We Are Guilty!

One of the most alive speeches given recently at an Alfred University Forum was the one given last Wednesday evening by Eluned Howse, who in his easy conversational manner, did more than any amount of sentimentalism or cuteness could have done. Without any affected attitude, he was showing his strong faith in democracy and his strong faith in philosophy, he pointed out weak spots and places where our system falls far below some of the totalitarian governments.

In all probability, we are not as guilty of reading the publications from conversation, lectures, hurried glances at the headlines, or brief radio newscasts which interpret programs of recorded music. However, when it comes to knowing facts which are available about the war, our foreign relations, our internal problems, our governmental attitudes and our social and economic world, we are very lazy and kids behind the excuse that with all our reading for classes we just don't have the time.

With such an attitude, it is no wonder that we find ourselves in a quandary when we must make a decision or take a stand and that we are not equipped to make any sort of intelligent decision. This is a very serious sickness with which each is pained. It's about time we threw overboard our isolationist policy and did a serious reading thing—perhaps some of our talking and acting would be less foolish.

Don't Buy It!

"Don't buy another depression." A recent illustrated pamphlet published by LOOK magazine warns us that, "even as we are winning the war overseas, we are losing at home to the enemy more dangerous than the Axis. Inflation, the Black Market, the scramble for high wages—this ugly alliance is on the march devouring our strength as it swamps our nation, to disaster. It is destroying our savings and threatening to etch out the roads that would lead to peacetime production at the end of the war. It is already blazing the national morale; it is already directly responsible for the strikers that are interfering with production, for an ugly threat to the nation, the community and the home.

Cutting down the waste, both at home and overseas, and conservative industry workers must help if we are to win the post-war housing over—depression. All our discussions of plans for dealing with the national and for establishing that well-rounded philosophy in all parts of the world; even definitely formulated plans themselves of little value if we do not stop now to look around at the tremendous price increases— the burdens crushing in on us; to listen to the words of the economists and the socialists and the professors; to see a second "distress" lying ahead of us in the "fifties"; and the go ahead of determined to stop this mad racing of our price levels.

Don't Buy It! Our first instinct, which is the natural reaction against everything that has thrown our town or your family, is to go on with the buying. We should "tie one up" against the wall and just shoot them as they come down to us with goods from Europe. We, personally, do not think so. We feel that post-war prices will be as high or higher. What is it this writer's opinion that a little light should be shed on the various schools of thought, from which we are to choose our answer.

The question of what to do with the war leaders of the Axis nations has come up, and it is a real problem. The question is, can we trust these men only on this campus, but wherever they are, and can we trust them now? It is this writer's opinion that a little light should be shed on the various schools of thought, from which we are to choose our answer.

Follow the spectacular defection of the faculty basketball team by the members of the student faculty team, the Independents upon the faculty, a class from 6:30 till 11 at the College Gym last Saturday evening.

The Independents held a special get-together for members and friends at the Ag-Test Library last Sunday afternoon. Plans had been made for an afternoon of laughter and fun but when a lack of snow the group continued themselves with group singing and playing "Shine on Harvest Moon" and "Susie Q" and cookies were served.
