C. Mitchell Reviews Pro, Olympic Past

by Dee Tee

An Alfred University spokesman has announced the shift of Clarence Mitchell, former head librarian-in-chief, to the department of athletics and a corresponding revamping of both the library and the aforementioned department. The change in University personnel was made known Monday afternoon when President M. Ellis Drake announced to a combined faculty-administration meeting the decision of the Deliberation Board, composed of disinterested persons on the University payroll.

Disgruntlement

The University spokesman said that agitation for this dynamic move was begun shortly after the close of the 'recent, indecent basketball season.' Fans of the Saxon team will remember that the past season was one of the worst recorded in the annals of the University. At the conclusion of the season, many letters, missives and verbal complaints were sent and made by persons within and without the institution. The administration, quickly apperceiving the situation, intuited that if the organization was to retain the support of its friends, it must provide a change in the offending department.

Organization

A committee was appointed. Another committee was appointed. The third of three sub-committees finally reached a decision Saturday morning at three o'clock. Sensing an emergency, President Emeritus Norwood - in charge of committees - summoned the Board of Deliberation. After a five hour and forty minute session late Sunday afternoon, the announcement was made that Clarence Mitchell - holder of the National Bibliographer's Cross, the French Crux de Stacks, International Quietness Week Award for 1946 and the Duodecimo Brokenbinding Badge with four Catalogue Stars - would be moved to the position of head-coach in the basketball department.

Continuing in the mood of change, the late Prof. McWilliams is to be shifted to the job of head stack attendant in Carnegie Library. Stenzhorn and Kane - previously of the library staff will take over the deceased's mentorship of the tennis team, and A Joseph Yunevich, former Associate Professor of physical education, will split his time between the football team and card filing in the fiction room of the Emporium.

hot shot

The Deliberation Board considered carefully the applicant's qualifications for the basketball leadership. Mitchell played for three years as centre-forward on the 'Library of Congress Lions,' after which he moved to a part-time position with the 'Congressional Records Ramblers.' Amassing a phenomenal total of 1017.25, F84w points during the season, Mitchell averaged a healthy 15 shelves per game. On the post season play-offs, he led the team in scoring and fines for three years in a row.

Mitchell explained his abandonment of 'the game' as a result of a strained calyx and a twisted matrix incurred in the post-championship tour through the Hebrides. Finding that the quick pivots were too strenuous Mitchell worked his way through night-school in library science, receiving his O (ver). D(ue). in an impressive 12 p.m. ceremony in the stackroom of the Washington University Library School.

Applying for and receiving a coaching assistantship on the next year's basketball Olympic team, Mitchell studied intermittently at the Deutch Bibliothek, in Strassberg, Germany; and the Reader's Guide Extension Institute; the Braille Internationale, at the University of Gascony, France. Returning to the United States, he left forever his first and true love, basketball, and entered the dusty world of bound volumes.

West With Greely

When he heard of the proposed opening in the A.U. sports department, Mitchell resurrected his credentials, award jacket and letter sweater, and the blue-grey blanket awarded to the Intra-Washington Champs, and approached E. K. Lebohner concerning the opportunity. Lebohner summoned Comptroller Crump to a sub rosa meeting in the Faculty Dining Room of the Union. After three rounds of Union drugged special our conspirators left by different doors - having resolved to quietly broach the subject at the bi-serious meeting of the President-Trustee Committee Forum. From there the proposal was tabled for further consideration by a Libro-Administrative Athletic sub-committee. Culling the many bids, accepted 'through-channels,' the committee was - after five days of concerted mulling - ready to entertain Mitchell as the leading candidate for the head coaching position at Alfred University.

Accepting the decision of the I-A-A sub-comm., President Drake then submitted the question to a group of faculty members, Personnel Deans, and campus leaders. Receiving a unanimous O.K. from this assemblage, the act was considered by the Board of Deliberation (see picture, page two) and the decision was made known Monday.

Asked to comment upon his violent change in circumstances, Mitchell said 'No, Comment! I definitely cannot make a statement upon such short notice. You know me fellas, I never talk 'til the season's over.' When the newspaper and news-service correspondents found him, Mitchell was fondly holding in one hand an old basketball shoe while in the other he juggled a dusty basketball bladder. The shoes were those he had worn when the Library of Congress five beat the Southern States All-Stars in the Frontispiece Finals.

The bladder was that with which he had hooked the winning two points - from the corner - in the second overtime period of the Tri-State Publishers Tournament in Philadelphia. The (Continued on page 2)

Hardy Recital: Ummm, Gnh! Grasps Je Ne Sais Quois

by Lawrence Ballard Hardy

The organ recital given by Lawrence Hardy Ballard, in behalf of the Albert Schweitzer Fund, comprised a virtual antithesis of organ music for the past three centuries.

His choice of seventeenth and eighteenth century music was pleasant and without distinction. This is with the exception of Bach.

The Fantasia in C Major and the Prelude and Fugue in C Minor brought the house down. Bach was extirpated in all that he composed. His writings have a spiritual power, a solid strength and sincerity that cannot be traced to technique, and his music is the inspiration of pure genius; it makes your toes curl. Hardy's interpretation of Bach was alright.

'Suite Gothique,' by Boellman, was Hardy's contribution in memorium of nineteenth century music. The second and third movements were pretty dog-gone good. Hardy continued to explore the period with his flowing presentation of the 'Prierea Notre Dame,' and jazz quality of the Tocata: all of which was very exciting.

Because his last group was from the twentieth century, Hardy finished his recital with modern songs. Two of them, 'St. Patrick's Breastplate,' by Clucky, and the Prelude and Fugue in F Minor by Palmer, were designed particularly for Mr. Hardy, the pedal exerciser being reduced on account of his short legs. The amputation as it were of these numbers was done when Mr. Hardy was playing and performing on Broadway, in New York.

For his third encore, Mr. L. B. Hardy played 'Good Night Irene,' of which folk-song-for-the-organ Bertha Cats, music critic of the Almond STAR GAZETTE, says 'It is a sentiment rhapsody in which Hardy attains a wonderful feeling of musical perspective (a feeling of distance and nearness). Rending this number, he demonstrates and creates an ecstatic feeling of acuity, dividing it between the music and the audience.' Continuing in a similar vein, Cats pinned responsibility on the Acumen for the 'smooth grasp throughout the act, of the smallest detail of key notation, 'His tremulo crescendo at the end of the fourth and last encore, 'Java Jive,' closed a very effective performance with a powerful burst of energy in which the entire group cooperated.

I agree wholeheartedly with the opinions of Bertha Cats. Mr. Hardy performed admirably. His mastery of the organ was apparent in his complete control of the instrument, both technically and expressively, his discipline being questioned only twice by the wily machine. The majority of the fight was carried out successfully and quietly as Hardy succeeded in anaesthetizing the organ.

It is the opinion of this reviewer that more recitals of this kind should be given in Alfred, as there is a definite shortage of musical activity here. We should do our utmost to see that full advantage is taken of the body of potential talent in Alfred.

music and everything in life is opera. He believes that the theatre should be a place where creativity and spontaneity make the experience a natural part of human "sheer physical livingness."

It is this feeling of the vitality in fun, of the living creative impulse, with which the acting group - Leon Ablon, Patricia Clark, Suzanne Sadowsky, Sally Damsance, David Taeler and Linda Napolin - is concerned.

Any similarity between Norman Seider's play #. The Job . . . and an old movie called "The Great Train Robbery" is not at all. We'll say no more than that the cast includes - (in the words of the author) Spit, a fat gleamy fellow who spits - Robert Grales; Grabber, a tall muscular fellow who grabs - Ted Ronick; Schatch a rather nondescript vermin-like individual who scratches himself continuously - Gail Feldman; A farmer who is nearsighted - Aaron Plotkin; The lighting for both productions

Dearley Lost And Found; Assassin Booked On 5402

by Morton Floch.

This reporter has just received news of an aborted underground plot to assassinate the editor of the FIAT LUX. The story is an exclusive.

The time - 3 a.m. I was sitting in the office proof-reading some of last year's copy when the phone rang. It was a woman. I knew right away she was beautiful. I also suspected that she was a spy, but I listened to her story anyway. She reported that there had been a pinochle game going on in the apartment above hers. Two partners had died of heart attacks after going bait, and the remaining two, after disposing of the bodies and the blank aces began to discuss their devilish plot, Fafid Dearley, the editor of one of the countries leading college publications had, in their opinion, gone too far. After repeated warnings in the way of letters, bomb ings and occasional machine gun parties, Dearley continued to print too much copy written by one Richard Badman. These men, continued the woman, felt that Badman was trying to take over the athletic department paganda slanted articles. Dearly, through his continual writing of pro-theory thought, was at fault, and had to be done away with.

This she reported to me, and abruptly hung up. I knew she'd call back She had to. She didn't.

The time - 3:01 a.m. I laid aside the copy. Put on my trench coat and pre-med cap, and went out into the silent night. It had just stopped snowing, but the faithful grounds crew were already on the job. Three times I had to avoid being side swiped by a run-away snow plow. It was cold and I was shivering, but I was out to do what I had to do - find Dearly, warn him of the attempted assassination, and apprehend the criminals. Compared to the AGCT it was nothing.

The time - 3:02. I was knocking on Dearley's door at Fucia's boarding club, but he was no place to be found. My next stop, the all-night meat wagon, known to all as the college in, Shorty Cornelius, known to his water drinking friends as the Bucket, was slowly sweeping out the ash trays as I entered the establishment. The big boy - Frank - known to his friends as J. P. Morgan - was sitting in a corner counting his money with his left hand, and prying his eyelids open after fourteen sleepless weeks with his right hand. J.P. and his brother were able to offer nothing as to the whereabouts of Dearley but they told me that they had seen some light coming from the corner pool room not more than five hours before I came in. My first lead - I had to check it.

The time - 3:03 a.m. I called Dean Gertz and told him I would have to have a weekend pass. I told him I had found a ride to Hornell and if I didn't take it then I wouldn't be able to catch next week's train. He agreed and hung up. I knew he'd call back. He had to. He didn't.

The time 4: a.m. I arrived at the it took me a long time to cross the pool room. The traffic was heavy and street, I had to check my one good lead, I let myself in through the window, and slowly surveyed the place wide non-chalantly shooting a rack of while non-chalantly shooting a rack of Chicago. The store was empty. I put my analytical mind to work and deduced that Dearly was not on the premises. My lead was just about to peter out when a sharp report reached my eardrums. It sounded like one of the latest atomic Spatz pistols. It came from the basement - I had to check.

The time - 4:01 a.m. I arrived at the basement door. It was ajar. After carefully eying the entire room, I noticed, right before my eyes, the missing Fafid Dearley. He was stuffing an atomic cap into the chamber of what I had correctly recognized as the newest of all Spatz pistols. After interrogating the assassins' prospect I found that he knew nothing of the plot.

The time - 4:02 a.m. I revived the cold body and sent for a battery of house mothers to protect him while I went to apprehend the criminals.

The time - 4:03. I was back in the office tracing the call I had received at 3 a.m. The operator in charge, a man by the name of Fred Men (which incidently I believed to be an alias, but we will leave that for another case) told me the call had come from a young ladie's home known as the Brick.

The time - 4:04 a.m. I was safely inside the dormitory. My next problem was to find the room of the beautiful spy who had made contact with me on the phone. I was about to give up on my search when I tripped over one of the beds. Lying there in full evening attire, memorizing the latest edition of the Communist Manifesto, was no spy, who later proved to be not so beautiful. I immediately realized that I had been duped. The pinochle game had been a figment of the woman's imagination. This mad fiend had been behind the entire plot to assassinate Dearly. I told her to get some clothes on and come with me. She did.

The time - 4:05 a.m. We were back in the office. She told me the whole story and I typed out my report. The woman was booked on a 5402. Her sentence - six months of observation by the TOR-ECHO.

The time - 4:06 a.m. I was back in my bed and well on the way to using my excuse from classes. Another job had been completed by a member of one of the countries leading newspapers.

(This entire story is true. Okay the times were changed to protect the guilty. Mr. Dearly is still with us.)

Editorial

Reviewing last week's F. L. we are quite taken by the plea for the female franchise made in the LETTERS column. Now, it seems to us that this spirit is laudable in that it is a disinterested endeavor to further democratic living on-campus. If the demand for social equality were made by one of the girls, we should question the unbiased approach required by such a treatise. The writer, however, has obviously no personal ax to grind — so the case holds water.

It may be further noted that the letter has caused somewhat of an uproar on the administrative level of Alfred University. Our first awareness of this stir occurred when we were deluged by calls during our Tuesday afternoon nap. The offices of The Personnel Deans, the Treasurer, the Alumni Association, the President and the Comptroller were in an excited scramble for F. L. copies. Cases were being prepared by all concerned, and some who were very concerned. We are pleased to report, however, that the matter has been taken in hand by Mrs. York and the various cases of the University vs. Wolfe are to be handled collectively by Clifford M. Potter, M.S., and Joseph Seidlin, Ph.D.

Mrs. York was quick to see that radical — though perhaps justified — action would create a bad name for Alfred. Holding for 'due course of law,' the Committee for Committees — formed to meet the need felt by the administration for committees — has assented to allow the matter to be considered judiciously. It is expected that another week will lapse before R. Wolfe is commenced to 'Undergrad-in-absentia.'

Until such time as he is escorted to the city-limits, the 'defendant' is receiving visitors in his suite in the Steinheim.

Director of Women, Cecile Gertz, reports that the only really violent action witnessed so far was the event of Clarence Mitchell's outburst in Mr. Harder's office. Wildly demanding 'fair-play' and 'good sportsmanship' on the part of the University, the ex-librarian was ushered back to his work-outs in the Men's Gym.

Model U.N. Meets Friday; Speakers, Agenda Announced; Capacity Attendance Expected

by Jenny Gobert

In a frantic rush of activity Alfred is preparing for the beginning of the three day Model United Nations General Assembly. The Secretariat is sending out last minute instructions to the various schools, the grounds crew is busy preparing the buildings for the conference, and the designers are painting signs just to make sure nobody gets lost despite explicit instructions they will get at registration from the reception committee.

The auditorium at Alumni Hall will be decorated with the flags of all nations and the United Nations flag. One complete set of flags has been obtained through the courtesy of the International Business Machines corporation, and another set, which will be used to decorate the committee room at South Hall, has been lent to Alfred by the Market Basket Stores. Decorating of Alumni Hall will start Thursday afternoon.

The delegates will arrive early Friday afternoon, and will probably keep coming until late Friday night. Registration of delegates will take place in Kanakadea. Here they will receive full information on the conference, a set of rules of procedure, and the resolutions that have been drawn up for the various committees.

Friday evening will be the official opening of the Twenty Seventh Model United Nations General Assembly. There will be a plenary session in Alumni Hall. The speakers will be President M. Ellis Drake, Mr. John Lassoe Jr. Permanent Chairman of the C.C.U.N. and the moving spirit behind the U.N. sessions, Mr. David Leach, Mr. Peter Kenan of Columbia University, who is president of the model General Assembly, and Mr. Jay Yedvab, Secretary-General.

After the opening addresses, the delegates will attend their respective committee meetings in South Hall. Those meetings will be purely organizational. The delegates will decide on the agenda, and committee rules and procedures. This will be followed by caucuses of the national blocs. These will include the South American bloc, the NATO countries bloc, the Arab bloc, the Soviet bloc. The purpose of the caucus is for these regional groups to decide on a pattern of grand strategy which can be followed in all instances during the conference.

Saturday morning at 8:30, the committees will start their work. These committees will be debating all morning on their topics. After lunch and a Carillon Concert by Dr. Wingate, the delegates will attend the plenary sessions, at which Dr. Benjamin Cohen will address the Assembly. Dr. Cohen is the Assistant Secretary-General in charge of Public Information. He has had a long record as a career diplomat from Chile, and has recently returned from attending the Pan-American conference held in Caracas. Dr. Cohen will speak on methods of improving the United Nations. His talk will be followed by discussion on the topic from the delegates.

At 3:30, there will be a Faculty Tea at the Brick Lounge for Dr. Cohen, and also committee meetings in South Hall.

Saturday night will be taken up with committee meetings, a meeting of the Middle Atlantic C.C.U.N. and finally a dance for all delegates in the South Hall gym.

Sunday morning after religious services there will be a Plenary session of the Assembly. At this session the committees will present the resolutions that they have finally drafted. These will be discussed and voted upon by all the delegates. At one o'clock Sunday afternoon the Model United Nations General Assembly will officially come to an end.

Alfred can well expect a tremendous amount of people attending or visiting the conference. Fifty six colleges of the Mid-Atlantic States are sending delegations, many of these schools are coming with more than the required four delegates. A conservative estimate places the number of delegates at three hundred twenty five, at least fifty Alfred students working in some capacity for the conference. To this will be added many many visitors and guests coming merely to watch the proceedings. There are expected to be numerous observers from the local high schools, almost all of whom are sending regular teams to the conference.

The delegates will be housed in various campus buildings. For the girls the Brick, Castle and Merriam House will be used. If it is necessary some of the sorority houses will be used also. The men will be housed in Bartlett, Delta Sig, Kappa Nu and Lambda Chi and other fraternity houses if necessary.

The faculty advisors to the delegations and the committees will be guests of Alfred faculty for the conference. All the delegates and part of the Alfred official staff will eat in the Brick and Bartlett dining rooms. The Student Union will be open for all other people staying on campus.

It is no little job putting up so many people and seeing to it that they have a successful conference. It takes a lot of work and all too often someone is needed with a balanced and cool head to set things right again. Therefore I would here like to express the gratitude of all those connected with the United Nations, to Dr. Russell, Mr. Leach and Mr. Englemann, without those work, help and encouragement there would never be a conference.

Letters

More Water And Milk: Less Wood And Graine

"There has been entirely too much of this type of vandalism going on around here lately, and I would like to see it stopped before it goes any further."

This statement was deleted from a letter to the editor this week. Unfortunately the letter could not be published because the only signature was "W.C.T.U." and the editors could find no student or townspeople with such a name. It was decided that the name was an alias, and it is a policy of the FIAT never to publish a letter signed by alias.

The statement has been echoed by quite a few important people in and around the Alfred area over the years, but it seems to have had a great re-birth during the past few weeks.

The letter was referring to a recent beer can throwing party between the College Inn and Peck's Billiard Parlor. The affair resulted in the cracking of the pavement in front of Crandall's Wholesale Jewelry Store and the Greene Hall block. "Someone has to pay," the letter went on to say, "and because the students in the University have been responsible for everything else that has been going on around here lately, they must be responsible for this too. The money should come out of their pockets."

The matter was brought up at a recent Student Senate meeting, and was brought back to the various houses for a head vote. It was unanimously decided that the students have been responsible for the things going on in Alfred for the past 100 years. Therefore they must be responsible for this incident and they will pay for any and all damage resulting from the fracas.

With this matter decided, the letter went on to discuss the lack of sobriety of the students of Alfred. The writer of the letter extended his views to include the faculty also. He cited an article dated August 25, 1953 from the Cincinnati, Ohio, ENQUIRER: "Former Teacher Convicted in Slaying of Woman Companion in Hotel Room." "I was drunk and blanked out," he said. "The fact that the man had a woman companion in a hotel room had nothing to do with the situation," the letter continued, "but the point is that a precedent for drinking and drunkenness among our teachers has been set, and we must constantly be aware of this problem."

Then the letter writer drew an analogy between the paying of taxes and the sale of liquor. He quoted an article which stated, "Liquor dealers complain that the liquor sold at military bases pays no taxes. The taxes come into the picture later, when the taxpayers have to replace cracked-up planes and take care of other consequences of drinking." "By other consequences of drinking" we can include the cracking of the pavement on Main Street," the letter went on, "and I, as a taxpaying citizen of Alfred, will not stand for it. It's time for a change! The trouble nowadays is that they aren't teaching the right things in our colleges and universities. If Alfred University was half the school they professed to be, they would teach and live by the famous motto of Thomas A. Edison who said, 'I have better use for my brain than to poison it with alcohol.'" (The editors have heard this statement re-echoed many times by such men as Wallace Beery, Lawrence Tierney, and others.)

The letter closed by saying, "I hope my little note will have an effect on some of the people around here. I'm not saying that people should abstain from drinking entirely. What I am saying is that the younger generation should be brought up on water and milk, and kept that way. If their fathers and grandfathers, and great-grandfathers before them had heeded such advice, we might not today have to worry about atom and hydrogen bombs, and World War Three. One thing for sure, we would have licked

sweatsuit for Clarence

Following the announcement Monday afternoon, President Mellis Drake turned the situation over to Boxing coach F. H. Gertz, who will supervise Mitchell's training regimen. The latter is now working out three times a day - after meals - in order to assume his duties as head coach by June 15. The reason for the early start of the basketball season this year comes as a result of a decision reached simultaneously with the appointment by the Deliberation Board. In view of the unsatisfactory showing in the recent season, it was decided that a summer practice session would be instituted. The players will, of course, receive six hours credit, as for any other summer session course.

Found practicing a stackroom squint in front of his hall mirror, McWilliams seemed years younger than this reporter has seen him for many years. Running his hand through his grey locks, the weary exfoliated gymnast commented that it would 'certainly be a relief to shift my arguments to stackroom interlopers instead of those brindle-pussed meatballs I had down the creek.'

Saved

The interesting factor in the shift of leaders in the sports-scene is that, through a technicality in the I.C.A.A. records rules, if the head coachship of any team competing inter-collegiate is not maintained throughout the school year, the season's results are stricken from the records. Thus, the basketball picture definitely looks better for the coming season.

the problem of rickets right off the face of the earth."

Gallivantin' Gilbert Gooses Governing Group

Dear Editor:

For the two years that I have been a student at the University the Student Senate has been the potentially powerful body that has never really shown its true color.

The prime function of the Senate as stated in the Constitution is: "to give adequate representation to all the students on campus." Yet, is that the only aim of the Senate? I ask all the students to count the number of constructive projects undertaken by this body? If any, they add up to a negligible sum.

There is a movement on the floor of the Senate attempting to make it a better working body and eventually fulfill its potential power. It has been moved, "that all clubs on campus have the RIGHT to vote on Senate matters."

I propose that here is a possible solution to the problem of apathy that exists on the Alfred Campus. Do you as an interested student-body, who wish to see the Senate a smooth-working unit, think that this possible solution be voted down, without giving it a working chance?

The Community Chest Drive is a project that the Senate has undertaken this year. It has been so difficult to move ahead because the Senate is composed of students representing a LIVING unit and not a WORKING unit. If organizations like Hillel and the Newman Club (not to mention many others) were represented, then these groups would be able to reach their final objective far more easily than the individual senators who are now on the committee.

I ask the student-body to give this proposal their utmost consideration. If we are to have a better working Senate, then vote YES when it is brought back to the houses.

Sincerely,
Gil Chollick, Esq.

In a dramatic move Monday afternoon, the Women Voters League of Alfred marched through the main street of Alfred. The gathering was in protest of the move of Clarence Mitchell from the library administration to his new post as Head Basketball Coach and assistant track fan.

No violence resulted from the above protest, although Police Chief Stebbins was on hand with a picked crew of piano-movers just in case.

Student Outlook

by Steve Bender

ATTENTION ALL MALE STUDENTS: Dean Gertz has to submit 109 forms to the local draft boards for any student who wishes to be deferred for the next school year. In order to do this he must have the number and address of your local draft board as well as your Selective Service number. The local draft board also requires a letter from the individual requesting deferment, a model of this letter is in Dean Gertz's office. This also applies to students who are enrolled in the ROTC and to students who will be graduating this spring and who intend to go to graduate school in the fall.

The catalogs for the Alfred Summer School are now available in the Registrar's office. For anyone interested it is suggested that you pick the catalogs up before spring recess.

Dean Gertz wishes to remind the student body that the two no cut days immediately preceding and following the spring recess are NO CUT DAYS. In case there are any among you who have not been counting the hours, spring recess begins at 10:00 a. m. April 9, and classes will resume on April 20.

Senate

The last meeting of the Student Senate was the scene of a movement to get a more accurate representation of the student body. In accordance with this aim, it was suggested that all of the clubs on campus be given a voting seat in the Senate. This suggestion will be taken back to the residences for discussion and vote.

The fact was also brought out that many independents on campus do not have any Senate representation. A committee was formed to look into this matter. The committee consists of Gil Chollick, Dave Cohen, Judy Koch, Barbara Mindich and Kathleen Morris.

It was proposed that a place be found where the independents can meet to voice their opinions as a group.

Intersorority

Four amendments were added to the constitution of the Intersorority Council.

1st.) There should be a compulsory meeting of the Honoraries, with their respective houses to discuss rushing rules and procedures. This meeting should be held each year before rush season.

2nd.) Instead of the council, those present should be a board consisting of one honorary from each house, the accused party or parties, the accuser, or the accusers, and the faculty advisor, who shall act as mediator, in the case of dirty rushing.

A unanimous vote of the board is needed to declare the accused party guilty. The board shall then determine by unanimous vote the nature of the punishment.

3rd.) Any changes in the procedure of the council or articles of the council constitution must call for a council meeting.

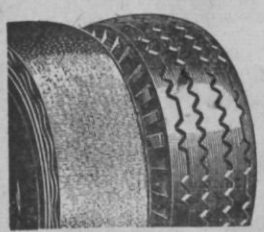

4th.) All business of the Intersorority Council shall be conducted within the limits of the Intersorority meeting, and by no other means, with the exception of calling a meeting which may be done by post-card or telephone.

Dean Gertz has been elected to the Board of Directors of the Hornell Rotary Club. Dean Gertz will take office this spring for one year.

A. O. C.

Last week-end twenty delegates from the Alfred Outing Club took a trip to Allegheny State Park to participate in an outing. "Jorge" Houghton was acting group leader. Dr. and Mrs. Wilkins were the chaperones. Many a musical moment was spent with Dr. Wilkins and his dancing beat. The outing club is appreciative of the stimuli that Dr. Wilkins provided.

The trip's activities included hiking and a game of capture the flag in which Jerry Stone's Commandos were subdued by Duane Jordan's Daredevils. Gracious! The outing was climaxed by a square dance Saturday night. There is a I. O. C. A. Conference in New Hampshire during the week-end of April 25. Ten delegates will represent Alfred at the conference, to plan for next year.

Wrestling in the consolation match, LeBlanc defeated Jim Meissner of West Seneca by a unanimous decision. Last year Meissner was the winner in this weight class.

Net-Men

By Allen Siegel

As I write this, eight men have reported to coach Jay McWilliams for the 1954 tennis season. Due to the "unusual" spring weather the team hasn't been able to use the outdoor courts. The coach has set up a small workout room in the gym and it is helping the boys get into shape for their first outing.

This weather will handicap the team, which has just one school week left before its first two matches, against the University of Buffalo and the University of Rochester on April 23 and 24. Both of these matches are on the road.

Two of last year's squad have reported during the first week of practice. They are Steve Grossman, the number two man of last season and Jerry Slater, a reserve last year. Both hail from Great Neck and are graduates of Forrest Hills High School. Two other lettermen of last season, Marlin Miller and Jim Brown have not reported and the team's chances will suffer. Gelman of Tilden and Columbus High if these two do not play. Brooklynite Lenny Rapkin and Bronxite Earl are the two sophs who have reported.

Leading the four freshmen who are vying for starting berths is Bill Campbell of Oneonta. Bill and his team mate from Oneonta were the New York State doubles champions last year. The title was won at the New York State Meet, held at Syracuse University.

The other freshmen are Al Celinski of Monroe H.S., Rochester, Joe Maccaulos of Cobleskill H.S. and Charles Hulbrunn, a Styvesant graduate from Manhattan.

There is room on the squad for anyone who can play tennis. If you can play tennis and would like to join the Saxon squad see Coach Jay McWilliams at the Men's Gym.

Alfred University's Freshman class ran away with the Indoor Interclass track meet. Scoring in every event but the medley the frosh tallied 46 points while the second place seniors could only notch 36 tallies. The Juniors followed with 26 and the Sophomores came in last with 9 points. Hal Snyder and Les Goble shared top billing in the meet as each walked off with three victories.

Snyder won the mile, two-mile and the 1000 yard run. In doing this Hal broke the meet records for the two mile with a 9:59.9 clocking, surpassing Bruce Alken's two year old record of 10:16.5 and the 1000 with a 2:24.4, breaking the old record by five tenths of a second. This event saw Frank Gilbert set the pace through most of the race only to be defeated at the tape by a nose. Frank also battered the old mark. Goble the other Senior star won the 35 yard dash, 600 yard run and the 40 yard low hurdles. One other meet record was broken. Dave Mahoney set the Alfred standard in the pole vault with an 11'11 7/8" vault.

to break the old standard of 11'10" set by Joseph Hamilton a few years ago.

The victorious freshmen had three first places. Don Carlin won the shot put with a 37' 2" throw. Bill Rhodes took the high jump at 5' 7" and John McNamara ran off with the high hurdles with a 0:06.2 clocking.

In the final event of the evening, the medley relay the frosh and the seniors were to battle it out with the other team given only an outside chance. It turned out that Goble had to run for the seniors and since he was already in as many events as he could legally enter, his team was ineligible to win but they ran for the sport. On the second turn of the second leg of the event Jim Stephens and Larry Faser accidentally bumped into each other with Jim going down. This eliminated the freshmen and the sophomores took the event.

The summary of the meet follows:
One mile—Snyder, Sr. (4:33.9); 2, Gilbert, Jr.; 3, R. Smith, Jr.; 4, Butten, Jr.
2 mile—Snyder, Sr. (9:59.5); 2, R. Smith, Jr.; 3, Bergamaschi, Jr.; 4, Yedwab, Sr.
