Murder in Alfred

Roosting crows reminiscent of Alfred Hitchcock's 'Birds'

By DAVID L. SNYDER

Editor, Publisher & Janitor

.132, No. 3

ALFRED—Have you seen the crows? Most evenings at dusk, a murder of crows-hundreds of them, if not more, roost in the trees in the Village of Alfred.

"Sometimes they roost in the trees surrounding our house," explained Bill La-Course, a Reynolds Street resident, "and sometimes downtown around the Colle-

Some students have commented that "They're creepy when they're all swirling around above you.'

Many view the appearance of crows as an omen of death because crows, like their cousins the ravens, are scavengers and are generally associated with dead bodies, battlefields, and cemeteries.

They're thought to circle in large numbers above sites where animals or people are expected to soon die. It makes some (including me) think of Alfred Hitchcock's horror flick, "The Birds."

And Alfred Hitchcock takes me back to my childhood. Watching the Alfred Hitchcock Hour on television, I often wondered then how odd it was that I lived in a town named Alfred where the doctor and pharmacist were named Hitchcock.

But back to the crows.

Betsy Brooks, aka "The Bird Lady" to many because of her ornithological expertise and her "For the Birds" column in this paper, recalls the many crows in the fields behind her home on Jericho Hill.

"In the late fall, I used to see hundreds of crows fly into and around the field above where I live on Jericho Hill in the late afternoon," she said, "but it always seemed as if they left and went somewhere else just before dark.'

She said there's a famous, huge crow roost in one of the cemeteries in Late one Wednesday afternoon recently, I was driving back from delivering newspapers in Andover. As I turned from Kenyon Road onto County Route 12, the athletic field on Jericho Hill along the road was covered with crows, many of them taking flight as I drove by.

Likewise, there are often crows in the old pine trees on the Alfred University

Crows are known for their intelligence. their adaptability, and for their loud harsh "Caw! Caw! Caw!"

Frank Snyder of Belmont, who grew up on his family's farm on Randolph Road in Alfred, had a pet crow as a youngster.

A couple of young crows were found having fallen from their nest to the ground so he placed them in a potato crate and began to feed and care for them.

One day, Dad told me he thought it was time to let them go," Frank said, "So we did. One flew off and we never saw it again. The other one kept coming back."

Snyder said that after a couple years, the pet crow was shot by students who were hunting in one of the fields.

'It was probably just as well," he said, "That crow could be a real nuisance. He stole things and hid them away in a tree. He even removed wipers from car windshields.'

Alina Bradford, a contributor to Live Science, told of the crow's intelligence: "They are known for their problem-solving skills and amazing communication skills. For example, when a crow encounters a mean human, it will teach other crows how to identify the human. In fact, research shows that crows don't forget a

Remembering former Alfred State President Bill Rezak

ALFRED-Dr. William D. Rezak who led Alfred State as president from 1993 until he retired in 2003 is being remembered as an accomplished educator, engineer, author, benefactor, and good friend. Rezak passed away on Saturday, January 14, 2017 after battling cancer. A memorial service is planned for Saturday, January 21 in Orlando, FL.

"Bill was an outstanding president to work under as a vice president," stated SUNY Distinguished Teaching Professor and longtime member of Alfred State's Business Department Jim Grillo. "He was extremely supportive of his people, and under his leadership, we significantly expanded our bachelor's degrees, and began to increase our enrollment. Bill will be remembered as a tremendous mentor and good friend to many of us here at Alfred State.'

"Bill was a tremendous advocate for students and remained a great supporter of Alfred State College," stated President Dr. Skip Sullivan. "This pioneer will be missed."

Bill Rezak, president of Alfred State 1993 - 2003.

President Rezak was instrumental in adding baccalaureate programs to the former two-year technical college. In 1996 he created the Alfred State College Development Fund for enlisting alumni support and the college's endowment quadrupled during his tenure. During his administration funding and enrollment declined across SUNY institutions but enrollment increased at Alfred State while also raising standards for student selectivity.

While Alfred State's President, Rezak was also honored to be on the Allegany County United Way Board of Directors, serving as both campaign chair and president for multiple years. Alfred State students with financial need continue to benefit from the Radia Khouri Rezak Family Endowed Scholarship established in 1994. His generosity is also reflected in sponsorship of a leadership suite for clubs and benevolent organizations at the Student Leadership Center.

His beloved wife Paula died in late 2006. As first lady of Alfred State, she was a founder of the Rainbow Union. She established the Paula Rezak Memorial Library Collection, which includes books, movies and additional resources that are constantly updated for the LGBTQ community. Bill and Paula also established an endowed fund

Prior to Alfred State, Rezak was Dean of the School of Technology at Southern Polytechnic State University in Marietta, Georgia. Before entering higher education, he spent 18 years in engineering, design and construction of power generation facilities, both nuclear and fossil fueled. He earned a Bachelor of Science in Mechanical Engineering from Lehigh University where he played on Lehigh's 1961 Lambert Cup Championship Football Team. He also has a Masters in Mechanical Engineering from Stevens Institute of Technology, and a Ph.D. in Human Resource Development from Georgia State University. He was a registered professional engineer in several states.

In retirement Rezak authored a book entitled "The Arab and the Brit: The Last of the Welcome Immigrants" a memoir that spans multiple generations and countries. Born of a Palestinian

For the Birds. By BETSY BROOKS

Alfred Sun Columnist

For the Birds (from Texas)

ur Wednesday morning bird walk at the Nature Center was a bit of a disappointment. We saw the usual birds but missed the rarities that had been seen the day before. But this group of birders just doesn't give up. We decided to head for San Barnard Wildlife Refuge, a 45,730-acre coastal refuge, a 45minute drive from Bay City, to see what was going on there

On the road in to the refuge, we stopped to greet David Sarkozi, famous in 'big year' birding, who was doing another 'Texas Big Year' (he did one last year too!). On Jan 1, 2017 – he reported "I'm off and running on another Texas Big Year, 95 species today in a short birding day." He told us he had just added four species at the refuge to his list of birds seen already in 2017.

We started our birding with a walk on a trail along the edge of a pond, where we saw Pied-billed Grebes. On the drive around Moccasin Lake we added Ruddy Duck, Bufflehead, and Gadwall, American Wigeon, Northern Pintail, Northern Shoveler, and Ring-necked Duck. I was surprised at how many alligators I saw. The number of waterfowl can be overwhelming!

Driving back to Bay City, we saw many Loggerhead Shrikes perched on the wires along the roads, but I have been surprised by how few Sandhill Cranes are in the fields so far. Surely it's cold enough for them to have moved south, but I have yet to see more than 20 or so cranes in any field.

When we first starting staying at Berts' RV Park in Bay City, we were told that there were four poisonous snakes that had been seen on the property over the years – Copperheads, Rattlesnakes, Cottonmouths, and Coral Snakes. In previous years in Texas, I had seen Cottonmouths and (dead) rattlesnakes, but not in the RV park. Laura's dog had jumped over a rattlesnake while they were hiking near Austin several years ago. Since we stay here in Bay City just during the winter months, we don't expect to see many snakes, much less poisonous snakes.

When I got home on Wednesday afternoon, after birding at San Barnard, I took Smiley for his usual walk on the dike by the canal at Berts. It was a very warm day, and I usually let him go off-leash when we get away from the campground, so he can get some exercise. He ran ahead of me along the canal and stopped at a tree about 30 yards ahead of me.

When I caught up to him, he seemed preoccupied with sniffing something on the ground. My heart nearly stopped when I saw he was nosing a Coral Snake!! I had memorized the rhyme which would identify a Coral Snake from a similar looking harmless King Snake, and I was pretty sure I was remembering it correctly. "Red next to Yellow can harm a fellow!" And red next to yellow stripes was exactly what I saw!!! Smiley must have heard the panic in my voice, because he immediately came to me. Needless to say, I am much more alert while walking on the dike now!

Library exhibits works of Hogarth Press

ALFRED—Examples books published by Britain's historic Hogarth Press, founded 100 years ago by two of the dominant literary figures of the early 20th century, Virginia and Leonard Woolf, are on view through February in the main reading room of Alfred University's Herrick Memorial Library. The display is open to visitors weekdays during normal business hours and on weekend after-

The exhibit's centerpiece is a slim volume known to bibliophiles as the Woolfs' debut publishing venture. Dated 1917 and titled "Two Stories"—one by each—the book was part of a run of 150 copies printed on the couple's dining room table using a hand-cranked letterpress. Virginia Woolf set the type herself as therapy for recurring bouts of mental illness.

Herrick Library display features early examples of books published by Britain's historic Hogarth Press founded a century ago.

'Remember that terrible casserole?'

[Editor's Note: Like most of the recipes she shared with our readers over the past couple of decades, Ellen Shultz's Sunny Side Up columns are worth repeating.]

When I was growing up my mother used to make what she called "Seven Layer Dinner." It was a casserole of various vegetables layered with browned ground beef. I hated it, but it was a good way to make one pound of ground beef go far and, perhaps, force us kids to eat vegetables.

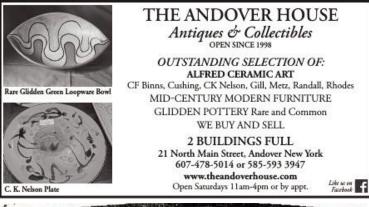

This is a vegetable casserole recipe I found at a church dinner in Jamestown, NY. It looked a lot like the hated "Seven Layer Dinner" but tasted delicious. I have made it frequently through the years. Probably my kids say, "Remember that terrible vegetable casserole Mom used to make?

Those of you with grown-up tastes will find it delicious. Vegetable Casserole

1 can peas, drained 1 c. drained and mashed canned 1 c. sliced mushrooms, drained

1/2 c. grated cheddar cheese 1 c. buttered bread crumbs

1 1/2 c. medium rich white sauce 10 strips cooked bacon, crumbled In greased 2 qt. baking dish layer 1/2 of the peas, tomatoes, white sauce, bacon, cheese and mushrooms. Repeat layers. Cover with buttered crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until lightly browned and bubbling. Makes about six portions.

Press had grown from a cottage industry into a mainstream—although still small and independent—London publishing house. Operating today as Hogarth Books, the Woolfs' original enterprise is an imprint of Crown Publishing Group, a subsidiary of Penguin Random House, the global media conglomerate.

Accompanying the Alfred display is a 1931 handwritten letter by Virginia Woolf complaining of a headache that often signaled the onset of what now would be called an episode of manic-depressive psychosis. The severity of her illness led eventually to the writer's suicide by drowning, in 1941. She was 59. Leonard Woolf died in 1969. He was 89.

The books and letter currently on view are part of the extensive holdings of the university's Openhym Collection of Modern British Literature and Social History, housed at Herrick Library.

The acquisition of this scholarly resource of some 9,000 volumes and 500 letters and manuscripts had been the life's work of the late Evelyn Openhym of Wellsville, an Alfred alumna and trustee. She donated her collection to the university in

Mrs. Openhym died Monday, Jan. 13, 1992. Much of her obituary appears in the "Years Ago" column under the 25 Years Ago on page 8 of this issue.

Alfred resident Alan Littell reminds the Sun that he, his wife, Caroline, and Carole Burdick, also of Alfred, spread Evelyn's ashes behind the Alfred University carillon while in the keyboard cabin above, carilloneur Joanne Droppers played a loud but suitable dirge.

Jim Ninos seeking Village Board seat

Open letter to the Editor:

Greetings, my name is Jim Ninos and I am running for the position of Village Trustee on the Alfred Village Board. I think the best way to start is from the beginning.

For the most part I have lived in the Alfred area most my life. I graduated from Alfred-Almond Central School in 1969. I served in the U.S. Army as a tanker with the 2 Battalion, of the 34th Armor-Vietnam, 25 Infantry Division where I received a Bronze Star and Purple Heart for wounds received in combat.

Afterwards I came back home and applied to the University of Colorado where I completed my Bachelors of Fine Art Degree. Before leaving Colorado, I married Karrie Edwards and we immediately left for Rochester, New York where I started my Masters of Fine Arts degree in photography at Rochester Institute of Technology.

Then we came back to Alfred where I started a teaching position at Alfred State Collage in the Communications Media Dept. After five years, they closed the program and we were at a major intersection in our lives. We had school where I received my teaching certificate from Alfred University.

Next came Jasper-Troupsburg Central School where I became the new art teacher for a newly merged district. Not having enough on my plate I was elected to the Andover Board of Education, where I served as President of the Board for one of five years and Vice President for three.

Because of being on the Board of Education and working with administrators, I thought that I could make a difference and went back to school to become an administrator. I went to SUNY Cortland and received my Certificate of Advanced Studies in School Administration. I completed my certification as a school district administrator and was hired by Andover Central School as its new principal. I held that position for three years and realized it was not what I thought I would be. The art teacher left Andover and I became the new art teacher where I really belonged.

While I was working on my new degree we moved my family (Karrie and our two boys Kolby and Trevor,) to Alfred, just five miles down the road. Once again, my plate had room so I ran for the Alfred Almond Board of Education and enjoyed my fiveyear tenure.

What's next? I became a part of the Allegany County Planning bought a house in Andover and Board for District Five and I'm we didn't really want to move still a member of the board. Reagain. Home and family ties cently I was appointed to the caused me to return back to Zoning Board of Appeals for the Village in the summer of 2016. This fall I was asked to chair the Tiny House Committee and we are in the process of completing our charge.

Alfred has always been an important part of my life. The history, its natural beauty, and most important my home and family. I became president of the Bakers Bridge Historical Association and I am part of the Allegany Historical Round Table.

The one thing I feel about becoming a member of the Alfred Village Board is I'm not tied to either college. I understand the importance of both schools but I feel the community is of paramount importance. The number of families living in the village is growing smaller every year and the sense of village that I grew up with is slowly disappearing. Family homes that we grew up with are becoming rentals or taken off the tax roll as part of the two universities.

Change is inevitable, but how it changes is what I care most about and that is why I would like to serve as a member of the Alfred Village Board

> Sincerely, Jim Ninos

Bradford reported that many types of crows are solitary, but they will often forage in groups. Others stay in large groups, called a murder. With some crow species, the yearlings and non-mating adults live in a group called a roosting community.

As foragers, crows clean up dead animals and garbage. They also consume insects that may be damaging crops.

Crows are omnivores, which means they eat nearly anything. Crows eat small animals such as mammals, amphibians, reptiles, eggs and carrion. They also eat insects, seeds, grains, nuts, fruit, non-insect arthropods, mollusks, worms and even other birds.

Crows have also been noted eating garbage and store food in caches, short-term, in trees or on the ground, just like Frank Snyder's

Crows and ravens are important in mythology, fables and native cultures. They are often identified as clever tricksters. In some cultures, they are symbols of good luck; in others, they bring bad luck.

Let's just hope Alfred's crows bring good fortune. Or this writer may be eating crow for an murderous headline.

Allegany County Legislator

WHAT JUST HAPPENED? PUZZLING POLITICAL VIEWS

The first "regular" meeting of the Allegany County Legislature for 2017 was held on January 9th at 2:00 p.m. in the Legislative Chambers in Belmont. Thirteen Legislators were present, with Legislators Jessup and McGraw absent. Former Army Specialist Fourth Class Vincent Tabone led us in the Pledge of Allegiance. He currently serves as the Commander of Robert Howden Post 1504 Belfast American Legion, as well as Sergeant at Arms for the County American Legion and County Vietnam Veterans Organization.

Privilege of the Floor was granted to Allegany County Area Foundation Executive Director Denis Dahlgren. He provided an annual report on the Area Foundation. This past year they awarded more than $254,000 as scholarships and grants to area students and organizations. Since it was founded the Foundation has awarded more than $3 million. All of the Foundation's resources came from donations made by generous individuals. One of the largest contributions came from Belva Waite, of Rushford. She was a wonderful individual who touched lives as a friend, neighbor and local businessperson. She continues to touch lives through scholarships for our young people. One of the Foundation's newest scholarship funds was established to honor Betty Embser Wattenberg. She also was a kind and giving individual who made life better for all who knew her. This fund is a fitting tribute in her memory.

The Board considered four resolutions. I thought all four resolutions were routine since they had come up through the usual committee process. I was mistaken. Resolution #5-17 approved the Board Chairman's appointment of Michael D. Hennessy as Director of the County Veterans' Service Agency. Mike has served in this capacity for several years and does an outstanding job. His re-appointment was unanimously approved. Resolution 6-17 re-appointed Valerie Perkins, Larry Kaminski, Aaron Dale Foster and Jon Gorton to the County Planning Board. It also appointed Legislator Charles Jessup, Superintendent of Public Works Guy James, and County Treasurer Terri Ross as ex-officio members of the County Planning Board for 2017.

Resolution #7-17 proposed the re-appointment of Legislators Karl Graves and Judith Hopkins to the County Soil and Water Conservation District Board. This should have been a routine action. However, Legislator Scott Burt used the vote on this resolution to praise Legislator Karl Graves and attack Legislator Judy Hopkins. He is entitled to his personal opinions and has an absolute right to express them publicly. However, his comments made it clear that he was angry over the Board's recent rejection of his candidacy for Vice-Chair of the Legislature. To his credit, Karl Graves immediately expressed support for Judy Hopkins, and distanced himself from the views expressed by Scott Burt Resolution #8-17 was the last resolution to be considered. It proposed the acceptance of $45,000 in funds from the State Division of Criminal Justice Services. Most legislators support acceptance of these funds, but not all are convinced that a portion of those funds should be used to acquire a "drug dog" for the Sheriff's Department. Legislator David Decker indicated that he could not support the resolution if any part of it would be used to establish a "canine" unit. Legislator Judy Hopkins noted that there is a serious drug problem in the County and thought the funds might be better used in other ways. She moved that the resolution be tabled. Board Rules require that a motion to table be immediately voted upon, without further discussion. That motion to table was approved with one dissenting vote from Legislator Phil Cur-

In two of the last three years the candidates chosen at the Republican Legislators Caucus have not been elected at the subsequent Organization Meeting. This is quite surprising since 14 (of 15) Legislators are Republicans. Legislator Scott Burt declared that Republican Legislators are disloyal to the Party if they do not support the nominee from the caucus. I respectfully disagree. My oath of office requires that I do what I believe is best for the County. If the Republican Caucus puts forward the best candidate I will certainly support her/him. Party leadership needs to figure out why the candidates approved by its caucus have been repeatedly rejected by a majority of Republican Legislators. That would be more constructive than making personal attacks upon a fellow Legislator. We should put this unpleasant episode behind us, and work together for the good of our County.

ALFRED UNIVERSITY

Fosdick-Nelson Gallery to open 'Reel Real' Jan. 27

ALFRED—Fosdick-Nelson Gallery at Alfred University is pleased to announce Reel Real, a contemporary tromp l'oeil exhibition featuring the works of Patrick Gantert, Shannon Goff, Dominic Terlizzi, Tip Toland, and Marc Zajack. The show opens January 27 with a reception from 7-9pm and will run through February 27, 2017.

The show is curated by Chase Folsom, who notes: "Truth is the foundation of our life and currently in question surrounding the politics that control our lives; for some, they run from it, and for others they seek to find

"Each work of art in this exhibition triggers our perception of belief and asks you to come closer, investigate, and truly look at what is in front of you, to ponder its conception and think about the time and energy devoted to capturing realness. In that experience, we understand each other -- the viewer and the artist – and we reach a kind of empathy where both parties engage in attempting to see the same thing.

Patrick Gantert describes hiscolored pencil and graphite drawings as "born out of distrust in the symbols and rhetoric that govern and direct us." Using repetitive imagery made of blue tape, wire, and string, his work describes a perpetually ephemeral moment. He received his BFA in Sculpture from University of Wisconsin-Stout and his MFA in Sculpture from Cranbrook Academy of Art. He currently lives and works in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

A monumental sculpture made entirely out of cardboard by Shannon Goff, titled Miles To Empty, is a visual critique of the decline in human industry. The life-size 1979 Mark V Lincoln Continental is a tribute to the human hand and workmanship in Detroit.

"Best built for the highway, the Mark V's smooth ride conjured up the sensation of floating on a cloud," remembers Goff, having ridden in her grandfather's as a Goff received her BFA in Ceramics and Printmaking from University of Michigan and her MFA from Cranbrook Academy of Art. She is an Assistant Professor of Art at Penn State University.

Dominic Terlizzi's tantalizing paintings dazzle with colored, acrylic mosaics arranged on canvas. His deconstructed molds of crackers, bread, and cookies speak to a shared experience of pleasure.

"The work answers to the problems of egocentric autographic mark driven painting," Terlizzi says. "My work is about 'us' as much as it is about 'me.'

Terlizzi received his BFA from Copper Union and his MFA in Painting from Maryland Institute College of Art. He currently teaches at Maryland Institute College of Art and is the founder of St. Charles Projects, an independent art gallery in Baltimore, Md.

Tip Toland's provocative, gold figure, titled Avadhut, unapologetically reveals the gluttonous and equally, the unabashed feeling of true self. The Sanskrit title references a saint from Indian religions that is beyond egoconsciousness and most commonly found naked.

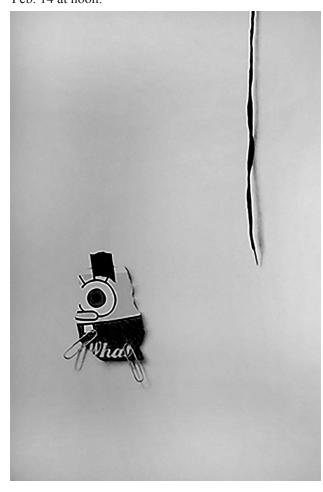

Toland is nationally and internationally recognized for her figurative ceramic work. Tip received her BFA in Ceramics at University of Colorado Boulder and her MFA in Ceramics from Montana State University in Bozeman, Montana. She lives and works in Tacoma, Washington.

Buzzing throughout the exhibition are kinetic sculptures by Marc Zajack. The sculptures, all numbered and titled IED (Improvised Explosive Device), are made out of familiar, discarded objects from everyday life. While they are completely harmless, they pose questions about our lived reality. His work, at times, mocks our chuckle to reveal a very deep, underlying, violent threat of war looming in societies today.

Zajack received his BFA in Printmaking and Sculpture from Kutztown University in Kutztown, Pennsylvania. He lives and works in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Reel Real will be on view at Fosdick-Nelson Gallery at Alfred University, 2 Pine Street, Alfred, NY from Jan. 27 through Feb. 22, 2017. The opening is scheduled from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday, Jan. 27.

Gallery hours are Monday through Friday 11am -4pm, Saturday and Sunday 1pm – 3pm. A Gallery Talk with the curator, Chase Folsom, will take place Tuesday, Feb. 14 at noon.

Do your work, then step back: the only path to peacefulness

DO YOUR WORK, THEN STEP BACK

"Do your work," wrote Lao-Tzu in the Tao Te Ching, "then step back—the only path to peacefulness." Sage advice in itself, this admonition also points toward two complementary practices in the Zen tradition. Undertaken individually, these practices can deepen and illuminate our everyday lives. Undertaken together, they can promote a wholesome balance of action and insight, engagement and contemplative awareness, enabling us to live more wisely.

Although the popular image of Zen practice—that of a monk sitting serenely in his robes—may suggest otherwise, work in general and physical activity in particular are important aspects of Zen discipline, second only to formal meditation. In Zen monastic training, the chores attendant to maintaining a monastery are known collectively as samu, or "work practice." Whether the assigned chore be washing windows or vacuuming the meditation hall, chopping vegetables or planting a tree, one is expected to work in silence and to give wholehearted attention to the task at hand. However trivial that task may appear, Zen students are enjoined to afford it the utmost care: to wash a cup, for example, as if you were "bathing the baby Buddha." Once acquired and absorbed, this attitude toward so-called menial work encourages a high standard of cleanliness and order. It erases illusory boundaries between "high" and "low" forms of labor, and it reinforces the habit of paying full attention to whatever one is doing. And, not least, it engenders a deep respect for such ordinary objects as mats and cushions, cups and bowls.

Beyond this revaluing of manual labor and its objects, Zen teachings also urge practitioners to examine the ethical dimensions of their jobs and professions, be they physical or intellectual in nature. For Zen monastics, who have voluntarily chosen a life of renunciation and selfless service, the moral and social value of the work they are doing may be self-evident. By contrast, for committed lay practitioners, who may need to reconcile the demands of Zen practice with those of a household and a full-time job, the ethical issue may be more complex. In either case, however, the underlying principle is that of "right livelihood," one of the "folds," as it were, of the Buddha's Noble Eightfold Path. Simply put, this principle calls upon us to assess whether our way of earning a living is harming others or contributing to the common good. Considered in this broader context, the admonition "Do your work" means not only to perform one's duties with undivided attention and infinite care but also to choose work whose purpose is to help rather than exploit other people, replenish rather than deplete natural resources, and strengthen rather than corrode the social fabric.

Such, in brief, is the place of work in the Zen tradition. In my own experience the attitude and the practice outlined above, applied to professional as well as household tasks, have more than proven their inherent worth. Yet, as Lao-Tzu reminds us, one can have too much of a good thing. And the other half of his prescription, namely to "step back," is as essential to well-being as the practice of doing one's work.

In Zen teachings this countervailing practice is known as "the backward step." Its classical source is a revered, thirteenth-century text known as the Fukanzazenji (*Rec*ommending Zen to All People), in which Zen master Eihei Dogen (1200-1253) urges us to "stop chasing after words" and to take "the backward step that illuminates the self." By so doing, Dogen explains, we allow "body and mind to drop away" and our "original face" to ap-

Here as elsewhere, Dogen's language is opaque, but the practice he recommends is relatively straightforward. To take the backward step, we shift our orientation from doing to being. If we happen to be walking, we stop walking. If we are working, we stop working. And if we are thinking, we turn our attention from our transitory thoughts to our abiding awareness of those thoughts. The Tibetan master Sogyal Rinpoche has likened the mind having a thought to an open sky with a bird flying through it. By taking the backward step, we become the open sky. We rest in the spaciousness of pure awareness.

The backward step is no quick fix. Like other meditative techniques, it requires practice and commitment. But for those who persevere, this practice can afford relief from compulsive working. It can tame obsessive thinking. And, most important, it can foster empowering insights into our prevailing habits of mind, particularly the habits of harboring expectations and worrying about possible outcomes. Having learned to do our work and step back, we can allow the future to unfold as it will. And should that occur, next week or years from now, we will indeed have set foot on the path to peacefulness.

Lao-Tzu's admonition appears in the Tao Te Ching, verse 9. Ben Howard leads the Falling Leaf Sangha (www.fallingleafsangha.blogspot.com), a Zen practice group in Alfred. His most recent book is Immovable Awareness: The Intimate Practice of Zen.

The DIY Farmer's Wife Approach

By KRISTINA SNYDER Alfred Sun Columnist

DIY Window Washing Spray

January is my deep cleaning month. Since spring is such a busy time on the farm, winter is when everything gets a good scrub. I pick one of the warmer days (ironic for January) and do all the windows inside and out using this fantastic DIY window washing spray. Try it for yourself you won't be disappointed.

Here's What You Need:

32 ounce spray bottle 3 cups water 1.5 tablespoons cornstarch

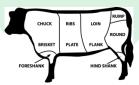

6 tablespoons alcohol

6 tablespoons vinegar

The steps are simple, unscrew the top of the spray bottle and pour in all ingredients. Replace top on bottle and shake vigorously for 30 seconds until all the corn starch is dissolved. This recipe also works well for streak free mirrors.

Three Alfred-Almond Central School teachers were granted tenure at a meeting of the board of education last Thursday. The entire list of 27 teachers who now have served up to five years was reviewed by Supervisor Principal Kenneth Clicquennoi with general discussion in regard to tenure appointments. Three members of the faculty were eligible for and were granted permanent tenure this year: Mrs. Lois Morgenfeld, hoem economics; Mrs. Eloise Baker and Mrs. Carol Ehrig, elementary

Alfred University and State University Agricultural and Technical College, long close neighbors in this small village, recently became even closer as joint occupants of two buildings. But they are progressing toward separate campuses on opposite sides of the village. The campuses of the two institutions now interlock at the corners of State and Pine Streets. Alfred University includes the State University College of Ceramics, which was established by legislative statute and placed under administrative control of Alfred University. Alfred State College is administered by State University, of which it is a part. Several departments of Alfred State College moved recently from the institution's Commerce Building to its new General Education Building on the new West side campus. But the nursing department still occupies the first floor and will remain there until next fall. Floors above and below the State College nursing department have been, or soon will be, occupied by departments of the College of Ceramics which will take over the entire building next fall. As the next step, Alfred State College is scheduled to vacate its Industrial Building at the corner of State and Pine, in 1968, consolidating all of its operations on its campus on the west side of Main Street. At that time, the state will refurbish the Industrial Building for occupancy by the College of a real Sicilian behind its name. The owner, Scigliano Rosario, was born in Messina, Italy. He first learned about cooking in his mother's kitchen, watching how she prepared the family meals. He brought his knowledge and his recipes to the United States 20 years ago, arriving first in Brooklyn, where he opened an Italian restaurant with his brother-in-law. Five years later, he and his wife moved to Rochester, feeling that western New York would be a better place to raise their six dhildren. The Rosarios eventually ended up in Mount Morris, south of Rochester. Last summer, despite the stumbling economy, Mr. Rosario and his wife began to search for another location. There were too many family members concentrated at the existing location, and Mr. Rosario said, "We needed to spread out." Enroute to investigating a site in Andover, they passed through Alfred and noticed that the building at 933 Route 244 was "For Rent, For Lease, For Sale". On the way back from Andover, they stopped to write down the phone number. The rest, as they say, is history.

Alfred University's Board of Trustees is expanding the goal for The Campaign for Alfred University from $41 million to $49 million. The timeline, however, remains the same, said Dr. William F. Stepp, vice president for University Relations and campaign director. "We still plan on attaining our goal by June, 1994." The campaign expansion, Stepp stressed, is "driven by the university's strategic plan. Our goal is for Alfred University to be one of the best small universities in this country by the end of the decade...

Peter Widynski, construction manager for Alfred Technology Resources, Inc., conducted the tour for more than 30 people. ATR, a non-profit agency whose partners include Alfred University, Corning Inc., and Allegany and Evelyn Tennyson Openhym, a book collector and a longtime benefactor and trustee of Alfred University, died Monday, Jan. 13, 1992 at her home in Wellsville. She was 89 years old. Mrs. Openhym, who grew up in Plainfield, N.J., was graduated from Alfred in 1924 with a bachelor's degree in ceramic art. She was named to the university's board of trustees in 1949 and in 1964 was awarded an honorary doctorate of humane letters. Mrs. Openhym was widely known as a bibliophile with a special interest in Great Britain. Over a period of nearly 60 years she amassed a 7,000-volume library of modern British literature and social history, rich in rare signed first editions and including several hundreds of letters and manuscripts, which she donated to Alfred University in 1981. The gift was described at the time by University officials as "the most significant contribution of scholarly materials in Alfred's history." A frequent visitor to Britain and its literary haunts, Mrs. Openhym systematically sought out works by the major authors writing in that country from the late 19th century. The collection included signed first editions of fiction and poetry by dozens of prominent writers, among them Virginia Woolf, D.H. Lawrence, T.S. Eliot, John Masefield, John Galsworthy, Siegried Sassoon and Walter de la Mare. The holdings also included the first separate publication, in pamphlet form, of Rupert Brooke's celebrated poem, "The Old Vicarage Grantchester," and the scarce 1917 first printing of Leonard and Virginia Woolf's Hogarth Press. The slender volume, entitled "Two Stories," was set in type by Virginia Woolf as therapy for recurring bouts of mental illness. Fewer than 200 copies of the book are known to have been issued...Her husband, George J. Openhym, an artist and ceramist who she met at Alfred in the early 1920s and married in 1924, died in 1953. She is survived by a son, Alexander...

Miss Debra Dee Huntington, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. David Huntington of Alfred, was married Dec. 21, 1991 to Commander Robert Sucsy, M.D., son of Mrs. Grace Barton of Newfane, VT and Dr. Robert Sucsy of Blue Hill, ME. Rev. Neil performed the Episcopal ceremony at the St. Columbia Church in Middletown, RI. Mr. Scot Huntington, brother of the bride, of Westerly, RI., performed at the organ and Ms. Nancy Armstrong of Boston, MA. was the soloist. Mrs. Suscy was graduated from Alfred-Almond Central School and earned a B.S. degree in Business Administration from the University of Georgia. She is an account executive with San Chez Corp. in Boston...

The Automotive Trades Department of the Applied Technology Campus of Alfred State College has been notified by the Automotive Industry Planning Council (AIRC) that it has once again been selected as having (AIPC) that it has once again been selected as having the best post-secondary generic automotive technicians training program in the state of New York for the year 2006. The honor was also awarded to Alfred State College in 1987, 1996, and 1999; ASC was a runner-up in 1998. ASC earned the organization's national award in 2000...Three of the automotive trades programs at Alfred State are NATEF (National Automotive Technicians Education Foundation) certified; automotive service, auto body repair, and heavy equipment/truck & diesel. The winning automotive programs enroll more than 260 students with 16 faculty and over 80,000 square feet of facilities to provide hands-on-learning.

The Southern Tier Symphony, in cooperation with the Cattaraugus County Arts Council and the Cattaraugus-Allegany BOCES, has created an unprecedented opportunity for talented high school art students. In its April pair of concerts, Maestro John Whitney and the 60-piece orchestra will spotlight the well-known Mussorgsky work, "Pictures at an Exhibition," which was inspired by paintaings of Victor Hartmann. The premise of the project is for original art works to be created representing new interpretations of the various sections in the piece. Selected works will be on display at the Saturday, April 14 program at Wesley Chapel, Houghton College and Sunday, April 15 at Olean High School. Art teachers in area high schools were notified of the competition in June and September...Following the submission of works, pieces will be juried and monetary prizes will be awarded at the concerts to the eight winning artists, four in each county...

The Wellsville Creative Arts Center Saturday, Jan. 20 will host a New Class Registration Day, Open House and Coffee House Customer Appreciation Day...

Sermon Text: (Acts 13:1-3) Now there were at Antioch, in the church that was there, prophets and teachers: Barnabas, and Simeon who was called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Manaen who had been brought up with Herod the tetrarch, and Saul. While they were ministering to the Lord and fasting, the Holy Spirit said, "Set apart for Me Barnabas and Saul for the work to which I have called them." Then, when they their hands on them, they sent them away

An identifying mark of wading in the flow of one's Baptist Heritage is the current known as Congrega-tionalism. Congregationalism has led the local Assembly to define itself a "religious democracy." The Assembly is not absorbed in individualism but in "community" taking faith serious "ministering before the Lord." Congregationalism means that there is a willingness in the Assembly to hear God speak a living word which setting forth a direct demanding human response and interaction. Congregationalism is not just a Diviner act but a human interface with God and each other.

Congregationalism through five actions. The Assembly listened, fasted, prayed, laid hands and finally sent Barnabus and Saul out from the Assembly. The Assembly prefigured wading in the current.

If you are unable to join us physically consider joining us virtually through the livestream of the Worship Hour beginning at 10:55 a.m. (EST) at www.alfredstationsdb.org.

THE GLORY OF AMERICA

Thursday, January 19

Chief spokesman for independence in the Continental Congress, fiery Patriot Sam Adams was at the top of the British list of those guilty of "rabble rousing." Yet he was only being obedient to what he considered a "Higher Authority."

"The right to freedom being the gift of God Almighty... 'The Rights of the Colonists as Christians'... may be best understood by reading and carefully studying the institutes of the great Law Giver...which are to be found clearly written and promulgated in the New Testament."

ADAMS, "RIGHTS OF THE COLONISTS," 1772.

Fire destroys Andover area home

ANDOVER-An Andover area home was destroyed by fire late Wednesday night, Jan. 11. Sources said that Andover firefighters were alerted to a house fire at 2658 County Road 22 (Independence Road) at about 11 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 11.

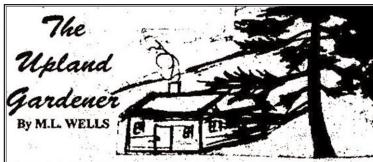

Andover police were first to arrive at the scene and said fire had already ripped through the roof. Mutual aid was called in from Alfred Station, Wellsville, Whitesville, Greenwood, Genesee, Scio and Willing. While the house was a total loss, all residents of the house were safely evacuated. The house was owned by Mrs. Charles Dougherty, mother of Alfred University Public Safety Chief John Dougherty. Fire crews began returning to service at 3:30 a.m.

The services of the American Red Cross was not needed as friends and family assisted.

Westacott book gets good reviews

ALFRED--Alfred University Professor of Philosphy Emrys Westacott's new book, The Wisdom of Frugality; Why Less is More – More or Less, continues to receive positive reviews in major media, including most recently The Atlantic, Financial Times, and The Washington Post, whose syndicated columnist Michelle Singletary has chosen the book as her January selection for the Color or Money Book Club. Singletary on Jan. 26 will interview Westacott in an online chat. Her review of The Wisdom of Frugality, as well as other reviews, can be read at the following sites: www.washingtonpost.com/business/get-there/in-praise-of-penny-pinching-a-most-american-trait/2016/12/30/61aa45c0-cc4d-11e6-a87f-b917067331bb_story.html?utm_term=.fe31e60eb e53

http://www.theatlantic.com/business/archive/2016/10/frugal-

With the wind howling at 50 mph and the temperature hovering in the single digits, it is hard to believe in global warming and climate change. In the same vein it is hard to believe in a spherical earth that is rotating and revolving at incredible speeds. Sue doesn't seem so from where I sit. But I know it is. How? Because science has told me so.

So at the start of this effort to explain the topic, let's go back and clarify the definitions and go over the evidence which 95% of the scientific community holds to be true.

The two big ones are: 1. Global Warming which refers to the atmosphere's temperature. 2. Climate change is the weather this warming produces.

This leads to the difference between climate and weather. Whereas climate refers to average temperature and precipitation over a large area, weather is day-to-day and local. One very cold day does not make for a cold winter!

We also need to understand the concept of tipping points. Not all events follow a straight line. The ice age did not creep up on us over millions of years. Yes, the earth had been slowly cooling for a long time, but then, one summer, all the snow did NOT melt and the ice age was upon us for one million years.

I remember years ago when my 8th grade science club was making rock candy. As the sugar water boiled, we kept on adding more sugar. The rock candy was to crystallize out on the strings hanging into the pot. All of a sudden, one more teaspoonful turned the whole pot into one, big, solid mass.

We are told we are reaching a tipping point. If we allow the atmosphere to gain about two more degrees (average), we will pass the point of no return. The global atmosphere now stands at 59 degrees F. We are now the warmest we have been in 160,000,000 years. This rise began about 300 years ago with two events: the industrial revolution and rapid population growth. Both are accelerating their rate. When my Dad was born in 1900 there were about 75 million Americans; 150 million in 1940 on my birthday. Now we have more than 300 million. In the third world, the doubling happens in 18 years.

There were many times in the ancient past when the climate fluctuated; this is nothing new. But humans did not exist back then so what did it matter. Our present civilization arose with agriculture about 10,000 years ago at the end of the last ice age. Since then the global climate has been relatively stable. Now we have 7+ billion heading toward 9 billion population by 2050.

We in America no longer live in a faraway place safe from worldly problems. We are all in this together and we really have nowhere to go – ask any astronaut!

Next time I will return to Allegany County and as a gardener point out how the climate has changed and weather has changed in the last half century.

HITS AND MISSES:

Andover native and Walsh University baseball coach, Tim Mead received the prestigious NAIA Robert E. Smith Lifetime Achievement Award at the recent America Baseball Coaches Association convention in Anaheim, CA. Mead has been at the helm of the Cavs program for 34-years and has amassed 721-wins at the school where he graduated from and is a member of the Hall of Fame. Mead's team will be in Florida in early to mid-March at the RussMart Central Florida Invitational in the Lakeland/Auburndale area. Hoping to catch one of his games there and maybe with Alfred resident, Bob Baker. Mead also coached the Cavs men's soccer program for a number of years and is a member of the Allegany County Hall of Fame. Go Panthers!

Former Buffalo Bills head coach, Doug Marrone is now in charge of the Jacksonville Jaguars in the NFL and Tom Coughlin (Waterloo) is the new VP of football operations. Coughlin was most recently with the NJ Giants and won a couple of Super Bowls there. He also was the first head coach for the expansion team. Marrone was with the Orchard Park team in 2013-14 before abruptly depart-

Ex-Washington Redskins OC, Sean McDermott is the new head coach of the Buffalo Bills as he replaces the blustering, Rex Ryan. Joining McDermott on his staff will be Hornell native Mike Waufle as the Defensive Line coach. Waufle started his coaching career at Alfred University and has been in the NFL with the Rams, Raiders (twice) and Giants. McDermott is one of many Coordinators, offense or defense, who have landed HC spots since the end of the regular season.

Former interim Bills head coach, Anthony Lynn is now in charge of the LA-San Diego-LA Chargers. The team will play in a 30,000 seat stadium for the next two-years, home of the LA Galaxy in MLS play. Huh? And they'll pay a $650 million relocation fee to the other owners in the NFL. Gosh, that makes sense!

In NFL playoff action it'll be Green Bay-Atlanta in the NFC title game and Pittsburgh-New England in the AFC championship tilt this weekend. The teams advanced with wins this past weekend in Divisional round action with the GB-Dallas game the best on tap. Whew. This Sunday, MVP candidates: Brady, Rodgers and Ryan will be directing their respective teams in quest of a SB berth. At the beginning of the NFL season I predicted: Steelers (Nuttall) over the Packers (McDrip) in SB51. As the GB-ATL game might be about, 41-38 ... will go with the Falcons and Pats to advance.

'Shuey" was on the Seattle-Atlanta playoff game, #129. "Real shame" to see the Seahawks go down to defeat and with so much

Longtime Mount Union head football coach, Larry Kehres was selected for the College Football Hall of Fame.

The St. Bona men's basketball team was at (11-6) after beating Fordham, 73-53 at the BCA/War Memorial in Rochester.

The UConn women's basketball program is still undefeated this year and they now have a 91-game winning streak! Yikes.

The Alfred University men's hoop squad is slipping of late as the Saxons were (5-10) after E8 losses to Utica, Hartwick and Stevens in NJ. Up next are league outings versus Elmira, Houghton

Elsewhere in D3 men's action, "Spanny" and Cortland are at 11-4, Coach Curle and Plattsburgh are sliding along at 6-8, while Coach Kornaker's team at SJ Fisher was at 8-4 as of Sunday past.

The WNY Flash women's soccer team has been sold and is off to Cary, NC ... home of Kaz!

Justin Thomas, 2-for-2 in Hawaii on the PGA Tour. Meanwhile, Rory McIIroy was losing in OT at the European BMW event.

Woody Austin and celebrity Mark Mulder were winners at the Diamond Resorts Invitational golf outing in Orlando this past weekend. Jeff Sluman and Joey Sindelar were in the field from the Champions Tour which also had four from the LPGA Tour in the charity event. Mulder a former MLB pitcher.

ALFRED UNIVERSITY ATHLETICS

Jake Lynch preseason All-American

BALTIMORE, MD-After only two years of collegiate play, current junior attackman Jake Lynch (Whitney Point) of the Alfred University men's lacrosse team has been selected to the 2017 Inside Lacrosse Face-Off Yearbook Division III Epoch Men's Lacrosse Preseason All-American list.

Lynch is joined by Ithaca College's Jake Cotton, Jack Shumway and Stevens Institute of Technology's Jan Schoonen in the Honorable Mention selections. Ithaca's Winston Wenham made Third Team while Jon Januszkiewicz earned the Second Team. Nazareth College's Luke Longo was the only Empire 8 player to make First Team.

During his first two years, Lynch has led the Saxons in goals both seasons. He scored 52 his freshman year and then tacked on 56 in his sophomore campaign. Last year was the first year that he led the team in both goals and points, accumulating 16 assists for a total of 72 points on the 2016 season.

Lynch has totaled 108 goals, 35 assists and 143 points. He has scored four game-winning goals (three his sophomore season) and 20 man-up goals (11 last year). The upcoming junior has 45 ground balls and 11 caused turnovers with not a single turnover of his own in his twoyear, collegiate career.

Lynch earned a spot on the 2016 United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association (USILA) Division III Men's Lacrosse All-American Honorable Mention list as an attack. He has earned Second Team All-Empire 8 honors in both 2015 and 2016, including the 2015 Empire 8 Rookie of the Year accolade.

In terms of where he sits on the all-time AU record book, Lynch is fifth in career goals. Dylan Macro '04 leads the list with 127 goals.
