Josef Schtzenhfer Lecture, The Liberation Project

Location: Holmes
Sept. 25
Time: 5-6:30 P.M.

Josef Schtzenhfer is visiting Alfred University for the second time as the Theodore Randall International Chair in the Division of Drawing, Painting and Photography. He will lecture on a recent project entitled "The Liberation Project".

He also has a solo exhibition at The Cohen Gallery through Oct. 12. The show features three bodies of work on paper of politically charged work addressing liberation and indignant police authority in Austria.

Schtzenhfer states, "It is not the foremost role of the artist, lawyer, or journalist to reside in the ivory tower and regurgitate the goods of academia. Instead they are to focus their craft towards the margins of our society. There, everyday, they are to control the bearing of the state, the powers to be, to guarantee that our thoughts are not curtailed, our movements not limited, and our liberties not blocked."

Josef Schtzenhfer (born in 1954 in Austria) immigrated to the USA when he was 19 years old and had 28 dollars in his pocket. He started his art studies at the Cleveland Institute of Art. To keep his head above water, he interrupted his studies and worked as a dental technician for the US Navy for 3 ? years.

He later completed his B.A. at Old Dominion University in Norfolk, VA. His M.A. was completed at the Maryland Institute College of Art in Baltimore, MD. There he studied under Grace Hartigan and Sal Scarpitto.

In 1996, Schtzenhfer returned with his family to Austria. He works independently in a studio located in the local castle on contractual as well as personal works.

His works and projects have a mission, they are to patrol the peripheries, to confront and test those who think they govern our movement and our space.

For Schtzenhfer, art has a social obligation to ensure that liberties we have attained are not curtailed while they stand unguarded. The artistic stance is a representational one, accessible, approachable- an engagement against political suppression and outrages. It is also a message to promote involvement and participation in all disciplines and on all levels- local, national, or international.

Currently, Schtzenhfer is expanding his "Liberation Project". The goal is to establish a cultural exchange program which involves inviting artists from the allied countries (during WWII) to Austria- specifically to his home turf of Pillau in Styria- to reflect on the continuing reactions of the locals concerning the liberation of Austria from the Nazis.

Horse to Holler Hike - Second Annual!

Join us for the second annual HORSE TO HOLLER HIKE Saturday, Sept. 29, 2012.

The hike begins at 10 a.m.

Check-in begins at 9 at the Equestrian Center

(a shuttle will run from Powell to the Center).

The rugged, seven-mile, blazed hike begins at AU's Equestrian Center and ends at Pollywogg Holler in Phillips Creek, winding around Foster Lake, privately owned land and state forest along the way.

Aid stations and a s'more stop will keep hikers refreshed along the way and plenty of food will be available at the end of the hike, including Pollywogg Holler's signature wood-fired pizza.

Pre-registration is required at my.alfred.edu/csi (follow the link to Horse to Holler)

$10 for students

$20 for community members.

Proceeds will benefit further outdoor programming at AU and the Cure Childhood Cancer Association.

STUDIO VISITS: Pulled Resources

Date: Wednesday, Sept. 26

Time: 9 A.M.

Location: Nevins Theater

Cost to Attend: FREE

Sponsored By: Foundations, SoAD, Michelle Illuminato

Pulled Resources is the collaborative team of Thomas Sturgill and Dan DeZarn. Originally using the tagline, "...swiftly constructing large, labor intensive projects in relatively short periods of time and with fairly modest budgets."

They will share with the audience two current projects, Frack Follow and Community Camaro that take a longer more complex look at the ideas of commodity, resource, environment, and material usage. Both are umbrella pieces that facilitate entirely new bodies of work and directions of investigation and action.

Check out their Pulled Resources Facebook page or their project Community Camaro (<http://www.communitycamar...>) to learn more!

Studio Visits is a weekly live lecture and talk show at Alfred University which brings artists and thinkers to the Nevins stage Wednesday mornings at 9 am. First, the guest presents their work in a lecture format and then intermission! When the audience returns, the stage is transformed into a talk show set. The sculpture graduate students (and sometimes others) act as interviewers and bring the guest back to the stage. The interviews use lively games, unusual questions, and surprise call-in guests to give the live audience a new perspective about the artist and their work!

Studio Visits is recorded live and the segments are available on the blog <http://austudiovisits.wor...> and on Vimeo.

Studio Visits is a project of the Foundations and Sculpture Graduate Programs of the School of Art and Design at Alfred University. It's headed by professors M. Michelle Illuminato and Brett Hunter.
