Good food has been here at Kinfolk for thirty years

By ELAINE HARDMAN
Alfred Sun Reporter
 ALFRED--For 30 years Alfred has hosted Kinfolk and Kinfolk has welcomed people from all around into their good-food-is-here-grocery-store. Being open daily means unlocking the door, turning on the lights and offering freshly washed broccoli over 10,000 times so some Kinfolk customers think it should be celebrated.
 Kinfolk is the store but the personality, labor, draw and drive are Elliott and Jessen Case. Their small, natural grocery store is perched on the corner of Mill and West University, one block behind Alfred's Main Street.
 The germ of Kinfolk was a grocery begun in an apartment on Church Street in Alfred by Wolf Juekoff in 1971. The store traveled to Wellsville and back again becoming Corrie Croft, tended by John and Lisa Lang. Jessen and Elliott purchased food at Corrie Croft and eventually purchased the business.
 Kinfolk offers organic and locally grown foods such as maple syrup, eggs, cheeses, honey, fruits, herbs, breads, eggs and vegetables from neighbors in addition to canned goods, bottled dressings, toothpaste and all kinds of things.

 Elliott and Jessen hoped that the store would allow them to work in a creative, demanding and rewarding way as citizens of Alfred, selling food, sharing recipes and enjoying conversation. Conversation is always part of the Kinfolk stop so here are a few from their door step and beyond.

Henry Amos Shales with his orange. (Elaine Hardman)

 Ramona Kingsley said, "I enjoy that Kinfolk is small and I can just walk in and buy whatever I want. It's all fresh. I can take it home and it will be good. I enjoy the people there and love going to an actual small town store."
 Graham Marks stopped in for a snack of an apple and a Boomi Bar. He said that he tries not to buy the Boomi Bar every day but he's often a daily customer.
 "We're blessed to have Kinfolk in our town. They have excellent produce and a person can order anything. Alfred wouldn't be the same without Kinfolk. I've been a steady customer since '92."
 Henry Amos Shales rode over on his little scooter with his dad Ezra. Henry held an orange while Ezra said, "They are lovely proprietors with a good sense of humor and they don't mind too much if children pick through the fruit."

Graham's wife Megan came out with her food basket. Megan goes to Kinfolk for high quality food, laughter, community news and a dose of frivolity. She said, "Kinfolk is the center of Alfred and I am one of the many devoted customers. I need Kinfolk."
 Cheryl Foster tumbled into the store with fast moving Ivy and Ethan. She said, "I've never lived in a neighborhood with a corner market. Jessen and Elliot are friendly and I know that if food here is not fresh, they won't sell it. I also know that all this stuff is good for me. I never have to question food I get here for my kids. I don't even have to read the labels. I can just buy good food."

 A person doesn't even have to be near Kinfolk to find Kinfolk fans. While on the Alfred University campus Lauren Gilson said, "Those people are great. I always trust their food. They have food that my Mom wants me to eat. They encourage me to take responsibility for my health and eat well."
 Zane Hetting agreed saying, "Kinfolk is where I get all my food. It's the reason I eat well. It's the best place I've ever worked."
 "Imagine," he said, "a blend of your best friend and your cool parents. That's who I work with. It's an ideal job and good food in one place."
 Jamie Carestio said, "I graduated 3 years ago but still come back here sometimes and they always remember me. They remember everyone. They remember and care about everyone and always ask me how it's going."
 Amy Santoferraro went to Kinfolk to ask about Community Sponsored Agriculture and even though that meant she would buy her produce elsewhere, Elliott and Jessen gave her the literature and information she was looking for.
 Joanne Allen drives over the hill from Wellsville to purchase food in Alfred, "I love Kinfolk. Elliot and Jessen always have what I need and what I need are friendly smiles, candied ginger, yoghurt and fresh vegetables (in that order). I wish them many more years in the Alfred area."
 Carla and Bill Coch said, "Many of us - kin and folk- love their kind, reliable 7-days per week service, fresh fruit and vegetables, fish and bagels on Thursday, natural healthy food, local produce, custom orders, staples like bread and milk and pasta, Gimme coffee, Asian foods, vitamins and supplements, green products for the home, beans and rice, crackers and raisins, ice cream and berries, honey and potatoes and so much more."
 Cheers to Elliott and Jessen...to the next 30 years of freshly washed broccoli in Alfred!

ASC to hold 100th commencement

ALFRED—Nearly 600 two- and four-year graduates, their families, professors, and friends will be on hand Sunday, May 15 at noon, as Alfred State College honors its 100th graduating class. Commencement exercises are scheduled to be held at McLane Center on neighboring Alfred University campus.
 Graduates will need to use the tickets in their graduation packets for their families' admission. Presiding over the ceremony will be Dr. John M. Anderson, college president.
 Keynote speaker for the ceremony will be State University of New York (SUNY) Board of Trustees Chairman Carl T. Hayden.
 Hayden was appointed chairman of the SUNY Board of Trustees Oct. 22, 2007. As chairman, Hayden oversees SUNY's governing body, comprised of 17 members, 15 of whom are appointed by the governor, by and with consent of the NYS Senate.
 Prior to being appointed to the SUNY Board of Trustees, Hayden served on the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York (USNY) having been elected in 1990, and elected chancellor by his colleagues in 1995; he was re-elected to that office in 1998, and again in 2001.

 Hayden is a former president of the Elmira City School District Board of Education and a past chair or president of numerous community organizations. He was a founder, and for six years president, of the Mark Twain Arts Council. He is also a director of Panelogic, Inc., a private corporation.
 Hayden graduated from Hamilton College where he was president of his fraternity. In 1970, he earned a Juris Doctor degree from the Cornell Law School where he was president of the Law Student Association. Hayden served in the U.S. Navy, as a gunnery officer aboard USS Boston, a heavy cruiser, and a legal officer at the US Naval Station, Treasure Island, San Francisco.

The 2011 student speaker will be Tara Yohe. Yohe, who already holds an associate's degree in architectural engineering technology, will receive her bachelor's degree in construction management engineering technology.
 A dean's list student, Tara has spent time using her education working summers for the NYS Department of Transportation in Buffalo, and at Dresser, Inc., in Bradford. Additionally, Tara and her teammates placed second in an Associated Schools of Construction Region I competition, was named Outstanding Drafting Student, and earned a Pennsylvania Skills Certificate as a result of her score on a skills test measuring knowledge and performance skills in general drafting and design.
 Giving the welcome from students will be AJ LaMere, '10, '12, Rochester, chair, ASC Student Senate. In addition to his responsibilities as Student Senate president, LaMere also serves as a resident assistant in Peet Hall, is a member of the Alfred Community Coalition, and the Beautification Initiative, and is an honorary member of Business Professionals of America. He is the son of Mechell and Alfred LaMere, Rochester.

 In celebration of the college's 100th commencement ceremony, Alfred State will welcome recording artists Red Molly, a female singing trio which began around a campsite at the 2004 Falcon Ridge Folk Festival and is now drawing invitations from renowned historic national events like Merlefest, and is winning over audiences around the country. Members Laurie MacAllister (bass, banjo) and Abbie Gardner (Dobro, guitar) and Molly Venter, create lush, distinctive three-part harmonies. Additionally, the Gates Keystone Police Pipes and Drums, a ceremonial police pipe and drum band formed in 1996 by members of the Gates, NY, Police Department, whose purpose is to honor fallen members of the police, fire, EMS, and military communities, will also perform.

In 1993, The Alfred-Hornell branch of AAUW initiated its annual recognition of high school seniors from six area schools for their outstanding proficiency in math and science. Recognition includes the student’s name being engraved on a permanent school plaque, a gift, an invitation as our guest to a celebratory dinner, and this year, for the first time ever, a small scholarship. Vidalia Onion Cookies? Oh why not?

Even if you are a great lover of onions, as I am, here's a recipe I'll bet would never occur to you. I guess I wouldn't have believed it if I hadn't found it in one of my favorite recipe books The Vidalia Sweet Onion Cookbook from Morris Farms in Uvalda, Georgia.

Vidalia Onion Cookies

½ c. margarine	1 tsp. baking powder
1 c. sugar	1 tsp. baking soda
1 c. chopped cooked Vidalia onions	½ tsp. salt
1 c. cooked squash	1 T. cinnamon
2 c. flour	1 tsp. vanilla

Cook onions in small amount of water until tender. Cream together the margarine, sugar, onions, and squash. Sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and cinnamon; add to creamed mixture. Add vanilla; beat well. Drop from teaspoon on a greased cookie sheet. Bake at 375 degrees for 12-15 minutes. Yield: 5 dozen cookies. How's that for tricking your kids into eating vegetables!

About Nursing Homes

Letter to the Editor:

Living life to its fullest potential isn't always easy to do, especially as we grow older. But aging doesn't mean giving up our individuality or our ability to enjoy life – both of which nursing homes are celebrating this week.

May 8-14 marks National Nursing Home Week™ in America - a chance to honor those who rely on these facilities for the care they need, as well as those who provide that care day in and day out. This year's theme, "Fulfilling the Promise," encourages nursing homes to continue to focus on "person-centered" care so each resident can live life to the fullest. Throughout the week, nursing homes in communities across the country will host a wide variety of activities that celebrate this promise with residents, staff and volunteers.

It is also a time to recognize the vital role nursing homes play in our nation's health care system. Not only a place for the frail elderly who cannot care for themselves, nursing homes have become a cost-effective setting for patients with short term rehabilitative and post-acute care needs. Medicare patients are now routinely turning towards nursing facilities following a stay in a hospital due to a broken hip or a weakened heart. More than one-third of these patients return home within 100 days.

Today's nursing home also focuses on holistic care so that residents can make choices about their care and daily routine while accessing a wide variety of activities to help increase their opportunities and live meaningful lives.

Looking forward, millions of Baby Boomers will require the services nursing homes provide, making our commitment that Americans are able to live out their later years in dignity all the more important. "Fulfilling the Promise" is just one step in continuing our commitment to long term and post-acute care for years to come.

THE REAL COST OF MANDATES

Albany is pushing a "Real Property Tax Cap" as the way to slow or reverse escalating real property taxes. This is appealing, but it ignores reality. The Governor and State Legislature talk about limiting taxes, but keep shifting their costs down to local governments. Here are some specific "facts" about State mandated costs.

Nine separate mandates consume more than 90% of all county real property taxes across the State. Over the past five years the cost of those 9 mandated programs increased by more than 6% annually. Ironically, the Governor and Senate are pushing for an annual tax increase cap of 2%. That means that counties can raise only 1/3 of projected increase from taxes. The remaining costs (2/3 of the increase) must be paid for by cuts in other programs.

According to a report from the New York State Association of Counties (NYSAC) the statewide five year average increase for the nine mandated programs are as follows:

1. Medicaid, increased 2.5%, or $50 million a year;
2. Pensions, increased 31.0%, or $175 million a year;
3. TANF and Safety Net (Welfare programs), increased 5.6%, or $11 million a year;
4. Child Welfare, increased 2.0%, or $5 million a year;
5. Pre-School Special Education, increased 8.0%, or $12 million a year;
6. Early Intervention, increased 7.7%, or $5 million a year;
7. Indigent Defense, increased 5.5% or $7.2 million a year;
8. Probation Programs, increased 6.2%, or $7.6 million a year; and
9. Youth Detention, increased 6.9%, or $2.1 million a year.

If the same rate of increase carries forward into 2012, the cost for those 9 programs will increase by $279 million. If the State passes the 2% real property tax cap the counties will be limited to increases of $90 million. Where will the other $187 million come from? So far Governor Cuomo and the State Legislature have refused to address that issue. The simple answer is that counties will have to reduce or eliminate the non-mandated programs that are funded by the remaining 10% of their tax revenue. The biggest of those programs involve county roads and bridges. Incredibly there is no mandate that we maintain safe roads and bridges. However, if we don't invest in this infrastructure we will have poor roads, closed bridges, and lawsuits by those harmed by the lack of maintenance.

The local situation is even more challenging. Over the past 10 years the State has coerced us into building our new Jail, constructing the Courthouse Addition, and renovating the Courthouse. In addition, there are major programs that come with partial State funding, that involve a local matching share. If we cut out the local contribution we will lose the entire program. Many of the Office For the Aging and Health Department programs fall into this category. The bottom line is that Allegany County participates in very few programs that aren't either mandated or heavily subsidized. The practical effect of the real property tax cap will be the elimination of virtually all non-mandated programs.

I know...I know –
The beard has got to go.
This thingamabob,
It did its job:
Protecting me out in the snow.

But hear...now hear:
Its hair is in my ear,
In my mouth and my food
(It's extremely well-chewed) –
Yes, it's time for my annual shear.

Come 'round...come 'round
And list' to the glorious sound
Of clippers a-buzzing
Removing the fuzzing –
My countenance being re-found!

It's May...it's May,
The time to put woolens away.
Conditions demand it...
My wife, she can't stand it –
So the darn thing was doomed anyway!

Frank Crumb's Dream Campaign Update

114 down, 11 to go

Back in 1884, a simple item appeared in the Sun that said, "Wanted, one thousand subscribers to the Alfred Sun." It's been 125 years since legendary Sun Editor Frank A. Crumb, with the Sun from 1883 to 1951, set the millenary goal.

I, too, set a goal of 1000 subscribers when I joined the paper in 1976. That goal was finally reached in January 1999.

The late Eugene T. Van Horn, who owned the newspaper from 1951 until 1973, told us one time that circulation peaked in the 1960s at 700. It's now over 900. We've added 114 new subscribers since Jan. 1, 2009.

ASC breaks ground for student center

ALFRED--Ground was broken ceremonially Friday, May 6 on a $33 million student leadership center at Alfred State College. The unique building will be a hub that will in every aspect motivate students to take initiative to lead.

"We are developing a program to create future leaders to be highly motivated, responsible, and who will contribute to the public good," college officials said. One of the secrets to developing this program is to provide future leaders with "hands-on" experiences that demonstrate how their choices and actions impact others. This is not done in a text book, but done through student-led projects.

This new center will house 25-30 "civic-minded" club spaces that can only be occupied after the student leaders have submitted a student leadership business plan on a project that gives back to the community (campus, local, regional, world) and must include a marketing plan that explains how they will effectively draw other students to their projects.

The Student Leadership Center will be located at the center of the campus and will be the premier place for students to gather throughout the day in a "one-of-a-kind" designed space dubbed the "Commons" corridor.

The Commons corridor will place every student who enters the facility in the middle of a hub of activity that will allow students from different majors, ages, and different levels of community involvement to be in direct contact with each other. It will provide new forms of engagement and leadership that will no longer allow the student to be a bystander in regard to their learning and community engagement. It will create an "in your face" flavor of student engagement.

The Center's uniqueness will intertwine student engagement opportunities with sites of student leadership. The Center will carefully sequence student leadership training with student "store-fronts" of engagement so that we heighten the curiosity of all students who visit the Center and encourage their aspiration to lead others.

Finally, the Center will have a "state-of-the-art" leadership institute for training students, hosting seminars with speakers from around the globe, conducting a leadership lecture series that allows students to learn and practice ethical decision-making, communication skills, leadership, teamwork, and conflict resolution.

The Student Leadership Center will link leadership preparation with civic engagement projects. All participating students will complete 40 hours of a student leadership program prior to on-site activities associated with the civic engagement projects. Each project will provide opportunities for students to plan, execute, and experience a direct relationship between leadership and making a direct difference in the lives of others.

Examples of Projects That Our Students Have Shown Interest In

These projects would involve 95 to 100 students over the course of a year and they would volunteer approximately 15,470 civic hours. This volunteer effort could have an impact on over 1,100 community members in need of assistance. The students would be learning and applying leadership skills to real world issues, while having an immediate impact on the lives of others in need, and more importantly, the Student Leadership Center would be developing civic-minded leaders for the future.

Because students and communities will benefit in different ways from the Center's activities, the benefits of your contribution will be widespread, multifaceted, and powerful. And because the dollar value of the student efforts in the community civic projects will significantly exceed the amount of your support, the impact of your support will be multiplied.

ASC Mobile Assistance Fleet

The Automotive Trades students will help design and maintain a small fleet of buses and trailers to serve the disaster-relief and social program needs

ALFRED—Alfred State College President Dr. John M. Anderson welcomed dignitaries to campus recently as he, and they, broke ground for the college's new Student Leadership Center. The Center, destined to be unique to higher education, will in every aspect motivate students to take initiative to lead and contribute to the public good. One facet of developing this program is to provide "hands-on" experiences that demonstrate how their choices and actions impact others. This is not done in a text book, but done through student-led projects. This new center will house 25-30 "civic-minded" club spaces that can only be occupied after the student leaders submit a student leadership business plan on a project that gives back to the community (campus, local, regional, world) and must include a marketing plan explaining how they will draw other students to their projects. Located at the center of campus, this new structure will include a climbing wall overlooking the beautiful valley of Alfred; high and low ropes courses; "dirty space," where students can work on projects; a gaming room with Wii and PS3; a late night café; a student-run retail store; and "wow"-inspiring technology. Additionally, in an effort to achieve gold LEED certification, the building will feature geo-thermal wells, solar panels, and a water reclamation system, to name a few of its characteristics. Speakers at the event, in addition to Anderson, included NYS Sen. Catharine Young (R, C, I-Olean); Erik Tellander, William Rawn Associates, Boston, MA, architects; Geoff Hamburg, capital program manager, SUNY Construction Fund; Bill Goodrich, ASC class of 1984, CEO and president, LeChase Construction, LLC, providing construction management services on the project; AJ LaMere, ASC Student Senate president; Patricia K. Fogarty, chair, Alfred State College Council; and Rep. Tom Reed (R, Corning). Pictured here wielding golden shovels, l-r: Glenn Brubaker, director, ASC Facilities Services; LaMere; Reuben Rogers, ASC construction consultant; Tellander; Reed; Goodrich; Anderson; Young; Fogarty; Hamburg; Andy Smilich, ASC director of capital projects; Dr. Steven J. both locally and nationally. The fleet will serve a building trades team to assist with construction and repairs, a culinary team to prepare and serve food in areas where food access is limited by disaster, and a healthcare team to provide limited focused health services. The highly visible and highly mobile Fleet will be designed to allow participating students to serve for short periods that will not disrupt their traditional studies.

ASC HOT (Hands-On Technology) Camps

This two-week summer camp at the College is designed to excite junior-high students about science-engineering, leadership, and service through creative hands-on summer camp programs. The camps will offer a choice of four educational tracks and will be team-taught by Alfred State students (with minimal faculty supervision). The four tracks will be: Green Technologies in the Home, Car, and Environment; Culinary Cuisines on the Fly in Crisis; Creating Solutions to World Problems through Robotics; and Digital This! Communication Solutions through Animation. All students will leave the camp having completed a hands-on project in their chosen track. Each camp will include outside speakers who will tie learning technologies to service and leadership.

ASC Global Service Project

Teams of students will identify a need either in a domestic or international community and then develop a project to satisfy that community need. Examples suggested by students include - construction of schools or libraries; -design and construction of small production water or power facilities in third-world countries; -working with international aid at medical sites in third-world countries.

In spring 2010, 21 students traveled to Haiti where they were involved primarily in construction, but also helped with some feeding programs and provided some veterinary care to Haitian livestock. Read an excerpt from a journal written by Andrew Catlin, '12 and view photos of the Haitian relief trip.

Building Civic-Minded Leaders in New Orleans

Semester in the South brought building trades seniors real-world experience in an area where the labor was most needed. They learned new building technologies while restoring/building new homes in hurricane-devastated New Orleans, LA, and Bay St. Louis, MS. Working with nationally recognized service organizations, students also built a social consciousness while working with locals struggling to rebuild a sense of community; national experts on rebuilding communities were brought in for the students during their stay. Watch our Semester in the South video to learn more about this experience.

"This exciting project is a genuine investment in New York State - at a time when genuinely transforming ventures are difficult to get off the ground, everyone involved with this project sees both the short- and long-term benefits of this visionary facility." - Catharine Young, NYS Senator

Museum dedicated at AU

ALFRED—Alfred University Tuesday dedicated the Inamori Kyocera Museum of Fine Ceramics in a ceremony at 12:30 p.m. in Binns-Merrill Hall on the AU campus.

Dr. Kazuo Inamori, founder and chairman emeritus of Kyocera Corp., one of the world’s largest manufacturers of high-tech ceramics, will be on hand for the dedication.

“We are deeply honored that Dr. Inamori was able to join us for this occasion,” said Alfred University President Charles M. Edmondson. “Dr. Inamori has been a valued friend to the University and in particular to our School of Engineering.”

Although they sound similar, the “fine ceramics” in this museum should not be confused with “fine china.” Today’s engineered ceramic materials have been developed primarily for cutting-edge applications in science and industry.

“The Inamori Kyocera Museum of Fine Ceramics will play an important role in educating young people about the vital role of ceramics in the future economy — in areas ranging from Information Technology to medical devices, diagnostic systems, industrial equipment, renewable energy and environmental preservation,” President Edmondson added. “Equally important, by documenting the work of Dr. Inamori and Kyocera Corp.’s leadership in the advancement of science and global well-being, it will provide an inspiring example of what can be accomplished by imagination, hard work, and ethical commitment.”

A symposium in Dr. Inamori’s honor was held at 9 a.m. Tuesday, May 10, in Nevins Theater, Powell Campus Center.

Speakers, in addition to Dr. Inamori, included: Marina Pascucci, a 1977 alumna of the University who is president of CeraNova in Marlborough, MA, and president of the American Ceramics Society; Terry Michalske, a 1975 alumnus who is now director of the Savannah River federal research laboratory; Gary Messing, a 1973 alumnus who is head of the materials science and engineering department at Pennsylvania State University; and Linda Jones, associate vice president and head of the NYS College of Ceramics at Alfred University, who is a Fellow of the ceramics society and a member of its board of directors.

Displays within the museum highlight the history of ceramic materials, which can be traced back to 24,000 BCE (Before Common Era) to today, where fine (also known as advanced or engineered) ceramics are an enabling technology in countless everyday items — from computers and cell phones to more specialized applications like fuel cells, solar panels and biomedical implants.

“The museum helps solidify Alfred’s reputation as a center for ceramic research and education,” said Doreen Edwards, dean of the Kazuo Inamori School of Engineering. She says she anticipates visitors will include specialists and scientists. “People who are involved in the manufacture of ceramics and related technologies will find this of interest,” she said, but there is also plenty to draw the general public.

Adjacent to the museum is what will be called the Discovery Lab, which will be the University’s center for outreach activities involving students from kindergarten through 12th grade and their teachers. Working with Marlene Wightman, director of continuing education, and Steve Pilgrim, professor of materials science and engineering, faculty will develop programming, including demonstrations and hands-on activities, appropriate to the grade level and interests of the students, Edwards explained.

One of the most intriguing aspects of the new museum is the opportunity to showcase both the artistic and technical sides of ceramic materials in one location, noted Jones. The Schein-Joseph Museum of Ceramics, which has extensive collection of ceramic art, is located adjacent to the new museum in Binns-Merrill Hall.

“This is an absolute reflection of the College of Ceramics that joins both the School of Art & Design and the Inamori School of Engineering,” said Jones. “From the inception of the College, it was recognized that creativity and technical understanding are essential to address the challenges of our time.”

The Inamori Kyocera Museum of Fine Ceramics was established to recognize a $10 million gift to the School of Engineering in Dr. Inamori’s honor by Kyocera Corporation. The University also named its School of Engineering for Dr. Inamori.

Actual funding to create the museum came from New York

State as a partial match for the gift from Kyocera Corporation. The museum is located in Binns-Merrill Hall, the oldest of the New York State College of Ceramics buildings on campus. The College of Ceramics was created by an act of the NYS Legislature in 1900. Originally called the NYS School of Clayworking, the College has evolved into two schools — the School of Engineering and the School of Art & Design — each with an international reputation for excellence.

About Kazuo Inamori:

Dr. Inamori, 79, graduated from Kagoshima University in 1955 with a degree in engineering. He joined Shofu Industries, which made porcelain insulators for use in electrical transmission lines. Intrigued by the possibility that ceramics could be engineered or designed for emerging technology applications, Dr. Inamori founded the Kyoto Ceramic Co., Ltd. (now Kyocera) in 1959 with 3 million yen invested by acquaintances. He served as president and chairman of the board until 1997, when he assumed the title of founder and chairman emeritus. In 1984, while still overseeing Kyocera Corp., Dr. Inamori established DDI Corp. in Japan as a provider of telecommunications services.

Dr. Inamori’s interests extend beyond business and industry. In 1984, he established the non-profit Inamori Foundation, best known for awarding the Kyoto Prize, an international award that recognizes individuals and groups that have made outstanding contributions to the global community and humankind.

His relationship with Alfred University dates back to the 1980s. The University awarded him an honorary Doctor of Science degree in 1988, recognizing his leadership in the field of advanced ceramic materials. He created Alfred University’s Inamori Scholarships, which assist deserving students studying art or engineering.

The $10 million endowment from Kyocera Corporation for the School of Engineering allowed the School to create and support four endowed professorships, which are awarded to outstanding scholars and researchers in ceramics and materials science.

MY COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS

I have never had any reason to deliver a commencement address, but it is the time of year when many people in the United States of America do. It strikes me as a thankless task, and one that I have no wish to take on.

Recently I mulled over memories of commencements which I have attended at high schools and universities. I struggled to remember details about the speakers whom I had heard. The names of fewer than a handful of guest adult ones came to mind. None of the names of graduating student speakers surfaced.

I realized that the most memorable people in the former group were famous ones. Some of the latter may have become so by now, although probably not for what they said during the ceremony.

In truth, I could not recall any stirring phrases which may have been delivered by speakers from either group. I have the impression that the overall thrust of the orations was to encourage the graduating students to do this or that. But what?

The word “what” actually was the first word of a pithy, four-word question that throughout my adult life I have found to be more useful than any other sentence. I have not heard it spoken at a commencement, possibly for what it might lead to there.

As an undergraduate at the University of Kansas in the early 1950’s I took an enjoyable, and educational, literature course. It was based on short selections from the works of 20th Century British and American authors. To open classroom discussion on each assigned reading, the professor asked a simple question: “What are the values?”

Given such a leading question, voiced opinions readily flowed. All sorts of values were consciously or unconsciously examined, including those of the characters, the author, the general public, and our own.

I could not have imagined then that this query would inform much of my thinking in the future. Not surprisingly, it has become my most useful aid when I read fiction and nonfiction, including “The Alfred Sun.” More unexpectedly, it serves as a mental yardstick in the course of my everyday life. It helps me to evaluate next steps and previous ones.

I also use it to ponder the actions of friends, as I get to know their personal beliefs. Or, I may speculate on what is guiding a stranger’s behavior. What values influence the minds of the selfless or the self-serving? Heroes and criminals? The poor and the wealthy? Politicians and jurists? Professional journalists and amateur bloggers? Dictators, their supporters, and the rebellious? Martin Luther King, Jr. or pastor Terry Jones?

What does the word “value” bring to the mind of a banker or a mathematician? The directors of one corporation or another corporation? High school seniors and university seniors?

The best thing about using this question is that it is non-judgmental. It does not come equipped with a “right” answer as to what is a good value and what is a bad one. If it is posed only to one’s self, then that issue need not arise.

Individual opinions concerning a particular value frequently show up in a discussion amongst two or more people. If students are told before confronting an assignment to think about values, they may raise a nearly endless list of elements in an ensuing conversation. Genuinely enthusiastic students who readily take to the task may end up in Congress. Or not. My own fervor has been insufficient to carry me that far.

Nevertheless, I admit to a long-standing interest in government matters. I even joined the Joplin, Missouri Senior High School debate team and argued the pro’s and con’s of a quaint idea. “Resolution: That the president of the United States should be elected by the direct vote of the people.” The proposal is still an occasional topic of national debate. If one is in a hurry, it is advisable to avoid it when speaking to me.

On the other hand, if forced to deliver, I would make quick work of a commencement address. First, I would ask, “What are the values of holding this ceremony?” Then I would add, “Go ahead. Share your answers with people near you. This is not a test.”

Next, I would wait silently at the lectern for the decibels emanating from the audience and the stage party to reach a satisfying level. Thereupon, I would make a rapid and unceremonious descent from the platform into oblivion.

Martha Ann “Matt” Mueller is retired librarian who resides in the Village of Alfred who would likely be a welcome commencement speaker most anywhere.

ANTHONY CAPPADONIA

ASC will honor 'Cappy' with auditorium naming

ALFRED—Alfred State College will name its auditorium for longtime employee Anthony Cappadonia following the successful completion of a campaign to raise funds for renovations of the facility, President Dr. John M. Anderson announced recently.

President Anderson made the announcement at the Alfred State College Alumni Choir Concert, an event which has been led by Cappadonia for 60 years.

"Over the next couple of years, the College will invest over a quarter of a million dollars to upgrade the auditorium. We approached the alumni choir leadership about whether the group would like to support the renovation of the space that they had performed in so many times, and they were very enthusiastic. We will spend the next year raising an additional $100,000 from supporters to further the scope of the renovations of this auditorium, and second, once we have achieved that $100,000 goal, to commemorate that successful campaign we will name this facility after the person who, more than any other, poured his heart and soul into the wonderful performances that have graced this hall over the years: Anthony Cappadonia," said Anderson.

Professor Emeritus Anthony Cappadonia served as music professor at Alfred State College from 1951 until his retirement in 2007, after 56 years of directing both instrumental and choral groups.

Cappadonia earned his bachelor and master degrees in instrumental and vocal music from Ithaca College and continued graduate work at Syracuse and Alfred universities. He has authored many articles in the Choral Journal, a national publication. He is also an accomplished composer, most recently honored by performance of his Alleluia, Prayer, and Amen at the National Cathedral in Washington, DC.

The response to the project has been strong — over $30,000 has been pledged in just seven weeks. The renovation funds, both from the College's budget and from the money raised through the campaign, will be used to improve the auditorium's lighting, sound system, acoustics, appearance, and other mechanicals. The College hopes to dedicate the facility at next year's Alumni Choir Concert. Those interested in supporting the project may go to alfred-state.edu/give.

In the spring of '95, he brought his best tunes out on a debut cassette entitled "I Wanna Be Ignorant." Now there's a CD bearing the same name, the same tunes and a generous helping of extra tracks to go with them.

In 1996, Tom came out with his second CD entitled "The Song is the Thing." Over the next three years, he released two more original CD's: "Hang On" and "Shut Up and Smell the Coffee."

London-born Wates to perform in Angelica Saturday

ANGELICA—Black-Eyed Susan Acoustic Café presents performing songwriter Rupert Wates at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, May 14.

"[Wates] made us all sit up pop-eyed at what he could do with six strings."

Keith Harrelson, Moonlight On The Mountain

Performing songwriter Rupert Wates brings his brand of acoustic, melodic art / folk music to Black-Eyed Susan Acoustic Café on Saturday, May 14.

Rupert Wates was born in London. He has been a full time songwriter since 1992 when he signed an exclusive deal with Eaton Music Publishing. He has written songs in all kinds of styles for all kinds of artists. Since September 2006, WATES has been based in the US. His music has found a warm reception here, earning him more than 25 songwriting awards including the Gold Prize, Folk Category, 2007 Midatlantic Song Contest in Washington, DC. He plays between 120 and 150 live shows a year, and he has performed in every state in America.

"Carrying on the most fundamental aspects of the troubadour / balladeer / protester, Rupert Wates is a glorious throwback to the old Woody, Pete, Phil Ochs days filtered through a bit of Harry Chapin... Each song yanks the listener fully into the story and rhythms, not to mention an emotionality imbuing Wates's plaintively melodic voice. Trust me, Rupert Wates is an exceedingly rare talent."

Mark S. Tucker, Folk And Acoustic Music Exchange

els, Rupert is a thinking man's songwriter. Some of his themes are ultra-serious. So the total package is stirring. You just want to listen to every word of every song."

The doors at Black-Eyed Susan open at 11 a.m. on Saturdays for lunch, with dinner, specialty coffees and desserts starting at 4:30 p.m. Balladeer Jim Schwartz opens at 6 p.m. with Rupert Wates beginning at 7:30 p.m. There is no cover charge, but guests are expected to contribute to the musician's tip jar. The kitchen remains open until 10 p.m. and the café closes at 11 p.m. Reservations for dinner -- while never necessary -- are strongly encouraged.

Bethel Steele returning to Angelica

ANGELICA—Bethel Steele returns to the Music Room at Black-Eyed Susan Acoustic Café on Friday, May 13 for an evening of straight-up folk music with a dash of country and alternative in the mix.

Originally from Homer, Steele now lives in Dorchester, MA and tours all over the east coast. Her early musical training was on brass instruments. She first picked up a guitar at age 14, and that switch propelled her to begin writing her own songs. She has two original recordings to her credit: the eight-song EP "Beautiful Woman" and the full-length album "Come Home." Recorded with a full band of support, "Come Home" delivers tastes of a country upbringing and dashes of pop and rock, but is nailed in the folk genre.

Bethel has been showcased as a solo artist and as an opening act for nationally- and regionally-touring artists, as well as busking throughout the Boston subway system. Steele is also a member of the group JP Unplugged (www.jpunplugged.org) that hosts an acoustic music series in Jamaica Plain, Massachusetts.

The Master Gardeners will hold a free Ph clinic on Saturday, May 14 at Tinkertown Hardware from 1 to 5 p.m.

Bring your soil sample and questions. We will check out the 4x4 raised bed planted last year. Plants from our gardens will be available for a donation. Proceeds will go toward future training so we can even better answer your questions!

The ground is still quite wet so tread gently in the garden. How about putting down a board to walk on? Say 1 foot by 6 foot. Peas, spinach, carrots, lettuce, onions shall all be in by now. Potatoe sets and broccoli soon.

See you next week. Come with questions--depart with lovely plants.

April showers bring May flowers! This is the old adage to which I have always found much comfort in, especially after a long and cold winter season. The thought of donning a sweater rather than having to bundle up in several layers of clothing when venturing out, is definitely more than enticing during this time of year.

The warm and balmy coastal effects of New England are indeed no exception to this rule, and I always remember the seasonal changes faithfully making a gradual difference in the main-land temperatures during the equinox interval. With the miracle of Spring also came the anticipation of a week long vacation from school, and the knowledge that a summer hiatus was not that far away.

Daffodils, which could also now be easily recognized with their sunny, bright yellow buds that annually welcomed onlookers and cheerfully adorned the various terrains in the neighborhood, were another sign that the weather was about to change for the better.

There are of course, many advantageous to experiencing the four distinct months of each year, but the one that lodges itself in the forefront of my mind as being the most appealing, is the one which invites red breasted robins to my back lawn, or those blissful melodies they always seem to carry with them!

County begins marketing plan

BELMONT--You've seen them before... sturdy corrugated mailing boxes filled with all manner of delectable specialty food items: jams, sauces, dressings, candies, syrups, mustards, vinegars, crackers, etc. "Until now, there hasn't been a package like this, that features the 'bounty of our county' says Gretchen Hanchett, Business and Community Development Director of the Allegany Business Center. "We're reaching out to local producers all across the county. We want to include their items in gift boxes that will showcase the very best packaged specialty foods that our area has to offer."

These gift boxes will be available for purchase at select area retailers, lodging establishments, at area festivals and events, and our website, soon to come www.tasteofallegany-countyny.com Hanchett continues, "Products will be grouped in themed collections, including foods made with garlic, lavender and maple, or they could include all sweets or all sauces." Soon you'll have an easy way to send a taste of home to your far-away friends or relatives. They make great gifts for employees, volunteers, clients, or anyone you wish to thank, remember, reward or impress.

Producers who are interested in having their goods included in these collections are encouraged to contact Ms. Hanchett as soon as possible. "We're soon going to be putting the first collections together and so we need to see samples no later than May 31st", she said. Any food products must be processed in a certified kitchen, to meet the requirements to be sold online.

Our goal is to purchase products from the producers at wholesale; the packaged collections will be sold at retail pricing. The profit from each sale will be used to advertise the BUY LOCAL initiative and to promote additional sales of gift boxes. Hanchett hopes to be able to place larger and larger orders with local producers, creating a valuable new marketing channel for their products.

County residents will benefit in a number of ways. This initiative will help encourage tourism, small business development, and entrepreneurship. "Best of all," she says, "the entire initiative will support ongoing programs and services provided by the Allegany Business Center. Since 1987, ACCORD's business programs have assisted over a 1000 businesses. For more program information, check out our website facts at www.alleganybusinesscenter.com.

The "BUY LOCAL" initiative has a secondary goal of strengthening and supporting the local economy in a number of ways through business development. It will underscore the products that help make Allegany County a cultural and tourism attraction. It will also help to show case our products produced in Allegany County. This will help strengthen our reputation and develop community pride.

"We are also designing a separate website, now under construction www.buylocalalleganycountyny.com, featuring a comprehensive directory of Allegany County businesses, searchable by business name, and the product or services they provide. This will make it extremely easy for area residents to choose a local business when they need a particular good or service". Any businesses wanting to be listed in this directory, please send business information/website to: customerservice@buylocalalleganycountyny.com

This website will also help identify products and services that are not currently available locally, which could be valuable to new or existing businesses we assist through the Allegany Business Center.

The Allegany Business Center (ABC) is a program of Accord Corporation and Allegany Community Development Services, Inc. (ACDSI), 501 [c] 3 not-for-profit organizations. The Allegany Business Center was established in 2000 to provide business and financial education, training, and select financial products for entrepreneurs, business owners and/or private individuals in the target markets that we serve.

Village Planning Board OKs renovation plans

By PETER McCLAIN
of the Village Planning Board

ALFRED--During the monthly meeting of the Alfred Village Planning Board, three applications related to renovations partially funded by the New York Main Street grant were reviewed along with one general permit application.

Matching window and awning replacements were presented for the Rosebush building and 15 North Main. The windows will consist of double hung panes and bronze trim while the current wooden awning will be replaced with stone coated sheets of metal tiles designed to appear similar to terra cotta tiles.

Additionally, 15 North Main will be repairing the front and rear entrances, refurbishing the third story skylight, and restoring the exterior copper framing and marble base on the building façade. A permit for replacement of the sign attached to 15 North Main was presented as well.

The final application requested replacement of the concrete stoop leading into the Seventh Day Baptist Parish House with wooden stairs and porch, with current steel railing retained in the new design. All applications were approved by the board.

Reports to the board indicated that in conjunction with the paving of North and South Main Street this summer, passive speed restraint "bump outs" will be installed on the northern corners of West University, Saxon Drive and Main Street to slow traffic entering the business district from the south and aid pedestrians at that crossing. The planning board recommended consideration of material to be used with a preference for uniformity with the current streetscape design of Main Street.

A special meeting of the Alfred Village Planning Board is set for Thursday, May 12 at 7 p.m. to review three more applications related to projects subsidized by the New York Main Street grant award. The next regular meeting will be Thursday, June 2nd at 7:30pm.

ASC students busy in Sorrento

ALFRED--As students enrolled in the architectural technology program at Alfred State College wind down their semester in sunny Sorrento, Italy, the end-of-the-year projects still need to be completed.

Combining their burgeoning design skills with the College's commitment to civic engagement, students began preliminary work on the Marina Piccola project, focusing on enhancing the experience of the port as the gateway to Sorrento through rehabilitation of many of its older existing buildings as well as through the creation of several new features which include piazzas, cafes, restaurants, a small beach area, observation towers, new walkways connecting the port to Piazza Tasso, a music venue, and a feature building which will house a sort of "taste of Sorrento" shopping experience. The new port designs also incorporate the exit point for the proposed underground connection to Parcheggio Lauro.

Jeff Johnston, assistant professor, ASC Computer Imaging and Architectural Engineering Technology Department, who accompanies the architecture students during their semester in Sorrento, notes, "The idea for the Marina Piccola project really began last year when I noticed that the city had commissioned a study for the development of a new piazza area in part of the existing ferry boat port. The piazza design was in response to the just completed Parcheggio Lauro, a new, multi-story underground parking garage at the top of the cliffs of Sorrento. The city hoped to alleviate a serious problem of congestion in the main square of town (Piazza Tasso) by providing car, scooter, and bus parking in this new facility. The plan is to eventually connect Parcheggio Lauro with the port by creating a set of elevators and moving sidewalks underground and exiting roughly 120 feet down in the port itself.

"The design drawings that we saw on billboards in town last year were very preliminary, so I thought this might make a good exercise for the students. Unfortunately, we began the project too late last year, but having had a year to think about it, we started earlier and, with input from the marketing and demographic studies that the Alfred State business students also studying in Sorrento carried out, we saw much greater potential in the scope of the project."

Marina Piccola is one of two ports in Sorrento. Marina Grande, at the east end of town, is quieter and functions primarily as a fishing port. Marina Piccola is more centrally located and is the major point of entry and departure for many of the 2,000,000 tourists who visit Sorrento annually.

One of the many aspects of Sorrento addressed in the project was to create a place where people would gather: shops, restaurants and cafes, and in other entertainment and recreational activities. Currently, many people who come to Sorrento only pass through briefly on their way to Capri. A primary goal of the project was to capture some of those people for a longer period of time.

Dianne Tuzzolino, associate professor, ASC Business Department, who accompanied her students during their semester in Sorrento, decided to use the port project as a way for her business students to study international tourism, and also as a vehicle to apply what her students have been learning with respect to sustainable business practices.

Her students researched the nature of tourism in Sorrento, assessed the strengths and weaknesses of current businesses in the port, and studied the possible impacts of an enhanced, sustainable port facility.

Using the business students' findings as a guide, the architecture and interior design students spent a week studying the physical features of the port, and then developed master plans for implementing as many of the business students' recommendations as possible.

Two teams of seven students each developed a separate master plan, each with somewhat different emphases and features. Once the master plans were roughly drawn, each student selected a single aspect, or feature, to design on his/her own.

During the early weeks of the project, Cristiana Panicco, Director of Sant'Anna Institute, contacted the mayor's press secretary and found that there was a great deal of interest in what the Alfred State groups were doing, and from there, plans were made to have the students present their projects to the mayor and the city council. The student designs will give the city a number of potentially beneficial improvements to consider.

Early on, we asked Fabio Fiorentino, a local architect, to speak to the students about the history of the development of Marina Piccola over the past 200 years. Fiorentino, along with his father Alessandro, has done some design work in the past related to the port, and both are deeply interested in the history of Sorrento and the upgrading of the existing port.

Most importantly, the project, and the presentation to the city, will open a design dialog between ASC students and the city of Sorrento.

SUNY will be catalyst in state bid for business

ALFRED—State University of New York (SUNY) Chancellor Dr. Nancy L. Zimpher and NYS Gov. Andrew Cuomo have joined forces to outline a vision for reopening New York State to business—with SUNY as the catalyst for progress.

"I am pleased to see a collaboration between SUNY and state government," said Dr. John M. Anderson, Alfred State College president. "The new NYSUNY 2020 Challenge Grant Program will help lead economic revitalization in New York State."

The NYSUNY 2020 Challenge Grant Program's mission is to make SUNY a leading catalyst for job growth throughout the state, strengthen the academic programs of the University Centers, and demonstrate that New York is open for business, according to a jointly released statement.

The NYSUNY 2020 Challenge Grant Program will initially consist of $35 million in capital funding per school ($20 million administered by Empire State Development Corporation and $15 million from SUNY's construction fund) for the four SUNY University Centers. Phase one of the program is worth up to $140 million dollars to the SUNY University Centers in Albany, Binghamton, Buffalo, and Stony Brook. The first round of approvals will be made by the end of this year.

The funding will be integrated with the Governor's Regional Economic Development Councils and administered by ESDC. The approach will leverage private sector and other source funding to further the goals of job creation and economic development.

"This is perfectly aligned with SUNY's strategic plan, The Power of SUNY, which has as its pivotal goal the economic revitalization of our state and improving the quality of life of our citizens," added Anderson.

According to SUNY officials, Albany, Binghamton, Buffalo and Stony Brook will now have the ability to put forth comprehensive proposals that both advance SUNY's academic mission and spur regional development — economic activity that all 64 campuses can benefit from. Enabling SUNY's university centers to open the doors to new opportunity will allow SUNY to bring that opportunity to scale for the entire system.

Local businesses, local governments and other parties will be able to make the most of what SUNY has to offer: world-class students, top-notch educators and researchers, and cutting-edge innovation.

"We are proud to be part of this collaboration," Anderson continued. "It will allow SUNY's university centers to become leading institutions of higher education and showcase SUNY's diverse ability to bring jobs to New York—and it augurs well for all SUNY campuses."

HITS AND MISSES:

Former Alfred State College women's basketball coach, Joe Q. French, has his UMBC Retrievers softball team in the post season conference tournament again as they will be the #4-seed this weekend at Boston University. UMBC compiled an overall slate of (25-23) and gained the last spot in the America East as they joined Albany, Binghamton and BU in the double-elimination format. The winner receives an automatic berth to the NCAA Division I tournament. "Qua," the softball legend from Waterloo, also coached hoops and softball at SUNY Geneseo prior to landing the post at UMBC.

Former Canisteo resident, Mark Andrews was the overall winner of the Rochester Flower City Half Marathon that was held a week ago Sunday. Andrews toured the layout in a time of 1:09:46. Jennie Hansen was the women's champ at 1:23:25 and the 20th women was timed in 1:37:33. Michelle Milkovich and daughter Lauren finished 629-630 overall with a time of 1:55:09. A total of 1839 runners completed the race ... including Paul Welker (Alfred State) and Nate Wiley (SUNY Geneseo)! Andrews is off to Virginia May 21st for a big race there where he will be joined by Olympian John Tuttle (A-A) of Torrey Painting Strider fame. Guessing race is in Williamsburg but agent "Hair" wasn't too specific in latest report.

Andy Crawford of Alfred finished first in the St. J's 5K race held over the weekend and guessing in the Naples area. Melissa Haahr of Almond was second in the women's race. Crawford is a glass science grad student at AU who competed in both cross country and track and field as an undergrad for the Saxons. Haahr is an AU senior from Owego who has competed in cross country and track and field at AU.

Sam Stonerock of the Hornell Red Raiders football team has been selected to play in the Upstate/Downstate Football Classic at Syracuse on June 5th. Hornell grabbed another state "B" title and Stonerock was named Player of the Year in that class after playing for Coach Gene Mastin's club.

Former Bolivar-Richburg ace hurler, Jordan Ingalls was the leading hitter for the Youngstown State softball team this past season as she compiled a .385 batting average and knocked in 40-runs. Have to believe she was named team MVP as the program went (22-24) overall. Saw her pitch once in high school against Webster Thomas when she was a senior. Solid, as was the shortstop and catcher on that team. The Titans beat them that day in Richburg.

Skip Sherman's (A-A) Genesee Community College baseball team fell in the Region III, Division II finals to Mercyhurst NE to finish up at 17-10 in a weather-hampered spring slate. Wife Kristy is going to coach the Brockport High girls basketball team next season as well as her "regular" duties as head coach of the girls soccer squad. Yikes! The soccer program has been solid for years under her guidance.

RIT won the Empire Eight men's lacrosse tournament as they drubbed Nazareth in the finals after the Golden Flyers stunned Stevens to advance. RIT (#2 in nation) beat Coach Jeff Long's Ithaca Bombers in the other semi-final, after trailing at the half, to move onward. Nazareth-Union, Cortland, RIT and Stevens made the NCAA Division III lax field. Three from the loaded E8 conference!

Heading into this past weekend of action in men's college lax, Syracuse was ranked #1 in D1 ... LeMoyne in D2 and Onondaga CC in the NJCAA ranks. In addition, Cortland ... just down the road from the Syracuse area, was fifth in the USILA poll. LeMoyne lost and didn't make the NCAA D2 field of four and MCC beat OCC in the NJCAA tournament.

What a great and "still busy" slate of spring sports at SUNY Cortland as they grabbed conference titles in baseball, softball, men and women's lax plus the women's track & field squad. The men took second-place to Geneseo in track & field. Wow!

The WNY Flash are now (3-0-1) in the women's pro soccer league but are drawing sparse crowds to their games in Rochester. The team has played two WPS contests with fans flocking to the stadium to number 2,164 and 1,704. Ouch. Abby Wambach and her

A-A back on track with 7-0 win

By MARCIA LICHTMAN

Alfred Sun Sports Reporter

After a weekend of nursing their wounds from the back to back losses (and enjoying a change of pace at the annual prom), the Eagles Monday boarded the bus for a road contest against league foe Avoca. A-A lit up the scoreboard first, scoring once in the first and once more in the second, and although the Tigers threatened with base runners of their own, some fine defensive work by Murray on the mound and Rebecca Jefferds in left field kept them from crossing the plate.

Another Eagle run in the fifth still did not feel like enough margin for Coach Carretto to do any substituting, and it remained tense until the top of the 7th when the Eagle bats finally got hot with a two out rally. Chelsey Pierce, who was 2-for-4 on the day, started the spree with a single up the middle, which was duplicated by Kali Muhleisen. Cassie Ingalls reached on an error, scoring Pierce, and although Murray struck out, the ball dribbled away from the catcher, allowing her to reach first and Muhleisen to score. Courtney Cook then smacked her second hit of the day into left field, scoring both Ingalls and Murray before the side was retired, leaving her aboard. The final three Tigers were retired in order, sending the Eagles home with a 7-0 victory.

Murray did her own damage offensively as well as defensively, launching the prettiest hit of the day over the center fielder's head for a double, and added a pair of singles in a three for four day at the plate. On the mound, she fired five strikeouts, two walks, and allowed only three hits.

Now that the weather has improved, the Eagles will need to conserve their energy for an action packed week. Six games are on this week's agenda as well as advanced placement exams in the classroom as the pace of both the athletic calendar and the academic calendar picks up. If you want to see some softball, chances are you can find a game being played by one of the three teams on the home field any afternoon that the sun is shining.

B-R avenges defeat

With the return of the sunshine came a return visit from the Bolivar-Richburg Wolverines, looking for revenge after a home field upset at the hands of the Eagles earlier this season. It was a scoreless pitching stalemate for the first two innings, and then the floodgates opened in the top of the third. The leadoff runner reached on a fielding error, and then the Wolverines put on a bunting clinic, executing perfectly placed bunts to move the runners around the bases, capped by a line drive triple to the far corner of right field. By the time Megan Murry struck out the final batter, Bolivar-Richburg had put seven runs on the scoreboard, and taken the wind from under the Eagles' wings.

Rena Henry and Gina Surita managed the only base hits with bloopers to short right field, but neither could make it across the plate as the B-R infield scooped up everything in their path and eventually took home a 9-0 shutout to erase memories of the earlier loss. Despite the lopsided score, it never felt like a runaway, as neither Murray nor reliever Cassie Ingalls walked a batter and they combined for six strikeouts on the day.

Redskins edge A-A

The following day offered another tense contest, as A-A traveled to Canisteo for a return engagement with the Redskins, who were also one run victims of the Eagles earlier this season. C-G coach Laura Allison wasted no time putting her ace on the mound this time, and Morgan York proved equal to the task of keeping the Eagle runners off the bases in the top of the first.

Leadoff Redskin Raegan Ryan served notice that the C-G was serious, lacing Murray's first pitch to centerfield for a double, and she crossed the plate two batters later on routine infield outs.

Centerfielder Courtney Cook broke through first for A-A, with a rising line drive to left field for a double in the second inning, but was stranded at third at the end of the inning. Shortstop Kali Muhleisen gave the fans another thrill with her double to left in the third, but was again stranded. Murray and Grace Scherzer both scored for A-A in the fourth, hitting back to back singles to start the inning, and advancing on routine ground balls to put A-A up by one run.

The Redskins have a history of late inning heroics, and today would be no exception. In the bottom of the sixth, the leadoff batter grounded a ball up the middle for a base hit, (only their third of the game) and the owner of the previous two hits stepped to the plate and powered a tailing outside pitch to the farthest edge of right field and nearly overtook the lead runner in her zeal to circle the bases and score the go ahead run, just ahead of the throw to the plate. A united infield effort finished the day and evened the outcomes for these two well matched teams, handing A-A their first league loss at 3-2.

Florida team is in Rochester on May 22nd to play the Flash and if that game doesn't draw about 8,000 ... the team will never have fans supporting it! Will be interesting to see who the crowd roots for, hometown team or hometown hero?

Next weekend marks the anniversary of the epic Logblasters battle at Cedar River! The featured match had Stub taking on The Thunderbolt with an undercard of Mike Jackson (presumably not from Andover) versus The Screw Blaster. Cedar River runs thru Indian Lake, right by the golf course but not exactly sure where this annual event is held. Efforts to reach Stub were unsuccessful.

The NYS Sportswriters Association All-State boys basketball team was announced recently with some Allegany County players making the list. Matt Dean of Fillmore was on the first squad, Shawn Wright of Houghton-2, Randy Fuller of Belfast-5 and Adam Starks of Andover-6.

Matt Langel (Temple) is the new men's basketball coach at Colgate ... the Red Raiders.

Two no-hitters in MLB last week as Francisco Liriano (Twins) and Justin Verlander (Tigers) tossed the gems. Saw Liriano pitch for the Red Wings in Rochester on a rehab assignment a few years back.

Rashard Mendenhall (Pittsburgh Steelers) ... just a "few marbles" shy of a full jar.

Andrew Bynum (Los Angeles Lakers) ... real "class act" in NBA playoffs.

With all the talk about the "sudden decline" of New York Yankees shortstop, Derek Jeter, there are three players on the team playing far worse than the captain is! Brett Gardner is at the Mendoza Line and Nick Swisher isn't far from it. Also, new DH Jorge Posada is horrendous this year. That they are still in first place in the AL East (as of Monday am past) is quite remarkable. Andy Pettitte retired in the off season. He should've taken Posada with him.

Busy weekend in the Geneseo area upcoming as 3L graduates on Saturday. Wow! Saw her briefly this past weekend as she made a (laundry) trip to Webster prior to her summer job orientation at the YMCA. Headed to dinner in Livonia on Friday with sister Robin and "Grump" in town from Kentucky, Mom and Don up from Florida, Barb in from North Carolina plus 3L. Graduation Saturday plus cookout afterwards at the "bungalow" and then a fun move the next day back to Webster. Tad busy weekend and then Lauren departs for Europe Tuesday as she is back-packing with Brooke Easton ... an Indian Lake veteran on our ADK trips.
