Stay Safe. Respond to Outdoor Warning Siren

Alfred State College has outdoor warning sirens. In the event of life-threatening emergencies, Alfred State will activate the outdoor warning siren.

Any emergency that causes ASC to sound its alarm also has the potential to affect people on our campus. If and when you hear the siren, you should immediately return to a known safe, indoor location. Information about the emergency, including instructions about what to do, will be communicated via E2Campus . If possible, other methods will be used including WALF broadcasts and postings on entrance doors to academic and residence hall buildings.

If you have any questions, please contact the Office of Public Safety at 607-871-2108.

Lecture in Conjunction with COLORSCAPES Exhibition

Color: The Happy Accident that Begs to be Studied - Dr. William Carty

Location: Binns-Merrill Hall, room 106/C

Date: Monday, Sept. 10, 2012

Time: 4:30 p.m.

Cost: Free/Open to public

After form, the color of the ceramic glaze is arguably the critical esthetic. Color can be elusive, however, particularly in ancient ceramics where the results were sometimes described (in translation?) as "Happy Accidents." Of the three principle (modern) routes to obtaining color in glazes, the color that is dependent on the complex interaction between chemistry and kiln atmosphere is the most intriguing.

Our work, which evolved out of a chance discussion on the firing temperatures of ancient Korean Celadons, have forced us to re-think the firing processes of ancient ceramics. In particular, ancient firing cycles were very long (potentially up to four days) and at lower temperatures than are currently used in ceramic production.

Also, the color of the glazes appears to be the direct result of the reaction between the body and the glaze, rather than an "intentional" chemistry addition to the base glaze. These observations provide insight into ancient processes and have several modern implications for studio work.

William Carty is the John F. McMahon Professor and Chair of Ceramic Engineering at the Kazuo Inamori School of Engineering, New York State College of Ceramics at Alfred University.
