AU prof’s article makes cover of chemistry journal

ALFRED—An article by Geoffrey Bowers, assistant professor of chemistry at Alfred University, was featured in the cover feature for a recent issue of The Journal of Physical Chemistry C.

It’s a singular honor for a young researcher from a small master’s level university, typically, the cover spot is reserved for work by researchers from large institutions.

“Very much analogous to being on the front page of a big city newspaper,” said Bowers. Major funding agencies, including the National Science Foundation and the federal Department of Energy, often use “cover stories” and publications in “top 10 journals as a measure of proficiency in research because articles are subjected to rigorous peer review before publication.

The quality and predicted impact of the research is important in selecting the cover story, Bowers said. Described as important is the way the author chooses to highlight the “novelty and key aspects of the work” in a visually appealing way.

While it is more than gratifying to Bowers as a researcher to have his article selected, he said it’s even more gratifying to the University.

All three versions of The Journal of Physical Chemistry are highly regarded in the fields published by the prestigious chemical society, the American Chemical Society; and have a broad readership within the field, so his article appearing on the cover provides great visibility to the chemistry department at AU. The journal is published 52 times a year, with articles totaling more than 3,000 annually. Thus to be selected for the cover means his article is in the top 1 percent of articles published.

Additionally, the premier placement draws the attention of funding agencies, including the federal Department of Energy, which is funding the research project that resulted in the cover article. “The officer of the grant program that currently funds my work...is very pleased,” Bowers said. That’s also “good scientific publicity in several venues” where a small university like Alfred would not typically garner attention. “This will be good for attracting new faculty and new students, and increasing the prospect” of the University so that faculty will enjoy greater success in their efforts to secure funding.

So what is this cover article about? Bowers describes himself as a “physical geochemist whose interests lie predominantly in real-time interfacial chemistry,” said Anderson. "I am certain that Chancellor Zimpher said, 'SUNY will continue to marry its academic mission with its immense capacity to serve all of New York State as a driver of economic and workforce development and a partner in the improvement of graduation and completion to ensure that every student who walks through SUNY's doors leaves, on time, with a degree.'

Chancellor Zimpher said, "SUNY programmatic goals include on-time graduation, pathways, and articulation that will help SUNY take the lead in the economic revitalization of the state." The Chancellor's plan to “get down to business” following a year of milestone accomplishments, will capitalize on SUNY’s “systems” to lower costs, enhance productivity, and elevate the importance of degree completion within SUNY, the country’s largest comprehensive system of public higher education.

"According to Zimpher, "SUNY will tap into that power of 'systems' to create a more affordable, productive, and accessible university, while doing its part to generate economic development, create jobs, and prepare the workforce of tomorrow for New York State."

The Chancellor’s plan to shift administrative cost savings to instruction through SUNY's shared services initiative is an idea whose time has come. I support the plan to centrally process payroll, benefits, purchasing, travel, and other basic administrative services to allow SUNY campuses to shift a minimum of five percent of their administrative spending to academics and student services over the next three years.

"Additionally, I am confident that the Chancellor’s plan to have all SUNY campuses operate on common information technology (IT) data systems will be a great help to students and administrative staff, making record-sharing easier among institutions.

"I also strongly support the Chancellor for her initiative to implement seamless transfer for SUNY to become the nation’s most extensive distance learning environment, giving access to the best in open educational resources; and turning access into completion to ensure that every student who walks through SUNY's doors leaves, on time, with a degree.

Bean and Barley Soup With Ham

1 lb. potato, finely diced
1 carrot, finely dice
c. 1 diced tomatoes
b. 1 bay leaf
c. 1 Great Northern beans, undrained

In a crock pot, add potatoes, carrots, tomatoes, bay leaf, beans, barley, ham and water.

Cook on high for 5 hours. Add salt and pepper and stir to combine. Discard bay leaf and serve. (I would really recommend using barley, ham and water.

Can you fix up this barley soup recipe?

Okay, here’s the challenge. I was “surfing the web” for soup recipes and found this one. I love barley and thought I would try it. I was a little uneasy because it called for water rather than stock and included a full cup of barley. But I thought I would try it. It was a big mistake! It was the consistency of stew and didn’t have much flavor. So, how about if you try it and make your own adjustments, then let me know your success at Alfredsun.news@gmail.com. Good luck!

NEW YEAR, NEW DEVELOPMENTS

The first regular meeting of the Board of Legislators was held on Monday, January 9th, at 2:00 p.m. The meeting began with the Pledge of Allegiance led by former Sergeant Erin Harvey. All 15 County Legislators were present for this session. The Board quickly completed the preliminary activities and proceeded to consider different resolutions.

Many of the resolutions were routine and uncontroversial. Michael Hennessy was re-appointed as County Veterans' Services Officer. New appointments were made to the County Fair Safety Board. Twenty-one members were appointed to serve on the County Fire Advisory Board. Many critical county programs could not operate without the generous contributions of time and skill by these selfless volunteers who donate hundreds of hours of their valuable time to make our County a better place.

Other resolutions accepted State grant money ($26,586) to outfit the interior of a new record storage building; approved an agreement with Allegany County Association for the Blind and Visually Handicapped, Inc., to provide services and training to indigent blind in our County; approved an agreement with the Allegany County Agricultural Society (County Fair Board) for $3,000; approved an agreement with the Volunteer Firemen's Association of Allegany County relating to operation of fire schools during 2012; and approved an agreement with NYS Division of Criminal Justice Services involving payment to our County Probation Department for ignition interlock devices installed as part of sentencing in DWI cases.

The only controversial resolution involved approval of the Memorandum of Agreement with Cornell Cooperative Extension of Allegany County. This resolution authorized payment of our 2012 appropriation to Cooperative Extension in the budgeted amount of $3,500, to fund this annual grant agreement with Cooperative Extension routine in the past. This year Cattaraugus County cut its support for 4-H, the Agricultural Extension 4-H Youth Program. This resolution was approved by a vote of 12 to 3, which maintains funding for 4-H, the Agricultural Extension programs, and various home economics, gardening, tobacco education and other important programs. I suspect the debate regarding funding for Cooperative Extension will become an annual event as it is a valuable but non-mandated program. I urge that you talk to your County Legislators to let them know whether you support continued funding for this program.

A special Committee of the Whole meeting was held on Wednesday, January 11th at 2:00 pm in the Legislative Chambers. At that time the Board of Legislators considered a resolution presented by the County Industrial Development Agency ("IDA"). If approved, the resolution would authorize the County to purchase 3.5 million of IDA bonds issued to fund the construction of a water system to serve the area between Friendship and Belvidere. It would also grant an easement along County Road 20 for the proposed water line, and assign certain rights to the IDA. The County IDA has been working for several years to line up developers for hospitality projects in Belvidere and industrial projects along County Road 20.

County purchase of the bonds would represent a financial investment in the County IDA. No county money would be spent until the private developers have given final commitments to actually construct their respective projects. The bonds would be paid off with revenue from users for the water service. The primary benefit for the County would come in the form of new jobs, increased sales tax revenue, and possible bed tax revenues (if a hotel is built). After extensive discussion the resolution was adopted by a vote of 14 to 0, with all fourteen Legislators co-sponsoring the resolution. The Resolution now moves to the full Board of Legislators for consideration at the January 23rd session. More details about this important project should become available over the next several weeks.

Kevin Hurley Show at AU Jan. 20

ALFRED—Hypnotist Kevin Hurley will perform at 7 p.m., Friday, Jan. 20 in Holmes Auditorium, Harder Hall, on the Alfred University campus. The event is free and open to the public. Parents are advised that the play contains some mature content, the program may not be suitable for children under the age of 13.

Kevin Hurley is an entertainment hypnotist. His passion for hypnosis, magic, theater, comedy, and current events, combined with his gregarious personality create a unique experience for audience participation, create an unprecedented performance that will leave the crowd wanting more.

Kevin has performed professionally for over fourteen years. Boasting over 350 live performances, The Kevin Hurley Show is currently one of the most sought after shows on the college, corporate, performing arts and casino circuits. Kevin combines hypnosis, sleight of hand, illusion, mental demonstrations, along with his gregarious personality to create a unique experience for audience participation.

The Kevin Hurley Show is completely organic. No two shows are alike. In the past, audience members have forgotten their last names, flown imaginary airplanes, and danced like they never thought possible, (at least in public) before collapsing at the shake of Kevin’s hand. No worries, though, this is only temporary.

The KEVIN HURLEY SHOW, featuring hypnosis, magic, comedy and current events, will be offered free and open to the public at 9 p.m., Friday, Jan. 20 at Holmes Auditorium, Harder Hall, on the Alfred University campus.

Alfred State College Drama Club will present a staged reading of The Laramie Project, written by Moisés Kaufman and members of the Tectonic Theater Project. Performances are scheduled for Thursday and Friday, Feb. 9 and 10 at 7 p.m., and Saturday, Feb. 11 at 2 p.m. in the Pioneer Lounge on Alfred State Campus. The performance is open to the public, but due to adult themes, parental discretion is advised.

Cost of admission is $2; proceeds will go to support a charity that addresses issues of homelessness, violence, and harassment impact young people. There will also be a free will offering.

The play is based on an incident that took place in 1998 when Matthew Shepard, a 21-year-old gay student registered at the University of Wyoming, was tied to a cattle fence, beaten about the head, robbed, and left to die on a bitterly cold night in October.

Hundred and eight hours later, he was accidentally discovered by a biker, who had trouble believing that the figure he saw attached to the fence was human. Police and ambulances were dispatched, and Shepard was taken to a local hospital, to no avail. He never regained consciousness and died several days later due to his head injuries. Two local young men were convicted of the crime.

Kaufman’s goal was to create a play that focused in a non-obscene way on the assault on Matthew Shepard, but on the community on which such an attack could happen, and how many of the citizens reacted to the crime. The play draws on hundreds of interviews conducted by the theatre company with inhabitants of the town, company members’ own journal entries, and published news reports.

Structured as a documentary in three acts, the play attempts to reenact the events that occurred on that fateful night. Eight actors portray more than 60 characters in a series of short scenes. It is a powerful look at the different ways a community and the nation reacted to hatred. The actors play a variety of roles, often used as a method to teach about prejudice and tolerance in personal, social, and health education and citizenship in schools.

‘Good Artists Steal’ exhibit to open

ALFRED—“Good Artists Steal: Culturally Appropriative Identities,” an exhibition featuring the work of three artists, will be on display at the Fosdick Nelson Gallery, School of Art & Design at Alfred University (AU), Jan. 27 – Feb. 22.

“The exhibition is centered around the theme of appropriation,” said Inglett. “Each of the three artists appropriates cultural icons and media to explore rich metaphors of individuality and identity.”

“The title itself is taken from a phrase loosely attributed to Picasso: ‘Good artists steal; bad artists borrow,’” said Inglett.

Chief spokesman for independence in the Continental Congress, fiery Patriot Sam Adams was at the top of the British list of those guilty of “rabblerousing.” Yet he was only being obeisant, what he considered a proper form of politeness.

“The right to freedom being the gift of God Almighty...” The Rights of the Colonists as Christians...” may be best understood by reading and carefully studying the institutes of the great Law Giver, which shall be found clearly written and promulgated in the New Testament.

THE ALFRED SUN, Thursday, January 19, 2012
HITS AND MISSES:
It was off to St. Fisher this past Saturday to take in some Division III basketball action as the visiting Alfred Saxons were in town to take on the Cardinals in an E8 showdown. Both AU teams, women and men, fell at the hands of Nazareth the previous evening. Arrived a few minutes prior to the game on a frigid afternoon and spotted noted area photographer, Leo Nealon on the floor getting ready to "shop" the contest. St. Fisher still plays their home contests in a gym resembling the old YMCA's of the area or a middle school. Quite the homecourt advantage, usually. Settled in to take in the women's game as Coach Murphy has virtually all new squad from last season. Freshmen and sophomores galore dot the roster.

The Nazareth Golden Flyers men's b-ball team was at (3-1) after they topped Alfred and Elmira at home for their E8 weekend. Nazareth beat visiting Elmira, on Saturday, 89-36. Ouch. How does a D3 men's hoop team only score 36-points in a game and just 12-points in the second stanza? Alfred and Elmira are now travel partners with the departure of 129. Not on the Denver-New England playoff game as an official (#129). Not Ohio (women) basketball team scored 7-points, had 6-rebounds and 30 of those at home! The "Qua." opens play in Virginia at the Lancer Lead-Off tournament in mid-January. Always looking to talk to Coach Murphy during men's game. A disappointed Murphy did a "shoot" the contest. SJ Fisher still plays their home contests in a gym resembling the old YMCA's of the area or a middle school.
