Two firms partner to address fracking issues

By BRAD BOWDEN
of the Alfred Lions Club

ALFRED—At a fall 2011 Alfred Lions Club meeting, Alfred University geologist Otto Muller presented an over-view of the technology of hydrofracking.

Muller, at that time, also addressed hydrofracking-related subterranean concerns (potential aquifer pollution by chemicals added to the fracking water) and numerous above-ground concerns to the public. Such concerns include noise and air pollution, environmental disruption, road damage and particularly where retrieved fracking water or 'flow back' is disposed considering the chemicals that are added to make the fracking water 'slick'.

At the Alfred Lions Club's February meeting, Club members heard how the expertise of two very different companies, Casella Waste Systems based in Vermont and Altela, a water desalination company in New Mexico, are addressing those concerns.

Casella and Atela merged in a partnership to develop a more cost effective and environmentally friendly process for treating dirty fracking water or "flow back" from hydraulic fracturing for natural gas in the Marcellus Shale.

Larry Shilling, Regional Vice President of Casella Waste Systems, explained how the strengths of the two companies meshed perfectly in addressing many of the problems associated with hydrofracking. The talk used the new waste water facility in Kean County, PA to illustrate the physical and functional aspects of this partnership.

In the partnership, "Casella-Altela Regional Environmental Services" or "CARES," Casella provides the working infrastructure and operational treatment facilities. Altela provides the technology (a non-conventional thermal distillation process, trade-marketed as AltelaRain) to turn the brackish, salty "flow back" into clean distilled water by mimicking the steps by which rain is naturally created from ocean water.

Casella's landfill provides the methane to drive the thermal distillation process, condensation and collection of clean water, and the on-site distillation towers of corrugated plastic plates facilitate the exchange and recollection of heat from the cooling and condensing steam vapor across the plates for distillation for further use in distillation of additional brackish, salty water.

The final product is described as having the same quality as rainwater, but the AltelaRain process is more efficient than rain production above the ocean because the heat released from condensing water can be captured and reused.

In addition to the advantage of combining the Altela condensation process with an available source of methane to drive it, the location of the water treatment facility at the Casella owned landfill in McKean County provides other solutions to problems associated with fracking.

Rather than open lagoons, they have large closed containers for storage and transport of brackish and clean water, "flow back" and well drill cuttings. An existing railroad spur adjacent to the McKean facility would reduce truck traffic and the associated problems to and from the facility.

It will enable rail transport of large volumes of 'flowback water' from the fracking sites to the treatment plant and the movement of clean treated water of different salt concentrations to its customers, the majority being fracking sites in PA and NY that reuse treated water rather than new water.

Also, since wet drill cuttings must be compacted for landfill disposal, drill cuttings can be transported to the landfill and compacted with appropriate on-site waste and added to the landfill. By using this local railroad spur, they hope to be able to service a large area of PA and eventually NY, thus significantly reducing road traffic.

While the future of hydrofracking in New York continues to be under discussion and debate because of the many related problems, companies such as Casella and Altela have been giving consideration to ways in which the process could be altered to potentially have less of an environmental and personal impact on the public.

At least it's not cooked carrots, Robin

By DAVID L. SNYDER

Editor and Guest Sunny Side Up Columnist

Leafing through the Alfred Community Theatre's Community Cookbook, I came across Ben Howard's "Enticing Lentil Soup," and, given his column on Page 6, thought Robin might appreciate something other than cooked carrots.

Enticing Lentil Soup

1 T. butter	1/2 lb. dried split lentils
1 large onion, finely chopped	1 qt. vegetable stock (or water)
3/4 tsp. sea salt	1 bay leaf
2 cloves garlic, minced	juice from 1/2 lemon
1 tsp. cumin, freshly ground	3 T. fresh cilantro
1 tsp. curry powder	1 T. tamari
black pepper to taste

Melt the butter in a large soup pot. Add the onions and sea salt and sauté for 2-3 minutes. Add garlic, cumin, and curry. Sauté for another 3-5 minutes until the onions are golden, going toward brown. Add the lentils and Sauté for 1-2 minutes. Add stock and bay leaf. Bring to a boil, then simmer, covered for 25-30 minutes until most of the liquid is absorbed and the lentils are tender. Add lemon juice, cilantro, tamari, and pepper. Simmer for another five minutes. Remove from heat and set aside for at least an hour. Reheat, adding water, if necessary. Garnish with parsley, if desired. Serve with sour cream.

Got a recipe you'd like to share with our readers? For the next few weeks, we're accepting recipe submissions for this column. Send to: alfredsun.news@gmail.com.

Amandine Club to meet today, start herb garden

ALFRED--The March meeting of the Amandine Club will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday, March 7 at the Alfred Seventh Day Baptist Parish House.

The program will be given by Aggie Comes, co-owner of Comes Greenhouse in Almond. She will be presenting a talk on "Making Herb Gardens." Please bring a pot (6 - 10 inches across the top) and $2 - 3.00 for the herbs and soil. Spring may not come any sooner but we'll put some "spice" in our homes.

The Thought for the Day will be given by Amanda Snyder, and the hostesses for the afternoon

Baker's Bridge meeting

ALFRED STATION--Baker's Bridge Association program for March is scheduled for Monday, March 18. If you are interested in the topic or area history, join us at the Meeting House at 5971 Hamilton Hill Rd., Alfred Station at 7:30 pm.

Steven Jackobi's topic is "The History of the American Chestnut Tree." Most people know about chestnuts but few have ever seen a mature tree. Once one of the most important forest species in eastern North America, the chestnut provided food and fiber for people, and was an important source of sustenance for wildlife from squirrels to turkey to deer. The loss of the American Chestnut due to an accidentally introduced fungal disease is one of the saddest and most devastating events in environmental history. Though no longer an important player in the forest, the American Chestnut is not extinct as biologists around the world work to save this magnificent tree.

will be Kay Chapman and Ollene Smith.

The Club welcomes Alfred area ladies to be guests of the Amandine Club, and would gladly welcome new members. We have six meetings a year and finish each year with a luncheon in May. The Amandine Club was started as a Reading Club by Amanda Burdick (Mrs. W.C.) in 1893 and officially organized in February 1894. It is probably one of the longest continuing community groups in New York State. Please join us!

A candidate for mayor

Open letter to the Editor:

I am running for Mayor because I love Alfred.

My wife (a native Alfredian) and I have called many places home—Boston, Philadelphia, San Diego and Redlands California, Lake Placid, NY—but when it came time to decide where we wanted to raise our family we chose Alfred. It was a place-based move. It was a community move.

If you know us, this makes sense. For almost 25 years I have been involved in 'matters of place.' This was true when I was a student at Trinity College and created my own minor in landscape architecture; it was true when I was focused on place-making, sustainable communities, landscape ecology and geographic information systems as a student at Harvard University's Graduate School of Design; and it has been at the core of my professional career working with planning and design professionals on sustainable communities and green infrastructure systems.

We moved to Alfred because it is a great community - and living here has exceeded expectations.

However, as a resident and longtime Village Planning Board member it is clear that although Alfred is a great community, opportunities are being missed and unhealthy trends have taken root. We cannot afford to continue to let that happen.

As a Planning Board member, I initiated the successful pursuit of opportunities to benefit Alfred including the New York Main Street Program and the New York Complete Streets initiative. Our New York Main Street award, for example, resulted in the provision of $290,000 to eleven downtown property owners making safety, energy-efficiency and aesthetic improvements to their buildings.

As Mayor, I will engage Alfred's diverse stakeholders and do what I can to empower community members to turn ideas into positive change.

I am running for Mayor because I believe we can and must work together to solve the challenges we face. Solutions will have to involve Alfred State College, Alfred University, the Town, County and State. Solutions will have to involve our homeowners, landlords, business owners, arts community and student populations.

Positive change will take collaboration, creativity and a collective vision. This change will take time and effort, but I am confident we can make it happen together.

Sincerely,

Justin Grigg

Candidate for Mayor of the Village of Alfred

Restore state funding

To the Editor:

NYSARC, Inc., the nation's largest nonprofit agency serving people with developmental disabilities, is urging the Legislature and the Governor to approve a final budget deal restoring $120 million in State funding to programs and services for people with developmental disabilities.

The reduction is a result of a 6% across-the-board cut which was contained in the Governor's budget. When federal funds are included, the cut is $240 million.

"These cuts are catastrophic," said NYSARC's executive director, Marc Brandt. "They are in addition to the nearly $350 million in cuts developmental disabilities services have sustained over the past 3 years."

Agencies throughout New York State care for 126,000 individuals with developmental disabilities. It is the largest system of its kind in the nation.

Brandt said that "We expect that many agencies will sharply curtail service and some may face closure" as they are unable to meet payroll and pay for goods and services. "Many of these agencies serve vulnerable people, some of whom are medically frail, many of whom require 24-hour care. We don't know what will happen with them. Many, particularly adults, have no families to step in should an agency fail. This is a recipe for disaster for this population."

"Allegany Arc is a Chapter of NYSARC, Inc. and a 6% cut across the board will have devastating effects on the agency," stated Carrie Redman, Allegany Arc's Marketing Director. "A cut like this is going to hurt people, hurt jobs and hurt the county. But most importantly, it is going to hurt those we serve. Health and safety risks will be increased, program quality will be reduced, and the ability of the people we serve to be part of their communities will be undermined if the state does not eliminate this cut."

FROM THE DESK OF DAVID PULLEN

By DAVID PULLEN
Allegany County Legislator

GUN CONTROL AND THE EMPEROR'S NEW CLOTHES

On February 25th the County Legislature had one of its most unusual meetings. Only eleven Legislators were present, and there was only one resolution on the agenda. Our meeting was short and focused.

Resolution #33-13 was entitled "A Resolution Calling For The Repeal Of The New York Safe Act Of 2013." Everyone present was opposed to the "NY SAFE Act" and supported its repeal. Legislator Tim O'Grady, Chief of Police in the Village of Alfred, conceded that there were some good provisions in the law, but that the bad provisions outweighed them, and called for the law to be repealed. Sheriff Rick Whitney also spoke against the law. He noted that most Sheriffs across the State have expressed their opposition to it. Ultimately, the Legislature voted unanimously to call for the repeal of this bizarre law. It remains to be seen whether the Governor and State Legislature will pay any attention to our opposition and concerns.

Much of the opposition to the NY SAFE Act is based upon the fact that it apparently violates the Second Amendment to the US Constitution. The Fourteenth Amendment makes the federal Constitution applicable to the States. That means that New York cannot violate the federal Constitution. Several constitutional challenges are underway. Hopefully one or more of them will be successful. My opposition to this law is based upon both constitutional and practical grounds. This law will do nothing to actually protect private citizens. It was enacted as a hysterical response to a tragedy. Governor Cuomo and the Legislature wanted to do something, almost anything, to address public concern. There are already numerous laws on the books that would address most of the public concerns. Hundreds or thousands could be saved if those laws were effectively enforced. However, that is a difficult and long term solution. Our politicians wanted a media event, and they staged one.

The political ambition of Governor Andrew Cuomo is the only realistic explanation for this law. He wanted to enact gun control legislation before President Obama did. As a result he cobbled together some unworkable provisions, came up with a catchy name, and organized a media blitz to pressure the State Legislature into a knee-jerk reaction to the Sandy Hook tragedy. The Governor's initiative will do no more to address the alleged gun violence problem, than his words and actions did to stop the devastation resulting from Hurricane Sandy. They will do exactly NOTHING.

Hans Christian Andersen wrote a popular story entitled "The Emperor's New Clothes." In it a proud emperor is duped into spending a fortune to have some unscrupulous tailors create beautiful, magical clothes. The trick is that supposedly only true aristocrats and nobles can see these exotic clothes. In reality there was nothing there for anyone to see. However, nobody wanted to admit that they couldn't see these beautiful, magical clothes. The Emperor held a parade to show off his new clothes, which weren't really there. No one said anything until a child declared what was perfectly obvious, "The Emperor has nothing on." I guess I am still a child, because it is obvious to me that Governor Cuomo is playing media games. His grand pronouncements are meaningless and irrelevant. Only the media gets excited about them. They don't change anything outside of Albany. Here is a proposed motto: "Governor Cuomo is like the Emperor, he has no clothes on."

By contrast, allow me to introduce you to Retired Army Lt. Col. Robert Danner, of Houghton. He served in the Army from 1961 to 1981. He retired from the Army to become Vice President for Student Life at Houghton College. He served on our Congressman's Service Academy Advisory Committee for many years, and served as adviser to Houghton College's ROTC program. He and his wife, Roselyn Ballard Danner, have served in many community programs for many years. Although the media hasn't paid much attention to them, they have served faithfully, and have made a tremendous difference in our community. Their type of service is what is truly important.

Sun Spots

Clock—I Mean, Shock—Treatment

It's come as quite a shock to me this year:

The time to change the clock is almost here.

Where'd that lying ground hog go? Wa'n't that last week?!

Outside I still see snow – for spring, looks bleak.

The cold's been just about (it's seemed) to strengthen;

And I'm still holding out for days to lengthen.

The calendar, however, rolls along.

Demanding clocks be never, ever wrong.

I'll reset it if I must – but it's no fun;

Seems easier to just reset the sun.

Metals group finds scholarship winner at Alfred Univ.

ALFRED—When it came time to present its top national scholarship — a $15,000 award — the Ellwood Group, Incorporated, (EGI) found itself in an unlikely location — the Kazuo Inamori School of Engineering at Alfred University, a place internationally renowned for its work in ceramics and glass.

But Stephen Rooney, a junior who is majoring in both materials science and art at Alfred University was clearly their top choice for their metallurgy scholarship and a internship at Ellwood Quality Steel this summer.

"Stephen was selected as the recipient because he is an exceptional student and a well-rounded, 'hands on' individual, with an interest in the metals industry," according to the EGI press release announcing Rooney's award. "He's a creative thinker who enjoys transforming his ideas to reality, with interests and skills in art as well as in science and technology."

The process for choosing the scholarship recipient is a rigorous one. To be eligible, students must be a college junior majoring in metallurgy or materials science. In addition to their resume, they must provide two letters of recommendation, an official college transcript and an essay about their interest in the steel industry. Additionally, each of the finalists is invited to tour three of EGI's manufacturing facilities and undergo a two-hour interview with selection committee members.

It was happenstance that led Rooney to apply for the EGI scholarship. "I was looking for something to do this summer" in a field relating to metals. "Summer has always been a time for me to refocus myself on metals, whether it's working at a sheet metal design and fab company, doing aerospace-titanium research, working as a sculpture intern or taking art courses in metal casting and forming."

Stephen Rooney, an Alfred University junior from Montclair, NJ, is majoring in materials science and fine arts; his background in both helped him win a national scholarship competition sponsored by The Ellwood Group Incorporated.

"I had just returned (to Alfred) from my home in New Jersey and was casually looking through Blackboard and found a posting for the Ellwood scholarship," said Rooney. "It seemed, for lack of a better word, perfect. The due date for submission was a week away, and I scrambled to get all my materials in."

His effort paid off.

But Rooney, the son of Stephen and Cindy Kaplan Rooney of Montclair, NJ, and a 2008 graduate of Montclair High School, isn't afraid of a little effort.

He knew he wanted to study both fine arts and engineering, which to some may seem an unlikely combination, from the time he was in high school. His choice of majors "gave my parents a headache," Rooney admits, but since "I've been known to do things in the hardest way possible, it didn't surprise them."

In looking at colleges where he could do both, two places stood out: Carnegie-Mellon and Alfred University, a school located in Western New York that "I had not heard of prior to college searching." While Carnegie-Mellon had strong programs in metals in both art and engineering, Rooney felt the school was not right for him.

An even though Alfred's reputation is strongest in ceramics and glass, not metals, "I found this small school to be a perfect fit. I appreciate the close relationships with faculty and students, the freedom and independence to pursue my own interests, as well as opportunities to work with my own hands in the fields of materials science and fine arts."

Dividing his time between the materials science labs and art studios has been difficult at times, Rooney admits. "It's hard to balance the workload and scheduling between the two," something other dual majors will admit as well. "But the knowledge in one very often relates directly to the other," he said. "For example, I learn in my materials science courses about how materials are structured and how it affects their observable properties. In my art classes, I am always seeking methods for how to accomplish a specific task, or to fashion a new procedure or tool for myself to experiment with Art serves, in many ways, as a laboratory and playground for engineering concepts, while engineering serves as a source of information that leads to inspiration in the lab and in the studio."

For that reason, he sees little demarcation between his coursework in art and engineering, and finds the combination of both "has provided me with practical experience in both fields that has compounded into a series of unique skills that have served me equally in internships in industry and academic research. It's really hard to say, looking back, what skills I learned from where, and what part of my education I really owe (to art or engineering). Everything feels so intertwined."

Rooney says he doesn't divide himself into "artist-Stephen and engineering-Stephen," and that's why he doesn't see that either art or engineering will emerge as the clear winner in his choice of a career after graduation.

"I plan on working as an engineering initially," he said, gaining some industrial experience before continuing his education. "I plan to work on art during my free time, and feel blessed that I can create artwork as a passion, not a career. Like many pursuits, being an engineer and an artist are both lifestyles, as well as viable careers. But these two lifestyles do not interfere or diminish each other by an apparent need to divide my attention."

"Neither art nor engineering 'wins' because they are not competing," he said.

'Burns & Kristy' to perform at Creative Arts Center

Burns & Kristy is a newly formed duo comprised of lifelong singer/songwriter/musicians (and, more recently, spouses) Terry Burns and Ron Kristy. In the summer of 2012 they released their debut CD—Caravan. Caravan, which has been described as "indie pop-folk with a spiritual and whimsical attitude," demonstrates the breadth of singing and sound that Burns & Kristy creates— with meaningful messages derived from the full range of life experience woven throughout. Their musical creations will move you. Caravan has an impressive array of styles and sounds. If you like Shawn Colvin, The Weepies, Allison Krauss, or Nancy Griffith, you'll find songs that resonate and make you sing out loud.

Terry Burns has been singing all her life. In her formative years, she sang with her sisters—The Burns Sisters—with Columbia Records. She then struck out for Nashville on her own, with a car on its last legs and not much cash to her name, and became a staff writer for EMI, MCA/Universal and Larga Vista. She had songs recorded by many artists including, David Kersh, Lari White, River Road, Alecia Elliot, Ruby Lovett, Pam Rose, Dawn Sears, and Jason Sellers. Terry also recorded a lovely self-titled solo album. Terry loves both songwriting and performing live.

Ron Kristy has been a musician and composer since he was just a kid! He composed and worked in the music business in New York City in his teen years and was a staff writer at Warner Chappell Music. As an adult he settled in Nashville and wrote scores and soundtracks for many well-known TV shows and programs. His credits are extensive, and include shows such as "20/20," "The Dog Whisperer," HBO's "Inside the NFL," "America's Most Wanted," "Access Hollywood" and "Dancing With the Stars," to name just a few. He composed award-winning music scores for "Angel Stories," "Miracle Stories," and "Life after Life" on the Discovery Channel, and "Soul of the Senate - The Robert Byrd Story" on PBS, among many others.

Burns & Kristy, pictured here in a creek, will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday, March 16 at the Wellsville Creative Arts Center.

One Time, One Meeting

The Practice of Zen Meditation

By BEN HOWARD

COOKED CARROTS

Being retired now, I cook most of the meals in our home. And of late I have become a connoisseur of my wife's responses, spoken and unspoken, to what I put on our table.

Let us say that tonight's menu is Rotini with Lemon-Asparagus Sauce, a side of cooked carrots, and a Martha's Vineyard salad. After a few bites, Robin may comment on what she has just eaten, or she may not. If she is silent for very long, I begin to get curious. "How do you like it?" I venture to inquire.

"It's good," she reassures me. But her real meaning, I've come to realize, resides in her inflection. If the sauce is dry or a bit salty, "good" will take on a rising, tentative intonation, as if another verbal shoe were about to drop. If the sauce is indeed good, as opposed to bad, the word will have an affirmative but faintly impatient tone, as if to say, "Why wouldn't it be?" But if, as sometimes happens, I have outdone myself, "good" will be accompanied or supplanted by "delicious," "scrumptious," or even "bellissimo!" At that point I will surmise that all is well, though in her own words Robin has "never been partial to cooked carrots," and at the end of the meal, a discreet pile of those little orange offenders remains on her plate.

For better or worse, I am myself partial to cooked carrots and could eat them every other night. (To which Robin might add, "and we do"). Unlike Robin, who hails from Brooklyn, I grew up in the American heartland—eastern Iowa, to be exact. And a staple of our Sunday dinners was a portion of soft, cooked carrots, bathed in the juices of thoroughly cooked roast beef. As a grade-school child I grew my own carrots in my parents' backyard garden, and I fondly remember sinking my father's garden fork into the moist black loam of eastern Iowa. Even now, as I chop carrots into quarter-inch rounds or reduce them to matchsticks for Pasta Primavera, I recall their role in our family dinners and their place in my earliest experience.

Much of that experience is foreign to Robin, as much of hers is to me. And so are the vernaculars in which we, as children and young adults, were continuously immersed. Such delectable words as tschotske (pronounced CHOCH-kah, meaning "curio," decorative object), schmata (rag; inferior piece of clothing), bubala (a term of endearment, sometimes applied to spouses), meshugana (crazy, a crazy person; also applied to spouses), and oy, gevalt! (good grief!), all of which Robin might utter in the course of a day, were never heard in my family home—or for that matter in the entire State of Iowa. Long ago, I abandoned any attempt to employ such words in conversation, lest I make myself a laughingstock. To speak Yiddish properly, not to mention expressively, requires a range of inflections and a repertoire of gestures well beyond the range of a plain-spoken, reticent Midwesterner.

Such differences of upbringing, taste, language, and temperament are of course the stuff of marriage, and if conjugal harmony is one's goal, it is essential to recognize, respect, and if possible understand them. And toward that end, Zen meditation can help.

Zen is often thought of as a solitary endeavor, and in several, obvious ways it is, but Zen meditation can also support harmonious interaction with other people, especially those with whom we live. One of my fellow practitioners, who has been married for thirty years, notes that belonging to a practice group gets him out of the house one night a week, which is probably good for his marriage. More seriously, as the Venerable Thich Nhat Hanh has often observed, the practice of mindfulness trains us to be wholly present, not only for ourselves but also for our spouses, children, and other members of our families. At its most effective, meditative practice fosters one-pointed listening and a moment-by-moment awareness of how the other person, be it wife or son or daughter, is responding to what we say or do. And over time, such awareness can transform us into better—or at least less annoying—spouses, partners, and parents, who at long last understand what to say and not to say, and when it is best to say nothing. Perhaps with luck and continuing effort, the practice of Zen may also turn a garden-variety cook into a passable family chef, who knows more often than not what his wife desires.

Ben Howard leads the Falling Leaf Sangha (www.fallingleaf-sangha.blogspot.com), a Zen practice group in Alfred.

AU libraries receive Muslim collection

ALFRED—The Alfred University (AU) Libraries were selected as one of 840 organizations nationwide to receive a collection of 25 books and four films designed to increase public understanding of Muslims in the United States and around the world.

The "Bridging Cultures Bookshelf" was awarded in a competitive process by The National Endowment for the Humanities and the American Library Association. Some of the materials will be on display in AU's Herrick Library entryway through March; the University will host a variety of public programs based on the collection pieces during the coming year.

A team of Alfred University librarians and history, political science, religious studies, and art history faculty developed the winning proposal for using the materials.

The collection explores five themes: the histories of Muslims in the United States since colonial times; the global history of Islam in the pre-modern world and interactions among Islamic and non-Islamic cultures; literary reflections on Muslim religious practices, ethics, governance, and identities; the relationships between Judaism, Christianity, and Islam, and among various types of Islam (Sunni, Shi'a, and Sufi); memoirs and novels by Muslim authors; and Islamic Arts.

Materials included in the "Bookshelf" were selected with the advice of librarians and cultural programming experts, as well as distinguished scholars in the fields of anthropology, world history, religious studies, interfaith dialogue, the history of art and architecture, world literature, Middle East studies, Southeast Asian studies, African studies, and Islamic studies.

Major support for the "Bookshelf" was provided by a grant from Carnegie Corporation of New York. The Doris Duke Foundation for Islamic Art provided additional support.

Herrick Library was built in 1957, expanded in 1978 and extensively renovated in 2007 providing seating for nearly 300 students. The renovations included the creation of a wide variety of learning and work spaces making it possible to accommodate virtually any individual or group study preference with a 24-hour study room, computer lab and various meeting rooms.

Herrick Library hours are at: <http://herrick.alfred.edu/> For more information about the bookshelf materials and upcoming public programs at AU, visit <http://libguides.alfred.edu/muslim-journeys>

AU student to speak on 'Genetic Mutation of X-Men'

ALFRED—Alfred University student Bellisant Corcoran-Mathe will present the next Bergren Forum program based on her piece, "Kicking X and Taking Genes: Genetic Mutation of X-Men." The lecture will take place on Thursday, March 7 at 12:10 p.m. in Nevins Theater, Powell Campus Center. This event is free and open to the public.

Ever wonder if there is any truth behind the comic book characters which make up so much of American culture? As the winner of the campus's 2013 Phi Beta Kappa Wit and Wisdom competition, Corcoran-Mathe, a sophomore theater major, will deconstruct the genetic mutations of the X-Men and discuss our potential to develop these mutations in the future.

She will provide insight into pivotal X-Men characters such as Magneto and The Beast and divulge on what would be necessary (besides toxic chemicals) for future generations to become evil-fighting superheroes.

The Alpha Gamma of New York Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa at Alfred University sponsors the competition to foster excellence in the liberal arts and encourage undergraduate students to become inspiring public speakers. The competition also provides an opportunity for students to present their scholarly or creative written work in a University-wide public forum.

Phi Beta Kappa is considered to be among the most prestigious of honor societies in the United States since its founding in 1776, and is dedicated "to the ideal of excellence in the liberal arts and sciences." To be eligible to have a Phi Beta Kappa chapter, colleges of liberal arts & sciences must meet the society's rigorous academic standards and be approved by the membership. There are fewer than 300 colleges—roughly 15 percent—nationwide that have been granted a Phi Beta Kappa chapter. Alfred University was awarded a chapter in 2003 and installed its first members in April 2004.

The Bergren Forum, sponsored by the Alfred University Division of Human Studies in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, meets Thursdays during each academic semester at the University. Participants are encouraged to bring a lunch; coffee and tea will be available.

Pruning perennials in Spring bring good results

By COLLEEN CAVAGNA
Cornell Cooperative Extension
Community Educator

Every fall we talk about cleaning up the flower beds in preparation for winter. This is done to discourage insects and diseases from overwintering in the beds. If you aren't experiencing pest or disease problems, some of your perennial flowers actually like to be left alone until spring time. Here are a few that can be pruned in spring:

Artemisia – Most Artemisia should be pruned in the spring, if pruned in the fall, new growth will be too tender and will be killed by winter temperatures.

Balloon Flower (Platycodon) – If you have grown this striking flower, you don't want to make the mistake of digging it up in the spring. Leave some type of foliage or a marker where it is growing since it comes up late in the spring and you don't want to disturb it by mistake. Prune old growth once new growth has started.

Basket-of-Gold (Aurinia saxatilis) – Yellow/gold flowers make this plant stunning and its foliage can also provide some green color during mild winters. If seeing green amidst all that white is important to you, try leaving this until spring pruning. Black-eyed Susan – Leaving the flower stalks for birds to feed on throughout the winter is a wonderful practice. Just clean up and prune in the spring.

Blue Mist Shrub (Caryopteris) – This late summer bloomer likes to be pruned in the spring. Cut it back 6"-8" or by half its size. Caryopteris blooms on new growth. They are slow to begin growth in the spring, so don't give up on those seemingly bare twigs.

Gayfeather (Liatris spicata) – Gorgeous spikes of flowers make this a desirable plant. Allow the flower spikes to remain as seed for birds during the winter and prune back the old stalks in the spring.

Italian Bugloss (Anchusa azurea) – Right after flowering these plants are sheared and should then be left to grow the rest of the summer and pruned the following spring.

Lavender – Cold affects lavender and makes over-wintering a tricky business. Don't prune late in the season. New growth will be killed by winter temperatures. In the spring, prune out any winter die back.

Pincushion Flower

(Scabiosa) – This is another plant that, if you remove all the foliage, you may not know where it is come spring. Leave the old foliage or a marker and prune old growth in the spring after the plant begins active growth.

Russian Sage – Russian sage adds contrast with whitish stems and silver leaves. It is a plant that is sensitive to the cold, so leave the foliage in the fall. In the spring, when new growth starts, prune back to about 6"-8". Remove any dead woody sections.

Sedum – If you left your sedum for winter interest, you need to prune out the dead foliage come spring.

Turtlehead – Have you found it hard to over-winter your turtleheads? Try leaving the foliage and pruning the old growth in the spring.

If you refrain from pruning certain perennial flowers in the fall (under healthy conditions), whether for winter interest, bird food or the health of the plant, you can make our flower beds a year-round source of pleasure.

KEEP THE PROMISE.

New York made a promise when it created the State University—a promise to keep SUNY accessible to all students. But today, the state is pulling back from that promise.

A two-year funding freeze—on top of years of deep cuts in state support—has shifted more of the cost of higher education onto students and their families.

Today, nearly 75 percent of SUNY's operating budget comes from tuition and fees, compared to a decade ago when 75 percent came from the state. So more and more funding for SUNY is coming from tuition and fees. This amounts to an increasing burden on lower- and middle-income families.

That shift threatens to erase student access.

Erase opportunity.

Erase hope for a brighter future for all New York.

Don't let it happen. It's time the state pays its fair share to SUNY again.

Call your legislators. Tell them to increase funding for SUNY in this year's budget.

Tell lawmakers to keep the promise.

NOTES from the BOX OF BOOKS

By ELIZA ORDWAY

Box of Books Library Director

There is a new service offered here at the Box of Books that people (some staff included) are not aware of. Did you know that you are able to pay your fines on line through StarCat? This I did know, I did not know however that you can do it without having a PayPal account. Any patron can access their account through StarCat and pay their fines using a credit or debit card. This is a huge step up for our little library. If you would like to learn how to utilize this service you can make an appointment with Eliza or Rima to get a walk through on the steps. It is like any online shopping you do quickly an easy.

March is proving to be an "Eggs"remely busy month for us here at the Box of Books.

Thursday, March 7 at 4:30 Lucky Charms Fact Finding. Most appropriate for children grades 3-5, younger children may need extra assistance. Registration Recommended. ## Burns gets grant for architectural study CANASERAGA--The Landmark Society of Western New York announces the latest recipients of grants that will provide funding assistance to help save historic resources. The Preservation Grant Program offers funds earmarked for preliminary design and planning studies to help make positive improvements to at-risk buildings.

The Town of Burns will receive $3000 to fund an architectural/feasibility study of the former Kingston Hotel, an important anchor building in the Village of Canaseraga. The professional study of the hotel will be a critical first step in enhancing the community's historic building stock. Ultimately rehabilitation of this building could spark further investment in the village.

"This grant is the beginning of a big change that is long overdue," said Lauren Oliver, Town of Burns Supervisor. "It has the possibility to create excitement and give hope to the residents of our community which is needed for the survival of small towns like ours."

Other grant recipients include:
• The Victor Historical Society is receiving $1000 to assist in funding Phase I of a conditions report for the historic Valentown Hall in Victor.

• Elim Bible Institute is receiving $1500 to fund a conditions report targeting the roof and associated issues as a first step towards future repairs and upgrades to College Hall and Elim Bible Institute's other historic buildings in Lima.

These grants are for projects that epitomize the mission of The Landmark Society to sustain and enhance the cultural and economic vitality of Western New York by bringing new life to historic buildings and resources and ensuring that they are present and contributing for generations to come.

"We strongly support the work being done in Victor, Lima and the Town of Burns to preserve historic buildings," said Wayne Goodman, Executive Director. "Our mission is to offer our assistance, expertise and resources whenever appropriate throughout Western New York."

Initial funding for the grants was made possible by a generous bequest from Elizabeth (Libby) Stewart. Stewart was a longtime Landmark Society staff member who was dedicated to the revitalization of neighborhoods and historic structures. To date The Landmark Society has awarded more than $10,000 in grants including grants to the City of Rochester for a home on Madison St.; the Susan B. Anthony Neighborhood Association for the church building at 660 West Main Street and the Charlotte-Genesee Lighthouse Historical Society. They narrowed down the dancers to five couples: the McDowells, the Reeses, the Snyders, the Doschs, and the Albrechts. With the brutal winter weather showing no sign of letting up, the invitation to attend a "media day" at a water park resort was like a dream come true. "Spend some time at a tropical island resort," the flyer said, with another line under it, "in Erie, Pennsylvania!" Whoa! This is mid-February. And I'm invited to a water park resort in Erie? Then I saw it. "Indoor." Now there's a great idea. Why hasn't anyone thought of that before? No second thoughts on this invitation. Complimentary overnight accommodations for me and my family...and a V.I.P. all-day Splash Bash and 84-degree temperatures at what they're calling Splash Lagoon. My nine-year-old son, Cameron, was the first member of my family to come to mind. I know how much he loves the water. And as it turned out, he was the only member of the family both interested and available...

(Photo) A web of water rides fills the newly-opened one acre Splash Lagoon Indoor Water Park off I-90 Exit 24 in Erie, Pennsylvania. Most of the water slides empty into the Lazy Crazy River (foreground) which is surrounded by water guns.

A year ago, the Alfred University softball team was young, inexperienced and lacked depth, particularly on the pitcher's mound. With only one senior, standout shortstop Tara Harwood, a squad made up primarily of freshmen and sophomores struggled to a 5-26 record (2-11 Empire 8). And virtually all the pitching burden fell on junior Brandi Backus, who was called on to toss 161 of 185 innings. A year later, things have changed for second-year Coach Jaime McLaughlin. Her players are a year older and more experienced. And some talented newcomers have come in to provide depth...Two newcomers, freshman Brittany Curran (Alfred-Almond), a transfer from St. John Fisher, and sophomore Janelle Villone (Honeoye) who can also catch, will be expected to contribute on the mound...Sophomore Rachael Porter (Alfred-Almond) played left field as a freshman and will compete for time at shortstop this year...sophomore second baseman Andrea Crandall (Alfred-Almond), one of the fastest players on the team...

Eric Crandall, a junior at Alfred-Almond Central School, will travel to Hawaii during the summer of 2003 to play soccer with some of the best juniors throughout the United States. Nominated by Dan Washburn, A-A boys varsity soccer coach, Eric was selected as one of 125 athletes from about 2,600 nominees...

Quakers mobilize for active nonviolence ahead of Kenya's elections this week

Special to the Alfred Sun

As fears of violence grow ahead of Kenya's election on Monday (March 4th), thousands of people in the country are mobilizing to avoid a repeat of the post-election violence that shook Kenya in 2007 and left 1,200 dead and hundreds of thousands displaced.

In a coordinated, grassroots effort, Quakers from Kenya, the United States, and Britain have been equipping Kenyans to non-violently demand justice and build a mass nonviolent witness for peaceful, transparent, free and fair elections. The three-pronged approach that combines civic education and dialogue, citizen reporting, and local peace building responses has resulted in numerous community-driven initiatives to defuse tensions, challenge hate speech and hold political aspirants to account.

Based on Quaker-initiated programs called Turning the Tide, Alternatives to Violence, Healing and Rebuilding Our Communities, and Transformative Mediation, this initiative does not avoid conflict but rather challenges the causes of violence and helps Kenyans to build a just and peaceful future from the grassroots.

This community-driven program is supported by Quaker Peace & Social Witness (QPSW) in partnership with three Kenya based organizations, Change Agents for Peace International (CAPI), Friends Church Peace

Teams, and the African Great Lakes Initiative. Over 20,000 people in the country have received training in a massive "Know Your Rights" campaign. At least 1,200 have become citizen reporters, raising the alarm when early warning signs of violence appear. Another 660 will serve as domestic election observers. A larger number has received voter education.

As a result, Kenyans are taking the initiative in their own communities. For example * In Nairobi and Lugari, they have convinced candidates to participate in public debates – unusual in Kenya until now – and developed vetting mechanisms to hold local candidates to account. In Kenya, politics has been about ethnic affiliation, loyalty, bribery, poverty, inequality and intimidation. Now Kenyans are demanding that all candidates give clear policy commitments.

* In Langas (Eldoret), where pamphlets and hate speech were threatening inter-ethnic violence, women from different communities came together to organize a Women's Peace Procession and made a public peace proclamation.

* In Mt. Elgon, when citizen reporters sent news that four people had been murdered there, and then a fifth was assassinated, community peace builders delivered a message of peace at the funeral of one of the victims and followed up with trauma healing and listening workshops in an ongoing effort to interrupt the cycle of revenge.

The work is based on Quakers' trust in ordinary citizens to work out solutions and build peace for themselves. Quakers, also known as the Religious Society of Friends, have been promoting active nonviolence for three and a half centuries.

Benard L. Agona, Field Co-ordinator of Turning the Tide Programme in Kenya, said: "We are seeing a new generation, a generation that are not sitting quietly any more, a generation who are coming together to resist injustice. We are also seeing a generation that wants to make informed decisions."

Laura Shieler Chico, of Quaker Peace & Social Witness (QPSW) in Britain, said: "These efforts are rooted in local communities. That is their strength. They are a long-term effort not only to prevent election violence but to challenge the systems and structures that give rise to violence to begin with. People have mobilized their own communities and the response has not come from outside but from deep within. This is a testimony to the Quaker notion that there is that of God in everyone; the answers lie within each of us."

Notes to Readers

* Quakers are known formally as the Religious Society of Friends. Kenya has the largest number of Quakers of any country in the world, with a total membership in the vicinity of 300,000. Their commitment to equality, justice, peace, simplicity and truth challenges them to seek positive social and legislative change.

* On March 4th, Kenya will be holding its first general election under the new constitution that was voted in by referendum in 2010. At least 1,200 people were killed and hundreds of thousands displaced after Kenya's 2007 election. Fears of a repeat of violence have inspired an unprecedented multi-track election violence prevention effort. Local, community-driven election related initiatives have not received much media coverage to date.

* Partners include the African Great Lakes Initiative and Friends Church Peace Teams who are leading on the citizen reporters and community conflict resolution. Change Agents for Peace International is leading on the Know Your Rights civic education campaign, inter-ethnic dialogues and Turning the Tide.

THE GLORY OF AMERICA

Thursday, March 7

Chaplain J. William Jones, accompanied by Stonewall Jackson's chaplain, B.T. Lacey, visited Robert E. Lee in his tent. As they were about to leave, Mr. Lacey told the General that all the chaplains were praying for him. According to Jones, tears came to Lee's eyes, as he replied:

"Please thank them for that, sir--I warmly appreciate it. And I can only say that I am nothing but a poor sinner, trusting in Christ alone for salvation, and need of all the prayers they can offer for me."

JONES, CAMP, 50.

Chambers came into the long jump competition with the 5th best jump of the season in the NJCAA but was able to leap to a 3rd place finish. His best jump of the day in his last attempt measured 23'4" (7.11 m) and earned the Pioneers six points.

Nagle sits in 9th place after the first four events of the heptathlon. He has scored 2,444 and trails 8th place by 34 points with three events on Saturday. His top scoring event of the day was a high jump of 1.83 m which earned 653 points.

Nagle finishes 8th in nation

Alfred State sophomore Travis Nagle (Randolph) finished the heptathlon in 8th place to highlight day two at the 2013 NJCAA Indoor Track & Field National Championships at Texas Tech. His score of 4,441 breaks his own school record.

The Pioneers will next be in action on March 23rd when they open up the Outdoor season at the West Chester Invitational.

Softball opens with split

The Alfred State softball team opened up their 2013 campaign with a doubleheader split with Hagerstown (MD) CC. The Hawks won the opener 10-8 while the Pioneers won the nightcap 6-5.

The opener was a back and forth affair with the Hawks scoring two in the bottom of the 6th inning to take the lead for good. The Lady Pioneers had the tying runs on base with one out in the 7th but could not plate either run. Alfred stranded 13 runners on base in the contest.

Katie Jackson (Troy, PA) led the offense with a 3 for 5 day while Aubri Mosier (Rome, PA) collected two hits and two RBI. Brooke Gustin (Wellsville), Alyssa Roache (Sherman), and Kristen Potter (Harrison Valley, PA) all collected two hits.

In the nightcap, Alfred scored two runs in the 4th and 5th innings to grab a lead and held off a Hawk rally in the 7th to earn the victory.

Mosier and Gustin hit back to back homers in the 2nd inning and each finished 2 for 3 on the day. Kassy Militello (Akron) had a clutch two RBI hit to give the blue & gold the lead. Clarissa Swain (Dansville) struck out three on the mound and earned her first collegiate victory.

The Dugout

By DOUG LOROW

Alfred Sun Sports Columnist

dugout2@gmail.com

It was off to Erie Community College on Sunday past with noted area photographer, Leo Nealon as we took in the Region III, Division II women's basketball championship. The game was held at the Burt Flickinger Athletic Center on the ECC City Campus in Buffalo. Coach Gina Boyd's Alfred State College squad would be taking on the host ECC Kats for the right to advance to the national NJCAA tournament in a couple of weeks.

Erie CC gained the #1 seed and, after a first-round bye, topped Jamestown CC in semi-final round action. Alfred eased by Niagara County CC in their semi-final outing on Saturday to advance to the finals as the #2 seed. Erie CC was the host school this year and also the defending Region III champs. Last year the Kats beat Mercyhurst NE in the finals.

Nealon and I arrived early for the game (to avoid paying) and had a chance to chat with Coach Boyd for a good 15-minutes or so prior to the contest as we chatted about a variety of subjects. She was most gracious with her time and answering our/my questions. Alfred State is transitioning to a four-year program and changes galore will take place next year. Most notably in the scheduling for the various sports teams. Had previously talked about this with coaches Anne Holmok (soccer) and Gary "Doc" Moore (cross country/track&field) from A-A, so knew a little about it.

Wandering in next was Paul Welker, the SID at Alfred State so I began to pick his brain about all the various changes coming as well. He too was great in explaining all the issues and what potential problems were upcoming. Yes, we were at the game that early! While Nealon was checking the lighting for his shots I was watching the teams warm up and especially Haley Witchella of ASC, whom I'd heard a little about.

Soon it was time to start and it was an excellent, close first-half of play. Alfred trailed at the break, 24-23 despite missing numerous opportunities to score. An encouraging first stanza. That didn't last long though as ECC came out strong to start the second period, Alfred got into foul trouble and the Pioneers never caught up. ASC was in foul trouble and didn't help themselves at all from the charity stripe. The team went (4-12) while ECC was knocking down 22-33. Huge difference!

Erie CC would win, 58-49 as Witchella fouled out and Coach Boyd's team finished up at (19-8) on the year. Karley Fanning joined Witchella on the all-tournament team from Alfred. The Kats are (21-5) and off to the NJCAA nationals in Illinois.

Had a chance to look over the program and since 1992 Genesee CC has won this tourney 10-times and finished second eight times! Alfred was also runner-up in 1993 and '94. It is a tourney of "runs" as GCC won it six-straight years, then Monroe CC for eight-straight, one break and GCC for three more and now ECC has grabbed two in a row. And, it was last chance for Alfred State to win this event as they will now be a NCAA Division III program.

Good time at game. Met Alfred's athletic director, Dr. Daryl Arroyo. Good talking with Boyd and Welker, seeing Witchella play and an enjoyable game to watch, overall. Time for Nealon and I to head back to Rochester!

HITS AND MISSES:

Raegan Ryan and her Cedarville University women's hoop team in Ohio won the NCCAA Midwest Regional over the weekend as they pounded Grace, 80-46. The Canisteo-Greenwood product had 13-points and dished out 6-assists in the win. The Yellow Jackets next play in the Great Midwest Athletic Conference tournament this weekend and then it is back to NCCAA action the following weekend at the national tournament.

In NCAA Division III men's basketball action: Coach Curle's squad at Plattsburgh drilled Husson, 84-63 in round one action. The Cardinals next face a very tough Amherst team this weekend. Coach Spanbauer's program blasted Elms, 85-59 and next face Middlebury. Ithaca and Rochester (UR) will square off this weekend in round two action after they won opening round games. The Bombers topped Springfield while UR eased by Fitchburg State. Hobart in OT and Stevens (E8) lost round one contests. Why one-week between games?

Patti Kaznowski, wife of the once-legendary Kaz and Barb (Nelson) Lorow, ex-wife of me, took in the Florida State-North Carolina men's cage contest on Sunday at the 'Dean Dome. The Tar Heels prevailed, 79-58 ... much to the delight of ASC Hall of Famer, Barb.

Brother-in-law, Brian Fischer and his son, "Lefty" took in the Mississippi and Kentucky basketball game the weekend before that as ESPN's College Game Day crew was in Lexington. "Fish" a diehard UK fan has totally brainwashed his son, Kyle. UK off to the NIT's this year!

In high school basketball play it was the Hornell Red Raiders beat the Wellsville Lions, 56-47 to win the B2 sectional title in a game held at the BCA on Sunday. Hornell was the #1 seed and Wellsville the #2. Hornell is now (19-2), with a few champion football players on the roster, and off to the states while Wellsville completes a (17-4) season. The Lions have been in the finals a ton in the last 7-8 years, or so. Think with just one championship.

In the D1 bracket, where Alfred-Almond plays, University Prep beat Fillmore in the boys final, 77-67 to claim the title. University Prep, a charter school only three-years in existence, starts an 8th-grader, two-frosh and 2-sophomores! Yikes.

Greaney aids in F&M's third place finish

LANCASTER, PA--During the weekend of Feb. 22-24 Patrick Greaney (Alfred-Almond alum) helped his Franklin & Marshall collegiate team take third place in the Division III Centennial Conference.

Patrick stood on the podium with two sixth place finishes in the 200 breast (2:10.41) and the 100 breast (1:00.44).

In the 200 Individual Medley he finished with a personal best time of 1:58.60 and then swam the breaststroke portion (1:00.72) on the fifth place 400 medley relay (3:35.04) and the breaststroke spot (27.67) on the sixth place 200 medley relay team (1:39.46).

Patrick also contributed by swimming a leg in a time of 1:48.32 on the 800 free relay team that finished with a time of 7:13.97. All of these results enable Patrick to race at the USA Swimming Eastern Zone Speedo Championship on March 20 in Buffalo.

Meanwhile, sister Alyssa competed at the Westside Invitational at SUNY Brockport on March 2 and swam to a first place finish in the 50 breaststroke with a time of 36.69.

Next up for her USA Mercury swimming team is the Niagara District Championship to be held March 14-17 at the Webster Aquatic Center in Rochester.

AU football team gets 6 home games

ALFRED--Alfred University has announced the 2013 football schedule, which will allow for more "home cooking" than the 2012 season.

The Saxons hit the road for seven games last season, with only three home games. The 2013 schedule features six home games and four away.

AU finished 6-4 (5-2 in E8) in 2012 as Coach Dave Murray got his 100th coaching win at AU in the Saxons' 30-13 regular season finale at Hartwick.

& Field Championships held last week in Albuquerque, NM as she cleared, 16'5.5" to win another USA title. The Olympic champion! Assume "The Bookworm" took in some of these events ... A-A ('70).

Spotted a few NYS vanity plates here and there: FLOWERZ, FEDEXCAL ... no relation to "Syracuse Dave" but perhaps where The Chill works, AWSOME ... Duke hoops! and SCHIFTY ... one of 3L's former roommates at The Bungalow in Genesee.

"Guessing" QB Joe Flacco (and the Ravens) is extending thanks to Denver Broncos defender(?) Rahib Moore as Flacco just inked the largest contract in NFL history. The Baltimore signal-caller is MVP in the Super Bowl so quite the year so far!

Daughter Lauren ran in the Coogans Salsa Blue & Shamrock 5K in NYC over the weekend as she posted a time of 23:54, good for 1372 out of 5825 runners overall, 304th female and 24th in her age group (21-25).

Is the World Baseball Classic on now?

Drinking that "Duke Kool-Aid" as Ryan Kelly is back and the Blue Devils eased by a tough, tough Miami team on Saturday at Cameron Indoor Stadium. "Nice" return for Kelly ... 36-points. Duke needed all of them as the Hurricanes never backed down in a great ACC collision. Both could be in the "Final Four" ... but then again, about 10-12 other teams could as well. Should be a great hoops tourney this year.

Finally this week a very special birthday to 3L in NYC this week (Thursday) and a belated one to her former SUNY Genesee soccer teammate, Rian Jock. Lauren her 24th ... whew.
