

The Alfred Sun 'fit for the Queen'
 Since June 02, 2012 is the diamond jubilee of Queen Elizabeth II's coronation, Arun Varshneya remembered that his Dad (Mr. N. L. Varshneya) of Agra, India was invited to attend some of the coronation ceremonies on June 2, 1953 while he visited. The attendees received a few mementos for the occasion. I brought one of them, a beer stein, over to Alfred. At right, Darshana Varshneya is holding the QE II coronation mug with Her Majesty the Queen trying to read the latest issue of the Alfred Sun and the other inset photo of the mug itself, hopefully, shows June 2nd, 1953, the coronation date.

Group pedaling their way back to AU Reunion '12

ALFRED— Alfred University's (AU) "Bikers from Mars," (Mars, PA, outside Pittsburgh, that is) are on their way to campus for Reunion 2012 festivities, June 8-10.

The crew left Mars on June 3 and expects to enter the village of Alfred Friday (June 8) afternoon in time to begin weekend activities on campus. During the six-day trip, the bikers will travel 266 miles.

The core bike crew includes David Conrad '76, Roger Eiss '58, Jim Randall '77, and Dave Perry '61 and his wife Kate, veterans of the 2011 bike ride from Lake Placid.

David Holleb '77 has signed up for the final three days of the six-day trip; he'll pedal from Coudersport, PA. Richard Rygiel '76 plans to join up either in Bath or Hornell for a day or two. Peter Stull '75 (proprietor of the bike shop in Alfred Station) will ride the final day from Hornell, along with, to judge from the 2010 and 2011 trips, others from the Alfred community. Ed Law '58, who rides his pre-World War II bike, second-hand bike—a gift from his dad—with no gearshift to help him climb hills, will also ride the final few miles of the trip.

Past Alfred University Reunion bike trips have crossed the Poconos for ('03 and '08 Reunions), the Catskills ('10) and the Adirondacks ('11). This year the bikers will cross the Alleghenies!

The 2012 journey will take the riders from Mars to Clarion, PA; then from Clarion to St. Marys, PA; then on to Coudersport, PA; from Coudersport to Bath, NY; out of Bath to Hornell; and finally, from Hornell to Alfred.

Conrad, an avid biker, says the exercise helps him stay in shape since he works a job that requires him to sit at a desk five or six days a week. He says he's ridden a bike from Maine to Florida, across Iowa and participated place in a 10-day stage rides.

"I'm no Lance Armstrong," says Conrad, bank president of Citizens National Bank Putnam, CT. "I do it to test myself and keep the pounds off."

Eiss says he was a complete couch potato as an Alfred University student. He recalls when he was about 27 a doctor told him after a physical that he had never seen someone his age in such poor physical condition. He says today he spends a minimum of two hours per week on an exercise bike and he uses a bike in France when he visits his in-laws there every other year.

He first traveled to Reunion Weekend with Alfred graduates across the Pocono Mountains in Alfred University alumni bikers pose with the King Alfred statue on campus at the end of their 2011 adventure.

"I had a wonderful time and was hooked," says Eiss.

Holleb says he also didn't ride a bicycle at Alfred.

"I played lacrosse and drank beer instead!" says Holleb.

Holleb says he was hesitant to buy a bicycle.

"I finally bit the bullet and purchased a Bianchi road bike. This will be the longest ride I have ever attempted. It is nice to train for a goal and get in shape at the same time."

Eiss explained coordinating the trip included calling bikers on the alumni news website, finding lodging, arranging a dinner at Hornell's Sunset Inn, and providing transportation for luggage.

The riders say they prepared for the trip by having their bikes tuned and increasing their training schedules.

Conrad says if high temperatures accompany the riders, it won't be a problem.

"I enjoy riding in the heat," says Conrad. "As long I stay hydrated, it doesn't bother me."

Eiss says he's looking forward to the great time he will have with wonderful people during the trip.

"We have already started planning the 2013 ride," says Eiss.

"More people should do this!" says Holleb.

AU-ION project brings in high-speed internet

As of Friday, June 1, AU, ION connected

ALFRED—Fast connection to the Internet has arrived at Alfred University and with it the ability to connect more readily to other institutions, researchers and the online community at large, which is critically important to an academic community.

New York's Southern Tier has long been at a competitive disadvantage when it came to connection, but as of June 1, Alfred University now has robust, high speed connection (at 500 MB) thanks to an infusion of funds from the federal American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA) and a partnership with Albany-based ION (Independent Optical Network).

The Alfred University project is the first part of a much larger project to be completed under ION's ARRA grant that will eventually connect 70-plus rural communities.

AU's Director of Information Technology Gary Roberts said bringing high speed access to the campus has long been a goal.

"Years ago it was evident that everything was migrating toward broadband delivery," he said, "Even traditional entertainment and utilities were increasingly being delivered over broadband connections."

Roberts began exploring how to get a fiber network in place and invited potential infrastructure partners and users to the discussion. About the same time, the university made the decision to relocate and upgrade its data center, building a state-of-the-art facility, which eventually led ION to the decision to locate a POP (an Internet Point of Presence or hub) on the AU campus.

When ARRA funding became available in 2009, the expansion of fiber networks became more feasible for rural areas, including the Southern Tier, and the deal came together between ION and

AU.

"Alfred University is a community anchor institution in this project and has been a great partner to work with," said Jim Becker, president of ION. "We have been working very closely with Gary Roberts and his team and that has made it easier for ION to bring high capacity broadband to rural Western New York."

"It's widely recognized that bringing fiber to rural communities is very important to their economic future," Becker added. "In fact, this project has been cited on President Obama's list of 100 stimulus fund projects that are changing America."

As a carrier neutral provider, ION built the infrastructure, installing a sufficient amount of fiber to allow various service providers to utilize as much bandwidth as they need for their customers' use.

INOC, LLC, an Albany-based datacenter and Internet provider, is providing the Internet access to Alfred University via the ION connection. Funding for the project, called the ION Upstate New York Rural Broadband Initiative, was awarded in late 2009 by the National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA) under its Broadband Technology Opportunities Program (BTOP).

In addition to the NTIA stimulus funding, ION received an additional grant of 10 percent of the total project cost through the New York State Innovation Economy Matching Grant Program. When the ION project is completed, there will be overlapping fiber rings throughout the state, so that broadband circuits can be automatically switched in another direction in the event of a break in the line.

The project calls for installation of 1,300-plus miles of fiber optic lines in 10 regions of New York State, as well as neighboring parts of Pennsylvania and Vermont, at a cost of nearly $50 million. The federal investment of $39.7 million was complemented with a $9.8 million investment from ION and the Development Authority of the North Country.

About ION

ION is an Albany, New York based, statewide, redundant SONET fiber network connecting over 60 rural New York State communities and their surrounding areas to the Information Superhighway, and the many opportunities it provides. The increased bandwidth for transfer of information that ION will make available to rural and urban areas is a necessary component in order to compete in today's world. ION will provide redundant access to telecommunications services, as well as advanced telecommunication services for businesses, educational institutions, health care providers, libraries, and governmental agencies.

SAMUEL R. SCHOLES JR.
Beloved Chemistry Professor
ALFRED--Samuel R. Scholes Jr., of 45 W. University St., Alfred, professor emeritus of chemistry at Alfred University, died on Thursday, May 24, 2012. Dr. Scholes would have celebrated his 97th birthday on June 5.

Sam lived independently in Alfred until the end of his life, active in the Union University Church and golfing at Wellsville Country Club well into his 90s.

There will be a memorial service at the Union University Church, Alfred, at 3 p.m., Saturday, June 16. The family requests that in lieu of flowers, memorial contributions be made to the community charity of each donor’s choice.

Sam is survived by his daughter Susan Scholes, brother James Scholes, grandchildren Sean McClure and Tara McClure Dominican, and three great grandchildren.

He was predeceased by his wife, Doris, daughter Jean Ann Scholes, brother Addison Scholes, and sister Ann Scholes Colvin.

Born in 1915 in Pittsburgh, PA, he was the oldest of four children of Samuel R. and Lois Boren Scholes. He married the late Doris Hann, a 1937 alumna of Alfred University, on Oct. 28, 1944, in Alfred. She was a high school English teacher prior to their marriage. She was a secretary in the Admissions Office from 1962 until her retirement in 1980. Friends recall that she suffered a major stroke in 1985. For more than seven years until her death Oct. 5, 1993, Sam drove to the nursing home in Wellsville every day to be with her.

A beloved member of the Alfred University faculty for 35 years until his retirement in 1980, Sam Scholes Jr. arrived in Alfred in 1932 when his father Samuel R. Scholes Sr. was hired by the College of Ceramics to establish a program in glass science engineering. Sam Jr. was graduated from Alfred University with a degree in chemistry in 1937. Following in his father’s footsteps, he earned a degree in physical chemistry from Yale University in 1940.

He taught at Tufts University for five years before returning to Alfred University in 1946 as an associate professor of general chemistry. He was promoted to full professor in 1958. He served as chair of the chemistry department for 15 years. In the citation presented to him when he was granted emeritus status upon his retirement in 1980, it was noted "Through his earnest, conscientious teaching, he has introduced thousands of undergraduates into the mysteries, joys and satisfactions of the discipline around which he has centered his professional life."

He is credited with developing a chemistry faculty "devoted to the teaching of chemistry and to the University." His "foresight and careful planning" led to the "development and sustaining of a chemistry program that has continued to thrive."

Scholes taught general chemistry to all majors, physical chemistry and analytical chemistry to science majors and engineering students, and organic chemistry to nursing students.

"When alumni remember the Alfred University faculty who were more than their professors, who were their mentors and their friends, more often than not, they talk about Sam Scholes Jr.," said Alfred University President Charles M. Edmondson. "A professor of chemistry at the University for 35 years, Sam influenced the lives of thousands of AU alumni. He truly embodied the essence of what we like to think is at the heart of the Alfred experience - knowledgeable, caring faculty members. Sam even influenced the people he met after his retirement. I have rarely met anyone with so much ability to see the good in people and to take joy from life."

The late Dr. Joshua Fierer, a 1959 alumnus of Alfred University, in 1999 created the Samuel R. Scholes Jr. Lecture in Chemistry in honor of his "friend and mentor." Dr. Fierer recalled evenings spent with Sam and Doris Scholes as some of his best memories of Alfred.

In recognition of his continued loyalty to his alma mater, in 2005 Scholes was awarded the Lillian T. Nevins Award for Lifetime Service to Alfred University.

In addition to his service to the University, Scholes served as an Alfred Village trustee for 14 years, deputy mayor and life member of the A.E. Crandall Hook and Ladder Co., and was chief of the department 1955-57.

A more than 60-year member of the American Chemical Society (ACS), Scholes served as the second chair of the Corning section of the ACS in 1954 and in November 2003 he was one of four charter members of the section who helped celebrate the section's 50th birthday.

Arrangements are under the direction of the J.W. Embser Sons Funeral Home in Wellsville.

One of the things we love about deserts is that with the sparse vegetation, landforms are very easy to see. This is at Ernst Tinaja (earthen jar) in Big Bend National Park in Texas. You are looking at layered limestone into which has been cut by swirling water the "tank" you see in the lower right of the photo. These occasional water holes are essential to life in the desert and while we were there, enjoying the contorted, metamorphosed, and faulted layers, we saw many birds and insects enjoying this rare oasis. This particular water source is not available to larger animals, as its steep, slick sides make it a death trap. For perspective, there is a family of four and their guide near the center of the photo.

'Hope the rain don't hurt the rhubarb'

Mary-Lou Cartledge reminded me this week of an old saying from our childhood days, "Hope the rain don't hurt the rhubarb!" What it means, I have no idea. And, I had completely forgotten it, probably because it offends my old English teacher sensibilities.

I used to make rhubarb jam but have lost the recipe. This recipe is from one of my many collected cookbooks entitled Favorite Recipes From Our Best Cooks, published by the Good Hope Evangelical Lutheran Church in North Lima, Ohio.

Rhubarb Jam

9 c. rhubarb, sliced ½ inch thick 7 c. sugar

Stir together and let set 4 hours or overnight. Cook 7-10 minutes. Add 3 (3oz.) packages strawberry jello. Cook 7-10 minutes. Should be kept in the refrigerator. If cooked like other jam, can be sealed with paraffin.

Kudos to Phil Baker
To the editor:
Kudos to D. Philip Baker for his clearly written and thoughtful response on "Redefining Marriage" in the May 24th Alfred Sun.

My father (David S. Clarke) performed many marriages during his career as a Seventh-Day Baptist minister. I remember his preparing the civil forms and getting the witnesses to sign the certificate as a part of his legal duties as a minister. That was part of the marrying and was separate from the religious ceremony.

Baker's letter clearly delineates the civil and religious aspects of marriage and I very much appreciate his writing of that letter.

Marketing of tobacco

To the Editor:
The American Lung Association joins the World Health Organization (WHO) in celebrating World No Tobacco Day on Thursday, May 31. This year's theme is Tobacco Industry Interference and focuses on the need to expose and counter the industry's increasingly aggressive attempts to undermine global tobacco control efforts.

What we're seeing in New York, and throughout the country, is the point of sale product display marketing that is cleverly designed to appeal to children. On World No Tobacco Day, we want to draw attention to the fact that when these tobacco displays are placed prominently at checkout counters next to candy and gum and outside of stores at kids' eye level, it encourages them to smoke.

In New York alone, Big Tobacco spends over $1 million on marketing their deadly products each day. Meanwhile, states are failing to adequately invest in proven policies and programs to counteract this rampant tobacco marketing.

About 3,000 American teenagers start smoking every day, roughly one million new teenage smokers annually; a third of whom will ultimately die from their addiction. More than 25,000 New Yorkers die each year as a result of smoking.

In the Lung Association's State of Tobacco Control report, released this year, New York State failed for Tobacco Prevention funding, spending only 20% of the CDC's recommended level. Visit www.stateoftobacco-control.org for more on New York's grades, and to see what you can do.

Sincerely,
Jeff Seyler, President & CEO

OP-ED:

By DOVID EFUNE

The anniversary of Israel's Six Day War not only commemorates an unlikely military victory, resulting in the Jewish liberation of Jerusalem, Hebron and other ancient Jewish cities, but also one of the last modern day catalysts of near universal Jewish self-regard.

Just recently I heard a Siberian Jew reminisce about just how proud he felt, "our heads were held high," he said. Words that are routinely used to describe this period include; euphoric, hope and confidence. "The Jewish explosion of pride came in the wake of the Six Day War of 1967," wrote Patrick Ercolano in a Baltimore Sun column.

These sentiments do not appear to have been confined geographically, nor even politically, for the most part. They were not limited to Zionists, and impacted all Jews of many stripes and orientations. This unified high was a product of a victory, a hard fought vanquishing of sworn enemies, beaten into retreat and respectful submission; an absolute triumph over a mortal threat.

45 years later, some feel that 1967 was a plateau in terms of global positive appreciation for the Jewish state and its position in the world. In a recent Wall Street Journal op-ed, Israel's Ambassador to the United States Michael Oren bemoans, "Why has Israel's image deteriorated?" and "why have anti-Israel libels once consigned to hate groups become media mainstays? How can we explain the assertion that an insidious "Israel Lobby" purchases votes in Congress, or that Israel oppresses Christians?"

Oren is right in his reasoning that "The answer lies in the systematic delegitimization of the Jewish state. Having failed to destroy Israel by conventional arms and terrorism, Israel's enemies alit on a subtler and more sinister tactic that hampers Israel's ability to defend itself, even to justify its existence." The Ambassador's call to action is equally potent, "Israel must confront the acute dangers of delegitimization as it did armies and bombers in the past."

Yet in this new battle it seems, Israel has forgotten how to fight, how to win and how to secure overwhelming unifying victory as it has in the past on the battlefield. In Oren's article alone, he gives much ground to Israel's ideological enemies through contextual acknowledgement of damaging arguments. He says that "Israel today is more democratic," implying that in the past it was less so, perhaps grounds to discount early Israel actions. Even worse, he writes that Israel "is more committed to peace," insinuating that Israel's defensive wars were not fought in the service of peace, and accepting the Arab narrative that defines opportunities for peace in terms of territorial concession.

Zionist leader Zeev Jabotinsky wrote, "In this world, respect is accorded only to those who stand up for their rights, who stand and defend them without swerving, endlessly, until they win through."

If they are to be successful, Oren and others that seek to address this challenge must take their own challenge more literally; this conflict must be fought like it is 1967 all over again. Israel is under siege and emergency measures are called for, political unity, preemptive strikes, you name it.

Yitzchok Rabin explained Israel's 1967 success in the following terms; "Our airmen, who struck the enemies' planes so accurately that no one in the world understands how it was done and people seek technological explanations or secret weapons; our armored troops who beat the enemy even when their equipment was inferior to his; our soldiers in all other branches... who overcame our enemies everywhere, despite the latter's superior numbers and fortifications-all these revealed not only coolness and courage in the battle but...an understanding that only their personal stand against the greatest dangers would achieve victory for their country and for their families, and that if victory was not theirs the alternative was annihilation."

Israel must recognize the alternative to losing the war of ideas and fight with accuracy, coolness and with courage.

Allegany County Legislator

SAVING MONEY IN MAY

For most of the time that I have served on the County Legislature the County has struggled to meet State imposed mandates involving major capital projects. Six years ago we were finishing up work on the Jail project. Then we had to wrestle with the renovation of the Courthouse and construction of the Courthouse Addition. Those are now completed so we can finally focus on the day-to-day business of County government. There are still numerous mandates and unreasonable regulations, but at least there are no "monster" projects pending. Now we can direct our undivided attention to saving money and cutting costs. It isn't glitzy, but it is extremely important.

The May 28th session of the County Legislature began with the Pledge of Allegiance, led by Naval Chief Petty Officer April Din. In addition to her service in the Naval Reserve, April serves as Deputy Clerk in the Allegany County Family Court. Her service in both capacities is exemplary.

Four of the five resolutions approved by the Board involved financial issues, and should generate financial savings. Resolution 74-12 abolished three positions of "Aging Service Technician" and created two positions of "Aging Service Specialist" in the Office For the Aging ("OFA"). This change increases staffing flexibility in the OFA, while reducing expenses. OFA Director Kim Toot proposed the changes in response to the Board's request that Department Heads find ways to reduce costs. The anticipated savings over the next 1 ½ years should exceed $69,000. There will be additional savings in future years. This creative approach is an example of "thinking outside the box" and demonstrates how we can save money while still providing important services to County residents. Kim Toot and her dedicated staff should be commended for coming up with this proposal.

Resolution 75-12 established a uniform hourly rate schedule for part-time Correction Officers ("COs") working in the County Jail. The initial hourly rate will be $13.00. After part-time COs complete field training and basic Correction Officer Academy they will be paid $15.00/hour. After serving in the Sheriff's Department for five consecutive years they will be paid $16.00/hour. After serving ten years they will receive $17.00/hour. This pay schedule will result in modest savings for the Sheriff's Department.

Resolution 76-12 reappointed Susan Dougherty to the County Board of Health for a six year term. Resolution 77-12 transferred $1,000 from the contractual expense account to the Emergency Services Contractual Expenses Account. The transferred money will pay for vehicle repairs, rather than a vehicle purchase. This will generate significant savings for the County.

Resolution 78-12 approved an agreement between the OFA and a company called P2 Collaborative of Western New York. That company will provide transition training for persons on Medicaid and Medicare who are discharged from Jones Memorial Hospital. The federal government will pay 100% of the cost, so Allegany County won't have any expense. This program should improve the quality of care provided to persons discharged from Jones Memorial Hospital. It should also reduce the long-term cost of care, which could ultimately reduce the County's share of Medicaid costs.

The Legislature then approved the payment of the audited bills. The total amount for the prior two-week period was $3,741,701.22. This included $384,540.00 for the County's share of Medicaid. The latest payments bring our cost for Medicaid for 2012 to $3,976,466.00. At that rate our Medicaid burden will exceed $10 million for 2012. No other state requires local governments to contribute towards the cost of Medicaid. The state dictates every detail and aspect of the Medicaid Program. This is clearly a state program. This $10,000,000 cost should be paid by the state, not the County.

Most of the work of the Legislature is done in its Committees, not during Board sessions. In the coming weeks I hope to report on some additional cost saving initiatives being considered by various committees.

Decorations have given pub some 'Better Days'

WELLSVILLE--When Lesley Christman eats at Better Day Pub, she listens for conversations about the decorations because Leslie likes to take credit for the color, sparkle and glitz that has been part of Better Days for the past 7 years.

Leslie once heard a guy usher in his wife announcing, "This is the bar I was telling you about. They have the best decorations in this place."

"Well, thank you," Leslie swept in to say. She wanted them to know that she was on the decorating crew. Leslie said she has taken credit for Better Day's decorations whenever possible- in spite of the fact that she does none of the creative work.

If you've not seen Better Days in the last 7 years, go soon. Better Days is for sale and the crew just put up the last round of Better Days bling. It's the end of the decorating era that has bloomed at the creative direction of Jim Horn and HM Bateman.

It started with a bet. Jim and HM were eating with Lynn and Don McCutcheon when they started talking about the Christmas bright world outside of Better Days and the drab dullness inside. Lynn said that Andrew Harris would never agree to decorations in the bar.

"Never," Lynn said and plunked down cash to bet on her conviction.

Just then Andrew Harris, the owner, walked in so HM popped up and asked if she and Jim could decorate Better Days for Christmas. She proposed something "Mardi Gras" and promised to take it all down later.

"Sure," said Andrew.

Well, at the end of the Christmas season, Andrew told HM that people loved the decorations. Instead of taking them down, he suggested a seasonal change so the first decorating crew was formed with HM and Jim, the McCutcheons and Bob and Pam Bruckner. Nobody's sure but that might have been in 2007.

Jim and HM slowly chose "new victims" to draw into the decorating task. Judy Hill entered the group and Allison Midgley took on the painting of the front window. Rick Hardman started spending time on ladders stapling to the ceiling and Pete Midgley adopted the space above the front booths as his special area.

Lesley Christman and I are general workers pulling staples to take things down, testing light strings, cutting tags off new decorations, dressing the moose or turkey with seasonal finery, stapling new things in place - whatever was needed. Ed and Kay Eicher, newer members, often put lights along the booths.

Decorating was a monthly project until Judy, Jim and HM moved from Wellsville. Then it became seasonal and now, with Better Days for sale, it's ending. For the final round there are some of each of the light boxes, a bit of Valentine's and St. Patrick's Day and a taste of other seasons.

Judy Hill said that decorating has always been a fun opportunity to be told what to do by HM so she drove about 430 miles for a chance to be part of this last hurrah. "I enjoy good food, good drinks and lots of friendship on a Sunday afternoon. What's better than that?"

Jim Horn likes making the stuff that goes up more than he likes putting it up. A look toward the ceiling helps one realize the intertwining extension cords and myriad hooks that hold the sparkle up there.

Eichers eat lunch at Better Days every Friday and see the Pub as a family place with outstanding food and good company of all ages.

Kay's favorite meal is a tuna sandwich without the bread. She's impressed by Andrew's support of the community with constant fund raisers for SPCA and domestic violence. Andrew supports all the things and agencies he believes in.

Looking back to that first decorated Christmas, it's unlikely Andrew expected to have colorful lights become important. Decorating started as a low status event. At first, decorating rated no more than a shrug of the shoulders and a second of thought but it turned into a part of life at Better Days.

"The designs have always been innovative and reflective of the highly evolved/involved and progressive people who do the decorating. The decorations tangibly add to the business by making it a more comfortable place to be. People are drawn to the light."

"I appreciate everyone doing this out of the kindness of their hearts and the decorating crew itself has made Better Days a better place to be."

Looking around at people standing on ladders, calling for help or singing along with the radio, he said, "These people are all family here."

It's been great to be part of the Better Days glitter.

TURNING A DEAF EAR

I have never consciously had the experience of knowing what I am missing when it comes to hearing. A bout of whooping cough at the age of six weeks, plus several successive abscessed ears before I was one year old, caused partial deafness. In addition, I have tinnitus, which varies in loudness throughout the day and night. This causes it to be either more or less distracting at various times.

I have coped with these issues in a variety of ways over the years. Probably everyone with similar conditions has tales to tell and remedies to describe. The frequent joke that is made about deafness is the misheard word bringing forth an unexpected response.

To partially block out the tinnitus, and having a preference for classical music, I keep a National Public Radio station on much of the time as background sound at home. During some hours, my full attention is directed to a news program or to another one where people are speaking.

Despite my concentration, plus two hearing aids, I often misunderstand a word until I pick up the context surrounding it. As I live alone, I cannot immediately share my "aha!" moments with anyone else. Lately I began making notes of my muddled mullings so that others can find amusement in my bemusement. Did you know that "Lincoln" was a composer? Neither did I! As it turned out, the man in question was "Glinka."

On January 4th I heard that there was a "fat" chance of snowfall. It seemed a little slangy for a weather report. When the rest of the prediction cleared up, I realized I was learning about "that" chance of snowfall. Some weeks later I was being given "rubber" information, but that inflated into another "weather" story.

I thought that I was learning some juicy gossip, which NPR normally ignores, when I heard that someone was "regaining his wife." Shucks! He was only "regaining his pride." While mentally straightening that out, I did not catch the name of the notable person involved. Politician, celebrity, or naturalist? Perhaps a runaway pride of lions had been recaptured.

Then I heard about a peculiarity of bird breeding. Something called a "pheasant pigeon." No, it was a "magnificent pigeon." Nevertheless, that is contrary to how I envision the birds involved. Perhaps the reporter meant to say a "magnificent pheasant."

Did you know there was a "bandage" on a building roof in Britain? Well, I exaggerate. It was only "damage" after a bombing. There seemed to be a relation named "Gary" Manilow. He quickly evaporated into "Barry" Manilow. And then there was the news on "Lance Armstrong." Except that it was about "Planned Parenthood." Controversial, either way.

I was relieved when the subject of "suicide" was sidetracked into "food fight." It reminded me that I had not eaten breakfast yet. But I was sad when it turned out that the person who "lied" had actually "died."

Another misunderstanding did not really seem to matter. Some people were "conducting confrontations." Only, they were actually "conducting conversations." Either way, it was among diplomats. A date was given for a different kind of meeting involving the killing of 200,000 people. This one was an earthquake "held" in Indonesia. Strange, until I realized that the operative word was "felt."

Everyday words having to do with food can turn off my appetite when I combine them incorrectly with one another. Adding "lime" made my taste buds rebel, until I realized the recommended recipe ingredient was "wine." The availability of "garbage" and chicken did not sound so hot, but "barbecue" chicken did.

I thought a "recreational" activity might well appeal to more children than an "educational" one. "Avon" relaxed me, too, as I thought of soothing lotions. Then it turned into an "A-bomb."

Stage managers definitely need better hearing than mine. I would have "Shut" the stage instead of having "Set" the stage. And speaking of drama, I believed that the SpaceX Dragon Capsule was "stalking" the space station. Instead it was "docking." I was surprised to be told that "credible justice" exists. On second thought, I accepted "criminal justice."

So what should people expect who try to talk to me, or to others, with hearing problems? Occasional long pauses, during which we try to figure out what was said and whether it makes sense. If you are given an irrelevant reply, or asked to repeat yourself, these three steps will help. Speak more loudly, look us in the face, and give your message in different words.

And, please, feel free to tell me if I am speaking too loudly or softly. I cannot tell myself.

Alfred State College partners to evaluate clean energy technology

ALFRED--Alfred State College is pleased to announce its partnership to become a part of the Center for Evaluation of Clean Energy Technology (CeCeT) that is implementing a photovoltaic (PV) and wind equipment test facility. The new PV and wind test centers will operate as the core of CeCeT's network of renewable energy resources. CeCeT is funded by a $4.2 million grant from New York State Energy Research and Development Authority (NY-SERDA) with Intertek, a leading international quality assurance testing company.

Alfred State was written into the grant as the workforce development partner. The college joins AWS TruePower of Albany, Binghamton University, Clarkson University, and the Rochester Institute of Technology as partners in this venture with Intertek that has formed the Center. CeCeT will allow clean energy technology initiatives and testing to be more accessible in the region, especially to local manufacturers that seek certification for marketing. [www.intertek.com]

Alfred State prof featured speaker

ALFRED--Dr. Ron Rhoades, CFP, curriculum coordinator for the Financial Planning Program at Alfred State, was recently featured as a notable speaker at the Fi360 2012 National Conference in Chicago, IL. His presentation addressed the distinctions between investment adviser and Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) fiduciary environments, examining the distinctions between ERISA's "sole interests" fiduciary standard and the Investment Advisers Act's "best interests" standard, which governs the general proceedings of investment advisers.

Other related discussions included the U.S. Security and Exchange Commission's likely extension of fiduciary requirements upon broker-dealer firms, and a broad range of techniques and practices which firms can adopt to still meet their obligations under these standards. He also presented the Tamar Frankel Fiduciary of the Year Award (which he was awarded last year) to this year's recipient, Scott Simon, a frequent writer on fiduciary conduct. Rhoades is a member of the steering board of the Committee for the Fiduciary Standard, which presents the award.

Rhoades returned to Chicago in early May to attend the 2012 National Conference of the National Association of Personal Financial Advisors, for whom he serves on its national board of directors.

With over 25 years of experience as an attorney and over a decade as a personal financial adviser, Rhoades was named one of the Top 25 Most Influential persons associated with the investment advisory profession in 2011 by Investment Advisor magazine.

The Chapel Hill, NC, native earned his bachelor's degree in business administration from Florida Southern College and his Juris Doctor degree with honors from the University of Florida College of Law. He and his wife, Catherine, have two children.

"The ability of the college to participate in building the infrastructure for solar and wind testing and certification in the region is exciting and will expand the knowledge of our faculty and students in cutting-edge renewable energy technology," remarked Craig Clark, executive director and dean of the School of Applied Technology.

The PV and wind energy facility in Cortland, NY, is the first of its kind to "offer testing for certification in the northeastern United States," according to Intertek's website.

Joining CeCeT and the commitment to increased access to renewable energy resources reflects Alfred State's commitment to integrating sustainability education into its programs, and furthers the mission of reducing its carbon footprint and training students to succeed in a global green economy. The college will also serve as host of the "Innovations in Technical Education to Advance Sustainability" conference from June 14-16, 2012, focusing on networking with a diverse range of education and sustainability professionals. A comprehensive look at hydrofracking

By GRAHAM MARKS
Special to the Alfred Sun

All previous columns can be read at www.waitaminuteny.blogspot.com.

As we move further into summer I am constantly reminded of the beauty of Allegany County. Early this morning there were an astounding number of birds calling and singing. As I look around at the hills at this time of year I am always amazed that there could be that many shades of green.

Last week, walking across our fields my wife and I almost stepped on a newborn fawn huddled in the grass, obeying her mother's command to stay still while she was gone. Once the day progresses and the birds quiet down I am often struck at how lucky we are to be surrounded by the aural landscape that we have. When we come home from visiting family in Philadelphia it is what hits us most dramatically when we step out of the car; the constant din of human chaos, and vehicles, gone, and in its place the presence of wind, peepers, and birds.

I think of the dramatic transformation of the countryside if an endless stream of tanker trucks were barreling down our road and what of quiet evenings with compressor stations and diesel generators running seven days a week, twenty-four hours a day?

With these questions in mind, I will be taking some time off from regular column writing this summer. I have accepted an invitation from a group of landowners in West Virginia to visit them and see the impact fracking has had on their way of life. I will be doing interviews and taking photographs of what I find. As the summer progresses I will also travel to some of the counties most impacted by fracking in Pennsylvania to see for myself what the impact of this industry has been on the land, water, and the health of the residents.

To see a bit of what is happening in West Virginia go to the website: www.wvhostfarms.org On the top of the page click on "Photo Gallery".

In the meanwhile here are three concrete things that you, as readers, can do.

Call Governor Cuomo and tell him your thoughts about fracking: 518-474-8390.

Call to Support Senate Bill #4220. This bill will protect the entire state by banning hydrofracking. Call Senator Grisanti, chair of the Environmental Conservation Committee. This bill has been stalled in his committee and urge him to move this bill forward, to protect our environment and not allow drilling in the state. Call Senator Grisanti at 877-796-1949.

Additionally, there is another bill in Albany that you can call to support, Bill # S4616. Even though fracking chemicals arrive at the drilling site as regulated hazardous materials, federal and state exemptions allow drillers to treat the same drilling wastes leaving the site as standard industrial waste. This bill will update current law and regulations so that all resulting waste from natural gas drilling which meets the definition of hazardous waste is subject to all hazardous waste generation, transportation, treatment, storage and disposal laws and regulations. This bill passed the Assembly in 2011 and is now in the Rules Committee. Call Governor Cuomo at 518-474-8390 and urge him to close the hazardous waste loophole. Call Senate Majority Leader, Senator Skelos at 518-455-3171 and urge him to support bill #S4636 to close the hazardous waste loophole. Call your State Senator and urge him/her to co-sponsor Bill # S4616.

Allegany Arc employees among WNY's healthiest

WELLSVILLE--Allegany Arc was recently honored as a finalist for Western New York's 2012 Healthiest Employers. Healthiest Employer is a national research firm that recognizes wellness leaders across the country.

Allegany Arc's efforts were measured on the organization's wellness program in six key categories; culture and leadership commitment, foundational components, strategic planning, communication and marketing, programming and interventions, and reporting and analysis. Allegany Arc was required to complete a series of 75 questions that were scored with a proprietary point value.

Corinna McKnight, Senior Vice President for Employee Relations, said of this achievement, "Allegany Arc has noticed a dramatic decrease in our annual health care percentage increase as well as more effort from our direct care staff. Some wellness activities Allegany Arc employees engage in include: completing health risk assessments, receiving annual physicals, showing proof of completing 5K, completing 15 hours community services, cancer screening prevention, attending smoking cessation class and many more. It is Allegany Arc's goal to encourage all employees to be the healthiest they can be."

Mrs. McKnight continued, "The Wellness Committee has recently received several testimonials from staff on how the wellness programs at Allegany Arc have influenced their lives in a positive, healthier way."

Diana Gowdy, Wellness Coordinator, agreed noting "We see Allegany Arc's wellness program as an investment, both in the well-being of our employees and the success of our agency. Allegany Arc offers employees a variety of opportunities to learn more about their health and well-being, encouraging not only a healthier workplace, but also healthier lives. Some program favorites offered to employees include the wellness fair, health incentives, newsletters, and several healthy workplace challenges."

Friends of Allegany Arc sponsors Cash Bonanza

WELLSVILLE--Friends of Allegany Arc is once again holding their Cash Bonanza fundraiser. Tickets are on sale now and can be purchased from any Allegany Arc employee or online at www.AlleganyArc.org. Cash Bonanza is a raffle type drawing and Friends of Allegany Arc's largest fundraiser.

All proceeds from Cash Bonanza go directly toward opportunities for people with special needs. Last year's ticket sales allowed the Friends Foundation to sponsor a movie for children with Autism and their families, purchase practice jerseys and uniforms for Allegany County's Special Olympics Teams, help provide heaters to a family in need, and much more.

Cost of tickets is $20 with daily prizes of $40 on Mondays, $60 on Tuesdays, $80 on Wednesdays, $100 on Thursdays, and $200 on Fridays. All tickets are re-entered daily and there will be a final one-time drawing for $1,000 on Dec. 14. This year winners will be announced daily on Allegany Arc's website (www.AlleganyArc.org) and facebook page (www.facebook.com/AlleganyArc).

Drawings begin on Monday, August 13, 2012. For more information on Cash Bonanza or to purchase a ticket online, visit Allegany Arc's website www.AlleganyArc.org.

Thinking of the best things a Master Gardener can do, I must include the once-a-year event in our schools during Agriculture Literature Week when we get a chance to read to second graders. This was my third year at Alfred-Almond Central School and they are such a delight: all big round eyes, smiles and wiggles! The books are sponsored by the Cornell Cooperative Extension and given to the school’s library.

This year it was a great, colorful book on soil, sun and seeds. Last year was about chickens and eggs in New York State and my first year covered forest industries (timber-maple syrup-Christmas trees-landscape trees) in New York.

Thanks again to Roger at Tinkertown Hardware, we had seeds to give out. The teachers, always good sports, will supervise the planting in late May so all can go home with something to plant--maybe a sunflower--maybe a pumpkin.

Great fun was had by all, especially me!

NOTES from the BOX OF BOOKS

Kristen Starks-Bratten who has been with us for two years now is leaving us to pursue her career in the Social Service System. We wish Kristen the best of luck. She plans to continue running her wildly successful Mother Goose on the Loose Program.

We are beginning to plan for our Summer Reading Program which is themed DREAM BIG READ! Transformation of the library into a big top has begun already and will reach its full Circus theme by the start of registration which will begin June 18. This year the Box of Books will not be sending a person up to the Alfred State Sports Festival which means there is more fun to be had here at the Box of Books.

Family FUNdraise: our Summer Reading Program Kick Off event is on Saturday, June 30 from 10-2 which will be a day of games, crafts, face painting and snacks on the Bandstand Lawn. This event is a fundraiser for the Summer Reading Program and the programming department itself.

I would like to thank all who have donated to our annual appeal this year. We are still collecting donations and are closing in on our goal.

Upcoming events at the Box of Books

June 8--at 11 am Mother Goose on the Loose
June 13--at 6 pm: Adult Program Concrete Planters. Bring a small container that you think would make a good planter (it is best to use something that you don’t mind getting broken or ruined)
June 14--at 4 pm: Flag Day Activities; all ages welcome.

DR. MELVIN CHAMBLISS

DEBORAH CLAIRE

MARK PAYNE

CHARLENE MCGREGOR

LT. SCOTT BINGHAM

Five recognized at ASC with Pioneer Awards

ALFRED— Alfred State President John M. Anderson recently presented five members of the college faculty and staff with the college’s Pioneer Award. Recognized at the college’s employee recognition banquet were: Dr. Melvin Chambliss of Alfred Station; Deborah Claire of Arkport; Mark Payne of Canisteo; Charlene McGregor of Canisteo; and Lieutenant Scott Bingham. Each received a certificate and a monetary gift.

The Pioneer Award acknowledges those who have demonstrated commitment and dedication to the college mission and goals, have made contributions that have had meaning and measurable positive impact on college operations, are seen as positive role models and show creativity and initiative, and have shown a consistent level of exceptional performance throughout their employment.

Chambliss, associate professor in the agriculture and veterinary technology program, has been with Alfred State since 1999, and also volunteers his time and expertise to the Hornell Area Humane Society as the shelter veterinarian available after hours for critical cases. Charles Neal, associate vice president for academic affairs, noted that Chambliss demands “nothing but the best skills, competency, and attitude from his students in the classroom, knowing full well they may be assisting in surgery and critical care for someone’s animal,” and strives to improve the program and bring in skilled faculty for the betterment of the students and the college.

A senior programmer/analyst in technology services, Claire “sets the standard for professionalism at Alfred State,” remarked Neal. With a friendly, knowledgeable disposition and a willingness to take on more projects when asked, Claire is known as an excellent resource. Three years ago, she wrote a program for students to request their boarding room the following year via Banner Web, eliminating many hours of paperwork and allowing students autonomy in room selection. She is always willing to “write us a little something” to fulfill needs of the campus.

Payne, assistant professor in the building trades program, serves as an example of civic engagement at its best, providing students with the opportunity to work hands-on and gain experience in the community. He has led students in the heavy equipment operations program to the Binghamton, NY, area to provide cleanup from flooding, showcasing the civic engagement of Alfred State students and earning the college print and television notoriety. In so doing, he aims to improve the college experience for his classes. “A great role model for his students, as well as other faculty members,” Neal said, Payne receives high praise from his students each semester and is admired by them, staff, and faculty alike.

An employee of Alfred State for 22 years, McGregor’s work ethic as a member of custodial staff is, according to Neal, “evident in her commitment to continuously provide outstanding custodial services to students, staff, and visitors.” She also requires a high level of performance from her crew, and her ingenuity and work ethic was evidenced in summer of 2011 when McGregor organized a complex network of hoses to bring water from Peet Hall’s basement to the fourth floor and electricity for equipment, all the while working around contractors. Her abilities and can-do attitude lead her and her crews to success.

Bingham, an officer with university police, “has always been a police supervisor that all the staff have felt comfortable going to,” Neal remarked. His integrity and fairness are hard to match, and he is respected for his willingness to help with day-to-day tasks in his department. He also serves as the coach/adviser for the Pioneer Woodsmen team, and has overseen a flourishing team with students who look up to and highly respect him. Bingham is invested in the lives of the students and has an impact on their lives while at Alfred State.

Recipients are nominated by their peers and selected by the Reward and Recognition Committee.

Book honoring her mother, sharing life lessons Alfred woman writes first book

ALFRED--An Alfred woman has published her first book.

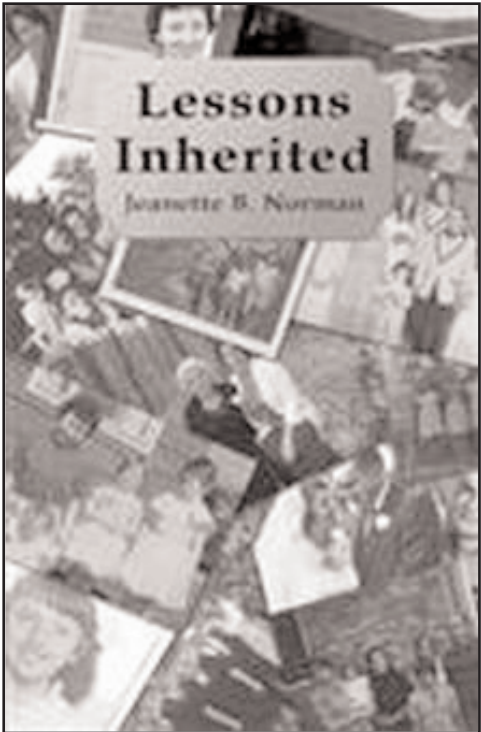

Jeanette Norman has written Lessons Inherited, published by Westbow Press.

“This endeavor started out as a quest to honor my Mom and tell her fascinating life story,” explained Norman, “but it evolved into so much more.”

She continued, “After starting out the book, I soon realized that not only did I want to honor my mom, but I wanted to share some of the lessons she had taught me about love, forgiveness, and, most importantly, the Lord.

“I’ve come to realize that each of us has a story to tell and our lives make up those stories,” she said, “Life is a compilation of stories and lessons, and the older I get the tighter I hold to those Lessons Inherited.”

Jeanette Norman is a first time novelist. She also volunteers as a parent advocate for the committee for Special Education at her local school. Jeanette and her husband Ron have six children and they enjoy hiking, kayaking and traveling.

The easy-going and down to earth feel of Jeanette’s writing style will make you feel like you are having a cup of coffee with an old friend.

Jeanette and her family live amid the rolling hills of Alfred,

NY.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO, JUNE 11, 1987

Dr. George C. Wortley, in his last days of practicing medicine here in Alfred, experienced a "first" Monday afternoon. He unexpectedly delivered a baby boy in his Park Street office. Parents of the baby boy, who weighed 3 lb. 10 oz. and who was approximately two months premature, are Denien Gray and Patrick Dixon of Almond. A nurse at the Alfred Medical Associate office said, "Denien called in and complained of abdominal pains and we told her to come to the office." The nurse explained that it wasn't until Denien was taken into an examination room that they realized she was in labor. "Dr. Wortley examined her and told us, "We're having a baby...NOW!" The baby boy was born at 2:22 p.m. within five minutes of the examination. There was no complication with the delivery. The Alfred ambulance was called and minutes later, Denien and her baby boy were rushed to St. James Hospital in Hornell with Dr. Wortley and the ambulance crew at their side. Because he was premature and because of his size, the infant was later taken to Strong Memorial Hospital in Rochester where, at press time, he was reportedly doing just fine. The mother was discharged from St. James Hospital Tuesday. It was only the second baby to be delivered at the doctor's office, which is located in Crandall Health Center on the Alfred University campus. But it was the first there for Dr. Wortley, who will complete his duties in Alfred on June 14 before moving later this month to Bedford, VA where he'll continue his practice. The first baby delivered at the doctor's office occurred June 23, 1972 in the midst of the Flood of 1972. At that time, a baby girl, Christina Michelle Alfreda Snyder, was born to Dr. and Mrs. Robert Snyder of Alfred, with Dr. John Vagell, the University physician at that time, officiating.

Joanne Droppers of Alfred handily won election to the Alfred-Almond Central School Board of Education and a 1987-88 $3.8 million budget was approved in the district election June 3. Mrs. Droppers garnered 330 votes. Alan Burdick of Alfred was a distant second with 133 votes, George Porter of Crosby Creek Road and James Drake of Thacherville received 105 and 87 votes, respectively...

Esther Cornelius, 62, of East Valley Road, Alfred Station, died from injuries she suffered in a one-car crash at 9:30 p.m. Sunday. One of Alfred State College's oldest buildings, a residence hall, will be brought up to 21st century standards thanks, in part, to a member item sponsored by state Sen. Patricia K. McGee, R-Franklinville, in the recently approved NYS budget. Some $30,000 has been allocated for renovation of Getman Hall, particularly in the technology realm. The facility, constructed in 1958, currently has no electronic technology services including internet connectivity, campus network access, or television cabling. The residence hall has not been used for approximately 20 years. But the college's growing enrollment--up nearly 500 students in two years--called for officials to take a new look at the residence hall...

In a celebration of their sixty (and one half) years of marriage...a reception will be held in honor of Stanley and Lydia Butts on Sunday, June 23 in the Seventh Day Baptist Parish House on West University Street in Alfred...Lydia Gertrude Menges and Miles Stanley Butts were joined in holy matrimony on December 21, 1941 in Scio, New York. Their marriage has been blessed by six children, enriched by the "adoption" of six more as each child married, 13 grandchildren, and (so far) 7 great-grandchildren. Originally both from Chautauqua County, the young couple took up residence wherever military service took Stanley, during World War II. From the birth of their eldest in 1943, to the defeat of the Axis, Lydia moved often with one, then two infants. At the end of the war, they settled in Scio where Stanley learned the retail hardware business and the couple proceeded to raise three children. With the purchase of and renaming to StanLee Hardware, the family moved to Alfred in 1947. Their partnership with one another at home and in the hardware store was a vortex for their long and broad service to the community of Alfred. The Buttses have devoted much time, creative energy, love and labor to the Alfred A.E. Crandall Hook and Ladder Company, the Ambulance service, the Alfred Seventh Day Baptist Church, and student and youth organizations...

Alfred-Almond's Lady Eagles rewrote school history last week by earning a berth in the New York State Final Four softball tournament on Long Island...in the Far West Regional against Ripley, Brittany Curran pitched an outstanding game on the mound, striking out twelve and walking only two to earn "Player of the Game" honors from the Ripley radio station. She also had her strongest offensive performance of the season, batting 3-for-4 with a home run and two doubles. Casey Curran was also 3-for-4 with a home run, and five additional Eagle batters added hits in this solid team victory...Saturday's action took place at Mitchell Field in Uniondale, Long Island ona picture perfect day.....

THE GLORY OF AMERICA

Thursday, June 7

Peter Cartwright, one of America's great circuit-riders, recounted one incident at the Breckenridge, Kentucky, camp meeting. A husband and wife owned many slaves. The woman was a highly intelligent and exemplary Christian, but every time she "sought the blessing of perfect love...her slaves would seem to step right in between her and her Saviour and prevent its reception. But while on her knees and struggling in agony for a clean heart, she covenanted with the Lord, that if He would give her the blessing, she would give up her slaves and set them free. [Immediately] God filled her soul with an overwhelming sense of divine love... They set their slaves free, and the end of that family was peace."

‘Are You Kidding?’ John 4

ALFRED STATION—Have you ever wondered why Christians often seem too look down on other people? You know that is a good question. One of the things we learn when we examine the Gospel accounts: Matthew, Mark, Luke and John is Jesus' ménage touched those who others would have considered untouchable. Jesus touched the leper, the outcast, the prostitute, the centurion, the one who others called "the sinner."

This Sabbath your friends and neighbors at the Alfred Station Seventh Day Baptist Church, "A 3 C church: Connect- Care-Community" consider Jesus' ministry to a woman known as the "woman at the well." Pastor Ken's Sabbath Sermon, "Are you kidding?" explores John 4 as it teaches of how Jesus ministered to that woman. In so doing the assertion can be made by the Christian Community" and especially Seventh Day Baptists that because of Jesus, "Every person no exception is worthy of the Kingdom of God." (Of course it means that person must accept the grace through Jesus). Join us for the 11:00 am Sabbath Worship Hour this Sabbath, June 9.

Preceding Sabbath Worship is Sabbath School at 9:45am. Sabbath School is a place where men and women, boys and girls come together in a class structure to study the Bible and learn what it says and what it teaches concerning a relationship with Heavenly Father as we live in the reality of the 21st Century.

Following the Sabbath Morning Worship Hour is a monthly Dish to Pass Fellowship Meal. Everyone brings a dish to pass, their own table service and not only eats good food but shares in what Heavenly Father is doing in each other's life.

Alfred University mathematics faculty colleagues in the College of Liberal Arts & Sciences have devised what they believe to be a better way to teach calculus. The Alfred University Calculus Initiative involves (from left) Addison Frey, professor of mathematics; Joseph A. Petrillo, associate professor of mathematics; and Darwyn Cook, associate professor of mathematics. They will use funding from a National Science Foundation grant to pursue a two-year calculus "experience."

Math profs ‘figure out’ a better way

ALFRED—For any college student interested in a career in engineering, science, or mathematics, the make-or-break course may be introductory calculus.

“Many people view first-semester calculus as a ‘weed-out’ course for majors in the sciences and engineering,” explained Joseph Petrillo, associate professor of mathematics in the College of Liberal Arts & Sciences at Alfred University (AU). “Unfortunately, a negative experience in a calculus course can affect performance in subsequent courses and discourage even the brightest students from continuing in math-intensive majors.”

Yet demand for people in the sciences, technology, engineering, and mathematics — the so-called STEM disciplines — is higher than ever in the United States, and losing potential employees in those areas because of a first-semester math course is troublesome.

But maybe, thought Petrillo and his colleague, Darwyn Cook, associate professor of mathematics at AU, the real problem with calculus is in the way it is taught.

“Even though calculus is notorious for high failure rates, the organization of the course material never seems to get much of the blame,” said Petrillo.

He and Cook decided to “rearrange the curriculum to make it more understandable and intuitive.”

The traditional curriculum introduces a concept, focuses on it for a lecture or two, and then moves on to the next. The curriculum developed at AU, however, focuses on families of functions and how calculus concepts relate to them. Instead of learning about a concept once, the students are exposed to it “repeatedly throughout the course,” explained Petrillo.

The AU Division of Mathematics piloted the new curriculum in two of the four section of Calculus I in the fall of 2011. At the end of the semester, all students took a common final exam, one that had been written for the traditional course.

On average, students in the pilot group scored substantially higher on the final exam than those in the control group.

“This evidence suggests that the new curriculum may have a greater impact on understanding and performance when compared to the traditional curriculum,” said Petrillo. A paper on the results of the pilot will be written and submitted for publication later this year.

In May of 2011, Petrillo applied for funding from the National Science Foundation (NSF) to create the Alfred University Calculus Initiative (AUCI). He’s just received word that AU has been awarded a two-year grant in the amount of $161,042. The funding will help the AUCI team create what it is calling a “comprehensive calculus experience,” the goal of which is to “increase understanding and success in calculus and pre-calculus while maintaining the level of rigor and breadth required for post-calculus courses.”

According to the proposal submitted to the NSF, “the AUCI is being informed by current research and trends in STEM education, which include engaging students with visual and online technology, creating an active learning environment in the classroom, and incorporating meaningful applications.”

Petrillo will spend this summer developing the lecture portion of the course, which will consist of 42 video lessons, each about 10 to 15 minutes long. Research indicates that students learn better through shorter, more focused lessons. An online quiz taken upon completion of the video lesson indicates to the faculty member that the student has actually watched the video. Some of the advantages of video lessons are that students may view them multiple times and at their own convenience, and that instructors can spend class time engaging students in activities, worksheets, group work, and discussion.

Traditional lectures will no longer be part of the classroom experience.

Cook is developing the online quizzes and homework through the WeBWork homework system, and Addison Frey, associate professor of mathematics at AU, is working on a website through which students will access the videos, examples, and other information.

During the second year of the grant, the Alfred University mathematics faculty will partner with the Greater Southern Tier Board of Cooperative Educational Services, which serves 21 member school districts, including nearby Alfred-Almond Central School. High school students will be able to take the course at their home school and earn Alfred University credit for successful completion.

Petrillo is the principal investigator for the NSF grant, with Cook and Frey as co-principal investigators. David Terry, assistant professor of education, and Danielle Gagne, associate professor of psychology, are the faculty associates who will be evaluating the AUCI project.

ASC alum signs with Raiders

ALFRED--Alfred State alum Rod Streater is making an impression as he battles for a spot on the Oakland Raiders roster. Streater went undrafted in the NFL draft but quickly signed with the Raiders following the conclusion of the draft.

Streater spent the three days of the draft with his agent and Alfred State football coach Mick Caba in Michigan.

"The draft days were pretty crazy. A lot of teams called me and said they wanted to draft me in the late rounds," he said, "I sat down with my agent during the draft and we wrote down all the teams I would like to play for just in case I did go as a free agent. After the draft ended, numerous teams were calling but then I already had made my choice."

"I chose the Raiders because my biggest concern was finding a team that loved me. Prior to the draft, the GM and the wide receivers coach called my old coaches and said that I could play for them and they really liked me. I feel like I could really contribute the most for them."

After the Raiders rookie mini-camp Raider Coach Dennis Allen praised Streater when asked what players have made a name for themselves. "I know Streater, the wide receiver out of Temple, has done a nice job. He's been pretty impressive."

During his two years at Temple, Streater caught 49 passes for 882 yards and seven scores. This follows a 2009 season at Alfred State where he caught 24 passes for 539 yards and six scores. During his freshman season wearing the blue & gold, Streater played safety on the defensive side of the ball and picked up 20 tackles and picked off two passes.

Streater has been on the West Coast after signing his contract with the Raiders. He has participated in the rookie camp and a couple of weeks in OTA's. The team reports to training camp in late July and is scheduled to take on the Dallas Cowboys in their first preseason game on August 13th.

HITS AND MISSES:

Former Canisteo resident Mark Andrews won the Rochester Chase Corporate Challenge race last Thursday as roughly 10,000 runners competed. Andrews, running for Fleet Feet, was first amongst 4496 male competitors as he was gearing up for the National Masters 10K championships in Michigan. Jim Derick (Alfred State) came in sixth and Jaime Bennett was 17th ... not to be confused with Jamie Bennett (A-A/Lyons) in Florida!

"Congrats" are in order to Meghan DioGuardi (tennis champ) of Alfred-Almond as she took third-place in the 1500 at the Section Five Track & Field Meet of Champions over the weekend. Her time was 5:06:38 with the winner in at 4:56:33. Believe all the winners and others with certain qualifying times will now compete at the state meet this weekend at Cicero-North Syracuse. On hand, Gary "Doc" Moore (A-A) ... Coach of the Year.

A-A grad, Chris Frechette made his running debut recently at the Lilac 5K in Rochester ... at age 65! Frechette, brother of Big D from Torrey Painting Strider fame, was seventh in his age group (65-69). This past weekend, Chris ran in Syracuse at the Page Butterfly 5K as he ran along with his son, Lou. He makes his running debut at age 65. Yikes!

The Alfred-Almond softball team was thumped in the sectional semi-finals by Batavia Notre Dame, 11-4 to end their campaign after gaining the #1 seed in Class "DD" action. Batavia ND then beat Arkport in the finals, 17-14 and DeSales in the "D" qualifier. They will now play Forestville from Section Six (Buffalo) with the winner heading to the state "Final Four." Fairport ... who beat Webster Schroeder in the finals, Pittsford Mendon, Mynderse and either Keshequa or Cal-Mum are the other Section Five teams taking on Buffalo-area squads.

In sectional baseball action, Arkport won the "D1" championship by beating Batavia Notre Dame to grab the trophy and took on Webster Christian this past Monday in a state qualifier game. The winner of the Arkport/Webster game had to turn around, head to Jamestown and play Pine Valley on Tuesday. Hope they had plenty of pitching! The Arkport versus Webster game was at Way-Co. Victor, Honeoye Falls-Lima, Aquinas/Way-Co and Lyons were all winners set to meet Buffalo-area schools. Aquinas topped Wellsville in the "B" title game.

The Wegmans LPGA Championship is set for this week at Locust Hill CC, two weeks earlier than normal, as all the top lady golfers in the world will be in the Rochester area. Looking to head out there on Saturday and hopefully hook-up with Coach Woods from SUNY Geneseo cross country/track & field fame. Will most likely wander back there on Sunday, checking in with the "Ormsby Crew" and hoping to see the likes of: Creamer, Wie, Pressel, Gulbis, young hotshot Lexi Thompson, Cristie Kerr and Brittany Lincicome.

Tiger Woods wins The Memorial! Quite the finish as the former #1 player in the world put on one of his patented surges of old to grab this big event. With the victory Woods tied Jack Nicklaus on the all-time wins list at (73) and fittingly at Jack's tournament in Dublin, Ohio. Woods previously won Arnie's tourney in Florida. Nice "combo" of legends! Woods was paired on Thursday-Friday in a rather unique threesome. Fred Couples, a past champ and the current Presidents Cup captain was alongside as was Bill Haas. The current FedEx Cup champ and son of Jay Haas who is the Presidents Cup assistant captain with Couples. And, the 2013 competition will be held at Muirfield Village. And, Jay Haas won this week on the Champions Tour.

The NCAA Division II baseball championships were in Cary (NC) this past weekend, where the once-legendary Kaz resides as the ex-Alfred State College hoops coach took in some of the action. The Quincy Hawks and the Drury Panthers were not in attendance.

Frank Sumo ... attendance.

Five former AU student-athletes to be inducted in Sports Hall Oct. 6

ALFRED--Alfred University will induct five former student-athletes into its Athletics Hall of Fame during an on-campus banquet Saturday, Oct. 6, held as part of the University's annual Homecoming celebration.

Members of the Hall of Fame Class of 2012 are: former cross country/track standout Jim Smith '85; swimming All-American Rich Hymes '88; two-time men's lacrosse All-American Pete Colburn '95; men's basketball star Brian Quinlan '99; and three-time national-qualifying equestrian team member Jennifer (Brown) Smith '02.

Jim Smith was a four-year member of the cross country team (1981-84) and indoor and outdoor track and field teams (1982-85), serving as captain for cross country and track as a senior.

He was a national qualifier in the 1,500-meter run, competing in the 1984 NCAA indoor championships in that event, and was the Independent College Athletic Conference (ICAC) champion in the outdoor 1,500-meter run in 1984. He was runner-up in the 1,000-meter and 1,500-meter runs at the 1984 ICAC indoor championships and was also a two-time ICAC all-star in cross country (1983 and 1984).

Smith holds the school records in the indoor and outdoor 1,500-meter runs and once held the school mark for the indoor 1,000-meter run. He was a member of the team that holds the record or the indoor distance medley relay, set in 1984.

Hymes was a four-year member of the AU men's swimming and diving team (1985-88) who earned All-American certification 13 times during his illustrious career and served as a team captain for the Saxons as a senior in 1988.

He was an All-American in two individual events (200 freestyle, fourth place; 500 freestyle, eighth) and three relays (400 freestyle, ninth; 800 freestyle, sixth; 400 medley, eighth) in 1985; two individual events (200 freestyle, 14th; 200 butterfly, 15th) and two relays (400 freestyle, 13th; 800 freestyle, 16th) in 1986; and on individual event (100 butterfly, 14th) and three relays (200 medley, 13th; 800 freestyle, 16th; 200 freestyle, ninth) in 1988.

Hymes was a member of the team that at the 1985 NCAA championships set a school record (since broken) in the 800-yard freestyle relay.

Colburn played two seasons on the AU men's lacrosse team (1994 and 1995) after transferring to Alfred from junior college.

In his two years in a Saxon uniform, he earned All-American honors (honorable mention). He helped lead the team to the NCAA championship tournament in 1994, when the team went 12-3, and as a senior in 1995 helped lead the Saxons to a 13-4 record and an Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC) Upstate championship.

Despite only playing two seasons at Alfred, Colburn ranks fourth on the school's career goals list with 109. His 62 goals in 1995 and 47 in 1994 rank second and fourth, respectively, on the school's single-season records list and his 75 points (62 goals, 13 assists) in 1995 in the sixth-most in a single-season at AU. He shares the school record for goals in a game with nine (vs. California-San Diego in 1995).

Quinlan played four seasons (1995-99) on the Saxon men's basketball team and ended his career as one of the most prolific scorers in program history.

A two-year team captain (1997-99), Quinlan was the Empire Athletic Association (EAA) Rookie of the Year as a freshman in 1995-96. The following season, he helped lead the Saxons to a 15-11 record, the Presidents Athletic Conference (PAC) crown and a berth in the NCAA Division III national championship tournament. As a senior in 1998-99, Quinlan helped lead the team to an 18-10 mark and a runner-up finish at the ECAC Upstate championship tournament.

Quinlan finished his career with 1,487 points, fifth-most in AU history. He holds school records for three-point shots made (247) and attempted (644). He played in 104 games (101 starts) and averaged 14.3 points per game. For his career he had 271 rebounds, 187 steals and 206 assists. He made 49.9 percent of his shots from the floor, including 38.4 percent from behind the arc, and was a 79.1 percent shooter from the free-throw line.

Jennifer Smith is the most accomplished rider in AU equestrian team history, three times competing in the Intercollegiate Horse Show Association (IHSA) national championships.

She placed in the top eight in the country in the Open Division of the IHSA hunt seat class each year she competed at nationals. As a freshman in 1999, she was eighth in Open Equitation on the Flat; in 2000, she was seventh in that same event; and in 2001, as a junior, she placed fourth nationally in Open Equitation Over Fences.

Smith qualified for the IHSA Regional Championships in Open over fences and on the flat all four years at AU and each year, she qualified for the Zone championships in the Open Division. In 200, she was second at Zones in Open on the flat and was second at Zones the following year in Open over fences. She qualified for both events at the 2001 Zone championships. In 2001, she was the Reserve High Point Rider in Region II, qualifying to compete in the Cachione Cup Invitational at the Zones finals, where she placed sixth.

Anyone wishing to attend the Hall of Fame Banquet is asked to call the AU Athletic Department at 607-871-2193.

York Mets history last week as he blanked the suddenly-struggling St. Louis Cardinals. Was the third recorded no-hitter already this baseball season.

The Norfolk Admirals appear ready to capture the Calder Cup in AHL ice action. Same league the Rochester Amerks play in. Brother Scott O. Lorow (A-A) oversees the food service at the ice arena. Think it is called The Scope.

A batch of NYS vanity plates spotted: OURFAVOR, OUT-BREAK, MOUGHAN ... Bill, DINERMAN ... McDrip and CHUK ... Sniffles.

A-A grad Jake Taft took in the Baltimore Orioles at Tampa Bay Rays MLB game on Saturday past, an O's win. Not in attendance ... Smooth, Bennett and Mike "Mac" as all were busy(?).

Daughter Lauren ran in a corporate race in NYC on Thursday evening past (22:17) and is in another this Sunday at Central Park. An "all women's" race, think it is a 10K.

Took in the rain-plagued Columbus Clippers at Rochester Red Wings baseball game on Sunday past at Frontier Field. A Frito Lay outing. Good time but not much action on the field. Nick Blackburn on the hill for Wings in a rehab assignment from Twins. Sean Burroughs in Rochester lineup but other than that, not too many noticeable players. Enjoyable day though!

Get those A-A alumni dues in! Send $5.00 to: Kathy Snyder, A-A Alumni, Box 1134, Alfred, 14802. Include your name and class. Class of '70 ... dig in, even Smitty told me he was breaking down and mailing his in.
