MUCH ENTHUSIASM BEING SHOWN

Much interest is being shown in the coming Frosh-Soph track meet Thursday afternoon.

This meet is, as has already been explained, for the purpose of discovering track material in the underclasses.

It will be a part of the underclass contests, and should prove to be very interesting, inasmuch as the present Sophomore class won the interclass contest last year, while all indications point to a winning Frosh track team this year.

SLIGHT CHANGE IN REGISTRA-TION—NEW COURSES OFFERED

With the opening of Agricultural faculty as well as in the curriculum.

Prof. Nelson has gone to take a position in Connecticut and Mr. H. L. Smith now has charge of the classes in Animal Husbandry formerly taught by Prof. Nelson.

Prof. Cone, who has been for the last year taking graduate work and also doing some instructing at Cornell State School of Agriculture, has returned from his leave of absence and is taking up his former work here.

Mr. Hildebrand now has charge of the woodworking classes in place of Prof. Potter.

Registration this year in the Ag School is only slightly larger than last year at this time, but it is expected that a number of students will still register. In spite of the small increase in the total registration, however, the membership of the Rural Teachers' class has more than doubled that of last year.

Mr. Lloyd Robinson offers a new course in Advanced Farm Management. In addition to this, Mr. Camenga is organizing a class in Dairy Plant Management. This has never been attempted here before but seems to be attracting considerable popularity among the Ag School students.

RECORD CROWD FEATURES SUNDAY NIGHT MEETING

DR. NORWOOD ADDRESSES Y. M. AND Y. W.

"Religion at Alfred University in the last several years has never been more profound than it is now, nor has it had less regard for connections," said Dr. Norwood in his address on "Collegiate Religion and its Pitfalls" at the joint meeting of the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A's in the Brick, Sunday evening.

"Never has there been a more moral atmosphere," he continued, "nor never has there been less regard for the perpetuating forces of religion. Tt is not peculiar to this college, but the same tendencies and temptations are noted elsewhere.

"The college student has no use for $i_{\text{from a n in}}j_{\text{ury}-}$ sham. He is at the age when he is The excuses applied for by Irvin hardest to fool, namely the age from Qonroe and Lyte Cady for absence 16 to 23 years. Every thought is sifted to see if therein lieth any truth.

"The college student is away from home for perhaps the first time,—for in town for a few days. the first time when he is practically his own boss. The environment is radically different and the student must adjust himself to it. It seems to be the pleasure of the college student at this time to educate himself to the capacity not to be shocked. He pretends a way wiseness. He resembles a colt, let out into a great pasture.

"There is a danger of underestimating the value and importance of external religious conditions. There was a time when people said, and there are many who say it yet 'that if the'pjat: heart is right nothing else matters.' That's all right but if your heart is right it doesn't do any harm to show end. it's right, does it?

"The attitude of external unemotionalism is very apt to develop into an indifference. Never give up a good thing you've got until you've got something better. It holds true to religion.

"Force yourself to some kind of regular observances. Go to church! Go to chapel!

"I don't remember what text the minister happened to have used seventeen weeks ago, neither do I remember what I had for breakfast on that particular Sunday seventeen weeks ago: but like the breakfast, the sermon did me good.

Then follows ways to be thorough, committee organization and management, a program analysis, keeping in touch with the congregation with special emphasis laid on the group plan of organization, and la working program for the church. A church loses by spending its energy upon stunts but it ought to have a major program for a whole year such as membership, financial, benevolent, or religious education.

> There is much to be gained by finding the story or news element in church affairs for the local newspaper. In his last chapter Rev. Leach tells how to get the most from volunteer help, a chapter which with the first three is quite pertinent to the problems of the modern pastor.
