Lights, camera, fashion! -- 'Project Runway'

Lights, camera, fashion! "Project Runway" winner Jay McCarroll will be on campus Friday, Oct. 27 and Saturday, Oct. 28. McCarroll's stay will coincide with a fashion contest sponsored by the University and will also include a public forum in which McCarroll will discuss his career in the fashion industry.

"Project Runway" is a reality television series on the Bravo Network that focuses on fashion design.

On Friday, Oct. 27, McCarroll will serve as one of five judges for the first annual "Alfred Runway" competition. Teams of three or four Alfred students will be asked to design and construct an outfit for the following-night's dance, Glam Slam. Teams interested in participating are asked to contact Kevin Jacobs, career adviser, at jacobsj@alfred.edu or 607.871.2164. Participation is limited 20 groups, so enter quickly. The prize for the winning team has yet to be revealed but may include some exclusive fashion-related gifts.

The Friday program is free, open to the public, and will begin at 9 p.m. at Susan Howell Hall on the Alfred University campus.

Jacobs will host "Career Conversation" with McCarroll as guest on Saturday, Oct. 28, at 2 p.m. in the Powell Campus Center's Nevins Theater. Talk will likely focus on McCarroll's experiences in the fashion industry as well as a question-and-answer session. This event also is free and open to the public.

The annual dance, presented by Spectrum, has a long history of outrageous apparel and this year touts a fairytale theme. The challenge: "Create a clothing design that integrates the outrageousness of Glam Slam, the whimsy of fairy tales, and the uniqueness of Alfred. The final product should be prepared for a long night of dancing at the Glam Slam 'Return to Fairy Land,' as it will be worn by the most envied attendee at the event." Expect to see the newly created fashion designs at the Saturday night Glam Slam, which begins at 9 p.m. in the Powell Campus Center's Knight Club. Organizers anticipate McCarroll will also be present.
