Hot Diggity Dog Charity

Hot Dog Day raises $10,000 for local charities

ALFRED—The 47th annual Hot Dog Day was another fun and memorable celebration for the students of Alfred State and Alfred University, as well as the community.

With the beautiful weather, thousands of attendees came out to eat hot dogs, shop the stands of local vendors, and simply enjoy the community festival. In addition to the fun, the annual event also usually raises upwards of $10,000 for local charities, and this year was no exception.

In total, the event raised approximately $10,000, which was then awarded to the following charities: ACCORD Corporation, AE Crandall Hook and Ladder, Alfred Station Fire Company, Allegany-Cattaraugus-Chautauqua Fund for Women, Allegany County Mental Health Association, Allegany Senior Foundation, and Allegany ARC.

This year marked the first time that Hot Dog Day was held in the center spine of the Alfred State campus, and the location was a great success, according to Alfred State Director of Student Engagement Troy Morehouse.

"It was great having the festival where we could show off the true beauty of the Alfred State campus," he said. "Numerous alumni commented how great it was to see how the campus has changed, and enjoyed seeing the hills and Alfred University from the Alfred State side of the valley."

John Lewis, director of Student Activities at Alfred University, said, "Being my first time helping organize Hot Dog Day, I thought our teams work wonderful together, and Troy led us through the whole day like he was conducting a symphony with many parts moving together. The day cannot happen without volunteers, and everyone stepped up to the plate and brought a smile with them. Even Mother Nature came out and helped aid in this great event with a beautiful day. We can't wait to host next year and keep the good vibes going."

Hot Dog Day 2019 will be held on the Alfred University campus in the Academic Alley area on Saturday, April 27.

Many smiling faces were to be found during Hot Dog Day 2018 including (at right) Alfred State Residence Director Desmond Davis, an AU alum.

ALFRED-ALMOND CENTRAL SCHOOL

16 join National Honor Society; budget vote May 15

ALMOND—Sixteen Alfred-Almond Central School juniors and seniors were inducted into the school's National Honor Society in a ceremony held recently at Alfred State's Lake Lodge.

Budget Presented

A proposed budget in the amount of $13,741,954 for the 2018-19 school year was presented by the Board of Education at a budget hearing at the school Tuesday night.

In a letter to school district residents, the Board said, "Happily, for the sixth year in a row, we are able to present a spending plan that does not require any cuts to our programs or student services."

The letter continued, "For the fourth year in a row we are not utilizing any reserve funds to help us create this budget. To achieve this, we are asking our community for a 1.9 percent tax levy increase." It's the fifth consecutive year that the school board has kept the tax increase under 2 percent.

Eligible voters of the district are invited to vote from 1 to 9 p.m. Tuesday, May 15 in the high school auditorium.

In addition to the proposed $13.7 million budget, voters will be asked to approve three propositions and elect a member of the Board of Education.

The first proposition is for approval to purchase two 66-passenger school buses at a maximum cost of $222,763.48.

The second proposition asks approval to expend $100,000 from the Capital Reserve Fund to finance generator repairs, health, safety and security improvements to the building as included in the 2018-19 budget.

The third proposition seeks approval of raising the levy for the support of the Box of Books

Library and Almond Library in the amount of $97,000 and $84,643, respectively.

And, finally, Nadine Shardlow is unopposed in seeking re-election to the Board of Education for another five-year term.

Absentee ballot applications are available at the District Office.

Nunda to look back at former businesses

Each year the Nunda Historical Society looks back at some area businesses that were once well known but are no longer part of the local economy and community. On Wednesday, May 9 the Society will host this year's presentation that will include a famous seed company, an important publishing business and a silk mill whose building still stands in Nunda.

The program, "Remember Nunda Businesses, Part III" will consist of three 20 minute presentations including a talk on the Burt Seed Company by Tom Burt of Dalton. The seed company, started by William Burt early in the 20th century, grew to be one of the largest distributors of garden and flower seeds in the country with production reaching 20,000,000 packets a year. Some of the colorful Burt seed packets and boxes will be on display during the presentation. Tom will also give the history the Burt's Printing Company. The Dalton company, founded by Malcolm Burt, produced a wide range of printed material through the last half of the 20th century.

Local historian Alex Pierce will also present the history of the Nunda Silk Mill that once operated on South State Street. Alex will be exploring how the company came to Nunda and became one of the town's main industries in the years between World War I and World War II. His talk will include the history of the silk mill building, later the home of Piper & Paine and now the main building of the Once Again Nut Butter Company.

The program begins at 7 p.m. and is free and open to the public.

The Nunda Museum and Rose Shave Gallery will be open and those who come early can take part in the Society's new self guided history tour of the village of Nunda. Free tour booklets are available at the Society's pavilion. The Nunda Historical Society is located at 24 Portage Road, next to Kiwanis Park. For more information go to www.nundahistory.org or call 585-465-0971.

SUNNY SIDE UP

By ELLEN SHULTZ
Alfred Sun Columnist

Fran Clarke liked to make polenta

[Editor's Note: Like most of the recipes she shared with our readers over the past couple of decades, Ellen Shultz's Sunny Side Up columns are worth repeating.]

Frances Catherine Polan Clarke was born in Kansas, but from 1963 on she lived her life in Alfred. She taught briefly before raising her five children. She used her secretarial skills in helping her husband, Rev. David S. Clarke, edit sermons and articles. She was active all her life in various church committees and community organizations. She also enjoyed writing poems.

Fran played the violin, sang in church choirs, and even took voice lessons in her 50s so she could sing solos and perform duets with David who plays the flute. She encouraged her children to care for other people and to be respectful of all life. She and her husband were always quietly helping some person or family who were having difficulties. Her son Doug says she liked to make polenta for an evening meal, especially on Friday and the family members would each decorate it differently. Some would smother it with tomato sauce, others with butter and brown sugar or milk and sugar.

Polenta and Tomato Sauce

1/2 c. yellow corn meal      2 c. water
2 c. evaporated milk      1 tsp. salt

Bring water to boil, add 1 tsp. salt and meal slowly, then evaporated milk. Cook 20 minutes or until it starts to thicken and put in second pan of water (double-boiler) and continue, so as to prevent sticking. Takes about an hour.

Sauce:

1 c. tomatoes (peeled or stewed)      1 1/2 tsp. minced onion
1 T. flour, stirred into small      2 tsp. salt amount of liquid, then slowly into the rest

Warm the ingredients in saucepan. Cheese may be added to sauce or sprinkled on top of sauce on the polenta.

Bring the natural taste of Chemung Spring Water home.

Early start to May's Str8 Eight Tournament

ALFRED—February's winner—AU Senior, Michael Dean—was back in Alfred for the April Str8 Eight tournament, but the Janitor was asleep in his cleaning closet.

Along with his fiancée, the power couple both finished the night with over 500 points—Michael with 530 and Elisabeth with 529—which is typically enough to take home the top spot. But, they were both undone by Alfred local, Karrie Edwards, who won the final table and in the process overcame a 29 point deficit to win the month and the gift card for her first Str8 Eight tournament title.

Will Karrie's luck hold out for another month? Will Michael or Elisabeth win one last tournament before graduating and getting married? Will the Janitor find his way back to the coffeehouse on Tuesday night? Come out for an early tournament at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 8 before the Village Board meeting at 7 p.m. for a night of free, family fun to find out and see if you can be this month's winner of a $25 gift card. Visit <http://str8-eight.com> for more information on how to play.

Dave Pye offers heartfelt thanks to all

To the Editor:

In response to the Alfred Sun's recent announcement of a special symposium to be held in my honor later this month in San Antonio, Texas, I am humbled, honored, appreciative and exceptionally proud.

Let the record be clear, however, that I regard this honor to be more about fellow faculty members and administrative colleagues at Alfred University than me, and those who labored so faithfully in the last century to bring the College of Ceramics into national prominence; more about so many young students who chose to become part of my professional life, and letting me to become part of theirs; more about some remarkable friends I was privileged to know not only in the extended Alfred Community, but across the globe; and most important of all, more about family than me.

That I have been part of all of this reminds me of that famous musical phrase in the film Sound of Music, "I must have done something good in my childhood."

My heartfelt thanks to all on this special occasion.

Time in the Dunking Tank

I did my time. Half an hour precariously perched in the dunking tank on a chilly, rainy day in Almond.

Seemed as if everyone was out to dunk the editor!

One lad came awfully close to hitting the target on his first two attempts. I noticed how focused he was on his target and decided I'd best distract him or I'd be going under.

"Hey, what's that over there!" I yelled from my perch. Undeterred, the youngster, even as I was pointing, hit the target squarely and down I went!

It was my first time in the dunking tank. To be honest, if it means raising a few more dollars for the Greg Norton Memorial Park renovation project, I'd do it all over again.

Oh, in case you wondered, the winning tickets for the huge 50/50 Raffle were as follows:

1st Prize - Winner who chose to remain anonymous, $980, of which the winner donated $280 for the playground.

2nd Prize - Dan Porter, who collected $588 for his $10 ticket.

3rd Prize - Maggie Mitchell, winner of $392.

While don't recall the exact figure, I believe the raffle added about $2500 to the playground coffers.

While the playground's gofundme.com account had stalled for a couple of weeks at the amount of $2,080 toward a $10,000 goal, Saturday's Benefit Blowout generated a lot of activity. At press time, donations totaled $5,700 toward the $10,000 gofundme.com goal. Tammy Kokot had much to do with that. Great job, Tammy!

Following the day's events, I was asked by son Cameron about seeing "The Death of Stalin," at the Little Theatre in Rochester that night.

I had learned recently that an AU alum was opening a restaurant, "Steadfast," nearby. Nick Garofoli, while a student, had worked at Herrick Library and also took one of those Habitat for Humanity Spring Break trips with me to Florida to build a house.

I wasn't sure whether Nick's restaurant was officially open but I knew that it was near the Little Theatre.

As it turned out, I found a place to park...right in front of Steadfast. Peering through the window, I could see one of the Meier twins, also AU alums who had also gone to Florida with Habitat.

It just so happened to be a private birthday party for Olivia and Hannah. Hannah is now Nick's wife. Never one to run from a chance to crash a party, son Cam and I went in and were greeted by my AU friends.

If you're ever going to the Little Theatre, be sure to go early and catch a "sammich" at Steadfast before the show...and tell Nick that Dave Snyder sent you!

ALFRED UNIVERSITY

Daisy Wu, Master Fang perform at United Nations

ALFRED—Daisy Wu, associate director of the Confucius Institute and an visiting associate professor of music at Alfred University, and Master Fang Liu, Tai Chi coach at the Confucius Institute, were at the United Nations on April 20 as part of the UN Chinese Language Day celebration.

Language Days at the United Nations seek to celebrate multi-lingualism and cultural diversity as well as to promote equal use of all six official languages throughout the Organization. Under the initiative, UN duty stations around the world celebrate six separate days, each dedicated to one of the Organization's six official languages. Chinese, one of the six official UN languages, has been celebrated on April 20 since 2010.

Each year the UN holds various events and exhibitions with different themes to highlight Chinese multiculturalism. This year, the United Nations Tai Chi Club hosted the Tai Chi show to celebrate Chinese Language Day. Among the participants were UN officials, famous American Confucianism researchers, Chinese martial arts masters and nearly 100 guests from the United States and Canada. Master Fang gave a Tai Chi performance, with Daisy Wu performing on guzheng, a traditional Chinese stringed instrument.

Master Fang is a member of the Chinese Wushu Association, director of the International Exchange Center of Hunan Wushu Association. Since 2011, she has taught Tai Chi Chuan, Swimming Dragon and Health Qigong at the Tai Chi class in the Confucius Institute at Alfred University. More than 100 people have attended the Tai Chi class, which often performs in cultural activities at Alfred University and the neighboring areas.

Daisy Wu has taught in the Division of Performing Arts at Alfred University since 2010, and is known as a pioneer of traditional Chinese musical instrument education in the music departments of American universities. Since 2010, she has taught guzheng courses at Alfred University and is the founder of the Alfred University Guzheng Ensemble. She has performed at Carnegie Hall, before the Chinese Consulate General of New York, and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) of New York.

ALFRED—Alfred University student Anastasia Campbell had the unique opportunity to walk in the shoes of Mark Zupan, University president. On Wednesday and Thursday (April 25 and 26), the sophomore criminal justice major from Rochester served as Alfred University's first-ever "President for a Day."

Campbell spent much of her time with Zupan, experiencing first-hand a day in the life of a university president. The Division of Student Affairs Center for Student Involvement and the President's Office started the President for a Day program as a way for student body to interact with the president.

"I think the student body sees the president participating and being an engaging presence on campus. They see him wearing so many hats, so to speak, that I think they wonder how he does it," said John Lewis, director of student activities. "The President for a Day experience gives our students the opportunity to sit at the head of the table, see what goes into the role, and get an inside look at the presidency at Alfred University."

"At Alfred University, we are always looking to help our students — as well as administrators — grow as leaders," Zupan remarked. "This is but another example of that."

Campbell, a winner of the 2018 Alpha Kappa Omicron Achievement Award, is part of the current Women's Leadership Academy cohort and served as coordinator of this year's Women's Leadership Academy graduation. She is also the vice president of the Caribbean Student Organization. She was among 24 student applicants to serve as President for a Day, and was chosen by a panel of staff members from the Center for Student Involvement and a student from the Institute for Alfred University student Anastasia Campbell spends some time with Mark Zupan, University president.

Cultural Unity.

In her application she wrote: "I would like to be president for a day because I am constantly looking for opportunities to test my leadership abilities. I do not believe there is a better way to do this than to experience the stresses and joys of being University president for the day. I would like to see Alfred University and all that it has to offer from the lenses of presidency. I also have a goal of being in every position possible here at Alfred University before I graduate and I am on track to doing just that. Being president for a day would be the gold star to top it all off."

Campbell joined Zupan for the Student Leadership dinner Wednesday evening, addressing those in attendance. On Thursday, she met with the president in the morning and later accompanied him to Thursday's Riley Lecture, given by Gallaudet University President Roberta Cordano. After the lecture, Campbell had dinner with Zupan, Cordano, and members of the University faculty and staff at the president's house.

Lewis said the goal is for the Student for a Day program to be an annual event. "We hope to do it each spring. We purposely did it this year to coincide with the Student Leadership dinner," he said.

The Six Protagonists of Craving: Part 1

Why do we desire and choose to eat the foods we eat? Perhaps this seems like a very silly question! The answer is obvious, right? As I observe our culture, I note a variety of characters--six "protagonists"--influencing our cravings or desires for food. While some of them are necessary for health; others, I believe, are the result of imbalance or dysfunction.

First, let me explain the various roles of macro and micro nutrients that compose our food. For one, they meet our caloric (energy) need. When we are hungry, we eat food. In addition, our digestive systems break down these nutrients and convert them into building blocks that compose our body. For example, proteins are used to build organs, nerves, muscles, antibodies, enzymes, hemoglobin (red blood cells,) and hormones. Thus, the first two protagonists that cause cravings are caloric and specific nutrient needs--when we eat a variety of nutrient-dense foods, our body is supplied with nutrition which energizes and strengthens.

In a perfect world, without processed foods, disease, or deficiencies, that would conclude the drama of cravings--as well as this article. However, because of the blemishes in our food industry (and health as a result) there are other reasons we choose to consume the foods we do. We have all either experienced or observed others who've expressed a lack of satisfaction after eating plenty of food. Sometimes there is still this unquenchable craving for a specific food to "satisfy." This brings us to the remaining four protagonists, spotlighted below:

1) Pathogens. Our body is designed to have a beautiful balance of healthy microbes. However, too many toxins, medications, stress, sugar, etc. result in an overgrowth of yeast and other harmful bacteria. Skin rashes, irritability, inflammation, and those strong cravings (often for sugar and other refined carbohydrates) are signs of that imbalance. Understand that those processed foods we crave actually feed the pathogens. However, when we discipline ourselves and don't eat those foods, we starve the unhealthy microbes and naturally detoxify. Often, a specific healing protocol is necessary to follow this purifying process.

2) Sensitivities. As ironic as this sounds, it is common to crave a food to which we are sensitive. This is because when we eat such a food, our body produces antibodies, antihistamines or endorphins to combat the negative effects. These proteins then cause us to desire more of the offending food.

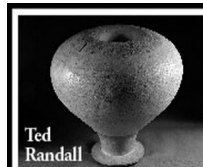

3) Traditions. Sometimes we crave a certain food because we associate it with a specific place or people: like Thanksgiving desserts or popcorn at the movies.

4) Feelings. Often we reach for food when food is not the solution. If we have a rough day, are disappointed, or depressed, we may consciously or unconsciously turn to food to soothe us. Or perhaps every time we celebrate a victory, we feel the need to incorporate "a treat."

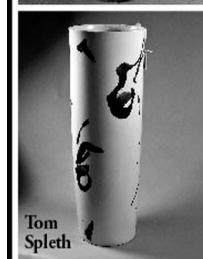

The first two characters are very biological and require specific nutritional therapy. The second two reach out to the holistic realm of health, encompassing our emotional health.

Next week, I will dig a little deeper into the last two protagonists and discuss practical tips for finding victory over emotional eating. May this truth encourage and discipline us to purposefully choose foods that will supply the true needs of our bodies.

The DIY Farmer's Wife Approach

Do It Yourself towel rack

Our bathroom is so tiny! There is no space for a linen cupboard let alone a shelf so I was always faced with the problem of where to put our towels. I kept thinking of square solutions until one day it dawned on me that you don't have to fold towels! An idea came out of this to use a wine rack to store them and it is such a space saver!

What you need:

*soft towels

Use the stud finder to locate studs in your walls to anchor the wine rack. Screw rack into studs. Roll towels instead of folding them. Now you have a beautiful storage solution and great conversation piece.

Looking Back...
A small hotel in Paris

I am of a certain age. The notion of future is problematic. It has, for me, precious little importance or meaning. Past, on the other hand, has depth, contours, a richness of detail and imagery. I live much in the past. But it is a special kind of past, a tapestry of people—in one specific place—that in the process of recall sharpens its focus, becomes magnified: a past in which the force of memory is most intense. Let me tell you about it.

Some 60 years ago I made my home in a small hotel in the Montparnasse quarter of Paris, on the Rue Vavin. I worked then at a newspaper on the other side of the city, the European edition of The New York Herald Tribune. The job was a good one without a lot of money in it. But we didn't worry that much about money. Paris in those days was an idyll of youth, optimism and promise.

My daily shift ended after midnight. I would catch the last underground train from the Etoile station, a few blocks from the paper, and get off at the Montparnasse-Bienvenue stop, on the south side, or so-called Left Bank, of the river that bisects the city. From there I would walk the rest of the way home.

Always to be seen at that hour on the corner of my street was a tall prostitute with a round, pleasant face and a cascade of copper hair. She stood in the aureole of a street lamp waiting for custom, clicking her spiked heels impatiently on the pavement. We would nod to each other as I passed, for I was an habitué, a familiar of the quarter. I was of her milieu but not of her clientele. We understood each other as workers of the early hours.

A block or so from where she walked her beat were some of the grand cafés the district was famous for. My own particular favorite, on the Boulevard Montparnasse a few steps from the Rue Vavin, was the Select, a gathering place of students, artists and intellectuals. Directly across the boulevard you would find the Coupole, home to a more raffish crowd, while close by, the cafés Dôme and Rotonde faced each other in more-or-less friendly competition at the junction of the Boulevards Raspail and Montparnasse.

In winter, one frequented the glassed-in terraces of the cafés and drank mulled wine pungent with cinnamon. Through steamed windows we would watch the vague outlines of people hurrying to their destinations. Chestnut pushcarts with smoking braziers were everywhere to be seen, and in front of the Café Rotonde there were wooden stalls of oysters, clams and spiny sea urchins.

In the hotel where I lived with the woman who would become my wife, our room was a top-story garret. It contained a bed, a chair, an armoire, a dim naked ceiling bulb, and a sink (a luxury then)—nothing more. But it was clean and cheap. One could pay by the hour, the day, the week. For the farcical sum of $10 in devalued French currency, we paid by the week.

The Hotel Danemark was a typical Paris walkup. It had six floors. They were linked by a narrow spiral staircase. A toilet cubicle about the size of a telephone booth was recessed into each landing. The proprietor, Monsieur Nurit, occupied a ground-floor apartment with his wife and two small children. There, for a few extra francs, we could use the bath. The proprietor was a small man, dark and lean. He had a dark mustache and a thin, handsome face, and, in those early days as I struggled to learn the language, he would speak French slowly and correctly, with a clear, precise accent.

Each of the hotel's rooms had a high French window giving either onto the Rue Vavin or onto a back courtyard, as the case would be. Across the street, two celebrated cabarets of postwar Paris, La Boule Blanche and L'Elephant Blanc, attracted an after-midnight contingent of noisy revelers.

The courtyard was the hotel's quiet side. Behind it and forming a sharp angle with the Rue Vavin was the Rue Brea, with a shoe repair shop, a poultryer's, a bakery and a brace of bar-café. A cobbled lane ran obliquely off the Rue Brea in the direction of the Rue Notre Dame des Champs, where, in the 1920s, Ernest Hemingway had lived above a sawmill, at No. 113. The lane was called the Rue Jules Chaplain. Most of the prostitutes of the district congregated here in groups of two or three, or in front of the café at the head of the lane.

On the third or fourth floor of the hotel, I recall, resided an expatriate Englishwoman. She liked to talk about the old days, when writers and artists lived and worked in the quarter. A happy and exciting time was the way she described it. Her mother once had inhabited the room she now occupied, and the woman would point to the single bed and say, "This is where my mother died."

In an adjoining room lodged yet another exile, also English, a shy young man who had come to Paris to study French and to learn about life. He had begun to lose his hair. He tugged obsessively at his scalp, hoping in vain his fingers would come away empty of strands. On the terrace of the Select one afternoon, where I had stopped for coffee before going to work, he approached my table and said, "I cannot bear to be alone."

Caroline Jane Penelope Byass was the name of the young woman I lived with at the Danemark. Born in Egypt to a family of British colonials, she had come to Paris in 1960 to attend, if only briefly, the capital's great university, the Sorbonne. We would marry a few years later in New York. We left the city at the end of the decade and moved, with our two sons, to Alfred, where we took up jobs at Alfred University. Caroline died three years ago this spring, in Pasadena, California, at the age of 75.

In the years following my wife's death, I returned twice to Paris. I had no particular reason for doing this, perhaps, other than to walk the streets redolent of that long-vanished era when she and I were young. Our old hotel was still there, the rooms now equipped, I was told, with TVs and gleaming modern baths. But most of the neighborhood shops had been displaced by the trendy boutiques and restaurants that did a good trade among tourists seeking the bohemian artists' enclave that, in truth, no longer existed.

On the final evening of my second visit, I sat on a bench in front of the Café Coupole. The sky at dusk was mauve and pink. After a time I went on my way. The past—my Parisian past—rose up around me. I could see along the Boulevard Montparnasse lovers clasped in close embrace, couples strolling arm-in-arm, bon vivants on the terraces of the cafés opposite.

I had penetrated the past. I could not retrieve it. All that was left was memory. I wandered in a landscape peopled by ghosts: myself among them.

The Upland Gardener

By M.L. WELLS

The poor yuppies and their fancy compost bins. Before their invention, there was Mother Nature. She did not pileup in “proper proportions,” turn and spread the goodies. Neither does lazy old me. If you have the space and can wait two years, you might want to give my easygoing method a try. You will need a space at least 4 feet by 8 feet.

In year 1: pile all your organic waste onto half of the area (4x4) maybe 4' high. If the summer is dry, water once in a while. Come October, cover with 6-12 inches of leave.

Year 2: In the center of the pile, hollow out a space for ½ bucket of good soil and sow a seed for one pumpkin and one winter squash (or transplant 4 week old plants). This is done in late May or early June. If frost threatens, cover.

Then repeat 1st years process in second half of your compost space (4x4).

In September, harvest pumpkin and squash from the year one area, rake off any debris and pull the vines of the pumpkin and squash. Spread your black gold compost (about 4x4x2) where needed in the regular part of your garden, flower beds, or even you lawn!

The Saxon lacrosse team split two matches last week as they defeated Geneseo 9-2 and bowed to a strong Union club, 14-3. Alfred played a cautious first quarter against Geneseo last Wednesday since the host team humbled the Saxons in last season's contest. However, both teams were surprised when the Saxons displayed so much improvement over last year, and took the dominant role for the remaining three quarters...Alfred tied the score as Harold Arrich rifled in an unassisted goal. In the second quarter, the Saxons realized their potential, and held Geneseo scoreless while adding four points to their own score. Slats Gregory scored the Saxons' second goal on an assist from Arrich, who passed off to Joe Anastasi for the third goal in the next minute. The third and fourth Saxon goals were unassisted as Gregory notched both scores...

The wonderful birthday party of Mary 11, with singing, speeches, cake, fireworks and friends meeting friends simply overshadowed anything that has happened since. (Nothing, in terms of Bicentennial Celebration, has.) After nearly a year of celebration, the next few weeks will see the end of this special time in the history of the Town of Alfred. First up, a cemetery tour on Memorial Day (observed) May 26, 2006. Particular colorful people from Alfred's distant and not-so-distant past will make an "appearance" on that day. Using historical information, various current Alfredians will impersonate some historical ones. Some suggestions have been: Jonathan and Abigail Allen, Olive and Lloyd Watson, Warren Bouck, Mike Kenyon, Hazel Humphreys and more...The final event in the celebration will be a community picnic at the Bakers Bridge Meetinghouse...

THE GLORY OF AMERICA

Thursday, May 3

With Lee and Jackson in command, the Conederates seemed invincible. But in their victory at Chancellorsville, Jackson lost his left arm. The next day, this day in 1863, he was vitied by Chaplain Lacy.

"You see me severely wounded but not depressed... I am sure that my Heavenly Father designs this affliction for my good. I am perfectly satisfied, that either in this life, or in that which is to come, I shall discover that what is now regarded as a calamity, is a blessing... If it were in my power to replace my arm, I would not dare to do it, unless I could know it was the will of my Heavenly Father."

DABNEY, JACKSON, 707.

ALFRED STATE COLLEGE

Archery team takes 2nd

ALFRED—The Alfred State Archery team recently took second place in the men's bowhunter division in the 2018 USA Archery East Region Outdoor Collegiate Championships hosted at the Pennsylvania College of Technology in Williamsport, PA.

Approximately 15 colleges and universities had archers representing their institutions, including Penn Tech, James Madison University, the University of Connecticut, Atlantic Cape Community College, Lock Haven University, Columbia University, University of Pittsburgh, Penn State, and Brandeis, among others. Many of the colleges and universities have both men's and women's teams, and compete in both compound and recurve classifications.

The three-member Alfred

State men's bowhunter team consisted of Austin Zauner (construction management, Darien Center), Joshua Harp (surveying and geomatics engineering technology, Farmington), and Jacob Pollock (mechanical engineering technology, Franklinville).

The members competed individually, with Pollock finishing fourth, Harp coming in sixth, and Zauner finishing eighth in the men's bowhunter division. The strong individual performances resulted in Alfred State being seeded second in Sunday's team rounds, where they beat James Madison's hunter team to advance to a final match, where they lost a close contest against Penn Tech.

The Alfred State Archery team now shifts to the outdoor 3-D season beginning the first week of May.

Alfred State finally breaks ground on House 56

ALFRED— With the sun and warm weather out in full force, Alfred State College students were finally able to break ground on House 56.

According to Building Trades Department Chair Jack Jones, the foundation excavation and driveway installation are now underway on the site of the future Wellsville home. Students in the following majors will work on House 56 as a hands-on learning experience: heavy equipment operations; masonry; building trades; building construction; electrical construction and maintenance electrician; and heating, ventilation, and air conditioning.

Once completed, the 2,010-square-foot open concept house will feature three bedrooms, two bathrooms, a large master suite, a two-car garage, a full basement, and a wrap-around porch. The house will be located at 3889 Foundation Drive.

While House 56 is now in its initial phase of a two-year process, construction on House 55 began in September 2017 and is expected to be completed in the spring of 2019.

Alfred State College recently broke ground on House 56 for the Wellsville community.

The houses Alfred State students regularly build for the Wellsville community, valued at more than $200,000, take two years to complete and are then subsequently sold on the open market and occupied.

Students build and detail the houses in a subdivision owned by the Educational Foundation of Alfred, Inc., a private foundation dedicated to improving the Alfred State community through the support of educational programs. The Educational Foundation funds the construction of the houses.

Under the supervision of their instructors, tomorrow's craftspeople prove themselves by building for discerning homeowners. For students, it's an unmatched opportunity to put their learning into practice and gain real-world experience.

"These student-built houses are an excellent example of the terrific hands-on education that Alfred State College offers," Jones said. "We're excited to get started on House 56 and to be able to provide yet another high-quality house to the Wellsville community."

Clubs, organizations, and teams of all kinds came out in force to raise awareness and money for the American Cancer Society and its mission during the annual Relay for Life at Alfred State College.

Alfred State surpasses $20,000 goal in Relay for Life fundraising event

ALFRED—Over 200 community members and students recently participated in the annual Relay for Life at Alfred State College to raise money and awareness for the American Cancer Society.

This year's theme for the event was "Lights, Camera, Relay." Each of the 23 teams that participated focused on a different movie or TV show, which brought out costumes, props, and plenty of spirit in support of the Relay cause.

"We put a lot of hard work and hours into bringing this project to life, and it is always a great feeling when the students and community get involved," said Alison Norton (interdisciplinary studies, Greene), a Relay committee member and the event's social media representative.

Students from both Alfred State and Alfred University, as well as local community members came ready to relay for 12 hours with a fundraising goal of $20,000. Altogether, 23 teams were able to surpass that goal.

Event committee member and participant Sarah Travers (architecture, Pittsford) said, "As someone who has several family members and close friends affected by cancer, it is heartwarming to know that the survivors and caregivers are not alone."

Krystal Perlman, Relay for Life club adviser and Help Desk coordinator, said, "It was wonderful to see Hornell-area and AU participants alongside all of our Alfred State teams."

AU SPORTS ROUND-UP

Saxon laxers' first time in Empire 8 Tournament

ALFRED—The Alfred University men's lacrosse team (9-6, 5-2 Empire 8) qualified for the Empire 8 Conference Championship tournament on Saturday, marking the Saxons' first appearance in the Empire 8 playoffs. The Saxons were scheduled to travel to Rochester, to take on the St. John Fisher Cardinals at 4 p.m. yesterday (Wednesday, May 2) in Growney Stadium.

The winner advanced to the Empire 8 Tournament championship game, set for Saturday on the campus of the highest remaining seeded team.

Saxons pummel Utica

Senior Jake Lynch (Whitney Point) netted nine goals as the men's lacrosse team beat host Utica College Saturday afternoon, 23-5. Lynch's nine goals is tied for most in a game, a record he set last year against SUNY Canton as well as tying Peter Colburn in '95 and Jay Morris in '80. The win clinched a berth in the Empire 8 Conference Tournament for the Saxons.

AU (9-6, 5-2 Empire 8) was also led by junior Joe Fornataro (Rochester/Greece Athena) with eight points (five goals, three assists) and sophomore Jake McNaney (Corning-Painted Post) with five points (two goals, three assists). Senior Samuel DiRisio (Prattsburgh/Penn Yan) also scored two goals while juniors Anthony Ricottilli (Cortland), Frank Gavigan (Yorktown), Kyle Landrigan (Canandaigua) and frosh Joey Carra III (Webster Schroeder) and Jon Waugh (Hamburg/Bishop Timon) each scored a goal.

"We practiced well all week and it showed today," said Head Coach Jason Lockner. "We have been stressing the importance of consistency in practices. [Jake] Lynch and [Joe] Fornataro shot well and [Garrette] Briggs got a lot of possessions. [Chris] Doktor played very well in goal for us today. This team is playing well at the right time!"

Sophomore Garrette Briggs (Horseheads) led the way in picking up loose balls, grabbing 15 ground balls. Senior David LaSpina (Webster Schroeder) and frosh Jeremiah Kinner (Bath/Haverling) chipped in with six ground balls while sophomore Shane Weber (Hull, MAI) had five ground balls. Kinner added a game-high four caused turnovers as well.

Briggs continued his dominance in the face-off circle, winning 25-of-30 attempts.

Senior Chris Doktor (Irondequoit) earned the win in net, making five saves in 44 minutes of action. Sophomore Ben Yonko (Webster Thomas) played 8:42 in net while junior Brandon Smith (Queens/The Governor's Academy) played the remaining 7:17, making three saves.

Strikeout record broken

Sophomore Jessica Wilcox (Forestville/Pine Valley) rewrote the Alfred University softball (21-17, 8-6 Empire 8) record book Saturday, tallying her 139th strikeout of the 2018 season to set a single-single strikeout record at AU.

The Saxons defeated the Soaring Eagles 6-5 and 4-1 during their regular season finale on Saturday, earning a spot in the Empire 8 playoffs this week. It is the sixth time in seven years that the Saxons have advanced to the Empire 8 Championship tournament dating back to 2011.

Sophomore Jillian Murray (Eden) had a career day at the plate, belting two homers in two games, knocking in four RBIs. Junior Becca Alexander (Middletown, DE) continued to lead the Saxons in RBIs, hitting in four baserunners with two RBIs in each game. She currently has 29 RBIs on the season, which ranks second in the Empire 8.

The Saxons are off until next Friday when they travel to Rochester, NY to take on the St. John Fisher Cardinals at a time to be announced. AU dropped both games against the Cardinals on April 27 by the scores 2-0 and 6-3, respectively.

AU plays at 3:30 p.m. Friday

The double elimination softball tournament will begin on Friday, May 4 and continue through May 6. The Empire 8 Champion will earn the automatic bid to the 2018 NCAA Division III Softball Tournament.

ALFRED STATE SPORTS ROUND-UP

A-A's Johnson blasts homer at Ithaca

Colin Johnson (Alfred Almond) hit a two-run homer as Alfred State battle Ithaca on Monday afternoon at Hoy Field on the campus of Cornell University. The Pioneers couldn't rally from a four-run deficit and fell 4-3 to the Bombers.

Jake Lynch broke a scoreless game in the 4th when he lifted a sac fly to left. In the 5th, the Bombers added two more runs. They scored following a throwing error and then made it 43-0 when Adam Gallagher connected on a RBI single to left. In the 6th, Andrew Wollner made it 4-0 with a RBI single to left.

Johnson connected on a two-run homer, his fourth of the season, to left field to get the Pioneers on the board in the 7th inning. His homer came on a 0-2 pitch and scored Connor Pingitore (Amsterdam/Broadalbin-Perth) who led off the inning by being hit by a pitch. In the 9th, Alfred State cut the lead to one when Miguel Reicino (Woodhaven/Benjamin Cardozo) scored on a throwing error. HITS AND MISSES:

And with their first pick in the 2018 NFL draft, the Buffalo Bills select ... QB Josh Rosen out of UCLA! Oops ... that would be Josh Allen out of that football powerhouse in Wyoming. Now, the pick for Allen could be a great one down the line or it could be (yet another) in a long line of QB flops for the WNY franchise. Obviously time will tell and it probably won't be Allen's time this coming season. Not a draft "expert" by any stretch of the imagination but did see Rosen play for the Bruins against the USC Trojans and QB Sam Darnold (Jets) this year and he looked about as NFL-ready as you can get. Being a California kid, Rosen is probably happier he went to the Arizona Cardinals instead of the Bills in "chilly" Buffalo but he would've been my choice at #7. And not to be outdone, have the Brownies from Cleveland goofed (yet again) on picking their signal-caller of the future? Baker Mayfield at #1 overall? My pick would've been Rosen or Darnold plus they went with Denzel Ward, a CB from Ohio State at #4, with Bradley Chubb from NC State and Quenton Nelson of Notre Dame both on the board. Yikes! They could've grabbed RB Saquon Barkley first and then still had their pick of one of the four "big name" QB's coming out at #4. A Barkley-Rosen combo? Again, time will tell and it is all just on paper at the moment.

Turning to Division III college men's lax and the Alfred Saxons have made the E8 post season tourney as the #3 seed and will travel to Rochester on Wednesday (5/2) to take on the SJ Fisher Cardinals. Fisher-AU-Hartwick all won on the road this past Saturday, thus all finishing at (5-2) in league play behind undefeated Stevens and after tiebreakers, Hartwick will travel to NJ to play Stevens in the other semi-final contest. The Cardinals beat the Saxons in Alfred, 9-5 in regular season action and now will host at Growney Stadium. The winners will meet Saturday for the automatic NCAA berth at the site of the highest remaining seed. Would need AU and Hartwick victories to have the game at Merrill Field.

In Liberty League men's lacrosse tourney action it'll be four, nationally-ranked teams meeting in the semi-finals to start out with. Coach Jeff Long's Ithaca Bombers (14-2) will be at RPI (5/2) after they beat Clarkson in the quarter-finals. Ithaca played Clarkson in back-to-back games, regular season and tourney opener, with the Bombers emerging victorious in both. RPI beat Ithaca in the regular season as did #1 RIT, which will host St. Lawrence. In the latest USILA rankings, it is: Ithaca at #15, SLU coming in at #18 and RPI was 19th.

Cortland and Plattsburgh finished 1-2 in the SUNYAC men's lax standings with the Red Dragons the top-seed. Brockport and Oswego round out their "four-grouping."

Yale leads the way in the most recent USILA D1 lax poll for men with Maryland-Denver-Albany-Duke, 2-3-4-5. Cornell was ranked 9th and Syracuse comes in at #12. Virginia beat Syracuse last week and it was in the ACC tourney. Notre Dame beat the Cavaliers in the title game after stunning Duke in the semi-finals.

The Rochester Knighthawks rallied from a dismal start to the season in NLL pro indoor lax action to grab second-place in the tightly bunched East Division. The K-Hawks will host New England in their first playoff game with the winner getting Georgia. Georgia went (11-7), Rochester (10-8) ... after a 2-6 early record!, NE was (9-9) with the Buffalo Bandits and Toronto Rock (Korn) tied for last in their division at (8-10).

The Alfred Saxons (21-17) have qualified for the E8 post season softball tourney that starts this weekend after dropping two games to SJF and beating Elmira twice. Unfortunately, Alfred gets #1 seeded Fisher and their ace hurler, Lindsey Thayer to open play. Thayer is like the Breanna Stewart (UConn) of women's D3 softball with accolades/awards galore. The All-American is the three-time

Student 4th in weightlifting Nationals

ALFRED—Chelsea Pietrzykowski '18, a former Alfred University volleyball team member and current AU student, finished fourth at the USA Weightlifting University Nationals and National Under 25 competitions held at Weber State University on Sunday April 22, 2018.

USA Weightlifting follows an Olympic format, with athletes competing in two lifts: the snatch and the clean & jerk. Each contestant has three opportunities in each lift with the highest lift in each category going toward an accumulated score.

Back in July 2017, Pietrzykowski competed in her first weightlifting meet. She had no coach and "had no idea what she was doing." Her goal was to simply break into the sport and get comfortable with the idea of competing on this stage.

"It was very weird being up on a stage staring out into a crowd while trying to lift weights," Pietrzykowski added.

Despite the unknown, the former middle blocker from Canandaigua went on to win the competition lifting a total weight of 165 kilograms – a personal record. Shortly after winning the competition at CrossFit 315 in Syracuse, Pietrzykowski returned home to celebrate and received a text from a friend informing her that she had surpassed the national standard of 154 kilograms and had qualified for the University Nationals and U25 Nationals in 2018. The same friend introduced Pietrzykowski to Coach Michael McKenna of McKenna's Gym in Stewartstown, PA and over the course of the year, the two worked together in preparation for the national stage in Ogden, UT.

Introduced in her Saxon Nation shirt, Pietrzykowski went on to finish fourth in both the University Nationals and U25 Nationals in the 90-kilogram weight class.

E8 Pitcher of the Year, soon to be four-time. The E8 Rookie of the Year when she broke in, MVP awards from regional play and on and on. Have to believe the SJ Fisher Cardinals will advance and head to the NCAA's.

Former Alfred University softball coach, Gino Olivieri and his Coppin State squad is at (13-21) overall but a decent 9-7 in MEAC league play. Think in D1 they'll play in the conference tourney, probably against the top-seed or a very high seed.

Tim Mead (Andover) and his Walsh College baseball team in Ohio is at (21-18) on the season after dropping 4/6 of late. They have three conference games upcoming versus Hillsdale this weekend.

Skip Sherman (A-A) and his Genesee CC baseball program is at (14-13) after losing 3/4 to Onondaga CC and a pair to a strong Monroe CC team. Sherman's troops have games left against Corning CC, Finger lakes CC, Jamestown CC and Erie CC.

Spotted some vanity plates here and there: REDSKNN1 ... Mark Green?, BRODEUR ... NHL playoffs, NRAPRIDE ... gutsy?, LIONGRAD ... former AU hoop assistant, Chuck Crist and ILLCLN4U ... MaidPro.

Molly Murphy from Alfred and her son, Kyle took in game #7 of the Indiana Pacers and Le-Bron Cavs in the NBA playoffs on Sunday as Cleveland moves on to face the Toronto Raptors.

Kara DeYvon of Webster ran in the National Women's H-M in Washington DC this past weekend, a race 3L did four-years back when it was the Nike Women's H-M. Good time that weekend as daughter Lauren and I took in a Nats game that weekend as well. "Thanks" Cathy Coleman!

Watched the season finale of SUITS last week as Meghan Markle and her character, Rachel Zane got married to Mike Ross. Guess she was "warming up" for that other marriage ceremony.

Small World time as The Villages 2016 "Greeter of the Year" ... Derck Frechette was on duty when Ron and Cindi (Baker) Williams came into his current place of employment in Florida.

Had a chance to stop over to Ryan and Kelly Clark's place in Penfield when 3L-Jason-Quinn up the weekend before last and he is quite the "brew-master" of some great craft beverages! Much better than the cold one I had at Lentos in The Village Gates.

Tiger Woods will be back on the PGA Tour in the Wells Fargo Championship and The Players, next two weeks. No Jordan Spieth in the Wells Fargo event?

Bill Cosby ... from "America's Dad" to "America's Scumbag?" He was actually in Harvey's one nite, on a Wednesday, after a speaking engagement at Alfred University. Stopped in to see The Rogues play!

The Yanks are in the midst of a brutal schedule as they'll be playing the top teams in the AL, other than themselves, in consecutive series outings. After sweeping the fading LA Angels of Anaheim, NY will tangle with Houston-Cleveland-Boston. Should be the "Final Four" in the AL divisional playoffs this year. Hopefully pitcher(?) Sonny Gray will be long gone by then.

After working Saturday morning past at Enterprise rentals, had lunch with former SUNY Geneseo soccer player Meg "Pam" Verdino and her boyfriend, Josh at Duffy's Wings in Henrietta. They are off to Scotland this weekend for a week.

And I'm off to Kentucky this weekend to see my Mom, sister and family, to see "Lefty" actually graduate from college, to get some golf in in warmer weather, watch the Kentucky Derby at the Fischer's party and maybe dinner out at Keystone. Kyle Fischer graduating from Northern Kentucky after a stint at Eastern Kentucky. Hopefully it won't be golf cart "demolition derby" out at the Pendelton/Northern KY course in Butler! "Fish" fresh off a 3-round trip to the Tampa Bay area to golf as he'll be all warmed up. Me? ... erratic, per normal.

Kentucky Derby pick: Magnum Moon eases past Justify. No justification or reason other than Blue Moon my favorite cold one of choice! Close enough.
