

AU adds education professor to Liberal Arts & Sciences 2008-09 faculty

8/13/08

Corrie Burdick has joined Alfred University's College of Liberal Arts & Sciences as an instructor of education for the 2008-09 academic year. Prior to joining AU, Burdick was a graduate teaching associate in the Department of Art Education at Syracuse University. She received her Ph.D. in teaching and curriculum/art education from Syracuse University, where she also received a master's degree and a bachelor of fine arts degree, both in art education. Burdick's research interests include paraprofessional support of art education and universal design for learning and art education. She was also an art teacher at Furtah Preparatory School in Marietta, GA and Lockhard Academy in Kennesaw, GA. She has a preschool through grade 12 art teaching certificate in New York, Florida, and Georgia, where she taught kindergarten in Glen Lakes School, Lauderdale Lakes, GA. Burdick is affiliated with the NYS Art Teachers Association, the National Art Education Association, the Society of Disability Studies and the Student Art Education Association of Syracuse University.
