

Herrick librarian pens review of Split Season

3/05/15

Brian T. Sullivan, information literacy librarian at Herrick Library, wrote a brief review of “Split Season 1981” by Jeff Katz which appeared in a February 2015 Library Journal article “Baseball&s Varied History: Known and Little-Known Heroes.”

Brian notes, “This unusual season was abruptly cut short owing to a player strike that resulted in 712 canceled games, millions of dollars in lost salaries and revenue, and a split season with first-half and second-half champions making the playoffs from each division.” To read his full synopsis, go to:

<http://reviews.libraryjournal.com/2015/02/books/nonfic/arts-humanities/baseballs-varied-history-known-and-little-known-heroes-sports-reviews-february-15-2015/> then scroll down to the fourth review.

Brian earned a bachelor of arts degree in English from the State University of New York at Fredonia; a master of arts degree in theological studies at Roberts Wesleyan College, Rochester; and a master of library science degree from the University at Buffalo.