BARBARA and LARRY GREIL of Alfred, while visiting daughter Maddie, who is a student at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, took in an Orioles game on Saturday, July 16 at Camden Yards. The Orioles played Cleveland, and won 6 to 5! Quite appropriately, it was Alfredo Simon who got the win on the mound for the Orioles, who are currently in last place in the highly-competitive American League East Division with a 44-68 record.

Alfred's lowly but loyal Bills fans making it fun

ALFRED—In May, NFL.com posted an article featuring an Associated Press photograph of Dan Napolitano and his daughter, Sophie, dressed in pajama costumes at a Buffalo Bills game last season. In the photo, Sophie holds a LOWLY BUT LOYAL sign, demonstrating the mentality of the Daydream BILLievers, an Alfred University Buffalo Bills fan group and comic strip Napolitano created.

"The strip really isn't about football, it is really all about what that sign said - laughing at being lowly, (in any aspect of life) but remaining loyal," says Napolitano, AU director of Student Activities.

The idea for the Daydream Billievers came to Napolitano during a conversation on a previous trip to a Bills game. Knowing about other fan groups and Bills fans sometimes using the term "Billiever," Napolitano purchased pajama costumes to convey fans dreaming of winning and dubbed the group "the Daydream Billievers."

"I just have these crazy ideas," says Napolitano. "It's fun to watch something develop into a legitimate program."

Napolitano says the future plans for the Daydream Billievers include having the comic featured weekly on the fan-site BuffaLowDown.com beginning Aug. 1, attending all this season's games, and finding ways to increase involvement in community outreach and service. He also says he would like the group to develop more of a parking-lot presence at games, where fans could pose for photos with the group or buy the "Billievers" comic book.

In 2010, Napolitano, along with Alfred student Zach Grosser, AU class of 2011, launched a daily comic strip in the Hornell Evening Tribune. They maintain the comic's characters represent the enthusiastic, cynical and depressing aspects of Bills fandom. Napolitano and Grosser published a book, "The Daydream Billievers: Season One (Volume 1)," featuring the comic's first season in December 2010, making the collection available in the campus bookstore and on Amazon.com.

"People who liked the comics in the paper had asked if we were going to publish them because they thought it would be a good gift either for their father or their brothers," says Napolitano.

Now with the end of the NFL lockout, the comic's 2011 season moves forward. Grosser says

Napolitano comes up with the comics' ideas, draws, and writes. Grosser prepares the comic for release by taking the scanned versions of the drawings and translates them digitally, cleans them up, and digitizes the text and color.

"Usually I tie the story into traveling to away games or mocking a visiting team," says

ESTHER F. (POND)

Mother of eight children
HORNELL—Esther F. (Pond) McAneney, 76, of 1 Crescent St., Hornell, died Friday morning (July 22, 2011) at her home, following a courageous battle with pancreatic cancer.

She was the daughter of Franc and Esther (Walker) Pond, and was preceded in death by her brother, Samuel and Marie (Corvi) Pond.

Esther was born in Philadelphia, and graduated from Frankford High School class of '53. At the age of 16, while still in high school she met her sweetheart, Bernie. And her lifelong journey was sealed. It was love at first sight. Forever, for always, no matter what. Their years together were an example to her children and grandchildren of mutual respect and unconditional love. Wherever Esther was, Bernie was there with her. They were inseparable. They travelled the world together, visiting family and friends after retirement, enjoyed vacations up and down the East Coast, always in tow, her companion Gizmo.

Her life as a mother was always supportive and never ending, and with just the right amount of discipline. As a friend, you could find no one better. Through the years she opened up her home to those who needed a place to live. Whether it be a relative, an exchange student, or a neighbor visiting for a cup of coffee, her door was always open. She felt a strong connection with every animal that visited her back yard and made sure she took care of each and every one.

Esther stayed at home and raised her eight children before seeking work outside the home. During her 21 years as a teacher's aide for BOCES she shared many laughs and hijinks with her coworkers and AZB sorority sisters. She was a member of the Hornell Humane Society and SPCA. She loved music of all types and attended concerts whenever possible. She loved to cook and try new recipes and took pride in her flower garden. Prior to living in Hornell, Edgewater Park, N.J. was her home. She always gave back to the community and volunteered whenever needed, PTA President, Jaycee-etts, Cookie Mom and Den Mother.

She was the beloved wife of Bernard (Bernie) for 58 years. The love they shared, and the legacy they created together with their children and 23 grandchildren will keep her memory alive for generations to come.

She leaves to celebrate her life, the children she most dearly loved, Bernadette (William) Harris of Tabernacle, N.J., Daniel (Ilka) McAneney of Philadelphia, Gerard (Kathleen) McAneney, John McAneney, Kathryn McAneney, all of Hornell, Eileen (Steve) Busby of Alfred, Matthew (Jodi) McAneney of Hornell, and Maureen (Scott) McHenry of Canandaigua; her grandchildren; and many nieces and nephews.

She was a member of Our Lady of the Valley Parish and her faith in God is what created such a strong compassion within her for all people and all creatures great and small.

The family of Esther received friends from 4-7 p.m. Tuesday, July 26 at the Dagon Funeral Home, 38 Church St. in Hornell. A Mass of Christian burial was celebrated at 11 a.m. Wednesday, July 27 at St. Ann's Church. Final interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Esther's family request that memorial contributions be made in her name to the Hornell Humane Society, 7649 Industrial Park Dr., Hornell, N.Y. 14843. Memorial forms will be available at Dagon Funeral Home.

VIRGINIA RUTH HAYNES

Renaissance woman

ANDOVER—Virginia Ruth Haynes passed away on Tuesday (July 26, 2011) at her home from natural causes. She was 70 years old. Virginia was born on Jan. 15, 1941 in Los Angeles, Calif., to parents Franklin and Lorraine (Gronewald) Haynes. She grew up with her younger brother in the Los Angeles suburbs and graduated from Leuzinger High School in 1958.

In 1962, she earned a B.A. degree in Art from UCLA and landed a dream job working at Los Angeles County Museum of Art, the largest art museum in the western United States. Virginia there was heavily influenced by the work of Latin American artists, the photography of Ansel Adams and an exhibition of Pablo Picasso.

Virginia enjoyed classical music and sang regularly with her church choir. There she met Theodore Price, a classical pianist who accompanied the choir on the organ pipes. They were engaged in June 1962 and married in January 1963. Soon after, they moved from Los Angeles to follow Ted’s career path as a music critic to Washington, D.C. and Akron, OH. In Washington, Virginia worked a short time at the Smithsonian Institution. In Akron, VA she gave birth to their two sons.

The family moved to Rochester in 1972. Soon after, Virginia and Ted grew estranged, separated and were divorced. For the next 15 years, Virginia took on the dual role of a working mother, juggling jobs in interior design at J.C.Penney with freelance graphic design. In her spare time, she fashioned custom dollhouses, built dioramas and fired ceramics in her basement.

When her sons left for college, Virginia settled in Andover, refurbishing antique furniture and eventually singing with the Ecumenical Choir. At length, she decided to go back to school at Alfred State College to build her digital design palette. After completing her A.A.S. in computer art and design, she volunteered to design a new brochure for the Jean B. Lang Western N.Y. Historical Collection, dedicated in February 2002. She earned her M.A.I.S. degree and was asked to use her talents on Ergo, the literary and artistic publication of Alfred State College.

Virginia also worked on projects in the Andover community, including a visitor’s informational brochure. In the fall of 2008, she helped revive the Andover Historical Society and in May 2009 delivered a program titled “Writing History – From Facts to Fiction.”

Virginia is survived by her brother, Allan Haynes of Garden Grove, CA; her son, Jason Price of Valencia, CA.; her son, Brendan Price of Shelby Township, MI.; a niece, a nephew and four grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 14 at Andover Presbyterian Church, with Rev. Pat Bancroft of Alfred Seventh Day Baptist Church officiating. Arrangements are by Baker-Swan Funeral Home in Andover, and online condolences may be offered at www.baker-swan.com.

A recipe for the overgrown zucchini

When we were raising our summer vegetable gardens I would try to keep ahead of the fast growing zucchini. Inevitably some would get away from me, hiding under those big leaves, and out-grow my usual uses for them. When that happened I would leave them on the bookstand by The Box of Books Library or stuff them with whatever I had on hand.

Here is a variation on stuffed zucchini which I found on line from Taste of Home Recipes.

Beef-Stuffed Zucchini

4 med. zucchini ¼ c. seasoned bread crumbs
1 lb. ground beef ¼ tsp. salt
½ c. chopped onion ¼ tsp. pepper
1 egg 1 c. shredded Monterey Jack cheese, divided
¾ c. marinara or spaghetti sauce & additional sauce

Cut zucchini in half lengthwise; cut a thin slice from the bottom of each to allow zucchini to sit flat. Scoop out pulp, leaving ¼ in. shells. Place shells in an ungreased 3 qt. microwave-safe dish. Cover and microwave on high for 3 minutes or until crisp-tender; drain and set aside. Meanwhile, in a large skillet, cook beef and onion over med. heat until meat is no longer pink; drain. Remove from heat; stir in the egg, marinara sauce, bread crumbs, salt, pepper and a ½ c. cheese. Spoon about ¼ c. into each shell. Microwave, uncovered, on high for 4 minutes. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Microwave 3-4 minutes longer or until zucchini are tender. Serve with additional sauce. (4 servings) It’s nice also to run the shells under the broiler for a few minutes to brown the cheese.

The temperature at the Fairgrounds registered somewhere around 95 degrees. Fortunately, there was a breeze and some interesting events. The meeting began with the Pledge of Allegiance led by former Army Private First Class Donald Christ. Three Boy Scouts from Troop 736 served as the Color Guard. They were Curtis Warner, Jared Ward and Connor Cockle. Those present were then led in a rendition of "God Bless America" by banjoist Jim Hamer.

Chairman Curt Crandall then honored Deb and Dan Dunham, of Scio, by presenting them with a Proclamation declaring August 1, 2011, as Jason Dunham Day in Allegany County. The Dunhams addressed those present urging us to remember the service and needs of the veterans who have given so much to our nation and community. As a veteran and father of a veteran I find their selfless dedication inspirational.

During the "Privilege of the Floor" portion of the meeting Chairman Crandall recognized former PFC Donald Christ, and the members of the Boy Scout Color Guard. He also recognized Martha Roberts who is the President of the County Fair Board. He also recognized Alice and Harry Hurd, of Cuba, who were honored by the dedication of this year's County Fair Book. The Board also recognized 4-H Member extraordinaire Hannah Lewis who has participated in many different 4-H programs over recent years.

Our State and national representatives then addressed the meeting. Senator Cathy Young spoke to the Board about the accomplishments of the last session of the State Legislature. She reported that all of our local legislators had worked together to sponsor legislation naming a portion of Route 19 in memory of Corporal Jason Dunham, along with the bridge on Route 19 over Interstate Route 86. Assemblyman Joe Giglio reported on some of the highlights of his service. Assemblyman Daniel Burling could not be present, but was represented by his local representative, Kate Hollis, of Granger. Congressman Tom Reed could not be present, but was represented by his District Manager, Joe Sempolinski.

The Board considered six "pre-filed" resolutions dealing with varying matters. The following resolutions were all unanimously adopted:

- #111-11 established standard workdays for elected and appointed officials.
- #112-11 authorized filing of an application for state assistance for household hazardous waste.
- #113-11 designated the Wellsville Daily Reporter as the only official newspaper for the week of August 7th due to the Cuba Patriot not publishing that week.
- #114-11 accepted an insurance payment from NYMIR and appropriated those funds to risk retention accounts.
- #115-11 transferred funds within various Probation Department accounts.
- #116-11 approved an inter-municipal agreement with Cattaraugus County to provide lead poisoning prevention services.

Another resolution, #117-11, had not been "pre-filed." It set the date for a public hearing on the Allegany County Multi-Jurisdictional Hazard Mitigation Plan. This plan will allow several municipalities around the County to qualify for hazard mitigation grant funding. It was unanimously approved.

The last formal action by the Board sought approval for the audited bills for the past two weeks. Those bills came to a total of $1,182,617.47. This included more than $355,000 for Medicaid alone for two weeks. For the year Allegany County has now spent more than $4,755,730 on Medicaid. During the first half of the year we received some FMAP Stimulus money from the federal government for Medicaid. That is now finished. That means that we will pay even more for the rest of the year. During discussion about paying the bills I asked Senator Cathy Young and Assemblyman Joe Giglio to do everything possible to get us relief from these State mandates. Hopefully they will have more success on mandate relief in 2012 than they had in 2011.

Local potter's exhibition opens with reception

ANDOVER--R.s. Lang's new exhibition, "Inside Out," at the Artist Knot Gallery in Andover was officially opened with a reception on Friday, August 5. The catered event featured live music by cellist Jennifer Berg.

For nearly 40 years, R.s. Lang has been at the forefront of the studio pottery scene. During his long career, he has made some of the most iconic pottery of recent decades. He has been defying expectations along the way, combining exquisite taste with flawless craftsmanship, continually blurring the boundaries between craft and fine art. His latest work is an exploration of new territory.

According to Gallery Director Amy Brown, the title of the exhibit, "Inside Out," has a double meaning.

"The most obvious meaning refers to the fact that the artist has created many pieces with multiple openings, which allows for a dialogue between the outside of the form and the inside."

This interplay of mass and void, of projections and recesses, creates a dramatic play of light and dark while also activating what would normally be an empty interior space of infinite silence.

The repetition of shape, color, and texture from inside to outside creates a unified work that is hard to pull your eyes from.

Brown went on to say, "Lang is noted for his functional pieces as well as his organic sculptural forms. With his latest body of work he has merged functionality with sculpture, and in many cases pushed a potentially functional piece to the point of pure sculpture."

For this smart and complex show, Lang has combined the gracefully simple forms he is best known for with fascinating explorations not only of surface colors and textures, but deep punctures and voids as well as openings that unite outside to inside. These understated forms speak volumes.

Certain motifs appear and reappear in different forms throughout the sometimes sublime, other times insistently present works (all irresistible to the touch). Prettiness and pretension fall by the wayside.

Playfulness predominates, as does the promiscuous intermingling of art and craft, silliness and seriousness, design and décor. Staidness of vision is well balanced by an obvious delight in the making process.

Explaining the second meaning of "Inside Out," Director Brown said, "Some of the work in the exhibit is intended for an inside location, whereas most of the sculptural pieces are designated for outdoor environments."

ONE OF THE many pieces of R.s. Lang in his exhibition titled "Inside Out" at the Artist Knot Gallery in Andover.

One of the unusual aspects of the show is the presentation of pieces in a simulated outdoor space, replete with greenery and other natural elements.

Lang's artistic output is recognized for its understated, quietly poetic surfaces and sublime biomorphic forms. From his dramatic wood-fired pottery of the 1970s to his most recent complex sculptural pieces, Lang consistently has challenged himself — with the unintentional consequence of irreversibly transforming the medium.

He remains one of the medium's most influential working potters and is a mentor to several generations of studio potters. A student of renowned ceramicists Val Cushing, Robert Turner, and Daniel Rhodes, Lang's work is collected worldwide, belonging to many private and public collections.

"Inside Out" can be experienced at the Artist Knot Gallery at 36 Main St in Andover. The Gallery is open Tuesday- Friday 10 a.m.-4 p.m., Saturday 10 a.m.-3 p.m., and by appointment.

All events are free and open to the public. Visit them at 36 Main St., or on the web at www.artist-knot.com, or contact directly at 607.478.5100. The Artist Knot Gallery is the only full-time, full-service fine art gallery in the Twin-Tier region.

For the Birds...

By BETSY BROOKS
Alfred Sun Columnist

Four of my Braddock Bay friends came down one day in mid-July for a day of birding in Allegany County. The day was a bit too warm (the norm this summer?) and the season a little beyond the date when birds are more vocal and visible. We missed quite a few ‘easy to find’ birds but still came up with a list of 63 species for the day.

I particularly enjoyed showing them the birds they can’t find in Rochester at this time of year – the ‘specialties’ we get here in the higher elevations, in our young Christmas tree plantations and in mature conifer State Reforestation Land. We saw or heard Common Ravens, Golden-crowned Kinglet, Yellow-rumped (Myrtle) Warbler, Blackburnian Warbler, White-throated Sparrow, Blue-headed Vireo, Winter Wrens, Black-throated Green Warbler, Mourning Warbler, Dark-eyed Junco and many more.

A stop for the group on most of their previous summer birding visits had always been along the road by the old McAndrew homestead on the McAndrews Road. I had to show them what had happened recently to the house. We missed the dozens of Bobolink that had been there a couple of weeks earlier.

At the old beaver marsh at the Five Corners, we spotted the first Spotted Sandpiper of the season, along with several Great Blue Herons and a Green Heron. Although they do nest occasionally in Allegany County, I’m guessing the sandpiper was headed south after its nesting season farther north was over. At Foster Lake, we were relaxing at one of the picnic tables for a half hour when a Broad-winged Hawk flew over the end of the lake where we were sitting. At first I thought it was carrying a stick (to reinforce its nest?) but on closer look the stick turned out to be an 18 inch snake of some kind. Those young were getting some tasty morsels for their lunch!

At 4 PM on July 30, a congenial group of birders joined me at Foster Lake as part of the celebration of From the Earth. Besides taking a bird walk, there were handouts available on the Birds of Allegany County, plantings to benefit birds and butterflies, web addresses for making bat houses and nest boxes for birds, information on creating a smaller lawn, and more.

Late afternoon on a hot, sunny day in late July is not the best time to look for birds. Most are hiding in the shade and the last thing they want to do is come out in the hot sun to please a bunch of people with binoculars! I anticipated seeing less than a dozen species, but that was before I knew I had a secret weapon! Ralph Peterson had brought his i-pod loaded with the vocalizations of birds of the eastern United States. Normally, I don’t encourage using tapes or hand-held devices to play the calls of birds to lure them in during the breeding season. But by the end of July, most of the birds are finished nesting and not terribly agitated by the sound of another male vocalizing on their territory!

So, when I heard just a tiny snatch of a call note of an Indigo Bunting in the distance, I had Ralph play the song of an Indigo

Bunting on his i-pod...and ‘voila,’ out came a gorgeous male Indigo Bunting from the woods behind the south dike to sit in full view of everybody on a nearby bush. The same thing happened with a Golden-crowned Kinglet. I caught the quick vocalization of one in the spruce trees near the cottage. Ralph played his i-pod, and two adult kinglets hurried into view just above our heads.

The trick didn’t work for everything... we missed many of the birds we probably would have seen in the early morning. But we still heard or saw 17 species including the resident Canada Goose family, a Yellow-bellied Sapsucker by the old pump area, a Blue Jay pretending to be Red-shouldered Hawk, a Red-breasted Nuthatch yank-yank-yanking away, and several White-throated Sparrows.

My next ‘event’ at Foster Lake will be a bird banding demonstration on Saturday, Sept. 10 (rain date, Sunday Sept. 11). I’ll set several mist nets up between the pavilion and the campground, a little before sunrise. Bring your coffee, and especially your children or grandkids, anytime between 7 a.m. and 10 a.m.

One Time, One Meeting

The Practice of Zen Meditation

By BEN HOWARD

To live in a place is one thing, to inhabit it another. The word inhabit derives from the Latin inhabitare, which originally meant to dwell. “They shall build houses,” prophesied Isaiah, “and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them” (Isaiah 65:21). To eat the fruit of your vineyards, you cannot be flitting from one locality to another. You must dwell in one place for a while.

What is true of grape farming is also true of the practice of Zen. “Authentic Zen,” writes Dr. James H. Austin, a neurologist and long-time Zen practitioner, “has always meant inhabiting each present moment in the most natural, direct, and spontaneous way.” And in his book Being Upright, the Zen priest Tenshin Reb Anderson employs the same verb to describe the practice of zazen, or seated meditation:

For a sentient being to practice the ultimate good means not to move. How do you realize not moving? By fully settling into all aspects of your experience: your feelings and your perceptions. Not moving means to be fully congruent with yourself. You go down to the bottom of your experience, as all Buddha ancestors have done, and enter the proverbial green dragon’s cave. Graciously and gently, you encourage yourself to fully inhabit your body, speech, and thought. You may even command yourself to be obedient to yourself, and to come all the way in and sit down.

“Although no one issues the invitation,” Anderson further explains, we “invite the self into the self.” As both “host and guest of the self,” we fully inhabit our experience.

That process can commence with recognition of our physical environment. Just as movies often open with a bird’s-eye view of a city or a panoramic view of a landscape, we can begin a sitting by surveying the room in which we are practicing. How large or small is the space? How bright or dim the light? How cold or warm, dry or humid is the air? What are the ambient sounds, and how long does any new sound last? By asking such questions—or, more intuitively, by feeling our way into our environment—we reconcile ourselves with our surroundings, however pleasant or not-so-pleasant they might be.

Having attuned ourselves to the place in which we’re sitting, we can turn our attention to our own presence within that place. We can fully inhabit our bodies. If we are at ease with our physical selves, we might have already settled into stillness. If not, it can be helpful to recite the gatha, “Breathing in, I am aware of my body / Breathing out, I release the tensions in my body,” letting these phrases accompany our inhalations and exhalations. If we continue in this vein for five minutes or more, we may discover—or re-discover—that we are not solid objects set into a foreign or familiar space. Rather, we are breathing organisms in constant interaction with whatever is occurring, within and around us. If we are practicing with others, we may notice how the smells of cologne or perfume or even a freshly laundered shirt affect us, or how the slightest rustle of clothing resonates within us. If we are practicing alone, we may notice how external sounds—the hum of a fridge, the racket of a passing motorbike—create or release tensions in our bodies.

Noticing these things, we may also notice what the eighteenth-century master Menzan Ziuho Zenji called the “frozen block of emotion-thought”: the worries and fears, cravings and aversions that we carry into meditation. Defining “emotion-thought” as a “stubborn attachment to a one-sided point of view, formed by our own conditioned perceptions,” Menzan urged us to bring effortless awareness to that attachment. By so doing, we “clarify how emotion-thought melts” in the light of mindful awareness. In the passage quoted above, Tenshin Reb Anderson offers similar instruction, enjoining us to settle into our feelings and perceptions and to “fully inhabit [our] body, speech, and thought.” Rather than try to cut off thoughts and their emotional subtexts, we acknowledge their comings and goings. Rather than repress our mental activities, we dwell in our awareness of their presence.

If we continue to sit in this way, we can indeed “go down to the bottom of our experience.” We can inhabit the ground of being. By settling peacefully into our surroundings, our bodies, our feelings, and our perceptions, we can discern the causes and conditions that have created our present experience, and we can realize our place in the dynamic, interdependent web of life. In the words of Shohaku Okumura, we can “participate with the whole universe as it practices through our minds and bodies,” and “allow the universal life force to practice through us for all beings.” And paradoxically, by relinquishing the notion of a separate self—a self absorbed in its likes and dislikes, its comforts and discomforts—we can give our unique and individual selves their fullest expression.

When that occurs, we will not only become most fully ourselves. We will also embody the long line of Zen practitioners, which spans a period of more than fifteen hundred years. “When the horse-master becomes the horse-master,” wrote Eihei Dogen Zenji, “Zen becomes Zen.” By fully inhabiting ourselves, we also inhabit Zen.

Ben Howard is Emeritus Professor of English at Alfred University and leader of the Falling Leaf Sangha, a Zen practice group in Alfred. The Falling Leaf Sangha meets every Sunday from 7:30-8:45 pm in room 301 of the Miller Performing Arts Center on the Alfred University campus. Newcomers are welcome. AU psychology prof pens parenting book

ALFRED--Alfred University Psychology Professor Louis Lichtman, with more than 40 years of teaching and research behind him, says children are most successful when they are "self-directed" rather than parent-controlled.

His advice, presented in his new book, A Practical Guide for Raising a Self-Directed and Caring Child, runs counter to the current popular authoritarian parenting style advocated in Amy Chua's Battle Hymn of the Tiger Mother.

"Many of the problems facing our country today stem from the way we raise our children," said Lichtman. Surveys show that parents are failing to teach their children appropriate values. In the past year alone, about 30% of teenagers stole, 60% cheated, and 80% lied about something important. Also, about 50% admit to bullying other children.

His own experiences with what he calls "unhappy and poorly adjusted college students" prompted him to offer the parenting course and, eventually, to write the guide. Since its introduction in 1987, over 1,200 students have taken his parenting seminar.

With the media attention on the "Tiger Mother" style, Lichtman says he is concerned "parents will adopt a strict authoritarian style," even though the preponderance of research findings indicate "an authoritative style" -- where parents offer guidance, not orders -- works best for raising well-adjusted children to adulthood.

"Parenting is a complex and challenging task for which most people receive no formal training," said Lichtman. He compiled what he has learned as a psychologist, teacher, and parent into the guide, which received an Editor's Choice award from iUniverse.

Lichtman earned a BS degree in psychology from Brooklyn College and a Ph.D. in psychology from the University of Maine. In addition to a long teaching career, he has been a chair of the department for 13 years, and has served for 10 years as an associate dean or acting dean of the College of Liberal Arts & Sciences.

He was one of the founders of the Alfred Montessori Preschool.

What started as a TREE Workshop (for Training, Rehabilitation, Education, and Experience) in Friendship, is now Allegany Arc, an agency dedicated to providing the highest quality opportunities for people with special needs and their families. If you or someone you know was part of Allegany Arc's earliest history, we would love to hear your story. Dr. Richard Kellogg, professor emeritus of psychology at Alfred State College, is the author of an article appearing in the most recent issue of Paperback Parade, a quarterly journal for readers and book collectors published by Gryphon Books. The article is titled "Philip Wylie: Saving the Planet through Science Fiction."

Catholic Charities of Buffalo officials reported today that the 2011 Appeal exceeded its $10.5 million goal by June 30 with cash and pledges received in the amount of $10,601,157.94. Of that total, SS. Brendan and Jude Church of Almond and Alfred, respectively, donated $24,394.06. Blessed Sacrament Church in Andover donated $5,107.

The grant is in support of the association's efforts to make computers in the county's libraries accessible for the visually impaired through the installation of a software program called Magic II. When You Leave Your Job — Don't Leave Your Money Behind

No matter when you leave your job, the money you accumulated in your employer's retirement plan (such as a 401(k) or a 403(b) plan) while you were there can make the trip with you. Just be sure you don't lose it en route.

Penalties and taxes for premature withdrawals or improper rollovers into new retirement accounts are common pitfalls to avoid.

So call an experienced agent to help take this valuable asset to its new destination.

It was 1902 when Anna W. McArthur Chapter #242 Order of the Eastern Star at Andover was issued their charter. Seventeen years later a charter was issued to Kanakadea Chapter #626 at Alfred. Prior to June 1919 when Kanakadea Chapter was formed, two women of Alfred joined Anna W. McArthur Chapter and traveled by horse and buggy to attend the Chapter meetings. The distance was about nine miles. Through the years there have been many changes, membership has decreased, attendance at meetings has decreased. Many chapters met on a second or third floor making it difficult for some members to go up the stairs. Because Fraternities Hall at Alfred was sold, Kanakadea Chapter, as well as University Lodge F&AM, was forced to find another place to meet. Eventually a building on Karr Valley Road, Almond was purchased and renovated. That building allowed the meeting rooms to be on the ground floor. And now the biggest change of all. Anna W. McArthur Chapter contacted Kanakadea Chapter in regard to a consolidation of their two chapters with meetings to be held at Masonic Hall, Hornell. Members of both chapters were summoned to special meetings to vote on the proposed consolidation. The result of the voting was unanimous approval of thet consolidation...

Almond church to hold service in the park

By LINDA STAIGER
Special to the Alfred Sun
ALMOND--The gift of music is very special--it comes in so many forms it's difficult to count them all. The Almond Union of Churches has a very nice choir during the "regular season", but in the summer Special Music is arranged for each Sunday.

This summer we have been blessed by Bill Sitzman, bass from Trumansburg, Eugene Staiger, bass and piano, Almond, Rebecca Weaver, soprano, Alfred and Diane Straight, organ, Almond.

On July 31 Jim Varner, bass from Hornell shared two songs with us which had been selected two months ago---one of them was "The Prayer of the Norwegian Child". Leanna Conti, soprano, Buffalo sang at this same service---she is a recent graduate of Alfred State College and president of Alfred State Voices.

Karen Billings, soprano, Almond sang on August 7 and Craig Braack, bass, Almond will be part of our worship music in late August.

On August 14 we will have our annual Church in the Park at the Almond Village Green. Bob and Gena Decker will provide the music and the service that day and all are welcome to join us. Bob and Gena have done our Church in the Park a few times in the past and it is always a refreshing experience. After the service there will also be the annual church picnic in the park! If you have ever gone to a church meal of any kind you know you can count on God's bounty showing up on the tables. So, come, bring a dish to pass and join us in finding the path to Christ.

Unitarian Society will meet in Avoca Sunday

The gift of music provides us with a Music Ministry---yet another way to reach out to those who are searching as well as those who have received Christ. The value of music in our lives in general and in our life with Christ is so difficult to explain with words. It is deeply felt and lives in us on a spiritual level--attempting to write its importance in the form of goals and objectives is a very trying experience. The music we hear affects us on more levels than we can say; its overwhelming power demands that those who bring music into the church life make certain that it is clearly a part of the messages and activities. The bounty of God's love comes to us through many paths including music.

We clearly are very blessed with the ministry through the music of our friends this summer and we thank God for each and every one of you.

THE GLORY OF AMERICA

Thursday, August 11

If man's natural instinct is toward selfishness, as the architects of the Constitution presupposed, then republican government requires God's grace. For in order the function, it depends on a degree of selflessness in each citizen. Each must relinquish a portion of his or her individual rights, to strengthen the whole. Such sacrifice, and concern for the well-being of one's neighbor, does not come spontaneously to most. But under the inspiration of Christian faith, it can become instinctive. As John Adams put it:

"Our Constitution was designed only for a moral and religious people. It is wholly inadequate for the government of any other."

Hornell nurse gets award

HORNELL—St. James Mercy Hospital is proud to announce that Pamela Manktelow recently received the Patricia Murphy Young Memorial Fund award for community nurses. This award was established to recognize and support Corning-area community nurses who demonstrate a commitment to community nursing either in a professional or volunteer capacity.

Pam Manktelow, RN-BC, BS, has been a women's health nurse at St. James Mercy Hospital for more than 25 years, and has been the MOMS Program (Medicaid, Obstetrical & Maternal Services) Coordinator for approximately six years.

As part of the MOMS Program, Mrs. Manktelow developed an "Oral Health for Baby's Sake" program that screens women for oral health status at the first prenatal visit, encourages pregnant women to seek dental evaluation and treatment during pregnancy, and educates women about the importance of good oral health during pregnancy.

"Most of the MOMS clients often face financial challenges that would make what most of us consider a necessity (toothbrushes and toothpaste), a luxury they often cannot afford," stated Mrs. Manktelow.

Mrs. Manktelow's grant award earned her $250 towards the purchase of dental supplies for women enrolled in St. James Mercy Hospital's MOMS Program. For more information call (607) 324-8760.

Daydream BILLievers

(Continued from front page) Napolitano. He says upcoming storylines include rookie Marcell Dareus, the characters dealing with the lockout, and his 9-year-old son, who has absolutely no interest in football or contact sports.

"The Daydream Billievers comic to me is a really fun creative outlet," says Grosser. "I get to collaborate with some of the best people and I don't think there is anything more fulfilling than making other people laugh."

Grosser says the group brought him new experiences.

"I never had followed most sports before, but when Dan was just running the Daydream Billievers fan group that went up to Ralph Wilson Stadium, I joined in and started following the Buffalo Bills."

Grosser says he would like to see more feedback from the Bills themselves.

"I would love to see the Buffalo Bills recognize us more, either helping to support us as a true fan group, or even buy a large number of our Season One book to send to their dedicated fans," says Grosser. "Down the road I would love it if we kept making comics, had at least a few more seasons worth of novels, and had a strong following both through the strip and at games."

Grosser says passion and pride make the group successful.

"I think between Dan Napolitano and our fans, we are driven by passion," says Grosser. "Bills' fans as a whole are about community pride and spirit and I think we embody that well."

Napolitano '93, '98, began rooting for the Bills as an Alfred art student during the years of the team's four Super Bowl appearances. He witnessed the fans' loyalty, despite the team losing each time.

Napolitano and students began wearing the "Billiever" costumes to games in 2009.

"Every student that's gone with us always had a fun time," says Napolitano. He notices the group consistently attracts attention.

"People love us or people mock us," says Napolitano. "People want to pose for pictures or call us Waldo and make fun of us."

Napolitano says the groups represents Alfred University's identity and enhances the game experience.

"People who get the quirky spirit of Alfred dig us," says Napolitano. "It takes the attention away from the importance of winning or losing at a Bills game. It's goofy fun."

CELEINE EASDON-SMITH Director of major gifts appointed

ALFRED--Celeine Easdon-Smith has been appointed director of major gifts for the development office, Stanley Colla, vice president for University Relations, announced.

Easdon-Smith will be working with alumni and friends of the University in the Northeast.

"Celeine's combination of experience and skills were judged to be the best match for Alfred University's needs in fund-raising," Colla said. She was selected from a "very competitive pool of candidates."

"The opportunity to promote the educational development of young people in an intellectually stimulating environment is very exciting," said Easdon-Smith. "I am looking forward to visiting with Alfred University's alumni and friends to raise money for the University in support of annual and capital priorities. Most of the time when people go on vacation, families go on vacation, it is a time to relax or go see someone or visit a particular area. Usually it is a time to "relax" from the rigors of their everyday lives or from the job they have. While our recent visit to the Adirondack's was an excellent time, I am not sure the word relaxing would describe the week, in its entirety.

July 25 – Daughter Lauren, Brooke Easton and I departed from Webster and head for Indian Lake in the ADK's. Those two recently on a five-week backpacking adventure thru Europe and they were still talking to each other! We stopped in Utica along the way, as we have for a number of years now and had breakfast with Doris Springer of Whitesboro. 3L and I were just at her place a couple weeks prior for the Utica Boilermaker race but always good seeing her. After a solid meal we headed for Indian Lake and the Lone Birch Motel. Eight years running now! After virtually having seen no rain all summer, it was a wet ride from Utica to Speculator and onward to Indian Lake. My two passengers "somehow" slept thru that. We arrive at the Lone Birch, check-in with Becky and take off for our hike to Sawyer Mountain. A good climb to ease into the week.

July 26 – somehow I thought it was a brilliant idea to, once again, climb Crane Mtn. With no grocery store in IL anymore, North Creek is on the way to Crane and thus we are accomplishing two things. An aching body and hurting knees in my case. We made the climb last year so I knew what we were in for but it is the second-toughest journey 3L and I have ventured on. In year #2 we went up Blue Mountain – yuk! Was a great view at the top of Crane, met a guy and two sons from Syracuse area plus couple of camp counselors, one who went to school at Mercyhurst. Extremely tough descending as you are going over rocks, down narrow paths and sometimes walking on huge slates of stone. Relaxing vacation? We stopped for grocery supplies in North Creek, got back to the Lone Birch ok and then had a great dinner at the Indian Lake Inn that evening.

July 27 – we decided to attempt something different this year and that was to find various waterfalls in the area. Had three different maps-brochures-books at hand so we set out towards the Speculator area. Well, much to our dismay, the falls we found were "waterfalls" only because some rocks happened to be in the way of a stream or water moving along a creek bed. Very disappointing. One good hike while search though in Lake Pleasant. A lunch at the pavilion in Speculator, a library benefit going on and with purchase of tickets, won a golf shirt. Dinner that evening was homemade tacos by Brooke and 3L. Solid.

July 28 – Chimney Mountain was on the agenda for today. A hike we have made numerous times over the years after some fellow hikers told us about it. Another tough jaunt, with two awesome views near and at the summit. Huge rock collections from years and years gone by. We made it to the top, had a packed lunch and ran into some people from Webster. One of those days you'd like to bottle up and release for the entire summer! About 75-degrees or so, high overhead puffy clouds and a gentle breeze. It was pasta nite on Thursday as the two girls made tossed salad and dinner. Afterwards a hike by Adirondack Lake, across the street and some cold ones that evening at the Indian Lake Tavern. Good people!

July 29 – time to head back to Webster via a hike at Castle Rock overlooking Blue Mountain Lake and our traditional stop in Inlet as we work our way back home. A big threat of rain thwarted our Castle Rock stop so we went to Inlet instead and wandered around that town a little longer than we normally would. A hard rain hit us between Utica and Syracuse ... fun drive, but back to Webster eventually. Always have good time at IL. Wish Jess Herbst could've joined us again this year. Her and I undefeated in euchre 2009. She was off to UVM for soccer. Rian Jock (SUNY Geneseo) busy as well and couldn't stop by. One more person for better nightly card games, one dominated by me this year (6-3-1). 3L with the one win, by the way. But, the ADK's are great and life at the Lone Birch Motel as well!

July 30 – the ADK's are behind me but my vacation is far from over. Head for Hornell and the Gus Macker hoops tourney bright and early Saturday. Want to see Lyndsay Murphy (Almond/AU) play and also ran into Whitney Smith (Webster Thomas) there. Great time seeing some I haven't seen in awhile, particularly Doug "Tree" Rollins. Old softball friends and foes. Some great action, a hot day, my (must) sausage-onions-peppers sandwich and good time chatting with many. A confirmation on Utica run from Sienna (Harvey) Evingham. After that is off to Almond/West Almond as I am spending nite with Uncle Butch and Aunt Cass. It is A-A alumni weekend as well! Stop at Almond Rod & Gun club as Butch's class is having their 50th-year picnic (wow!), drive up to West Almond to change and then it is off to Alfred State College for the festivities. As is the case many years, but seemingly more so this year, many to see and talk to ... not enough time to do so. Great evening, solid program by the alumni committee and a most enjoyable time. Three tired individuals back at Lorow house that nite but time for us to get caught-up on life in general.

July 31 – final day of vacation but time for a round of golf with Smitty at the Waterways Resort outside of Angelica. Formerly the Six-S golf course. Pretty sure the last time I was there was for a Greg Norton/Denny Allen tournament and golfed with Simbo-Chark-Gerv. A "resort" it is not. But, played the best round of golf I have in years and more importantly, beat Smitty, 89-95. Six, one-putts the margin of victory over a stunned, former classmate at A-A. We had a cold one at the bar afterwards ... not paid for by the Corning resident and an excellent lunch in town at the My Place sub shop. Highly recommend that spot to eat. I head back to Webster over the back roads and the week is over.

HITS AND MISSES:

Prior to our vacation, 3L ran in the Lindsay Matthews 5K in Orchard Park as the inaugural event was a smashing success. A former teammate at SUNY Geneseo who lost her life during her sophomore year. Many past and current Knight players on hand. Enjoyed catching up on things with Mike Novak as his daughter, Emily in race. A junior-to-be for Coach Wiley's squad.

"The Traveling Sports Fan" from Almond was at the recent Subaru Buffalo 4-Mile Chase, minus John Tuttle. The A-A Hall of Famer recovering from injuries.

Big D, another former member of the famed Torrey Painting Striders, took in a New York Yankees-Tampa Bay Rays baseball game a few weeks back in St. Pete's (FL).

"Congrats" to Alfred-Almond's Seth Cornell as he was named first-team all-state in baseball, class D. Cornell is off to Houghton College in the fall and will play baseball in the new program.

Always see someone I know at the A-A alumni banquet and although I am not sure where they would put anymore people, more should make an attempt to get back for this excellent event.

A-A sectional championship teams: cross country (seven titles), boys soccer (4), girls soccer (1), boys tennis (6), girls tennis (3), boys hoops (3) ... Paul Powers-Leo Johnson-Big Dale!, wrestling (1), swimming (9), girls track (6), boys track (11), baseball (3), boys skiing (2), girls softball (6) and a NYSPHS Team Championship in indoor track ... John Tuttle! Many thanks to retired A-A athletic director and coach, Ernie Moore for compiling this list for me.

A batch of NYS vanity plates: BUGSDOVE ... Dalton, HAN-KSCAR, SMARTCPA ... not too big an ego, T STORMS, SUZY SUN, CSQUARED ... Sabathia, MTNMOM, MOJAVE, TIGR-WOOD, BOATMAN, 24 JEF ... spotted by 3L, NICE2OWN, FORCE 33 ... Bird and SLOW 335 ... Frank's last three rounds of golf!

Some summertime fun left as 3L in an event called the "Warrior Race" this coming weekend in Albany. A team outing with three former Geneseo soccer friends. We are going to hike Watkins Glen the Saturday after, head over the Sherman's house the next day for a cookout-interview and perhaps even stop by the Beale residence in Penfield for a cookout sometime before college soccer starts!
