Cohen Artistic Promise Prize Exhibitions: Ladia Guerra & Victoria Kue

Ladia Guerra and Victoria Kue
Cohen Artistic Promise Prize Exhibitions
Friday, February 2 - Friday, March 16, 2018

Ladia Guerra: The Sweat Life

Ladia is fascinated by the artificial world created by contemporary society and is interested in the actions we take to make our lives happier through consumption and social pressure. She observes this by researching American pop culture through social media, television, and personal experience and manipulates her observations through the self. The self acts as a blank canvas to express feelings about her upbringing and her culture.

"The Sweat Life" explores domestic spaces and the way in which we interact in and view them. The artist has created video works conveying the feeling of loneliness, belonging, and the somewhat grotesque nature of private domestic spaces. The videos insight laughter, feelings of unease, and offer a psychological twist on what a domestic space can be through the lens of commercial objects and characters.

Victoria Kue: what's her face.

Victoria's studio practice stems from her query of autobiography and the investigation of the female narrative within her Hmong-American perspective. Victoria's observations from cultural, bodily and emotional experiences direct her approach to material and representation. Her sculpture, installation, drawings and abstractions evoke conversations about self-identity through patterns, color and language.

"what's her face." pushes back at the familial interrogation of a sexually active Hmong-American woman who negotiates and claims ownership with her identity, body and sexuality. Using the house as the setting to confront self-identity, "what's her face." explores placement, function and language within domestic objects as a way to recognize the discomfort, struggles and paradoxes within sexual relationships.

The 2016 Cohen Artistic Promise Prize recognized two graduating seniors whose work, hunger, sustained growth and ambition marked them out as those who would continue on as artists beyond their academic training. The Prize, which granted the recipients concurrent solo shows at the Cohen 18 months following graduation, was designed to foster the growth begun in school, encourage the continuation of artistic practice and support the drive needed to reach full artistic potential.

There is a Wellness Event on 2/9/18 where a BCBS representative will be coming to campus to talk about Heart Healthy Living. This event is from 11am-12pm located in the Kenyon Allen Room in the Powell Campus Center. The next Monday 2/12/18 we will begin our Under Pressure event. Under Pressure is a four week program that begins 2/12/18 and runs through 3/9/18. You will stop by Human Resources, in Greene Hall, 3 times a week, between Monday-Friday from 8:00-4:30, and check your blood pressure with a provided cuff.
