It Will Be Worth It

As we editors take over our new positions, we find ourselves experiencing a trace of the same feelings we felt as Freshmen—those dubious, inconfident and confused feelings with which we were then perpetually confronted when making decisions concerning our future. Assuming our new responsibilities, we now face the problems of the Fiat in the same uncertain manner. We wonder whether our staff will be larger or smaller. We wonder what effect the war will have on us.

Just exactly what form this publication will take next year, we do not know. But we do know that it will continue—that it must continue in order to do justice to you and to itself by offering a place for you to voice your opinion, by acting as a chronicle and forecaster of the events which you want to know and remember, by embodying the spirit of you—the students, faculty and administration.

And the Fiat will change—not drastically or in a revolutionary manner—but in a rather natural way adjusting itself to new conditions here on campus. And through this change we will attempt to maintain the same high standards established by the editors of the last and of previous years who through the presentation of unbiased facts have endeavored to keep you informed about University activity and to keep you thinking about current problems.

Yes, the road of our future is not an easy one. Even now on campus we observe that because of the war enrollment has decreased, fewer courses are being offered, extra-curricular activity has been curtailed; we realize that if we can survive this crisis our efforts to keep the Fiat going until it can assume its rightful position in the post-war world will have been justly rewarded.

In This Sign

"In Hoc Signo Vincas," in this sign you conquer—It's the motto on a popular brand of cigarettes. I looked at it last Sunday afternoon and on that same afternoon I heard a choir singing the familiar phrase, "Praise Him Who Cometh to Bring Us Salvation."

Somehow, just then I felt for the first time that it was Holy Week and Easter was but seven days away. I thought for a moment of the day which had once meant colored eggs, chocolate bunnies and hidden baskets; which at another time had meant white robed choirs and yellow daffodils turned rainbow colored by sun shine through stained glass; which also had meant new hats and white gloves and a crowded church.

I thought, too, of the stories I had known since childhood—stories of the Last Supper, Gethsemane, the Crucifixion, the visits to the tomb and the Resurrection. And I wondered just what Easter would be like this year and just what it would mean.

It will be harder this year to find Easter bunnies. Tiny children may not know that they existed for this business of war leaves little time for delightful fantasy. The new hats will only point out more strongly the presence of the olive drab and the navy blue for the churches will be crowded with service men. White robed choirs will find it more difficult to sing, "Oh, Death, Where Is Thy Sting?" for they will know the sting of death themselves and will see it round about them. Those stories will appear in a new light this Easter when grief and anxiety are so close to the heart of every person.

As we bow our heads in prayer for those who are dying that we may live, we will be more conscious than ever before of the Christ who died on the cross to bring us salvation. We will see that cross as a sign through which he conquered and we will know that through it we too can conquer. War, destruction, death, will lose themselves in its shadows and we will raise our heads to sing, "Christ the Lord Is Risen Again, Alleluiah."

Editor's Mail Bag

Editor, Fiat Lux:

It's been a long time since I've written anything for the Fiat, 16 months to be exact. I've been going to write for a long time, and for a long time I've put off doing so.

It was really swell to get back to Alfred at Christmas time and see so many familiar faces that I hadn't seen since December, 1942. Outwardly, the campus and its aspects have changed greatly, but the old friendly spirit is still there. I thought that perhaps there I might get away from the army, only to see uniforms all over the place and to hear that very familiar "hut-twoing" of cadets on Main Street.

Chuck Hoffman ex-'45, has returned to camp after several months on Kiska, and he and I have spent long hours talking about the good old days back at A. U.—both wishing that we were back there. Right now, Chuck and I are the only two holding the fort for Alfred at Camp Hale.

Keep the Fiat coming! As long as the stage coaches and Pony Express keep making it up to these rugged peaks where the Mountain Troops are stationed, I'll keep reading it eagerly—even if I do know very few of the students now mentioned.

Sincerely,
Sgt. Dick Wilson

Death In A Foxhole

The warm joam of Rendova's damp jungle presses firmly against the small of my back, and streams of perspiration run down my forehead, stinging my eyes, and tasting salty. I gaze absent-mindedly at the battered butt of my Garand, wondering if I will ever take it home, with me, or if I will rot in the slime of some jungle swamp. Reflections come thick and fast when one is alone in the grip of nature's ear-shattering silence. Alone—but there is a mottled green helmet protruding over the fallen log to the left, and the click of a Garand's breech bolt reveals another to the right. I am alone, though. Alone to the mercy of my wildest fears, alone to face the reality of death.

The chatter of the monkeys in their high retreats reassure one that death is not too imminent; they remind me of a Ladies' Aid meeting at our church—home. I rub my sweaty palms on my grimy trousers, and tighten my grip on the Garand. I see the green helmet on my left raise itself; a match flickers feebly in the dimness of the undergrowth. Soon a puff of bluish-white smoke drifts over it. I reach for my cigarettes, following example. The close air is rent by the scream of a .25. The helmet disappears. Again there is silence. I put my cigarettes back in my pocket, and watch the thin, curly, wisp of smoke drift from above the log.

I crouch deeper in the foxhole, and think of that last night—at the Cafe Rouge—the smoke filled room—Jimmy Dorsey playing "Green Eyes". I wonder if she's thinking of me now, as she said she would. I wipe my lips, as if to brush away my unuttered thoughts. My eyes are watering now—the perspiration.

In front of me only the green wall of entangled undergrowth, and the eyes I know are watching for me to reveal myself. I reach forward to remove a clot of mud from my front sight. With a whip-like crack, a handful of dark earth is hurled into my eyes. I fall back in my foxhole, clutching my eyes, trying to remove the dirt that blinds them.

I relax now, with my eyes still smarting. The silence is punctuated with the high pitched scream of that sniper's .25. I seem to realize now, it is clear to me for the first time, that it is not going to hurt to die. The next time, yes, the next time. I will wait quietly, for I am alone now—no longer the helmet, no longer the click of the breech. Yes, I am alone now.

THE SOCIAL SWING

By Shirley Lane

Fireman's Hall was the scene of a very hilarious Gay Nineties Dance on Saturday night. The dance was sponsored by the Independents. Gay wall decorations featuring cancan girls and a barber shop quartet transformed the hall into an effective Gay Nineties scene.

There was round and square dancing from 8 til 12 with music for the square dancing furnished by Cynthia Leban '46 and David Powell '47 with David Weinrib '47 calling. The Palmer sound system provided the music for round dancing.

For entertainment a very amusing skit called "The Lamp Went Out" or "They Had Blackouts Then, Too," was presented with Doris Coutant '45 as Buttercup Sue, Douglas Case '45 as Grandma Uleer, Paul Cook '45, Vitalis Veneer, and Edgar Abramson '46 as One Nostril Pier Pont. Added varieties were Mae Barrus '46 as ballerina, Margaret Harper '47 as Tillian Busse the soubrette, Robert Bragman as the barber shop quartet, and Jean MacDonald '46 appeared in a pantomime as Sour Puss Sue.

Chaperones were Dr. and Mrs. Harold O. Boraas, Prof. and Mrs. John E. Whitcraft, Dr. and Mrs. K. O. Myrvaagnes, Prof. and Mrs. Leland E. Williams and Prof. and Mrs. W. C. Hinkle.

Refreshments of punch and doughnuts were served.

Jean MacDonald '46 was general chairman of the dance with David Weinrib in charge of entertainment, Rita Sargen '45, decorations, Jewell Karpell '47, refreshments, Paul Cook '45, advertising and Roy McCormick '47, tickets.

Theta Chi held formal initiation services for Mrs. Hazel Harvey, Ruth Ann Weitz '45, and Marilyn Searles '47, on Monday night. The honoraries attended and coffee and cookies were served as refreshments.

Not to completely break the tradition of the annual St. Pat's dance, Kappa Psi held a St. Pat's dance on Thursday, March 26. Decorations were the customary green and white for St. Patrick's day and the Campus Cheers furnished the music for dancing from 9 til 12. Dr. and Mrs. K. O. Myrvaagnes, Dr. and Mrs. S. R. Scholes and Prof. and Mrs. W. Varick Nevins, III were chaperons. Paul Meissner '47, as chairman of the dance, was assisted by Fred Clark '47 and Bob Wightman '47.

Due to the fact that spring vacation was such a short time ago, there was not much social activity at the houses last week. Theta Chi entertained Rita Haberman '47, at dinner on Tuesday night and Margaret Aylor '43, dined at Pi Alpha, Wednesday night.

Pfc. Guy Hartman '43 and Shirley Baldwin Hartman ex '44 were guests at Kappa Psi and Sigma Chi respectively for a few days last week. They were dinner guests at Kappa Psi Wednesday night.

Never does a vacation come to Alfred without someone's getting married. Our spring vacation proved no exception. Louise Hoyt, N.C., was married to William N. Karn, former A.S.T.P. student here in Baltimore, Md., on March 16.

Brookside held a combination wedding and birthday party on Thursday night for Louise Hoyt Karn and Doris Higbee. The festivity included a mock wedding in honor of the new bride and refreshments of ice cream, birthday cake and cookies were served.

On Words

Words, millions and millions of words all about us make the very air hum with their clamor! Think how many are used everyday, how many are wasted, how many are used over and over only to be discarded in a few months time. Words — queer things, pitiful things. The most misused and the most neglected things in this civilized world, yet no one could get along without them—they are indispensable.

Do you ever think of words, as words, not as a medium for expressing thoughts, not as a background for the threads of a conversational tapestry, not strung together like clothes on a line but as individuals, complete in themselves? Some even have a distinctive look. When you gaze at a word intently, do you ever notice how like itself it looks? Lou say it's not surprising, but it is. Humans look like themselves, humans have personality, but do words? They do. So dominated by the thoughts they express are they, that little notice is ever taken of them, themselves. Quizzical. . .bubbling. . .write them down, look at them in print. Don't they look quizzical, bubbling? Some words, not all, but some, look exactly as they are, such as gloomy, flamboyant and especially laugh and yawn. Words like these do have personality.

Not the words with connotations, not the words that bring thought, but the individual words with enough strength to attract notice by their intrinsic value, words that have the power to jump out of the printed page.

Not the sound words, the olfactory, the visionary words, not those depending on the physical sensations of hearing, smelling and seeing, such as plop! or bang. . .sweet, dank, spicy. . .sunny, dreary, but just the little words—merry, jinx, gloomy—words that are able to stand alone—scribble, comfortable, daze. Maybe it's because we

Women At Work

In the still of the night (that is, about 6:30 a.m.) on week-end mornings, some Alfred students are actually up and busy. Yes, before dawn one may hear the rustle of stiff aprons at Delta Sig as girls prepare for the big day ahead of them. Or Brookside may resound with frantic whispers in a search for hair nets or shears. Even the Castle may be in a scene of chaos as a few girls grope around in the dark, trying not to wake the lazy girls who sleep that late in the morning, but succeeding only in bumping into the noisiest furniture.

Seven-thirty finds them rushing to the appointed gas station, scrambling into a station wagon—each one the absolute epitome of a poised and efficient nurse. On arriving at Hornell, they unfold each other from the tightly packed group, enter the hospital, and wait for their assignments for the day.

One girl starts out very energetically thinking about the meager eight or nine hours ahead of her before she can find out whether that all important letter came today or not. As the day wears on, she wilts and the last half-hour seems ten times as long as the eight hours she faced at the beginning. Another girl, completely absorbed in her work, is startled to find an old man trying to flirt with her. Of course, such things must be ignored and in this case, she doesn't mind.

But it isn't all as simple as this. The nurses have to do things that aren't any fun, things that are tiring and revolting. Most of them enjoy it however, even though it is hard work. They come home at night tired, but usually happy with the feeling of having learned something more about nursing and about people.

Salt Lake City—(ACP)—Senior mechanical engineering students at the University of Utah are finding plenty of opportunities to apply their education to practical engineering problems.

War-time priorities have created shortages of new engineering equipment and replacement parts at the school. Yet the presence of new and improved equipment in the laboratories attests the practicability of the training received and the ingenuity of the students.

Women To Apply For Athletic Board Positions

On the bulletin board in the girls' gym is posted a paper for the signing up of managers for various sports.

These sports consist of Hockey, Archery, Fencing, Basketball, Minor Sports, Point Recorder, Badminton, Softball, Publicity, Tennis and Skiing.

Those wishing to be a manager must sign their names before April 15. The WAG board will meet to vote on the prospective managers.

Gilbert and Sullivan Feature at Music Hour

"Pirates of Penzance" from Gilbert and Sullivan was the feature of Sunday's Music Hour from 2:00 to 3:00 p.m. in Social Hall.

Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd Lowenstein were in charge of the program. Copies of the libretto were distributed to facilitate understanding of the selections.

Food For Thought

The following poem was found in THE LINK, a magazine published by the National Council of Service Men's Christian League for servicemen. Its author is Melvin B. Tolson, its title "Rendezvous with America".

A blind man said,
"Look at the kikes."
And I saw

Rosenwald sowing the deeds of culture in the Black Belt.

Michelson measuring the odysseys of invisible worlds,
Brandeis opening the eyes of the blind to the Constitution,
Boas translating the oneness of mankind.

A blind man said,
"Look at the dagoes."
And I saw

La Guardia shaping the cosmos of pyramided Manhattan,
Brumidi verving the Capitol frescoes of "Washington at Yorktown."

Caruso scaling the Alpine ranges of drama with the staff of song,
Toscanini enchanting earthward the music of the spheres.

A blind said,
"Look at the chinks."
And I saw

Lin Yutang crying the World Charter in the white man's wilderness,
Dr. Chen charting the voyages of bacteria in the Lilly Laboratories,
Lu Cong weaving plant-tapestries in the Department of Agriculture,
Madame Chiang Kai-Shek interpreting the Orient and the Occident.

A blind man said,
"Look at the Niggers."
And I saw

Black Sampson mowing down Hessians with a scythe at Brandywine,

Marian Anderson bewitching continents with the talisman of art,
Douglas hurling phillippics of freedom from tombstones.

Private Brooks dying at the feet of MacArthur in Bataan.

WAVES Teach Navy Pilots Gunnery

WAVES operate synthetic gunnery training devices—not actual aircraft machine guns—but this girl is finding out what the real thing is like. Hundreds of Navy fliers who today are shooting down Jap and Nazi planes received their primary machine gun training under tutelage of the girls in Navy blue. The Navy needs—and needs now—thousands of girls for exciting, as well as prosaic, jobs with the WAVES. Information is available at any Navy Recruiting Station or Office of Naval Officer Procurement.

More than a year ago, the government said it needed immediate training of college women to meet the demands of war. As more men go into the armed forces, the need grows for women in various types of war service. Here are the up-to-date stories of important vacancies for women today—vacancies which the government is trying hard to fill.

In time of war, the armed forces have the first claim upon men and women alike. But the response of American women to the call of the armed forces has been, on the whole, a somewhat sad one. Thousands of additional recruits are needed, and some of them, in terms of the womanpower supply and demand, must come from our colleges.

The WAC has reported that on January 1, 1944, its strength was 62,859 officers and enlisted women. Line that up against the authorized strength of the WAC—200,000 women, many of whom are required for overseas service.

If you don't want to go overseas, you can still release another person for it. Recently the WAC has been recruiting for specific station assignments permitting candidates to apply for a specific job on the basis of their previous experience. Qualified college women who enlist in the WAC have a good chance to become officers and to continue working in their major field at a place of their own choosing.

The WAVES still need additional officer candidates, who will be recruited from civilian life. WAVE present strength is nearly 50,000 women. It's expected to reach 100,000 by the end of this year.

The Navy is now selecting college graduates more on the basis of their ability to do certain jobs than on the basis of general personal qualifications. Although the jobs for which personnel is needed varies from time to time, you have a good chance of finding a spot where you can use your college major.

At present the WAVES greatest needs are for aerologists, mathematicians, physicists, instructors in air navigation, supply corps officers and officers for medical research.

The SPARS prefer college graduates with at least three years of work experience. College women who worked before entering school and during summer vacations can help to fill SPAR openings for lawyers, pay and supply officers, communications, ordnance and personnel officers.

Maybe you want to be a MARINE.

That branch of the service is recruiting officer candidates to work as specialists in various fields or as general duty officers.

Remember—enlistment in the armed forces adds up to more than patriotic service. You will receive the same benefits as our men in the armed forces. A bill is now in Congress to provide for veterans who meet certain standards a year of education at government expense. If this particular bill, which is sponsored by Senator

Activities Of The WSSF

The World Student Service Fund is one of the principal organizations to which the Alfred CCC contributes.

Following is a communication from the WSSF telling what it is doing in needy countries:

More than 30,000 refugees have flooded into Italy during the past few months, according to the World Student Service Fund, the student war relief agency which is related to the National War Fund. Most of the refugees are anti-Fascist Italians, and there are also thousands of Yugoslavs and Greeks, as well as numbers of escaped British prisoners of war formerly held in Italy.

"Two thousand of this great influx of refugees are students," writes the World Student Service Fund. "They are eager to take up their studies again while they are in Switzerland. Thus they will be equipped to play their part as leaders in the reconstruction of their own countries after the war."

The Swiss authorities have placed the Italians in work camps where they do useful work which pays in part for their board and keep. At the same time the authorities recognize the special needs of the student group. They have placed them in special "university camps" where the World Student Service Fund's administering committee in Geneva has organized academic work. Classes are carried on by professors from the Swiss universities who voluntarily give their services. "It must be remembered," the World Student Service Fund writes "that many of the Italian students are able to read and study whatever they wish, in a free university set-up, for the first time in their careers." The help from the World Student Service Fund provides books, study materials and some laboratory equipment for the university camps.

The Yugoslav students number 250, and the Greeks 40. For both, individual admission into the Swiss universities has been arranged. The Swiss educational authorities recognize the World Student Service Fund's committee as the accrediting agency for these students who have entered the country without university transcripts or records of any kind. Fees, books, and study materials are provided by the WSSF at approximately $8.00 per month per student.

The significance of the training of such key persons has already been demonstrated through the Polish internees in Switzerland whom the WSSF's committee has been helping for

Rev. Sangree Guest Speaker At Installation

A special Palm Sunday service was held Sunday evening, April 2, at 7:45 in the Gothic with a guest speaker, Rev. M. Huyett Sangree, pastor of the First Congregational Church in Wellsville. At this time the new members of the ACF cabinet were installed.

Rev. Sangree spoke on "The Way of a Leader," emphasizing the essentials of leadership—convictions and the courage to express them. A leader must have faith in something if he wants to convince and inspire others.

Acknowledgement of his leadership comes rarely in a leader's life, if at all, but the opportunities are numerous for the one who dares to speak.

The new cabinet includes Yutaka Kobayashi '46, president; Helen Dreher '45, first vice president; Paul Meisner '47, second vice president; Doris Coutant '45, secretary-treasurer; Doris Comfort '46, Beth Fay '45, Betty Lou Fontaine '46, Ruth Weitz '45, Eva Rodies '47, Emma Burdick '45, Esther Burdick '45, Coreene Chapman '46, Herbert McKinstry '47, Roberta Wells '47, Robert Burdick '47.

Capital To Campus

Thomas of Utah, does not pass, it's almost certain that similar legislation will make the grade.

Within the last few months, thousands of job openings have been leaving ugly gaps in the programs of Federal agencies. Many of the top jobs have been filled by persons already working for the government—by the process of moving them up a notch or two.

On the whole, jobs are plentiful in the lower brackets, which range from $1620 a year to $2200 plus overtime. You can't step out of college right into a $3200 job, however. Civil Service will give you $1620 to $2000 on the basis of your education and your standing in its examinations.

If you're good and if a higher vacancy exists—and the way things look now, it will—you'll have a crack at a $2600 job at the end of your first year.

While you're in the lower brackets, one of your gripes will undoubtedly be the fact that most government stenographers get $1620 to $2000. One of the cruel facts of Washington life is the higher standard set for professional jobs with resulting apprenticeship at secretarial pay. But professionals are compensated by higher and more rapid hikes in their semi-monthly paychecks.

Civil Service particularly needs women with training in public or business administration, economics, economic geography, library science, history, public welfare, statistics, mathematics and agriculture.

Its secondary needs are for women in the fields of chemistry, engineering, geology, metallurgy, meteorology, physics and soil conservation.

If you don't find yourself among these fields, the chances are still good that you can find a job in Washington. Many of the male employees of the government have children and are only now receiving their induction notices. The next two months will see a tremendous turnover among Federal department staffs in all fields.

Certain training does not fit too well into the demands of government. Students with majors in English, modern languages, music and education may find themselves in clerical positions in Washington.

Many an English student, for example, has arrived at Union Station with the hope of getting some kind of government writing job. Frequently their jobs turn out to be writing letters for the signature of section chiefs or other persons on an administrative staff.

A fifteen-week course in Fundamentals of Engineering is given at Johns Hopkins University. Tuition is free and students receive $20 weekly to cover living expenses.

Two years of college training include college mathematics and fundamentals in chemistry or physics are required to qualify for this training.

Supervisors' Conference To Discuss New Building

A supervisors' conference will be held in the College April 10 to determine details of the new Ceramic College building.

The conference will be attended by officials from the State Planning Commission and the State Department of Budget, the architects and the Ceramic College administration.

Personalities In The News

A "bee in the bonnet" of a west Texas druggist who got himself elected to the legislature has resulted in a University of Texas cancer hospital and research program, recently dedicated in Houston.

Traceable to one man—who pledged himself that if elected he would work to obtain state support for a program to seek a cure for one of man's most tragic diseases—is the dream that now has materialized in the form of the university's M. D. Anderson Hospital for Cancer Research.

That man is Representative Arthur Cato, who introduced in 1941 a bill to establish facilities for cancer study in this state, and who followed the measure through conferences with medical experts of Texas, through legislative committees, even to the floor of the senate as a guest speaker.

Dr. F. W. Meckelman, former professor in the Methodist college, Tokyo, warns America the Jap shipping shortage may be a dangerous myth.

Prof. August C. Krey has been made chairman of the University of Minnesota department of history, succeeding the late Dr. Lester B. Shippee.

Dr. Alexander G. Ruthven, president of the University of Michigan, took his Ph.D. at Michigan in 1906 and has been there continuously since.

Attends Educational Meeting

Prof John Reed Spicer attended important educational meetings in Chicago March 20 and 21. The program dealt with matters concerning the future of liberal education, and was therefore pertinent to University's plans on post-war education.

Disillusionment From The Start

Spring vacation! Thost two magic words sure sound wonderful. Just think, I'll be able to sleep 'til noon every day and then just take my time and sleep and eat. After that I can eat and sleep. I'll get a wonderful rest. Be all pepped up for work when I get back to school. Maybe I'll even be able to get my term paper done in between my sleeping and eating. Gee, I bet Mom will have all my favorite dishes.

Disillusionment? Right from the start. Getting to Hornell to the train is the beginning of it all. If they pack one more person into this bus, the sides probably will fall out. As it is, every other person has to inhale while the person next to him exhales.

Now comes the train station. Such a pleasant place to wait for a train that's three hours late. The congenial atmosphere of the musty walls, flickering lights and unknown companions is just the way to start a vacation. Well, at least I'll be able to sleep on the train.

Did I say sleep? That was just wishful thinking. If you want to sleep on this train, you have to be a contortionist to get your arms and legs all in one chair. Oh well, the trip can't last forever.

The light of dawn! And just think we're getting in only four hours late. I hope my family hasn't deserted me, because if they aren't at the station and I have to lug these bags all the way home, they'll have to iron me out by the time I get in the house. No family in sight. A clear case of desertion. Oh well, I always did want to show them that I have brains enough to get home by myself.

Home sweet home. Gosh, the old place looks pretty good and I sure have swell parents. If that bed doesn't look good! Nine o'clock, guess I'll go to bed and start my vacation with a good night's rest. But, Mother, I've told you everything there is to tell about what's happened to me in the last three months. It isn't as though I'd been away for a year. I guess I did forget to tell you about the intersorority ball. Well,.... My goodness, it's two o'clock already and I was going to get a good night's rest. If anybody wakes me up before noon tomorrow, I won't be responsible for my actions.

Hey, it's only seven o'clock, why do I have to get up? But, Mom, can't you do your spring cleaning after I go back to school? Of course, you realize, I'd just love to help you, but I know I'd just get in your way. Oh, you don't think I would. O. K., I give up.

Here half my vacation is over and I haven't done a thing but clean house.

How does a house get so dirty? When I get married, my house will never get like this. Guess I'll stay in bed all day tomorrow and get back some of my lost energy. Say, Mom what are we having for dinner tonight? Oh, I'll have to get my own because you're too tired. Well, I guess I'm not very hungry.

But, Mother, I was going to stay in bed today. I don't know why I have to go visiting relatives. They've all lived this long without seeing me, I don't know why they've all suddenly decided that they can't get along another day unless they see me.

Three days of visiting. I've been the devoted niece and grand-daughter of so many relatives, I'm beginning to feel as though my smile is glued on and my face is going to crack.

Well, good-bye parents. It really has been a wonderful vacation and you've both been swell. And thanks for that money, Dad.

Thank goodness this train is moving at last. It sure will be good to get back to Alfred so I can get some rest. Oh, Oh, it seems to me I remember something about a term paper....

Son Born To Spicers

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Reed Spicer at Bethesda Hospital Hornell, March 21. Young Spicer's name is James Burdick Spicer; he is named after his great-grandfather, James Reed Burdick. Mr. Burdick is reputed to have been the first licensed pharmacist in Allegheny County, and one time operated a store on the present site of Prexy's Pool.

On Words

know their meanings and associate them perhaps unconsciously, but I think that even if we didn't know their exact (there's another—exact) meaning, they would still look as a drizzle or howl should look and would be immediately recognizable.

Think of words, look for words yourself. They can be, as in this case, rather inadequate. The theory of personality words is an elusive one, lost if examined too closely. It can best be appreciated by personal experience, by looking about you as you read. Don't you see them? There they are—yawn, flamboyant, bubbling and all the rest. Don't you see them? There!

Training Courses For Women Offered By New York Bank

The Chase National Bank of New York City is offering a training course to College women.

These women, preferably Seniors, will be selected to receive training in some of the routine phases of bank clerical work. Later, they are permanently assigned to those positions they are best fitted for.

Those employed may, after preliminary training, go into analytical or research work; credit investigation or be trained in the handling of securities, loans, and foreign exchange. Women who have had some accounting or economics are able to apply their training more quickly, but Liberal Arts students may also succeed in these positions.

Those people interested may see Dean D. K. Degan.

Teaching Contracts Signed By Seniors

Nellie Haehn '44 and Elaine Beckstrand '44 have signed contracts to teach next year at Springville, N. Y. Miss Haehn will teach classes in history and Miss Beckstrand, English.

Dr. Seidlin announced that there are other contracts pending for those people who plan to teach next year, and that these would probably be given out by the end of this week.

four years. Those who have completed their university education in hospitable Switzerland are now spending their time in teaching their fellow countrymen of less than university grade who are interned in Switzerland. Others prepare study courses in Polish which are sent to Polish prisoners of war in Germany, and which will undoubtedly be used in the beginnings of educational rehabilitation in post-war Poland. The same significant results can be expected from the splendid improvised educational plan now being carried out among Italian and Yugoslav students. This work is made possible to a large extent because of the generous support which American colleges have given to the World Student Service Fund and the National War Fund.
