AU prof to receive prestigious SSA award

sity (AU) professor who sounded an alarm about the "woeful" shortage of trained professionals to deal with New York State's aging population will receive the 2012 Walter M. Beattie Jr. Award from the State Society on Aging of New York (SSA) at its annual meeting Oct. 17-19 in Fairport.

Robert Maiden, professor of psychology and director of Alfred University's Gerontology Program in the College of Liberal Arts & Sciences, will receive the SSA's "most prestigious award" for his "outstanding contributions to the work of SSA and for commitment to its goals."

"I am really appreciative of this honor, and humbled to be recognized by my peers," said Maiden. Maiden, who joined the Alfred University faculty in 1982, was one of three researchers who examined the offerings in gerontology (the study of aging) at 241 colleges and universities. They found only 4 percent offer a major in gerontology; there are "very few programs" that train professionals to deal with an aging population, and more than half the schools "don't even offer a single course on aging."

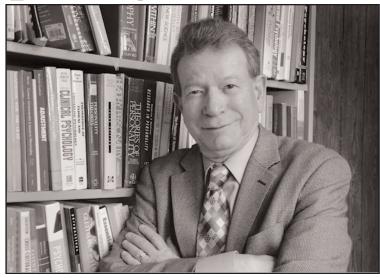

A medical school responded, questioning why Maiden would even ask what courses it taught about aging. It offered none, said Maiden, yet physicians now and in the future will be treating an aging population that consumes a large share of the health care

The Baby Boom Generation, those born between 1946 and 1964, are 78 million strong, and the oldest are just reaching the ages of 65-66. "There will be a tsunami" of aging people, said Maiden, and New York State is ill-prepared to deal with it.

Professionals – doctors, psychologists, social workers, nurses and others who will need to provide physical, mental and emotional care to the Baby Boomers are too few in number and "woefully undertrained" to deal with what's ahead, said Maiden. "We have very few people trained and available to serve the explosion in the senior population."

Co-authors of the study, which was presented at the 58th annual meeting of the Gerontological Society of America in 2005, are Emily Pimpinella, a 2005 alumna of Alfred University who worked on the project as an undergraduate and Neal Lane, director of the New York State Office for the Aging. The paper is considered a seminal one in the field, one that is frequently cited.

While Maiden calls attention to what he considers a national crisis - a lack of professionals wellequipped to handle the problems of the aging – he admits that he "found" his career in gerontology quite by accident, as did many others in the field. In an article he co-authored for the February 2012 edition of the Atlantic magazine's webpage, Maiden says he is finding some hope, however, in the number of AU undergraduates choosing gerontology.

He has also been extensively involved in the initiative to establish an accreditation process for gerontology programs, developing standards for degree programs at the associate's, bachelor's, master's and doctoral levels as a way of assuring the programs adhere to appropriate levels of quality and competency Maiden serves on a national task force for the Association for Gerontology in Higher Education; he was elected a Fellow of that association in 2008. He is also a Fellow of the Gerontological Society of America.

He has served the State Society on Aging of New York in a variety of capacities, including a term as president in 2002, and has been a member of its board of directors

Maiden has frequently published and presented on issues faced by the elderly in isolated rural areas where there is often a lack of services available to them. He holds a certificate of proficiency in the treatment of alcohol and other psychoactive substance use disorders, and is a board-certified diplomate-fellow in psychopharmacology. He is a licensed psychologist in New York State, a member of the courtesy staff at Jones Memorial Hospital, and an approved evaluator and provider of alcohol and substance abuse services.

Maiden is a member of the American Psychological Association, the Gerontological Society of America, and a member of the Northeast Association of Advisors for Health Professions.

A graduate of the University of Michigan, Maiden earned his master's in developmental psychology and a Ph.D. in clinical psychology from the New School for Social Research in New York.

CANISTEO--A Court of Honor was held recently at Somers Hall by Troop 83 to bestow upon Derek Brown and Patrick Greaney the highest attainable award in the Boy Scouting program. Scouts reaching this rank are called Eagle Scouts or Eagles. Less than 5% of young men who begin in Boy Scouts attain this exceptional honor. The title of Eagle Scout is held for life, thus giving credence to the phrase "Once an Eagle, always an Eagle."

Patrick and Derek completed the process in a special year as this is the Centennial Anniversary of the first Eagle Scout presentation. In addition veteran Dennis Staley was onsite to make the ceremony extraordinary by presenting the young men a special certificate and patch of congratulations from the United States Submarine Veterans – Buffalo Division.

Derek is the son of Doug and Sue Brown of Canisteo. His Eagle project required researching over 35 years of Canisteo-Greenwood school swimming records to verify and update what was already in place. The last review was last done in the mid 1990s. Once the research

First a kiosk was designed, built and installed to provide a venue for displaying a map of the hiking trail system. Secondly specific trail work was performed to upgrade and make the signage along the trail clearer. Through his leadership project Patrick and several other scouts crafted and installed ten new signs leaving a lasting legacy for generations to enjoy.

Derek and Patrick are longtime friends who have enjoyed the sport of competitive swimming together for many years. Both have registered for college this fall albeit in different states. Derek will attend Rochester Institute of Technology pursuing a degree in Computer Science while Patrick has enrolled in the Environmental Science program at Franklin and Marshall College in Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

We were touched as we entered the state, by a sign announcing that VFWs in Montana have a project placing white markers along highways where fatalities have occurred. We were chilled when we saw two different placements of seven fatalities. Those particular crosses were arranged in two rows of three each with a single central one at the top. We were shocked at the sheer numbers of these along just one highway as we traveled through Montana on our way home. Sometimes the markers were left plain, some were decorated, and some had a piece of red tape swathed diagonally across them

Yellow summer squash...perfect!

Don't you think that the yellow summer squash is the perfect vegetable? Its' subtle flavor is delicious in so many ways, it's easy to fix for many dishes, and it's good for you! I love to slice it into a frying pan with a pat of butter and just a little water. In a few minutes it is tenderly done and can be topped with grated cheese for a wonderful side dish.

Here's another way to fix yellow squash, one that will enable you to keep it around longer than the summer.

Pulos donates copies of book on A-A swim coaching history

By DONNA B. RYAN

Special to the Alfred Sun ALMOND—Area librarians and historians were special guests at the official launch of Attorney William W. Pulos' book, The Coaching History of Alfred Almond Swimming, at a book signing in the office of Alfred-Almond Central School Superintendent Rich Calkins Friday morning, August 3.

This is the story of the Alfred-Almond Central School Swimming and Diving Team. This book traces the coaching history of the high school swimming and diving program at Alfred-Almond Central School (New York State Section 5) for the 53 year period 1958-2011.

In his introductory remarks, Bill said: "My inspiration came from watching the 2010-2011 team win Alfred Almond's 5th consecutive Section 5 Class D championship (their 9th overall and the 1st I'd ever seen) and from talking with some of the swimmers and their parents, 45 years after I began managing the team."

Bill explained that since the A-A varsity program began, the team "has enjoyed remarkable success with a total of 14 coaches spanning 47 years. All of their respective efforts culminate in a sensational record of achievement that includes many county/league individual and team championships; nine New York State Section 5 team championships (including three in Class C and five in a row 2006-2011); numerous Section 5 individual and relay champs. State qualifiers; one High School All-American, Lauren Bonfe, (Maddy McConnell - perhaps the only AACS female to twice win a Sectional first place patch at a boy's sectional athletic competition); a 3-time gold medal

III Academic All-American; four NCAA Div. III All-Americans; one NCAA Division I Academic All-American and one NCAA Big 12 First Team Member."

It is a compelling story of a small high school located within Appalachia in one of the poorest per capita counties in New York State. So small that for years it was the smallest high school with a pool competing within its section. "Remarkable achievements for a little school that was, for many years, the smallest school in Section 5 with a varsity swim team," Bill said. "A little school that could. A small school and a big family of swimmers."

"The concepts of the coaches" and swimmers' collective desire, determination and discipline are woven together with the families of the community, the fabric that made this team go and which makes AACS so successful. But, at the end of the day, none of the swimmers ever get in the water without the coaches. The team doesn't run without the coach. Nobody turns on the lights in the pool and no one turns out the lights in the pool without the swim team coach. It is the coach that brings the best from the athletes. The coach is the unsung hero. None of the spectacular accomplishments of the fabulous Alfred-Almond swimming program would have been possible without coaches, for whom this book is dedicated," the author explained. The book focuses on the talents, skills and techniques that made each coach very successful in their own right, generation over generation. It is a story of continuity, connectivity and competition as seen through the eyes of its author, an AACS team manager and varsity swimmer 1966-1973; now a lawyer, teacher, author and Div III college rugby coach. Pulos etches a memorable portrayal of this high school team, in rural Western New York State, with its talented coaches and phenomenal swimmers

The book provides an outline for teaching high school sports management and creating a high school coaching program seeking to establish itself over generations. Signed copies of the book were presented to Tammy Kokot, Twentieth Century Club Library, Almond; Barbara Greil, Alfred State Library; Eliza Ordway, Box of Books Library, Alfred: Laurie McFadden, representing Alfred University Herrick Memorial Library and Baker's Bridge Historical Society; Donna B. Ryan, Almond Historical Society; Todd Goho, Sue Bain-Lucey and Rich Calkins, Elementary Principal, High School Principal and Superintendent, respectively, Alfred-Almond Central School.

The book can be found in hard cover and E-edition at this site: http://www.lulu.com/spotlight/WilliamWPulos.

Tammy Kokot from the 20th Century Almond Library announced the library will host a book signing with the author from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Oct.13 at the library on Main Street in Almond.

Bill and his brother Robert also announced that all net proceeds from the sale of this book will be donated to the Alfred Almond Alumni Association to support their scholarship program.

Another point of view

To the Editor:

I recently read two op-ed columns that have raised some points that, from my point of view, require a response.

The first columnist suggests that the recent "kiss-in" protest conducted by members of the homosexual community is, somehow, a violation of Mr. Cathy's First Amendment right to Freedom of Religion– that somehow he was being singled out for expressing his Christian values. I beg to differ. The protest against Mr. Cathy's position had nothing to do with Christian values. It was a protest against his contributions and support of organizations supporting bigotry. The major religion in this country may be Christian, but of all the thousands of Christians that I have known and loved in my time on this earth, none has been supportive of bigotry in any form. Let's try to keep in mind the subject of the protest – financial support of organizations that oppose attempts to prosecute acts of bigotry against their fellow citizens.

Second, I would like to respond to a columnint's suggestion that President Obama nothing more than stating his poapologize, for pointing out the sition of marriage being a union that were outsourced by Bain Capital. Mr. Romney has stated he was on "leave of absence" at the time because he was working with the International Olympic Committee setting up the 2004 Olympics in Salt Lake City.

However I would like to point out that during this period he held himself out as the sole shareholder (read owner) and CEO of Bain Capital to the Securities and Exchange Committee of the Federal government. As such, I find it hard to believe that a company he owned was engaged in such activities without his knowledge. I would be very concerned if a potential President of the United States could similarly be so totally unaware of the activities of the various offices within the Federal government.

I would like to again urge the voting citizens of this country to look into claims made by either candidate rather than accepting those claims at face value.

Supports Chick-Fil-A

To the Editor:

I stand with Billy Graham in support of the President of Chick-Fil-A, Dan Cathy. Doing large number of American jobs between a man and woman, Mr.

Cathy did not anticipate the angry backlash for simply stating what his view was.

NBC anchor Brian Williams made it sound like Cathy stated his opposition to same-sex marriage when he just gave his opinion of what marriage was. Cathy only said what President Obama said about marriage in 2008

Former Chief of Staff in the Obama administration and now mayor of Chicago, Rahm Emanuel. says that values of Chick-Fil-A are not the values of Chicago. Considering the explosion of murder occurring in Chicago and the rampant corruption saturating that city, I'm thankful that the values of Chic-Fil-A are different. At least the mayor recognizes a difference, but still demands the God-fearing values of the company stay out of his city. He has more tolerance for the racist Louis Farrakhan and the Nation of Islam than he does for Chick-Fil-A. The mayor has shown far more disdain for Chick-Fil-A running a legitimate business than the violent gangs in his city peddling drugs and terrorizing the streets. He hasn't come close to ridiculing "gangster values" like he ridiculed "family values" when he worked for the Clinton administration in the 1990's. And we wonder what's wrong in a major city, like Chicago.

I admired the young Chick-Fil-A female employee who remained composed and always returned courtesy while under attack by rude and belittling remarks from an agitator accusing Chick-Fil-A with hate. I wasn't at all surprised to learn that the employee was a Christian. Do you think she would have responded as she did if her values were the values of Chicago?

When Chick-Fil-A came under fire from the "tolerant" crowd of the politically correct, it looked like their business would take a hit. Yet, Americans, particularly those with God-fearing values, rallied and threw their support for the company with an overwhelming but underreported turnout for Chick-Fil-A Day on Wednesday, August 1. I'm personally grateful to the millions all over America blessing the company for the stand not only on marriage but also for giving their employees the day off every Sunday, Like I Samuel 2:30 says. God honors those who honor Him. Chick-Fil-A was honored.

LOSING PATIENCE WITH MEDICARE, or NEWS YOU CAN USE.

This article will hopefully tell you something that you need to know about Medicare, and also inform you about how government is trying to resolve some of its financial problems. Both issues are important, though they impact us in radically different ways.

Medicare is the medical insurance program that most seniors enin when they turn age 65. Almost everyone who qualifies for Social Security also qualifies for Medicare. The most generous aspect of Medicare coverage is known as "Part A" which covers inpatient hospital care. Medicare "Part B" covers out-patient and doctor related expenses, though usually with a 20% co-pay from the patient. A few years ago "Part D" was added to cover some (but not all) drug expenses. The fact that benefits for Part A and Part B are different is causing some major problems.

Whether or not someone has been admitted to the hospital seems like a pretty straightforward issue. Unfortunately, it isn't. There are actually two different classifications that can apply to Medicare recipients who are admitted to the hospital. If a Medicare recipient is admitted on "in-patient" basis he/she will be covered by Part A, and will have one co-pay that is relatively reasonable. However, it that same individual is admitted to the same hospital "for observation" they will receive the exact same care, but will be covered by Part B. However, they will have a 20% co-pay, and will not be entitled to many types of follow-up services, such as rehabilitation and certain types of nursing home care.

Unfortunately most senior citizens are unaware of these distinctions and fail to question their hospital and doctor about the hospital admission classification. Given the fact that the senior citizen is usually seriously ill or injured when admitted to the hospital, it is hardly surprising that they focus on their health, rather than on bureaucratic red-tape. Senior citizens have been in the hospital "for observation" for as long as 5 days, undergone surgery, and then discharged to a nursing home. If they had been admitted on an "in-patient" basis their care would have been fully covered. Because they were admitted "for observation" it was only partially covered, leaving thousands of dollars of expense to be paid privately.

My motivation for writing this article is to alert senior citizens (and their families) that they need to pay attention to this classification. You need to ask your doctor and hospital about your classification as quickly as possible. If you have been admitted "for observation" but think you should have been admitted as an "in-patient" you need to challenge it immediately, and possibly appeal that designation. You are the ones most directly impacted by the classification, so you need to pay attention and make sure the medical personnel get it right. Otherwise you could join thousands of Medicare recipients who have been blind-sided by unexpected hospital, doctor and rehabilitation bills.

The Medicare Program represents a promise made by the federal ernment to us lits working citizens, during our wor It is supposed to provide adequate care for most medical needs. Unfortunately costs have sky-rocketed and the program is running out of money. To save money the government has established special classifications, like "for observation," that pay hospitals a fraction of what they get paid for "in-patient" care. The hospitals don't like this reduced payment, but face a financial dilemma. If they erroneously classify a patient as "in-patient" and Medicare later determines that patient should have been admitted "for observation," it will be penalized and denied all payment.

Government needs to cut waste and fraud. However, it should not use bureaucratic "tricks" to deprive deserving citizens of promised benefits earned by decades of contributions. Unfortunately growing deficits are forcing government programs to use "creative" approaches to reduce spending. We need to "keep faith" with our senior citizens and not cheat them of earned benefits.

WHAT WERE YOU DOING?

Probably most people reading this recollect where or when they heard of major events making news in the last few decades. Just a mention of the date, 9/11/2001, is sufficient to bring to mind the destruction of the World Trade Center, even for young adults.

On the other hand, the number of people in the USA over seventy years old is growing. So I have a question for you in particular. What were you doing during January 1946? Just weeks ago I could not have told you what I was up to, but today I know.

With my present overloaded state of mind, I can usually locate something that I have kept in the same place for many years. Consequently, several days ago I readily found my packet of three holed, wide ruled, notebook paper. If I had stashed it recently, my chances of locating it when wanted would have dropped to fifty-fifty.

Usually I need empty sheets once or twice a year. I was pleased to discover them amidst a familiar stack of some never-used spiral notebooks. However, I was surprised to find a small box atop these. I had no memory of placing it there, or what its contents might be. Upon opening it, I discovered a chunk of my childhood. It measured four and a half inches tall, two and a half inches wide, and just over one quarter inch thick. Its brown cover provided the name "Marquette Diary 1946."

Minus my supplied punctuation, the title page elaborated: "Marquette Junior Diary for 1946 with World Maps, Personal Cash Account, Population of Cities, and Other Valuable Information. Published Annually."

In an area headed "Identification" with blanks for Name, Address and Tel. no., I had entered "Martha Ann Mueller, 702 North Moffet, Joplin, Missouri, 3555." While checking up on the "Valuable Information," I learned about the population of my home town. In 1920 it was 29,902. It had grown to 33,454 in 1930. By 1940 my family had moved there, to be counted as four among its 37,144 residents.

My pencilled diary notations began with January 1, Tuesday, New Year's Day. I wrote, "Bobby came. Texas beat us 40-27. Went to Sabine's last night." With 66 years of faded hindsight, I assume that "Bobby" was my cousin. He may then have been in the U.S. Air Force, stationed somewhere which made a brief visit possible. A search of the Internet has decoded the second observation. The University of Texas defeated the University of Missouri in the 1946 Cotton Bowl football game, 40-27. I have previously mentioned in these "Mullings" my childhood tradition of spending New Year's Eve at the house of my disabled friend, Sabine.

With holidays over, on January 2: "Had a lot of homework. Went back to school. Made 12 E's, 10 S's in writing. Got to bed at 9:30." This may have been the year that the certificate I received for penmanship declared mine was "Very Good." The year before it had said "Excellent."

Alas, my downhill slide has never stopped. We were graded on the "ESMIF" scale, rather than the "ABCDF" one used frequently today. Now, both my handwriting and my keyboarding would earn a well deserved "F" measured by either scale.

Aside from mentioning social engagements of my parents, on several days in January I recorded school happenings. On the 8th: "Finished another book report. It was on Myths and Legends from Greece and Rome." On the 9th, "I finished another book report. It was Heidi. That finishes me for this nine weeks. We had our first chorus practice this year today."

rus practice this year today."
On the 7th and 11th: "Nothing happened today." On other days I listed subjects in which we were given tests. On the following days the grades for those tests in English, Literature, History, Geography and Math appear. Other things we were taught, which were not capitalized, included health and art.

On Wednesday, January 23, I related my final grades. "I made nine E's and two S's. The S's were in conduct and art." My partial deafness made it difficult for me to hear teachers from the back row of desks. Nevertheless, I was seated there due to my above average height. Hence, I often engaged in "questionable" conduct with students near me who had excellent hearing.

Philanthropy received two nods. On January 21: "Gave fifty cents to the March of Dimes at school today." On January 24, I summed it up: "Our school got around fifty dollars for the March of Dimes."

Apparently I mislaid the diary then, only to rediscover it on July 30, 2012. There are no further entries in it. Talk about losing one's mind!

ing Direct Support Professionals' (DSPs) hard work and things like no med errors. To win was even better as it was nice to not only be acknowledged in this manner but to have a night off from work to spend extra time with my family meant a great deal."

Other nominees for June included Brittany Cunningham, Crystal Dryer, Theresa Grover, Julie Harrison, Sarah Hodgkins, Mike Ryan, and Erica Strong.

Amy Black said of the program, "I continue to be wowed by the amazing dedication and hard work put forth on a daily basis by our residential team. This recognition program means as much for me as the employees being recognized. Direct Support Professionals (DSPs) deserve to be acknowledged and this program continues to do that."

Tips for taking pets along for the ride

ALLEGANY COUNTY--Each year millions of Americans hit the road in search of summer relaxation, adventure, or just some peaceful time with relatives. Many choose to bring their pet with them. In the age where more pets accompany their human companions on vacations, more and more hotels and lodges are becoming pet friendly.

Those who do frequently travel with their pet state that their biggest fear is that their pet will get sick, hurt, or lost during the trip. When you are hundreds of miles from home, finding a veterinarian in a panic can be daunting. But with some careful planning and preparation you can minimize your fears and make traveling with your pets an enjoyable experience.

Consider all of your options before travelling with Fido or Fluffy. Many times your pet will be happier if allowed to travel with you, however balance your pet's overall health and safety. Choose the safest mode of travel for your pet. Think about the pet's health, age, whether your pet likes to travel, where you'll be staying and the time of year.

Your pet may travel well for short trips to the park or weekend camping trips, but cannot handle cross country ventures. An older pet with arthritis may be very uncomfortable the winter during rides. It may be better to consider a kennel, pet sitting service, or family member to care for your pet.

When you decide that bringing your pet is the best option, you need to pack for your pet as well as yourself. The essential items to pack for your pet include medications and medical records, food and bowls, a pet first aid kit, bedding, leash, collar and tags, grooming supplies, current pet photo in case your pet gets lost, a favorite toy or two, a sturdy and well ventilated carrier, litter and litter box (for cats). It might help to pack all pet items in a specific bag just for your pet, that way you do not have to look in several bags for pet supplies.

Before travelling too far, have your pet examined by a veterinarian. Make sure vaccinations are up to date and get any medications your pet might need during the trip. If you are going to give your pet medications to reduce anxiety or travel sickness symptoms, test your pet several days in advance to see if the pet is allergic or has any adverse reaction to it.

As you hit the road build time in your travel plans for frequent stops. Allow your pet to stretch and take a drink of water. Before you put your pet in the car and go, take some safety steps to keep him safe as you drive. All cats should be in a crate or carrier. Dogs can be in a crate or carrier or restrained in a special harness that attaches to the seat belt.

Congressman to fulfill promise

S H O R T T R A C T - Congressman Tom Reed will fulfill a promise he made to voters when he holds his 75th public town hall meeting this Saturday. Reed has conducted 73 public town hall meetings thus far during his term and will hold two more on Saturday in Allegany and Cattaraugus counties.

"I'm here to listen," Reed said. "Some of the best ideas we take to Washington have come from the many public town hall meetings we have done. Many of my colleagues do not hold town halls, but I think that they are essential to being a good representative."

Reed will hold town hall meetings this Saturday, August 18 at 10 a.m. at Portville Elementary School, 500 Elm Street, Portville, and at 1 p.m. at Short Tract Fire Hall, 10355 County Road 15, Fillmore.

AAUW holds awards dinner

HORNELL--The annual Alfred-Hornell AAUW awards dinner was held recently at Hornell Knights of Columbus. This event honors area fourth grade student winners of the essay contest, "The Woman I Most Admire" and graduating high school girls who have excelled in math and/or science.

Patty Soper-Oakes, branch president opened the dinner meeting by welcoming branch members, honorees, parents, families and community members. For the second time, a $100 scholarship was awarded to six area graduating senior girls, as well as being honored at dinner, receiving a beautiful medal, a certificate, and having their names engraved on their high school Awards Plaque, to be prominently displayed in their respective schools.

Following the welcome, President Patricia Soper-Oakes explained the mission of the American Association of University Women: To advance equity for women and girls through advocacy, education, philanthropy and research.

The President introduced the Essay Contest judges, Shirley Ferris, Patricia LaPiana, and Christine Thomas. Shirley Ferris presented each of the 4th Grade winners who enthusiastically read her essay about " The Woman I Most Admire". This annual event is the highlight of the AAUW program year and supports the mission of "breaking through barriers for women and girls". This year's award recipients certainly reflect that mission.

We were delighted to honor the following recipients of our awards and scholarship for their excellence in math and science: Alfred-Almond Central School, Lara Karaaslan; Andover Central School, Emily Goldsmith; Canisteo-Greenwood, Sarabeth

Richburg museum gets first stipend of Bartoo Family Fund endowment

RICHBURG—Representatives of the Allegany County Area Foundation were pleased to attend a portion of the monthly meeting of the Richburg-Wirt Historical Society at the museum in Richburg on Monday, August 6. Purpose of the visit was the presentation of the first annual stipend from the Bartoo Family Fund endowment created within the foundation by the Estate of Beatrice Bartoo in 2011.

It was the intention of Mrs. Bartoo and her husband Francis to provide for the perpetual maintenance of the historical society and promote and encourage its activities, and their estate planning provided for a significant gift to accomplish this through the foundation.

Carolyn Miller, president of

Local DAR chapter will meet tonight

FRIENDSHIP--The Catherine Schuyler Chapter DAR meeting will be held Thursday evening, August 16 at the Friendship Rod & Gun Club. If you plan to arrive between 5:30 and 6 p.m. we should be able to begin at 6 p.m. This is a pot-luck dinner---bring your own table service and a favorite dish to pass. If you can't think of anything to bring, don't worry--we always have so much food that if only half of us bring a dish we'll still have plenty!

This is our "HODAR and Friends" night, so please be sure to invite someone to come with you to enjoy the meal, business meeting, award presentation and a special program given by Mark and Paul Vossler on "Antique Rifles."

Hostesses are Marge Vossler and Molly Chapman.

Also--remember to bring any voices you have for the quilt, used ink cartridges, soup labels, and any paperback books you may wish to donate to the veterans hospital.

the foundation board of directors, mentioned how pleased she is to have been acquainted with Betty, as she was known.

Ms. Miller noted that the Bartoos' hopes for the society have been met and exceeded by the dedication of the historical society's members. The museum is continuously expanding and improving, and the innovative exhibits and programs featured by the society would be of interest to the greater Allegany County community as well as to local residents.

Three young Richburg boys, seeing the open museum door, seized the opportunity for what they may have anticipated as an unguided tour. However, one of the society's members, John Dunbar, directed their attention to the gum ball machine, whose history has a Richburg connection, and the current special exhibit of antique and old toys, as may have been played with by the grandparents, great grandparents and great-great grandparents of these young citizens.

During the month of August, the museum, located near the school on Main Street in Richburg, is open from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturdays. In addition to the special toy exhibit, visitors will enjoy artifacts from the local oil industry and treasures recalling life in Richburg during its interesting, and at times colorful, history.

Summer here at the Box of Books is coming to a close with our Summer Reading Program final event today. We have had a great summer here and I am grateful to all who have helped make it a huge success.

The can drive at the Alfred Pharmacy is an ongoing event until we decide along with Tony Graziano to end it. We have a large stack of slips that has been turned in. For those of you who may have forgotten or didn't know Tony Graziano has offered us ten cents a can for all cans and bottles return to his store. You feed your items in to the machine get the receipt and bring it here to the Box of Books for us to turn in at one time. This is a really simple way to help us here at the Box of Books and get rid of your returnables at the same time. Please ask at the library or at the pharmacy if you need more information.

The annual book sale is on the calendar for Sept. 22 from 10-2 and will be held again this year on the bandstand lawn. We will be accepting donations until the day of the sale. Please call ahead to schedule a time to drop your books with Eliza or at the storage unit. With our limited space it is vital that we not have bags and boxes of books sitting around the library. We are also not accepting donations of text books, VHS or cassette tapes, encyclopedias and magazines. These items do not sell and add to the amount of materials we need to find homes for at the end of the sale. If you would like a receipt of your donation please provide us with a list of what you donated broken into categories, i.e. hardcover, paperback, audio, DVD. We appreciate all your support in making our book sale a success.

The Friends of the Box of Books library's Tasting, Treasures and Tunes 4 is on the calendar for Saturdya, Oct. 20. This year the treasures are going to be tiny treasures in the form of a 6 x 6 art sale. All items will be 6x6 in size and will be sold for $20 apiece, the artist will be revealed to the purchaser at the time of sale. Tickets for the event will be available at the Box of Books starting late September or early October for $15 per person. The event will again provide delicious bites and wine samples from around the region. Mark your calendars for this spectacular event. Canvases for art donations can be purchased for $1 from at the Box of Books. For more information contact Sharon Burdick.

(Mis)adventure with Joan—(By Joan Lindeman) Most adventures are fun—or at least interesting. But sad to say my visit to the South's supposedly largest flea market was neither fun nor interesting. Large it was, though, I'll grant that with its at least 130 sellers. Or dealers, or sales people, or peddlers, or whatever you want to call them, but believe me you don't want to know how I label them! Anyway, Bill Mansberger and I decided to take a morning and explore this unknown area to us but unfortunately both of us hate browsing in stores, or even detailed shopping...So here we are, two non-shoppers in this huge area designed for truly nutty shoppers....All the while Bill was navigating our way around he kept muttering to himself, "It's all stolen property—probably hi-jacked!" I was horrified but that was what he had decided—so be it!...What puzzled me the most was they all seemed to be permanently placed, with wire enclosures locked when the stores were not open. I guess my idea of a flea market was way off base...

'Our new identity: Chosen for God's Glory'

"Our New Identity: Chosen for God's Glory," Ephesians 1:14-21

Week 3 in Pastor's series on "Our New Identity"--looking at what it means to be "In Christ." This part of Paul's letter is really a prayer that believers will understand the fullness of the love of Christ. Not just understand, but to really know, to feel and to experience that love. Paul's prayer is Pastor Steve's prayer for us-- that God would grant these things to us.

The first petition is that He may strengthen you with power through His Spirit in your inner being--we should live our lives with fuller and more loving trust in Him. Become more molded by Christ in our lives--not just acting like Christ because that is superficial.

The second petition is "to grasp how wide and long and high and deep is the love of Christ. That it surpasses all understanding." Simply put: unconditional love. You know--like the way you would put your life on the line for someone you loved like your kids, etc. This love calls for unity with other believers, to truly feel love for

The third petition is in verse 19--'that you may be filled to the measure of the fullness of God.' Check out that word--- "filled." To you it probably means more complete. But that's not the idea that Paul is expressing. To fill in the sense that Paul is using is 'to become present to and active with respect to another" or to "extend influence or rule over another." Maybe it means to be 'saturated with Christ'. Think on that for a moment: how would that look, if you were truly saturated with Christ, filled to overflowing to the point that nothing that you did is done outside God's word and God's desire for you, and God's will. That everybody sees you would truly see a reflection of God. Being fully saturated with Christ. That was Paul's prayer for the Ephesians--and for you. It means:

To have Christ dwell in your heart--so that all that you are reflects Jesus and your love for

To truly understand His love for you--and His love for all believers-- how amazing it is.

To be filled-saturated-with Him. Living your life for Him in every way.

Pastor Steve's prayer for you is that that's the kind of new identity you achieve as believers. You may truly be "in

Rams coach remembers his coaching start at AU

ALFRED—Mike Waufle has fond memories of the 1979 Alfred University football team. He coached the defensive line that included Steve DiLaura '83, Frank Muraco '80, Andy Lasky '82, Joe DeBiase '83, Steve Ratliff '82, and Mark Shardlow '83. He considers one moment to be a turning point for the

"We were up on Jericho Hill and I told Mark (Shardlow), take your helmet off," recalls Waufle. "I put his helmet on, lined all the guys up and took them on oneon-one. I was trying to show them that Division I intensity. They really caught onto it. We ended up having a 7-2 season."

Waufle, a Hornell native, now coaches the National Football League's St. Louis Rams defensive line, a position he accepted this spring. He's worked for five college football programs and three NFL teams, coaching in three college football bowl games, 14 NFL playoff games, and two Super Bowls (XXXVII and XLII). Pro Bowl players he's coached include the late Darrell Russell, Richard Seymour, Michael Strahan, Justin Tuck, and Osi Umenyiora.

Waufle says his interest in football began in junior high school watching Jim Moretti '72, an accomplished quarterback and recently retired AU athletics director, play. After graduating from Hornell High School in 1972, serving three years in the United States Marine Corps, and playing on the defensive line at Utah State University from 1976-1978, the Dallas Cowboys cut Waufle at tryout. He and his wife decided to return to Hornell. AU Assistant Coach Mark Sacco's impending departure to coach high school football in Colorado created a coaching staff vacancy at the University.

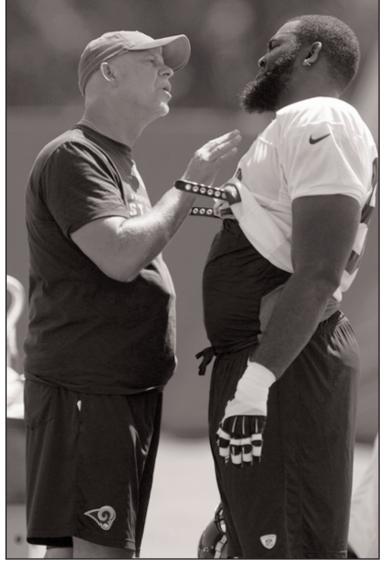

"I was working on my master's and I still had hours left," says Waufle. "Sam Sanders (AU head coach 1977-1984) and Mark (Sacco) talked me into

HITS AND MISSES:

Not even sure where to start out this week as the London Olympics just completed their run with the USA bringing back gold galore or with the PGA Championship and young Rory McIlory thumping the field on a semi-quirky course or with the Buffalo/Toronto Bills losing their pre-season NFL opener (new one) to the Washington Redskins or with the Washington Nationals actually getting ready to pull the plug for the season on ace hurler, Stephen Strasburg? Lots going on in a month that is usually relatively quite!

Going with the Olympics as I watched a solid Team USA men's hoop squad grab the gold on Sunday past over Spain, 107-100. Not a "great" game by any means, largely due to the ongoing whistles by the referees, but an entertaining contest. Team USA knew it would have trouble in the paint in this game with the Gasol brothers patrolling this area and they did. Pau Gasol (Lakers) looked like the second coming of a healthy Bill Walton back in the day and foultrouble by Marc Gasol (Grizzlies) might have doomed the Spanish squad. If Pau Gasol plays like that in the NBA this coming season ... hello LA, grab a title! Despite being undersized, comparatively speaking, was most impressed with Kevin Durant, Chris Paul and LeBron James down-the-stretch for the USA collection. They came thru in the fourth quarter and Coach K's club had another gold medal. All of this accomplished despite key injuries prior to the Olympics that altered the original roster. Coach K (Duke) finishes up his remarkable Team USA run in International competition with a (62-1) mark which included two Olympic titles and a World Championship sandwiched in between both.

And LeBron James completed a rather "nice" basketball campaign with the Olympic gold medal. James of the NBA champion Miami Heat was MVP of the regular season and MVP of the playoffs when his team grabbed the trophy. So, two MVP awards and two titles. Only Michael Jordan (1992) had ever done that before! Jordan of the original Dream Team.

And "hats off" to the Team USA women's basketball and soccer squads as they won gold while posting undefeated marks in the London Olympics. The cagers won their fifth-straight gold medal, as UConn's Geno Auriemma was at the helm, and he had six of his former players on the team. He has won seven NCAA titles at UConn with the likes of Sue Bird (Syosset, NY), Diana Taurasi, Maya Moore and many others. Abby Wambach and the soccer players topped Japan to win gold and get a measure of revenge for losing to them in the World Championships last year. Three straight Olympic gold medals for this team and they will be in Rochester on September 1st to start their 10-game, "Victory Tour." Costa Rica will be in town to face Wambach and Team USA at Sahlen Stadium. Have seen them play twice in Rochester, once in 1998 and 2004 (I think). Saw Mia Hamm record her 100th goal with an assist from Abby!

Rory McIlroy blitzed the field to win the PGA Championship at Kiawah Island (SC) as he pulled a "Tiger-like" performance to leave everyone in the dust (or sand). The PGA Championship in

Greaneys place in Cayuga Lake 5k swim

LANSING-On Saturday August 11, Patrick and Alyssa Greaney, representing their USA Swim Club-Mercury Swimming competed in the Niagara Open Water Championship at Salt Point on Cayuga Lake, Myers Park in Lansing. The 5 kilometer race course consisted of two 2.5 Kilometer loops swum counter clockwise in one of the beautiful Finger Lakes.

At the race start the air temperature was 72 degrees with little wind, but by the time the athletes finished they were battling a head wind impeding their progress. However the siblings prevailed and finished in fine style.

Patrick brought home a second place finish with a time of 1 hour and 9 minutes and Alyssa captured seventh place in the open women's division, swimming under the finale banner at 1 hour, 34 minutes.

2013 will be at Oak Hill in Rochester, NY. Have been to a U.S. Open (w/Hilly Moses) at Oak Hill, the PGA the last time it was there with tix compliments of Big D and Janis, and to a Ryder Cup practice round with Stu. The 95th PGA Championship will take place August 8-11, 2013.

Pat Atwell (Andover) took in the Web.Com (formerly Nationwide) Tour outing in Springfield (MO) at the Highland Springs CC where he followed Luke Guthrie of Quincy, Illinois on Sunday. Not to be confused with Floyd Guthrie nor "Farley on a Harley" for that matter. Luke Guthrie finished T10. Matt Weibring, son of PGA player D.A. Weibring, finished T15. Atwell had a chance to golf with D.A. Weibring at the sweet, Quincy CC when he was the AD for the QU Hawks program. Doug Barron, no relation to Chuck, finished T19.

Catawba College (NC) has hired Jordan Clodfelter as their women's lacrosse coach. Honest!

The Little League World Series will be in Williamsport (Pa.) this week. Have been to the LL Museum on more than one occasion with daughter, Lauren and played softball at Elm Park in Williamsport on numerous trips there, but never took in the LL World Series.

A batch of NYS vanity plates spotted of late: VIDKID ... Cutter, SQUEAKG ... Scummer, BIGCHUCK ... Sniffles, LITE W8T ... not Drip, LASTGASP ... Frank on 18th hole, LENMYSTR ... Obergfell, HAYES 4 ... Willie Mays Hayes. All of these seen in Inlet ... HERKIMER, NADIGAN, BEACHES (SC) and MIMI DEB (Pa). Also, brother Steve spotted a NY plate in Virginia on way to alumni banquet: NYRICAN.

The New York Yankees put pitcher CC Sabathia on the 15-day disabled list and called up Ryota Igaraski from "AAA" Scranton WB. Guess the immortal Kei Igawa was busy.

No Strasburg on the hill in DC soon? Yuk.

The "Traveling Sports Fan" from Almond has been busy of late as he was at a Bills practice at SJ Fisher College recently. While there he secured autographs from half the team (seemingly) including his old buddy, Stevie Johnson who remembered him from Hornell? The Gus Macker free throw champ was also at the Belfast Boxing Museum, taking in the event with Dave Snyder!

Have not heard whether Stu, Waffle, "Rookie" Firster and Halfhead made it to Watkins Glen this year?

Mark S. Gaisser (A-A) and his Ferra's slow pitch softball teammates are NYS champs in Class "D" ball. His team is ranked #1 in NYS. Wow!

The Alfred Saxons football squad will have quite the stretch of games this season as Coach Murray's program will play Ithaca-SJ Fisher-Salisbury, three weeks running in E8 competition. Ouch. The Bombers and Cardinals are at Merrill Field, which is nice, with the Maryland game on the road. Frostburg State is the only other home outing for the Saxons this year on a very "odd" slate of games. Three home contests? Alfred has an open date on September 29th. Wow, no one around to play? Guessing the Ithaca game is Homecoming weekend.

Ongoing "congrats" are in order for the Alfred-Almond Alumni Association, the board members and all the committee members for another excellent banquet in July! Well run program, (awesome) food and good crowd on hand. Many to talk with as stated last week and not enough time to do so! Beth (Goodridge) Mennelle for one. Good seeing again. Todd and Ryan McEvoy up from NC, near Kaz. Where was Ras? Lucked out with table I sat at (thanks Mixer) and just an all-around great evening. For those who have never bothered to come back for an A-A banquet ... why?

3L visiting on Long Island this past weekend where she hooked up with ex-Geneseo men's soccer player, Ryan Stansfield and former teammate, Alex Miller. Bella Masotti unavailable.

Going to head to Endicott on Saturday to watch some Champions Tour golf action at En-Joie CC. Specifically going because I want to see Fred Couples play. Plan on following him around for 18. Sent a text to former Geneseo soccer player, Rian Jock to see if she was going to be around but the Binghamton student on break. Another to Vestal resident and ex-Geneseo field hockey player, Milko. Nope ... back to Florida. Might be "stuck" hooking up with former Knights soccer player, Marzo. Egads. Anyhow, looking forward to seeing Couples play. Went to a PGA Tour event at that course with Our Man Frank and Jake Taft (nice trip) when Tiger Woods was coming out of college and attempting to make enough money to avoid Q-school. Great crowd. Fun time. He did!

Saxons on road six of nine weeks
