Campus Parking Alert

Winter has found Alfred and with that the parking problems that go along with it. I would like to ask everyone parking a vehicle on campus to park in an orderly fashion. A number of vehicles have been taking more than one space causing a bad situation.

Please, when you're parking your vehicle think of the others who need to park with you. Thank you for your cooperation.

'Raw Goods' Opens Friday at the Fosdick-Nelson Gallery

"Raw Goods: the transformation of material by local industries" opens Friday, Jan. 28, at the Fosdick-Nelson Gallery, Harder Hall, on the Alfred University (AU) campus.

An opening reception is planned for 7-9 p.m. Friday (Jan. 28), with a timber-frame demonstration by Sean Hyland starting at 7 p.m. that evening. A gallery talk is scheduled for noon Wednesday, Feb. 2.

Curated by Anne Currier, professor of ceramic art, and Ezra Shales, assistant professor of art history, in the School of Art & Design at AU, the exhibition "features the diverse range and versatility of objects made of ceramics, metal, glass and wood, manufactured by local companies. This show reveals another side of Alfred's rural setting-that enduring and innovative industries are flourishing in Western New York. The exhibition shows that within a 100-mile radius of the University, goods are designed and produced that have a global reach.

Most of the companies have opened their doors to Currier's and Shales's class field trips in the past. The professors take their students to manufacturing facilities to conduct material research firsthand; this exhibition brings into the school's gallery some of the primary evidence the students consider "awesome and inspiring."

The exhibition will afford visitors the opportunity to see architectural ceramics before it covers the exterior of buildings and steak knives before they are honed and set out on a dining table. As Currier and Shales explain, "Porcelain insulators, architectural terracotta, refined steel knives, milled logs and laminated lenses: all products address esthetic and functional applications that affect our lives. Their beauty as objects is inherent to the interplay of intention, material, and craftsmanship of the manufacturer. Presentation in the gallery transforms the context: objects are viewed for their size and scale, mass and weight, volume and density, engineering and handling.

"The intent of this exhibition is to offer access and insight into the current designs, applications and technologies of objects produced by the companies, many of whom compete in a global marketplace. The relationships between art, design, material and industry remain an unfolding dialectic; what is 'industrial craft?,' 'Where is the manu (hand) in manufacture?' and 'How do individual firms define 'technology?'

Currier and Shales say the objects featured in the exhibition are not only manufactured from "raw goods," they are "themselves raw goods; they exist in a transitional stage. Their completion is determined by inclusion in additional processes. Their refinement from raw materials is essential to the quality of the finished product."

Shales and two students - Shawn H. Baker and Elena Zachary - will present a Bergren Forum at 12:10 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 3 in Nevins Theater, Powell Campus Center.

Skatepark!

A group of students is putting together an effort to build a skatepark (preferably indoors) here at Alfred University. This is your chance to be a part of the next big project at Alfred.

If you are interested in being part of or have questions about this idea, please contact Doug Sassaman (Dms6@alfred.edu).

The plan would be to have a meeting with students (bikers, skaters, inline skaters, etc.) in hopes of gathering some information about what the students and athletes would like to see early this week (1/24). After a general consensus about what this project should consist of is met, a meeting/proposal in front of some key staff and administration would ideally be held in the beginning weeks of February.

Why Not Save Money on Your Prescriptions?

Several retailers (including Wegman's) will provide Free antibiotic prescriptions just to get you in their store!

Also, you can often save money on many generic prescriptions by NOT using your insurance plan. In many circumstances, you can purchase generic prescription medication at local pharmacies for less than you are paying in co-pays.

For example, if you take the generic version of Pravachol for a cholesterol condition or Synthroid for a thyroid condition you could purchase these medications without insurance for as little as $3.99 per month or $9.99 for a 90-day supply.

This example is based on purchasing the medicine at a ShopRite pharmacy. Other stores such as Wal-Mart and Walgreens also offer discounts. Check out their Web sites as well other drugstores near you.

Just a helpful hint - why not take advantage?
