

Celebrate King Day with AU's Drawn to Diversity Team

12/20/12

Honor the legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. by celebrating diversity and equality on Monday, Jan. 21, 2013 at The National Museum of Play[®] at The Strong Museum, Rochester, NY, with interactive theater shows by Alfred University's Art Force Five. at 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. and learn how creativity can assist in problem-solving and in promoting equality. View a comic book display that illustrates America's journey toward civil rights.

Also, take part in a musical sign language performance by Dangerous Signs, a group of students from Rochester Institute of Technology, at 12:30 and 2:30 p.m. Also, learn basic sign language from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The National Museum of Play[®] at The Strong is centrally located at One Manhattan Square in downtown Rochester, New York.