and then off to Alfred Saturday for Salisbury-AU football.

Five join AU Sports Hall of Fame

ALFRED--Alfred University's 2011 inductees into the Sports Hall of Fame are Russell Young '87, Mark Obuszewski '93, Randy Wood '97, Todd Striker '01, Andrea Williamson '01.

Russell Young earned track and field All-American honors in the indoor 800-meter run with his fourth-place finish in that event at the 1987 NCAA championships. He also won a state title in that event that season. He was an Independent Collegiate Athletic Conference (ICAC) champ in both the indoor 500-meter run (1987) and the outdoor 800-meter run (1987).

A four-year member of the AU indoor and outdoor teams, he still holds the school record for the 800-meter run in outdoor track and field (1:53.90), set in 1987, and was a member of the indoor distance medley relay team that holds the school record (10:37.21) set in 1984.

Mark Obuszewski was a First Team All-American safety for the Saxon football team in 1992. A four-year member of the team, he finished his career with 283 tackles, including 127 in 1992, which ranks as the fifth-most in a season in school history. He also had 13 career interceptions, including a team-high six as a junior in 1991, when he had three in a game against Canisius.

A team captain for the Saxons, Obuszewski was a member of the 1989 AU team that defeated Bridgewater State, 30-27, in the ECAC North Bowl Championship game.

Randy Wood was a two-time All-American defenseman during his four-year career at AU, earning United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association (USILA) Second Team honors in 1997 and USILA honorable mention honors in 1996. He is one of only three Saxon players ever to earn Second Team All-American recognition from the USILA.

A team captain and four-year letterwinner, Wood was a First Team Super Six defenseman for the Saxon in 1997, when he led the team in groundballs with 108. Twice during his career (1994 and 1997), the Saxons competed in the NCAA championships, finishing fifth in the final Division III national poll in 1994 and seventh in 1997. Twice (1995 and 1996), the team competed in the ECAC Upstate Championship tournament, winning the title in 1995.

Todd Striker is one of the most decorated athletes in the Saxons' long and storied men's swimming and diving program. He was an All-American each of his four seasons at AU and for his career earned All-American certification 10 times (eight times in individual events and twice in relays). His best event at nationals was the 200-yard backstroke, in which he was an All-American four times, placing 13th in 1998, sixth in 1999, third in 2000, and fourth in 2001.

A team captain as a junior and senior, Striker held five individual records (100-yard and 200-yard freestyle; 100-yard and 200-yard backstroke, and 200-yard individual medley) and swam on two record-holding relays (200-yard and 400-yard freestyle). He still holds the school record for the 100-yard free (45.78 seconds) and 200-yard backstroke (1:50.36).

Andrea Williamson was a four-year star on the women's volleyball team, leading the Saxons to the program's only NCAA appearance in 1999. The team also competed in three state championship tournaments (1997, 1999 and 2000) and one ECAC championship tournament (2000) during her career.

A team captain as a junior and senior, Williamson was a Second Team Presidents Athletic Conference (PAC) all-star as a freshman in 1997, when she ranked ninth in the nation in blocks per game, and a Second Team Empire 8 Conference all-star as a senior in 2000. She holds school career records for total blocks (697), solo blocks (417), kills (1,628) and digs (1,606) and single-season records for kills (482) and digs (552).

AU's LEADER OF CHEERS

You can count on it. If it's a Homecoming football game at Alfred University, Mark O'Meara (AU '74) will be there. Since enrolling at AU in 1970, he hasn't missed an AU Homecoming football game. Ever.

And no one can lead a cheer better than Mark O'Meara.

"Hey, listen up everybody," says the imposing big guy carrying a red vuvuzela, "We're going to do a cheer."

Standing out in front of a packed grandstand at Merrill Field, he instructs Alfred fans, his captive audience. He eyes the crowd, wooing doubters with silent facial expressions that speak volumes. One can't deny him their full cooperation. The cheer pressure is just too great. He's got the crowd wrapped around his little finger.

He's done this before.

"I say Hallelujah and then you yell 'Hey!'" he explains, "I say Hallelujah and you yell 'Hey, Hey!' I say Hallelujah and you yell 'Hey, Hey, Hey! Fight, Team Fight!'"

"You got it?"

He responds to any indifference in the crowd with facial gestures of puzzlement that silently declare, "What part of these simple instructions do you NOT understand?"

Without further adieu, he leads the cheer. The fans respond in earnest. They pull it off. The multitude of voices unite, resulting in one loud voice reverberating off the hill across the field. Any feelings of imposition among the crowd are quickly replaced with satisfaction. Everyone is now confident that somehow, the Saxons are going to win this game.

The faithful cheerleader loses himself into the crowd—until that opportune moment that calls for another cheer. It might be the "Give me an 'A'" cheer. Or perhaps the crowd's favorite, "The Silent Cheer."

"I say 'Give me a Silent' and you yell 'Silent!'" O'Meara explains, "Then I say 'Give me a Cheer' and you yell 'Cheer!'" concluding, "Then I yell 'Give me a Silent Cheer!' and you all go like this!" as he raises his fists and waves them about without making any noise.

How long has this guy been doing this?

He started as a student back in the early 1970s. Accepting the task of selling programs at Alfred's football games, the young man from Bryn Mawr, PA wasn't one to tackle a job with less than his all. To sell more programs, he dressed up as a clown and carried a red vuvuzela, drawing attention to himself.

This went on for a few years—until his senior year in the fall of 1973. Alfred's legendary Football Coach Alex Yunevich needed a long snapper. Friend Rick Vaughn, a defensive lineman for the short-handed Saxon squad, with whom Mark O'Meara co-founded Hot Dog Day, likely though O'Meara could do it. So Mark did. And he did it well.

When he graduated from AU in May 1974, O'Meara's association with Alfred University did not end. It was only the beginning.

Except for one, he attended every AU football game—home or away—for twelve seasons. He became a successful Alfred businessman, owning and operating the popular Alfred Sub Shop eatery from 1974-1982. In 1979, O'Meara founded the women's soccer club team, which he coached to a 5-4 record in its initial varsity season the following year.

The inimitable AU alum left Alfred in 1982 to work in alumni affairs at Columbia University, returning in 1986 when he became Director of Annual Giving in the AU alumni office, a position he held until 1990. Today, he lives in Fairfax, VA, and is owner of University Mall Theaters.

Alfred University, in 2008, awarded O'Meara its initial Athletics Award of Distinction, which recognizes long-term exceptional service to, and involvement in, the athletic programs at Alfred University.

His involvement continued on Saturday, when, as if willed by the cheers he led, the Saxons, to the delight of the capacity crowd of more than 4,200, overcame some costly turnovers to edge Empire 8 rival Hartwick in overtime, 32-29, improving their E8 mark to 2-1.

Hallelujah!

EXTRA POINTS: Hornell's Austin Dwyer led all rushers Saturday with 119 yards on 16 carries. It was his fourth 100-yard game this season. He's averaging 101 yards rushing per game...Senior placekicker Eric Rockwood (Allegany) booted four field goals for AU with kicks of 24, 26, 37 and the game-winner of 29 yards in OT...AU (4-1) will host E8 front-runner Salisbury State (5-0) Saturday, Oct. 15 with kickoff at 12 noon at Merrill Field...Saxons continue to be stingy against the run, yielding an average of just under 100 yards per game halfway through their 2011 schedule. AU held Hartwick to 45 yards rushing... Salisbury State, ranked #18 in the D3football.com Top 25, brings its potent triple option attack to Merrill Field averaging 362 yards rushing per game. Add to that a respectable 125 yards passing per game and the Saxons, still ranked 23rd in the poll, will have their hands full with the Sea Gulls...It will be Mid-Semester Break at AU this weekend.
