ALFRED STATE COLLEGE

Dr. Sullivan says college has 'awesome heroes'

ALFRED—In his fall 2015 Opening Remarks speech on Monday, Alfred State President Dr. Skip Sullivan focused on the subject of heroes.

The president began by talking to faculty and staff about superheroes they may have admired as a child, such as Batman, Superman, and Wonder Woman. He then showed a 3-D video featuring several Alfred State employees talking about who their favorite superhero was, and who their heroes are now.

"Our heroes change during our lifetime," Sullivan said in the video. "The hero of your youth is probably not the hero of your adult life. Our perspectives change, but certainly most of us have our heroes, whether we admit it or not."

Heroes, Sullivan said, can range from family members to teachers to coaches to members of the military to athletes, actors, counselors, and more.

"You are probably someone's hero, whether you like it or not, or whether you know it or not," he said. "You are actually modeling the behavior of a hero in someone's eyes."

The president urged faculty and staff to be aware of model hero characteristics, to provide encouragement and assistance, and to make themselves available for helping others. He also said they should think about the impact they will have on the next generation of heroes – the students.

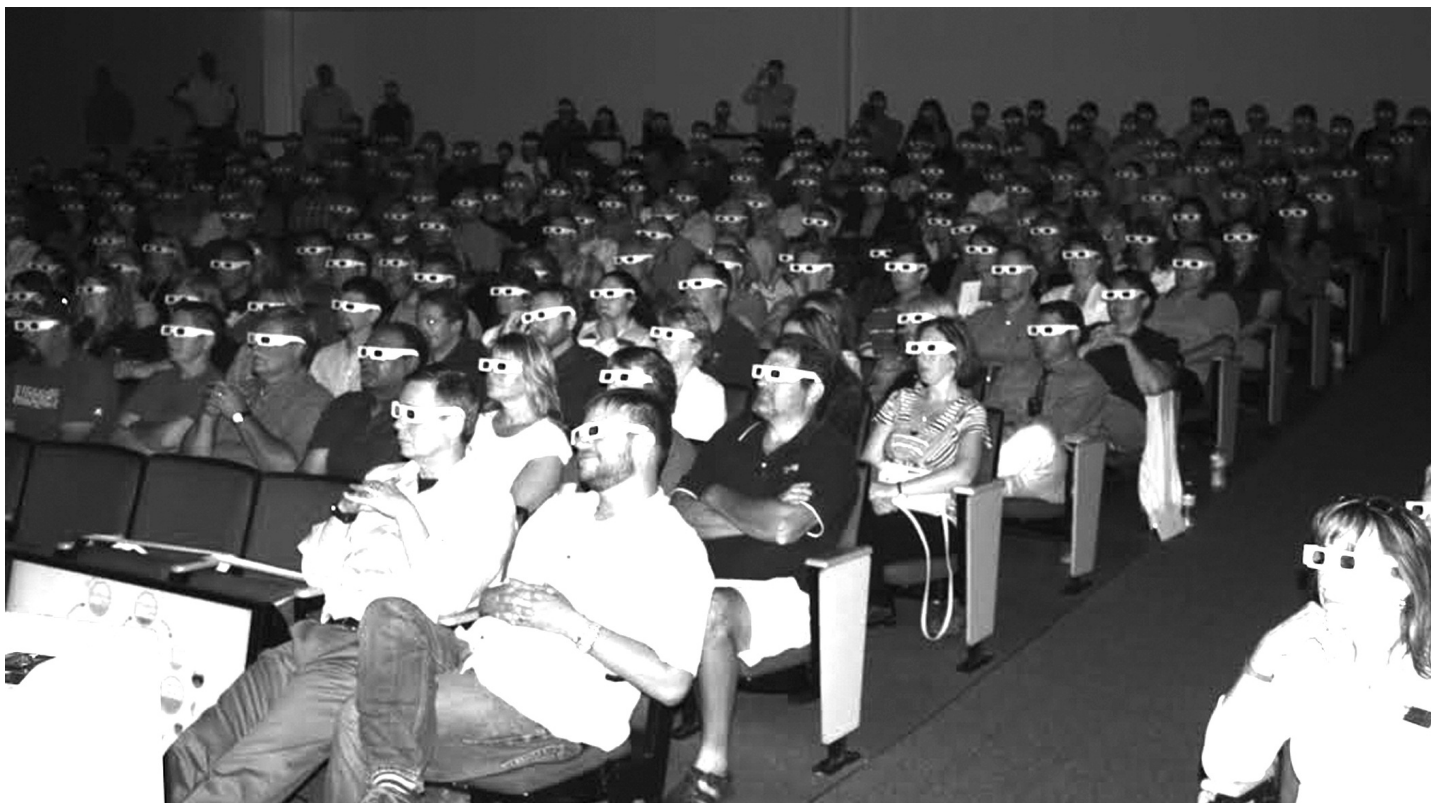

"Alfred State has some awesome heroes," the president concluded. "Ladies and gentlemen, enjoy your day, enjoy your semester, enjoy your year. You are the heroes of this college."

Sullivan also provided an update on Alfred State, mentioning the Middle States

Commission on Higher Education reaffirming accreditation of the college; new programs, such as criminal justice and radiologic technology; programs in development; faculty, student, and student-athlete accomplishments; more intramurals being offered; record-setting career fairs; and a number of capital projects taking place.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Allegany County IDA buys 11 acres at 'Crossroads'

Convenient food, fuel, lodging Eligible for START-UP NY

BELMONT—The Allegany County Industrial Development Agency (ACIDA) is moving ahead on previously discussed proposals from multiple business developers for the Crossroads site at the intersection of I-86 and Rt. 19 following the ACIDA's purchase of a critical 11-acre property, it was announced at the August 19 meeting of the county's Planning and Economic Development Committee.

The purchase of the property, which formerly served as a truck stop, is considered a significant component in developing the Crossroads location as a desired lodging, food and fuel destination for thousands of travelers, visitors and Allegany County residents.

Combined with the previous acquisition of 18 adjacent acres, the Crossroads site now has almost 30 acres situated right off Exit 30 for what will be the most convenient access to food, lodging and fuel on I-86 between Horseheads and Jamestown," ACIDA Chairman Jack W. Wood said.

"Because the IDA now owns the Crossroads properties, we can move formally and aggressively on several business development opportunities that we have been working on," Wood said.

"The site has many business advantages, especially with the potential to serve the food, lodging and fuel needs of an estimated 12,000 travelers each day, the visiting families of almost 7,000 students at Alfred University, Alfred State College and Houghton College, and the spectators and participants at the new $23 million Kerr-Pegula Athletic Complex (KPAC) at Houghton College," he said.

The property was purchased from Thunder Road, LLC for $400,000 under the $3.5 million bond issued by Allegany County to extend the water line from Friendship to the Crossroads.

Senator Catharine Young (R,C,I-Olean) said, "This property purchase gives Allegany County substantial leverage in developing the Crossroads site and bringing a positive economic influx into the community. Thousands of travelers, long-haul truckers and tour buses pass by Exit 30 each day and the site is a prominent location for development and future prosperity. The IDA's purchase of the property is another step in our ongoing efforts to promote economic growth in Allegany County and the Southern Tier as a whole."

Curtis W. Crandall, chairman of the Allegany County Board of Legislators, noted that the Crossroads area is identified as the top business location and strategy for economic development in Allegany County's Comprehensive Plan 2013 – 2023.

"This purchase by the IDA is a very important step in fulfilling our comprehensive plan and in making the Crossroads site a welcoming destination for those travelling I-86 and Rt. 19," he said.

Allegany County economic development plans call for marketing the site to developers and retail operators for convenience food, fast food, gas and diesel fuel, and lodging of up to 100 rooms. In addition, just two miles down County Rt. 20, there are another 50 acres available to developers for manufacturing, retail and wholesale purposes.

"In addition to ACIDA incentives, there will also be significant START-UP NY incentives available for "pre-qualified" businesses and industries to invest in the Crossroads and Allegany County because the ACIDA sites are now eligible for START-UP NY benefits and assistance," Wood said.

Also adding to the future attractiveness of the Crossroads site will be a planned Park N' Ride area at the Crossroads Commerce Center just north of I-86. It will feature 81 paved parking spots with rain shelters and lighting and will serve as a hub for the Access Allegany Transit System. An $800,000 grant is currently pending to fund the project.

About the Allegany County Industrial Development Agency

The mission of the Allegany County Industrial Development Agency is to offer attractive incentives to manufacturing and other businesses to remain and expand, or relocate, to Allegany County New York with the goals of managing growth and development; conserving rural and scenic areas, and protecting agricultural resources. Estelle Hoffman Davis came in 1883

[Editor's Note: Like most of the recipes she shared with our readers over the past couple of decades, Ellen Shultz's Sunny Side Up columns are worth repeating.]

Boothe Colwell Davis was president of Alfred University from 1895 to 1932. His wife was Estelle Hoffman Davis. Estelle came to Alfred in 1883 to attend college. She earned a Bachelors Degree in Philosophy and taught three years at AU in the Normal School. She then married Boothe, also an AU grad, who had just finished his Doctorate of Divinity at Yale. He was appointed pastor of the Alfred Seventh Day Baptist Church and the couple settled down in Alfred and eventually raised three children here, all of whom were also AU graduates.

When Boothe was chosen to be president Estelle became responsible for most of the social life of the campus. She instituted the very popular Senior Class breakfast and served virtually as a dean of women becoming "mother to thousands of students, male and female." She was given an honorary degree of Doctor of Letters for her service to the college and community. This is her recipe for canned pears:

Chipped Pears
8 lbs. of pears, irregularly diced 5 lbs. sugar
2 lemons sliced very thin 1 c. water
1 oz. green ginger root, sliced and cooked with pears
Boil all except lemons slowly until thick; add lemons when partially cooked. Put in glasses and cover with parafin.

Snyde Remarks

By DAVID L. SNYDER
Editor, Publisher and Janitor

Our readers' comments

While we were visiting in Rhode Island recently, I learned that our sister newspaper, The Westerly Sun, had new offices.

I had always enjoyed visiting the Sun office in Westerly. Stepping into the front office was like a step back in time. It was like out of a 1950s Humphrey Bogart movie.

I was disappointed to learn that the Utter family had sold the Sun and that it had become part of a large newspaper group. The building was leveled and the staff was relocated in a brand new ultra-modern concrete facility that, quite frankly, felt cold and sterile.

Sure, the new facility provided the latest in technology but the huge room filled with cubicles reminded me of Office Space, the 1999 comedy about 1990s corporate culture. It just didn't feel like a newspaper office.

I'm sure that constructing a new facility considered progress, but I wonder if the newspaper itself is any better for the funds expended. I doubt it. It was always a great paper (and still is!) and, unlike the weekly Alfred Sun, it comes out everyday in Westerly.

Maybe I'm just a small town guy. Perhaps a non-conformist.

I remember a discussion at a newspaper convention on the topic of newspaper in a small town. I stated that I am not a respecter of persons. I explained that I would not publish news of an arrest of a public official on the front page of the paper, that it would appear in the police report the same as any other citizen. I was told I was nuts. It wasn't the first time.

That's one of the perks of publishing an independent, small-town newspaper.

Neal Bandlow, who taught "The Weekly Newspaper" class at Morrisville College, had a few things to say after reading some copies of this newspaper recently.

"Your paper is like no other," he said, "and that is why weekly print journalism will survive!"

He was still chuckling about the outline of the photo him with Dan Reeder and Jerry Leone in which I blamed the trio for all of the mistakes in the Alfred Sun during the past 39 years.

His favorite feature in this Sun?

"I especially love your front page each issue with somebody different reading The Alfred Sun, of course!" he said.

He's not alone. In fact, here are comments from our readers about what they like best about the Sun:

"columns by local authors"

"letters, local writers, years ago"

"news about people in our area"

"knowledge of local people and events"

"local happenings, Sherry Volk's photos and Jude Frechette's column"

"Keep it up!"

"Read it cover to cover, only source of info on people we know in many towns"

"keeps us in touch with local news, enjoy reading special columns"

"best weekly I have known--and, I have known a few, super contributors and editorial comment"

"local contributors"

"Jude Frechette - Alfred 10, 25, 50 years ago"

"churches info, letters to the editor, businesses info, sports info and years past info"

"Jude Frechette's articles were wonderful as are Betsy Brooks' and Sherry Volk's. We actually like each page - it gets better each year"

"everything - especially things on my extended family!"

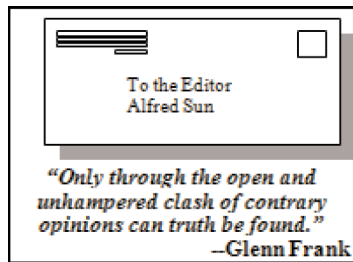

"It keeps me in touch with my home area and those still living there"

"I like front page news - music and arts and obituaries, and the farmer's wife"

"Thank you to the Sun for being such a great local newspaper!"

Thanks to our valued contributors and readers, the Sun continues to shine in Alfred-well, at least once a week...

Stand up for rural postal delivery

Post offices are crucial

Dear Editor,

Post offices are crucial anywhere, but especially crucial in rural areas that depend on the postal service to stay connected through news delivery, services crucial to businesses, and, in some communities, a link to prescription drugs and other services.

The mail service is a national treasure that has been in operation for 240 years. Every day, the Postal Service provides affordable, universal mail service to all—without using taxpayer dollars for its operation.

The Center for Rural Affairs has signed letters of support for continuing reliable, affordable 6-day mail delivery from the US Postal Service. Particularly for remote rural citizens, the service is a lifeline. Nearly 10,000 people have signed the pledge.

We also signed letters of support for two bi-partisan measures in the House of Representatives. One, HR 54, would restore service standards to those in use before last January's reductions. The combination of reduced service standards and closing mail processing facilities has left rural Americans and businesses experiencing the worst of mail delays.

The other House measure (HR 12) calls for maintaining 6-day mail service across the country. Small towns and rural communities in particular depend on this service as a link to prescription drugs and other vital services. Both measures passed in the House.

To pledge your support to save our public postal service visit: <http://agrandalliance.org/pledge/> OR <http://www.cfra.org/standing->

FROM THE DESK OF DAVID PULLEN

By DAVID PULLEN
Allegany County Legislator

WHY MEDICAL INSURANCE PREMIUMS ARE GOING UP.

THE MEDICAID CONNECTION.

When The Affordable Care Act ("ACA"), commonly referred to as Obamacare, was enacted into law it was supposed to improve our medical care. It was also supposed to contain or reduce the cost of medical care. In practice, almost every claim and promise has been broken. Care has deteriorated, we couldn't keep our old coverage or physicians, and costs have continued to skyrocket. After almost 5 years it is fair to ask what went wrong. I recently requested quotations for some Blue Cross Insurance policies for 2016 and learned that rates are going up an average of 14% from 2015 rates. At $16,000 plus per year this ordinary coverage is hardly affordable.

My research has led to the conclusion that the major culprit is Medicaid. The recent increases in Medicaid enrollment have put a huge strain on the medical care delivery system. There are several ways this contributes towards increased costs and insurance rates. Here are some of the factors involved in our increasing rates:

•For many years health insurance companies have negotiated discounted rates for their subscribers as a way of reducing costs. The larger the medical insurer the greater its clout, and, consequently the larger its discounts. Among private health insurers Blue Cross is the 800 pound gorilla. It typically gets the biggest discounts.

•As many individuals have obtained insurance for the first time the insurance companies have found that the costs incurred for these new subscribers are higher than their predictions and premiums. These higher costs have to be covered by higher premiums. In theory, these costs will go down over time as the medical needs of these newly insured individuals are met. However, the insurance companies really don't have any actuarial basis for that projected decrease.

•Most of the new subscribers have enrolled in the Medicaid program. Those who qualify for Medicaid (based upon lower reported income) get exceptional benefit coverage at reduced or subdized prices. The coverage and/or subsidies for these individuals is paid by taxpayers. This means that those of us paying taxes must pay for our own insurance, and must also pay for coverage for those on Medicaid.

•There is another hidden cost. Health care providers (doctors, hospitals, etc.) don't receive the same payments for services provided to other individuals. The payments vary depending upon who is paying for them. Under federal law Medicaid establishes and sets the amounts that it will pay for services rendered to Medicaid recipients. Under federal law, health service providers must give Medicaid their lowest rates. In many cases Medicaid reimbursement rates are set below the cost of providing those services.

•When doctors, hospitals, pharmacies, etc., lose money providing for Medicaid patients they must make up those losses by increasing their charges to their other patients/customers.

•If this involved only a few individuals the problem would have been manageable. However, the number of new Medicaid recipients is huge, and the losses have been enormous. The federal and state agencies know what is happening, and why, but don't want to publicize the problem. I suspect, but cannot prove, that this is largely a political motivation.

•NYS has had a large Medicaid program and has been dealing with this problem for many years. Many other states have had much more limited Medicaid programs. Now that those programs have expanded under Obamacare, they are experiencing much greater rates of increase. Several states in the Mid-west are facing premium rate increases of 40% to 60%.

For taxpayers this situation is nothing short of a catastrophe. We are paying more and more in taxes for programs that we cannot qualify for, or benefit from. At the same time, the subsidized rates guaranteed to recipients of Medicaid are forcing our costs higher and higher. This situation, and this program as presently structured, is simply unsustainable. For this reason alone, Obamacare needs to be repealed or radically restructured.

Former AU art history professor to lecture on 'ceramics pioneers'

ALFRED-Dr. Ezra Shales, former Alfred University (AU) assistant professor of art history, will present the University's Fifteenth Dorothy Wilson Perkins Ceramic History Lecture at 4:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 10 in Nevins Theater, Powell Campus Center. The lecture series honors the memory of Perkins, a 1939 AU alumna who pioneered ceramic arts throughout the 20th century.

Shales, associate professor in the History of Art Department at Massachusetts College of Art and Design, will speak on "Pioneers of American Ceramics." The program is open to the public free of charge.

In conjunction with his visit to campus, Shales is guest curator for "O Pioneers! Women Ceramic Artists, 1925-1960" at the Alfred Ceramic Art Museum at Alfred University, which opens Sept. 10 and runs through Nov. 20. There will be a public opening reception from 6:15 -7:30 p.m. that evening. The exhibition is coordinated by Susan Kowalczyk, collections manager at the Alfred Ceramic Art Museum.

The exhibition revisits important contributions of women to American art history on several levels – as artists negotiating modernism and as educators paving new roles in the academy. Drawing from collections at the Alfred Ceramic Art Museum; the Everson Museum, Syracuse; The Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City; and the archives of Cranbrook Academy, Bloomfield Hills, MI; as well as private collections, "O Pioneers!" includes more than 100 works ranging across functional pottery and figurative sculpture.

While it often surprises many students to learn that American art schools only began to encourage female students to shape their own pottery on the wheel in the 1920s, and not simply to paint and ornament pots, it was the same decade when women first gained the right to vote in the United States.

The ceramic art in "O Pioneers!" presents a complex narrative of global influences, a diverse cast, and illuminates a time when an imaginative reverence toward historical form, clay, and glazes permeated both the academy and the gallery. Ceramics might not have been considered a field of discipline outside of a few schools in America, but it was a vocation many women embraced as a new way to imagine their lives.

The exhibition was inspired by the memory of Marion Fosdick, who taught studio art at AU's College of Ceramics for three decades and whose works were purchased by the Metropolitan Museum of Art, among other galleries.

Shales has authored essays on diverse topics ranging from Victorian toys and the role of artisans in building the Empire State Building to contemporary practices. He is currently working on a book exploring the ways drinking vessels in North America are culturally loaded talismans that brim with political and social power while also completing a manuscript titled "Common Craft," to be published by Reaktion Books.

Shales is also author of numerous peer-reviewed articles and has lectured in the United States, Canada, Norway, Finland, and Denmark. He is the recipient of over a dozen professional awards and accolades, including a Massachusetts College of Art and Design Foundation Faculty Fellowship; an Exhibition Research Grant from the Center for Craft, Creativity, and Design; and a Joseph Kruson Award for Excellence in Teaching from AU.

He has served as an external examiner for the Glass and Ceramics Division at the Royal College of Art, London, England; a juror for the Pew Charitable Trust Foundation; vice president of the Design Studies Forum; and nominator for the Cooper-Hewitt National Design Awards. He is a member of the College Art Association, American Studies Association, Design History Society, and American Alliance of Museums.

Shales holds a bachelor of arts degree from Wesleyan University, Middletown, CT; a master of fine arts degree from Hunter College and a Ph.D. from Bard Graduate Center for Studies in the Decorative Arts, Design and Culture, both in New York City.

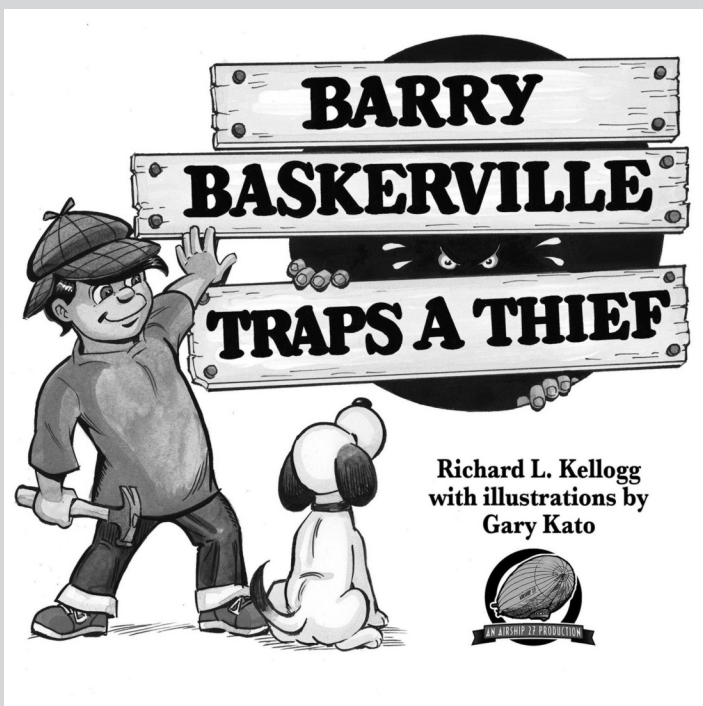

Kowalczyk holds a bachelor of fine arts degree for the College of Ceramics at AU and a master of fine arts degree in ceramic arts from Wichita State University.

The Dorothy Wilson Perkins Ceramic History Lecture Series was established in 1998 through a gift from Dr. Lyle Perkins, AU Class of 1939, given in memory of his wife, Dr. Dorothy Wilson Perkins. Dorothy Perkin's many accomplishments in ceramics last to this day; her ceramic work can be found in numerous collections, including at Ohio State University and the Alfred Ceramic Art Museum.

The Alfred Ceramic Art Museum is housed within the College of Ceramics at AU and features both permanent and rotating exhibits of historical ceramics, contemporary pieces, and applications of advanced ceramics to science and technology. The museum is open Wednesday-Friday, 10 a.m.-4 p.m.; the museum is closed Saturday-Tuesday and some holidays.

The DIY Farmer's Wife Approach

DIY SOUR CREAM COTTAGE CHEESE AND WHEY

My whole world was changed when I discovered you can make sour cream, cottage cheese and whey in one simple process. There is nothing so sweet as homemade dairy products, and saving your family money in the process makes it that much more fulfilling.

WHAT YOU NEED:

2 large bowls

Strainer that fits in bowls

Cheese cloth

1 gallon of raw milk (available at sunny cove farm)

Sterilize all equipment before starting this process. Pour milk into large bowl and cover with cheese cloth, let sit on counter for 24 hours. Check milk after this time and if it is a gelatinous consistency it is ready, if not let sit another 8-24 hours.

The cream will separate, skim off the top and store in container, this is sour cream. Next, place strainer suspended on top of second large bowl and pour remaining milk through strainer. You will see curds collecting in the strainer and whey pouring through into the bowl. Let the curds sit suspended in the strainer for an hour or two and then lift out and store in refrigerator. Use whey in fermented drinks, pickles and smoothies. Enjoy your fresh sour cream, cottage cheese and whey for up to two weeks in the refrigerator!

If you have a household tip to share or questions for The Farmer's Wife, e-mail: Kristinamariesnyder@gmail.com or write her at: The Farmer's Wife, 1724 Randolph Road, Alfred Station, NY 14803.

Pigskin Picks Football Contest

PIGSKIN PICKS IS BACK!!

Will this be the year that Alfred Sun Sports Columnist Doug Lorow gets back into his winning form? With increased competition from our participants in recent years, Doug's claim of Pigskin Pick Predominance has been tested. But you can't keep a good Doug down. The Janitor is so confident in Lorow's knowledge of the NFL and Division III football, he's inviting ALL challengers.

ALLEGANY COUNTY
Rt. 21 will be milled, paved from Thacherville to Almond

ALMOND-The New York State Department of Transportation late last week announced that state Route 21 from Thacherville south to the Allegany county line will be milled starting Tuesday, August 25 through Friday, August 28, weather permitting. This section of road will also be paved starting Monday, Sept. 7 through Friday Sept. 11, weather permitting.

Traffic will be maintained with a one-lane, two-way traffic pattern controlled by flag persons. Work during these days will begin around 7 a.m. and should be completed around 5 p.m. It is imperative that motorists remember to drive carefully through the many highway and bridge construction zones they will encounter this season.

Motorists are reminded that fines are doubled for speeding in a work zone. In accordance with the Work Zone Safety Act of 2005, convictions of two or more speeding violations in a work zone could result in the suspension of an individual's driver license.

For real-time travel information, call 511 or visit www.511NY.org. You can also follow us on Twitter @NYS-DOTHornell.

Alfred State ROTC members serve at The Glen

ALFRED—Members of the US Army ROTC program at Alfred State took part in the opening ceremony of the Cheez-It 355 at The Glen NASCAR Sprint Cup race on Sunday, Aug. 9.

Serving as the color guard were Alfred State students and Cadets James Haveron (mechanical engineering technology, Falconer) and Jesse Cole (forensic science technology, Selden), along with Cadet Casey Kelly from Alfred University, and Spc. Cody Wells of the 222nd Military Police Company out of Hornell. The ceremony also included a patriotic American flag skydive and American Idol winner David Cook singing the national anthem. Driver Joey Logano won the race on a thrilling finish.

Derek Fuerch, an Alfred State forensic science technology major from Barker, said local National Guard recruiter and freshman ROTC Instructor Sgt. 1st Class William Ernest tasked him with reaching out to students about serving as color guard members at the Watkins Glen race. Fuerch would also have participated in the opening ceremony, but was at summer training in Fort Knox, KY, at the time.

"I was thrilled to hear we had the opportunity to be the color guard at the NASCAR race at Watkins Glen," Fuerch said. "This was such an honor and a great way for people to hear about our program. The cadets did a great job and truly enjoyed themselves there."

Haveron said, "We worked together, completed the task and presented our nation's colors. A breathtaking moment was when the C-130 military transport aircraft took flight above us mid-anthem. After the anthem was done, we were greeted with amazing hospitality from the Jack Daniels company, which allowed us to watch the race from their tower. Overall, this was an experience unlike any other and honestly only the Army could have given us this."

Dr. Skip Sullivan, president of Alfred State, said, "I am proud of our students who participated as color guard at the Sprint Cup Series race at Watkins Glen earlier this month. We are honored to have an active and growing ROTC unit at Alfred State, and to have them as a vibrant part of our college community."

For many years, Alfred State has had an agreement in place with the US Army, whereby students can take courses and training in military science during their college years, and upon graduation with a BS, B.Tech, or BBA degree in whichever major they choose, be commissioned as a second lieutenant in the United States Army. Following Commencement, graduates have the unique opportunity to serve America as a commissioned officer in the Active, Guard, or Reserve forces, progressing through the ranks of first lieutenant and captain during that time.

The US Army ROTC program at Alfred State is an affiliate of the Seneca Battalion program headquartered at nearby St. Bonaventure University. Anyone interested in finding out more about the program should contact Jared Kausner by email at jkausner@sbu.edu or by phone at 716-375-2568.

Robert B. Granger, admissions counselor at the State University Agricultural and Technical College here, has been appointed college registrar, President David H. Huntington has announced. He replaces Alan D. Willsey (former Hornell resident) who has resigned to attend graduate school at the State University at Buffalo. Both Granger's appointment and Willsey's resignation are effective September 1...

A story written by a wire service which appeared in several dailies last week stating that a bid had been awarded to an Ohio Construction Company for alterations and additions to the sewage treatment plant at the State University Agricultural and Technical College at Alfred was incorrect. The bid pertains to the State University Agricultural and Technical College at Morrisville. According to Richard Stillman, facilities program coordinator at Alfred Tech, the Morrisville sewage plant is owned by State University while the local two-year college would depend on the village facility. "If and when there is an announcement of additions or expansion of the village sewage plant, it will come from the Village Board rather than the State University Construction Fund," he said.

A store that has served the small community of Alfred Station for more than a century has been reborn and transformed into a quaint gift shop. The large frame structure formerly known as Wheaton's Store has been refurbished inside and is now being operated as the Canacadea Country Store by Glen and Betty Mapes of Whitesville. Presently owned by Arthur Burdick of Alfred Station and leased by the Mapes, the green-trimmed yellow building which had been vacant for the past three years, now is a paradise for sweet-toothed children and fine-gift-conscious adults. Since its opening June 9, the store has attracted hundreds of people from more than 20 states, Canada and England. The large, majority of out-of-state visitors is evidence in the guest book which the Mapes have their customers sign. "On an average Sunday, we have more than 200 visitors," Mr. Mapes noted. At first, quill pens were provided for signing, but when that became somewhat messy, contemporary ball point pens replaced them. The quill pens are on sale, however...A heavy wooden showcase which was formerly part of a general store in Whitesville is situated at the front of the store and holds candy jars, the scales, and serves to form the u-shaped counter from which cheese is cut by the wedge and business transactions are conducted...The Mapes are not newcomers to this area. They operated a retail grocery store on Canisteo Street in Hornell for 14 years before going to Whitesville to operate a woodworking plant 25 years ago. They are presently living in Whitesville, but plan to fix an apartment in the barn behind the store so that they can be closer to their business. Asked how they happened to start a store in the small hamlet once known as Baker's Bridge, Mapes noted that he had been on the road selling gifts to various shops and department stores in recent years. Seeing shops of the type he now operates gave Mapes the idea to start such a place in the fast-growing area of Alfred. This would also provide a hobby for his wife, who had always helped in the woodworking business...

A new two-story addition to the building, located on Randolph Road in Alfred, was completed this summer and will be in full use this year...The building addition is not the only thing that is "new" this year for the Christian training center, according to Craig Mix, administrator/teacher. "We will also be adding an additional full-time instructor this year to accommodate new students," he said, nothing that enrollment had grown from about 20 last year to 32 part- and full-time students this year. Ellen J. Weaver of Alfred will be instructing in grades 2-5. She is a graduate of Alfred University where she earned a B.S. in accounting. She will also be serving as secretary at Lighthouse...

A tourist from Australia decided to start his trip in the USA right here in Alfred Station. Max Townsend, who works for a small aircraft manufacturer in Coffsharbor, Australia north of Sydney said that the Bicycle Man shop of Alfred Station is famous worldwide on the internet. Max arrived by bus in Alfred on a Sunday and was able to call Peter "The Bicycle Man" Stull who owns the store and was already trying out one of the novel bikes that are sold there. Max said that the shop allows customers to try out the different models, something other shops do not routinely do. The shop specializes in recumbent bikes...Townsend is also here because he is looking forward to the Recumbent Bike Convention in Bath next weekend...

Joan Overcomes Seasick Sensitivity. (By Joan Lindeman, Adventurous Octogenarian) Okay, okay, I know what you are thinking: "Hasn't she had enough fishing adventures?" Not really, as each was a different aspect of my favorite hobby. So I tried ice fishing in Georgia plus pier fishing there, also. But this fishing adventure is something I have never tried due to my acute sensitivity to motion sickness. As a child I threw up on swings, teeter-totters, merry-go-rounds, cars, trains, especially boats both large and small! So long as I kept both feet solidly planted on the ground I was fine. So here I was at 82 never having fished from a rowboat until friend Clair Almeter invited me to fish at Foster Lake from his rowboat. I told him about my weakness but we decided to give it a try. ...I guess as we age we not only get older but really better. So if you need company the next time you go fishing, I have a pole and will travel on another fishing adventure. Oh, by the way, we truly did leave some fish for you!

Alfred Station Volunteer Fire Company recently welcomed two new members. Joining the department are Mathew Williams of Alfred Station and Travis Clark of Alfred. Mathew is currently a senior at AACS and works for Stearns Poultry in Alfred Station. Allegany County fire investigators have determined that a short in electrical wiring in a corner of the garage caused the Tuesday, Aug. 16 early evening fire that destroyed the home of Roger and Penny Gardner at 1242 Randolph Road, Alfred. The Gardners were in Knoxville, Tennessee visiting a daughter at the time of the fire. The garage and its contents were completely destroyed in addition to the Gardners' mini-van, which had comprehensive insurance coverage. A new second story addition was destroyed and the house sustained severe smoke and water damage throughout. A member of Lighthouse Christian Fellowship where Roger Gardner serves as pastor has offered the Gardners her vacant home in Almond until their home can either be rebuilt or replaced. While the house was insured, the contents, the Gardners' personal belongings, were not. "I have been preaching for the past couple of weeks about the refining fire of God," the pastor told the congregation at a special meeting at the church Friday night, then quipped, "I think I will now start preaching on prosperity."

THE GLORY OF AMERICA

Thursday, August 27

On this day in 1776, a combined force of 20,000 British and Hessian regulars drove a force of 8,000 Continentals on to the northern tip of Brooklyn. Cut off and surrounded, the Americans awaited the final attack which would destroy them. It never came. Night fell, but the Americans did not breathe easier, for in the morning defeat was certain. But Washington had a plan...

...The miracle of Dunkirk had its forerunner in the early hours of August 28, 1776, on the beaches below Brooklyn Heights, New York. Washington had his troops file silently down and assemble on the sand, where, aboard every available small boat, they were ferried across the East River to Manhattan...A dense ground fog arose and spread over the river...Despite a burning sun, it lingered until the last boat was out of range.

MY TURN

By ALAN LITTELL
Alfred Sun Contributor

An English Gentleman Instructs...

Uncle Bruce taught me something about wine. “Uncle,” though, may be a bit of a stretch. He was my wife’s uncle, her mother’s only brother. He was an English wine merchant—a vocation that not a few of his country’s fossilized uppercrust to this day scorn as “being in trade.”

Yet bottling and selling wine is not like hawking soap or cigarettes. It was, and remains, a gentleman’s profession. And make no mistake: Bruce Todd was a gentleman. Whether in casual tweeds or workaday pin stripes, he was, always, impeccably dressed and groomed. His silvery hair swept neatly back from a broad forehead; a mustache, also white, and horn-rimmed glasses lent an air of decorative solemnity.

One of my two brothers-in-law addressed him simply as “Uncle,” dropping the Bruce. His sister, my mother-in-law, Constance Mary, called him “Bru.” He called her “Con.” His dozens of godchildren—he never married—and people like me, who had married into the family, called him “Uncle Bruce.” I would not have dared to say “Bruce.” He welcomed a certain level of familiarity from outsiders, yet still kept people not of his blood at arm’s length, as one would surely expect of an English gentleman. Familiar, yes, but not too familiar.

Uncle Bruce was in his mid fifties when I first met him, in the early 1960s. He was chairman of a firm of some half a hundred wine-and-spirits shops scattered throughout the chief cities and towns of southern England. The head office was, of course, in London. The firm’s name was Findlater Mackie Todd & Co.

Uncle Bruce imported wine mostly from France and sold it under the house label. He also sold sherry, from Jerez, in Spain; port, from Portugal; and a respectable Scotch whiskey, which he called Jock Scott. Uncle Bruce himself, true to his trade, was a fairly heavy drinker. Yet even for someone of his superb constitution and build—he was a compactly constructed six-foot-two—his intake was prodigious. He drank each day up to three bottles of wine, sherry and vintage port, apparently to no ill effect.

Uncle Bruce was an ardent Catholic, passionately committed to the dogma and the works of his Church. He made frequent pilgrimages to the shrine of Our Lady of Lourdes, in southwestern France. At Lourdes, where miraculous healings have been claimed, he pushed wheelchairs and helped carry litters laden with the dying.

His home was a sprawling country house, Maryland, on the outskirts of London. The property was contiguous with the grounds of St. Mary’s Convent School, which my wife, Caroline, had attended as a small child during the war. Uncle Bruce was famous for the sherry parties he would occasionally give for the school’s teaching sisters.

Uncle Bruce visited Alfred two or three times in the 1970’s and 80’s. Voluble and outgoing, he became an unmistakable presence in the village and also at St. Jude’s Roman Catholic Church, on the campus of Alfred State College, where he regularly attended Mass.

In addition to his churchgoing, I vividly recall taking him to Alfred University home football games. Like the soldier (and war prisoner) he once had been, he—though a British national—would snap to attention at the playing of our national anthem. He would stand ramrod straight, thumbs extending from clenched fists and pressed smartly against his trouser seams.

Because he was in wine, we made obligatory tours of the vineyards and wineries bordering Keuka Lake. Despite his own expertise in viticulture and winemaking, Uncle Bruce would listen with grave interest to the talks given by our guides.

At the tasting bars, he would sample whatever was on offer—the great, the good, the not-so-good—with always an exclamation of pleasure. There was never the slightest hint of criticism of a particular wine. For this British guest in a foreign country, any carping would have been seen, at least in his own eyes, as “bad form.”

But I digress. My own education in wine began, in London, at a luncheon Uncle Bruce gave in the boardroom of Findlater House, his company’s headquarters. The date was May 30, 1963. The guests, all except myself knowledgeable about wine, had been invited not simply to sip and spit out, as was the custom among professional when buying raw wine, but to drink, discuss and debate some of the outstanding vintages of the day.

I have the menu pasted into a scrapbook. We began with a 1953 Forster Jesuitengarten, a tawny, sweetish Riesling from a small German vineyard that had been making wine for 500 years. (A glance today at Google will tell you that collectors now bid up the Forster at close to $4,000 a bottle.) From the Riesling, we pushed on to two of the splendid fruity reds of the Bordeaux region of western France, a Chateau (vineyard estate) Cantemerle 1950 and a Chateau Margaux 1934.

We closed with a Chateau d’Yquem 1945, a rich, sweet, golden-in-color dessert wine called by one commentator the “undisputed monarch” of Bordeaux’s Sauternes—a heavy but heavenly elixir, to be drunk slowly, and brooded over.

Around me, there was spirited conversation. I had nothing to contribute. As an American from Brooklyn, New York, I was out of my element. But my companions at table that noon had no such inhibitions.

With a deft twist of the wrist, they twirled their glasses. Prompted by Uncle Bruce, they commented on the rivulets that flowed back from rim to stem. They argued about “bouquet,” or aroma. They debated the virtues and possible flaws of taste and aftertaste.

I drank steadily. I knew that what I was drinking, especially those reds from Bordeaux, were glorious wines. But at that first exposure to the fabulous, the historic and the celebrated, I could not have told you why they were supreme. Wine education required study. Wine drinking—field work—took stamina and practice. It was heady stuff, literally and figuratively. And so I got through the wines and the luncheon of gulls’ eggs, and moved on, more-or-less intact, to two for the road, thimblefuls (fortunately) of Findlater’s port and brandy, which capped the session.

Bruce Edward Todd died in his 90th year, in March 1997. His requiem Mass was held at the Cathedral Church of Our Lady & St. Philip Howard, in Arundel, on England’s south coast. In an affectionate tribute inserted into the program, my wife’s eldest brother noted that Uncle Bruce, son of a wine merchant, had been educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, “where in the secure knowledge that a place awaited him in the family business, he kept a dog, went to the cinema every afternoon, and made friends.

“Starting work in London...he led an active social life and drove (very fast!) an open Bentley and a Rialton straight-eight....

“Bruce’s most notable characteristics were his unfailing cheerfulness and kindness, which led to widespread popularity.”

The requiem reading accompanying the Mass was both a mystic philosophical essay and a profound leap of the imagination, written a century ago by a canon of the Church, Henry Scott Holland. It contained little of Catholic dogma. Instead, the shade of someone recently dead—perhaps the spirit of Uncle Bruce himself—consoles the living:

“Death is nothing at all; I have only slipped away into the next room. I am I and you are you. Whatever we were to each other, we are still. Call me by my old familiar name, speak to me in the easy way which you always used....

“Why should I be out of mind because I am out of sight? I am but waiting for you, for an interval, somewhere very near just around the corner.... “

And the reading ends: “All is well.”

The Dugout

By DOUG LOROW
Alfred Sun Sports Columnist
dugout2@gmail.com

The following is a brief summary of the recent baseball trip enjoyed by Roger "Hilly" Moses (A-A) and his son, Max "Marvin" Moses of Holliston, MA.

Friday, August 7: Landed in Chicago at about 9:45am CST. Arrived at hotel at 11:30. Headed to Wrigley area via the subway at about noon. Got some photos outside Wrigley and then walked across the street to the famous Cubby Bear for a little lunch. Got in the stadium when the gates opened at 1:15. Cubs won 7-3. After the game Max got a photo of he and Kyle Schwarber (that I took two summers ago at the Cape League All Star Game) signed.

Saturday August 8: Left for Milwaukee at about 2 PM, arrived for the 6:05 games versus the Cardinals at about 4:00. Got in the park early. Great park. Met with Scott Martens (friend of a work colleague) Direct of Minor League Baseball Operations for the Brewers. Cards won 3-0. Headed back to Chicago after the game.

Sunday August 9: Hung out in Chicago and did tourist stuff. After having a late dinner we walked back into the hotel and this guy had a dog and we started talking to him. Going up the elevator he said he was just traded to the Cubs. It was Tommy Hunter. He got off the elevator on our floor and talked to Max and me for about 10-15 minutes.

Monday August 10: More tourist stuff during the day. Left for US Cellular Field at about 4. Got there at about 5 for a 7PM game. Tee-shirt night. Copped nice Sox old school logo shirts. Sox beat the Angels 8-2, Chris Sale was outstanding. Drove two plus hours south to Normal, IL (home of Illinois State) after the game.

Tuesday August 11: Headed for Kansas City early. We made a brief stop in Hannibal, MO to see Mark Twain's home. About 400 miles from Normal we reached Lenexa, KS to meet up with my buddy Jeff Fred-eres to get the tick-ets. We were staying right across from the KC Sports Complex. We walked to the game early. An-other tee shirt night. Scored an-other really cool shirt. Met up with Jeff and his friend Steve, who seemed to know everyone in the stadium. Steve's son is a scout for the Padres. Another great park. Avery good Royals team beat the Tigers 6-1.

Wednesday August 12: Headed to St Louis. Met up with my friend Mark Burns at about 2:30 in the famous Hill District to have lunch and get our tickets. We parked and Mark drove us around town for about an hour before dropping us off outside the stadium at about 4:30. We went to Baseball Village across the street. The entire venue was very impressive. Although we had great seats everywhere, these were probably our best. Michael Wacha beat Gerrit Cole as the Cards beat the Pirates 4-2. We then drove 3 plus hours to Brazil, IN.

Thursday August 13: After another 350 plus mile drive we arrived at our hotel at about 3:30. We arrived at the Cleveland park at 6:30 for the 7:10 start. The Yankees broke their 5 game losing streak with an 8-6 win. This game also marked the MLB debut of Greg Bird.

Friday August 14: We drove to Almond to see family. While eating at Muhlheisen's the one and only Robert H. Torrey walked in the bar. We invited him to join us and we hung out for about 3 hours talking and watching the Bills game.

Saturday August 15: Stayed in Almond until about 5 then left for Geneseo to see friends.

Sunday August 16: Back to Boston. This was truly an outstanding trip. Everything went perfect. Even the weather in KC and St Louis was "only" about 85 with 50% humidity. It was truly a blessing to get to make this trip with Max.

HITS AND MISSES:

The PGA Championship will be returning to Oak Hill CC in Pittsford in 2023 with a potential return of the LPGA Championship tied in somewhere along the line as well. The famed Oak Hill course has previously hosted the PGA Championship in 1980, 2003 and recently in 2013. Had the opportunity to go to the event in 2003 with Big D and Janis King. Went recently with Jake Taft as we hooked-up with Roger and Max Moses. Went to a U.S. Open one year it was there with "Hilly" Moses and took in a Ryder Cup practice round at Oak Hill with Stu. Don't remember going to the 1980 PGA ...so guess I didn't! The LPGA was a fixture in Rochester for years at Locust Hill as a regular tour stop and at the end as the Wegman's PGA Cham-pionship. That is now the KPMG LPGA Cham-pionship and it was held in the NYC area this year. Hard to believe there is no regular LPGA stop in Rochester with the great support for the tourney. Catch bits & pieces of other LPGA events on the tube and the crowds at those tournaments are not even close to what was at Locust Hill.

Max and Roger Moses in Kansas City.

In LPGA action from this past weekend, Lydia Ko won her third Canadian Open in the last four years as she topped Stacy Lewis on the first playoff hole. Ko, the #1-ranked player in the world for the ladies, won this event the first two times out as an amateur. This time she hauled in a check for $337,500 along with her third trophy. Canadian youngster, Brooke Henderson finished T23. The Solheim Cup will be contested shortly and think Juli Inkster is captain of Team USA.

Tiger Woods stumbled on Sunday in his attempt to win the Wyndham Championship on the PGA Tour and qualify for the lucrative FedEx Playoffs. Woods was right there heading into the final round but holes #11-12 did him in. Good to see him back in the hunt though! And 51-year old Davis Love III emerged victorious as he nipped Jason Gore by one shot. Love now finds himself in the FedEx Cup run instead of heading to the Dick's Open on the Champions Tour this weekend. "Davis Love is no relation to Eddie Davis," noted the once-legendary Kaz.

Fred Couples couldn't pull off a win in the Boeing Classic on the Champions Tour in his hometown of Seattle, WA as he finished T3 at (-7). Billy Andrade won it at (-9) and Bernhard Langer, of course, was right there at (-8). Mark O'Meara (not of Alfred) was tied with Couples. Jeff Sluman of Rochester was four-shots back and Joey Sindelar of Horseheads another four behind Slu. Both of them will be at En Joie this weekend as will Wayne Levi of Utica. Had hoped to see Couples there but didn't see his name on the list of entrants. Langer is the defending champ in Endicott. At the Boeing, Langer is something ridicu-lous like: 1-T3-T2-2-2 the last five years in the tournament.

The victorious Team USA women's soccer squad from the recent World Cup is 2-0 on their "victory tour" thru the states. Have not heard any mention of a game in Rochester which is very odd with Abby Wambach on the roster. Have been to see Team USA twice when they were here, with 3L, and we saw Wambach feed Mia Hamm for her 100st career goal.

The Travers at Saratoga Race Course is this Saturday and have not heard yet if triple-crown winner, American Pharoah is running? Expecting a report anytime this week from Coach Beyer as he'll be on-site (at Druthers) this week.

Jarrick Wenslow, the son of Mike (A-A), is back at college at Northern Arizona University and getting ready to run track again this school year. Wenslow made his conference finals in the Stee-plechase and 1500m last spring. He spent the summer as an assistant coach with his high school team as they trained at Mammoth Lake for 10-days of high altitude workouts. Wonder if he ever crossed paths with Gids (A-A) during his frosh year at NAU?

"Congrats" to Eileen Coyle as she is the new head women's soccer coach at Utica College! The former Herkimer CC and SUNY Geneseo standout takes over duties immediately at the E8 school. Checked her schedule to see when they would be playing Alfred and/or SJ Fisher and, of course, it is the weekend of September 11-12-13 when I am off to see Moses in MA. Coyle was an All-Amer-ican at Herkimer, maybe even the NJCAA Player of the Year, is in their Hall of Fame and was an as-sistant coach at St. Lawrence plus Endicott Col-lege prior to landing this position. Teammates with daughter Lauren for one season ... an NCAA cam-paign for Coach Wiley's troops. Ironically, a PK Shootout loss to Endicott at the famed Messiah campus.

Deflategate ... NFL ... Tom Brady ... still going on? How crazy!

Look alikes: Yankees rookie first sacker Greg Bird and Keegan Bradley of the PGA.

Small World time as I had to drop some glasses off for work at the LensCrafters in Greece Ridge Mall on Sunday past. Wandered over to Dick's Sporting Goods, bought a (much needed) golf shirt and the girl at the checkout counter has on an Alfred State soccer shirt. Kali Muhleisen of Alfred-Almond! Knew of her, obviously, but had never met her and we had a good chat. She headed to college at Brockport now. Her former A-A/ASC teammate, Hannah Holmok now on the move from Mansfield University to Niagara County CC. No soccer for either. Ouch. Mansfield ... A-A base-ball/softball legends Z Curran and Gids played ball there and the "Qua" coached women's basket-ball/softball at the Pennsylvania school.

As MLB races head towards Labor Day, the NL could have some interesting runs. The Cardi-nals, Pirates and Cubs ... yes the Cubbies!, all from the Central Division, have the three-best records in the entire league and three of the four best in all of baseball (KC). Pittsburgh and Chicago could very well meet in a one-game "wild card" playoff and have the 2-3 best records in the whole league. Seems a little unfair. The SF Giants could join that mix or knock off the LA Dodgers to win the West. The Giants who have won the World Series in three of the last five years. And the East is down to the Mets and Nats. Win this division or stay home. A disappointing season in Washington DC with all that talent. In the AL, Kansas City is a lock ... according to "Orville" VanSkiver and Toronto is looking really solid. It'll be a Texas-Shootout in the West and will the Yanks hang on to grab a wild card slot? Maybe a few less K's from A-Rod will help the cause.

The Dodgers added second-sacker Chase Utley to their roster for the stretch run as they now have a gaudy payroll of $298 for this year! Looks like your team is trying to buy that pennant ... "Foolish" Farley and Big D.

In "AAA" baseball action the Rochester Red Wings are fading rapidly after being swept by the hard-charging S/WB RailRiders over the weekend past. The Yanks farm club has basically locked up the North Division now, Norfolk is trying to hang on in the South as brother Scott O. Lorow is hop-ing for a great playoff push and Indy is holding off Columbus at the moment. All those teams will change radically on September 1st call-ups and the "AAA" playoffs will be decided by "AA" prospects.

Daughter Lauren spotted a pretty neat NYS vanity plate in her travels: SPRTCSTR. I spotted one the other day: PINPOINT ... "accuracy" of my golf shots!

A couple of "famous" golfers carded aces in the Rochester area last week. Mitch Miller on #3 at Braemar with a PW on the 140-yard hole and Ken Burns at Mill Creek with a five-iron on #17, 170-yards.

Off to the Champions Tour golf tourney this Saturday with Binghamton native, Leo Nealon. Hopefully hooking up with former AU QB, Paul McDonnell and others? And a potential stop at the famed John Barleycorn in Owego ... (- Marzo).

Just around the corner, the NFL starts as the Buffalo Bills and their three-headed QB monster look to overhaul the New England Patriots, poten-tially missing Tom Brady for a stretch.

And possi-bly, an up-c o m i n g interview with Bob Codispoti ... the football "Voice of the Saxons" on the radio as he enters his 31st season at the mike at Yunevich Sta-dium.
