Talk By Manuel Delanda

"Symbolic and Material Culture:
The Place of Craft in the Philosophy of Matter"

Date: Tuesday, Feb. 14

Time: 5:20 p.m.

Location: Holmes Auditorium, Harder Hall

Cost to Attend: Free/Open to Public

Co-Sponsors: Division of Expanded Media/Office of the Dean, School of Art and Design/ Division of Ceramic Arts/ Division of Art History/ Office of the Dean, Inamori School of Engineering/ Interdisciplinary Art Program within the Division of Human Studies, College of Liberal Arts and Sciences/ Digital Media & Animation Department at Alfred State College/ School of Architecture, Management, and Engineering Technology at Alfred State College

Manuel DeLanda is one of the most original thinkers writing today. His work focuses on diverse fields such as economics, nonlinear dynamics, chaos theory, geology, architecture, self-organizing autonomous systems, artificial intelligence, artificial life, and the history of science.

After studying art in the 1970s, DeLanda became known as an independent filmmaker. His underground 8mm and 16mm films, circulating internationally, were inspired by critical theory and philosophy.

In the 1980s, he focused on programming, writing computer software, and producing computer-based art. After being introduced to the work of Gilles Deleuze, Manuel DeLanda saw new creative potential in philosophical texts, becoming one of the representatives of the 'new materialism'.

Manuel DeLanda's published books include War in the Age of Intelligent Machines (1991), A Thousand Years of Nonlinear History (1997), Intensive Science and Virtual Philosophy (2002), New Philosophy of Society: Assemblage Theory and Social Complexity (2006), Deleuze: History and Science (2010). His most recent book is Philosophy & Simulation: The Emergence of Synthetic Reason (2011).
