

Silver Anniversary for St. Pat Faculty, Students, & Fun Net AU Relief Drive $120 On Record as Highly Successful

by Johnny Allen

St. Pat celebrated his silver anniversary during the past weekend and it was the biggest and one of the best ever.

Opening with the parade of floats on Friday afternoon the climax was annual ball when Miss Lucyanne Ellsworth, a senior nurse from Theta Theta Chi sorority, was crowned queen of the twenty-fifth annual St. Pat's Festival. The Ithaca lass wore a pink gown and was preceded to her throne by her court, consisting of Riki Ansel, Rhody Bracker, Ann Hopkins and Judy Dryer.

The parade of floats featured a variety of tributes to the celebration of Patty's twenty-fifth anniversary with the prize winners being Sigma Chi Nu in the women's division with honorable mention awarded to Theta Chi while the men's top float was Delta Sigma Phi with honorable mention going to Kappa Psi Upsilon.

The Saint Lawrence Saints provided the entertainment at a concert on Friday afternoon at South Hall as they ran the gamut of songs to the enjoyment of the large crowd. At this time the winners of the beard growing contest were announced. The longest beard was owned by Bill Dick while the handsomest belonged to Joe Fusare. Bob Loesel received the nod for having the most novel beard.

The open house was the highlight Friday evening as a large crowd toured the ceramic building with the many exhibits featuring the Siverman Glass collection and the always popular Corning glass blowers.

"The Teahouse of the August Moon" production by the Footlight Club featured and put some zip into Saturday afternoon as the group came through with what many considered a top-flight performance of a top-flight comedy.

The weekend drew to a climax as Boyd Raeburn and his orchestra, featuring Ginny Poyell, supplied the dancing music for the ball, with the highlight being the coronation of Lucyanne Ellsworth as queen.

Knights of St. Patrick honored were Dr. R. E. Gould of the Buffalo Potteries, Dr. Frank Cox, Pittsburgh Plate Glass; Dr. Karl Schwartzwalder, American Ceramic Society; Mr. Harold E. White, Lava Crucible and Refractories Company; Mr. Don Schrekengost, Homer Laughlin China Company and the senior ceramic engineers.

And thus another St. Pat's Festival came to a close on a highly successful note for all concerned and all returns to serenity in Alfred for another year.

The proper way to indulge in the art of basketball was demonstrated before over 300 people at the Men's Gym on Wednesday night as $120.00 was collected for the Hungarian Student Scholarship fund.

In the opening clash the fighting female athletics got in the act as the Intramural All-Stars defeated a determined Faculty club, 9-4, while the feature game saw the Men's Faculty club taking a 32-22 win over the All-Star squad.

The evening got off to a flying start with the women's contest, as the starting sixes displayed that poise and charm which is conducive to top flight basketball.

After the players were introduced to the crowd in their bizarre costumes the contest began with the students' Sue Schmedes netting the first point. There was a slight delay at the start as one Lavinia Creighton had some jewelry on and play had to be halted by ref Dotty Ormsby.

After dropping behind, the fighting students took the advantage and remained in the lead 4-3 at the intermission and from there on in it was all over but the shouting, of which there was much done with the proding of the faculty cheerleaders.

The second clash saw the purple and gold clad faculty squad, coached by Norb Haley, taking on the Stars of Pete Shapiro. After a warmup of football calasethenics and some Globetrotter routines led by their "star," the big game was ready to open.

The contest saw the reactivation of Jim McLane, Jay McWilliams and Alex Yunevich to the status of ballplayers for the first time in many years.

Fraternity Sponsors Jazz Group Here; Seneca Stompers Play to Full House

Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity opened its doors wide last Friday night and invited the entire campus to hear the Seneca Stompers, a dixieland combo hailing from Hobart College.

Faculty and students alike milled around on the basement and ground floor levels of the house to the strains of such standards as "Mama Don't 'low No Trombone Playing Here," "When the Saints Go Marching In," "Ja Da," and "St. James Infirmary." Attendance at the three hour session was estimated at 200.

The jazz group, consisting of a trumpet, trombone, clarinet, tuba, guitar, piano, drums, and seven necessary musicians, was originally known as The Finger Lakes Five Plus Two. Members have come and gone within the organization since its formation four years ago, until only three of the combo's charter members remain today. Nevertheless, co-leaders Bob Willing (tuba) and Paul Pratt (trombone) have seen the outfit attain a peak of success in their field with the cutting of discs for RCA Victor and Columbia Record Companies, and appearances all over the nation. In the near future, the group is scheduled to play "gigs" at Cornell, Colgate and Lafayette, and appear on bills with Claude Thornhill and Les Elgart. As to the eventual future of the seven, Bob and Paul both express haziness. Three "front line" members are leaving at the year's end, and the general feeling is that the outfit will probably dissolve.

The members of Delta Sig hope to bring the dixieland outfit back to the campus again before the semester's end. "Why should we keep a thing like this to ourselves," said one brother. "Why not give every one a chance to enjoy it?"

N.S.A. Slot to be Campus Vote Phil Baker Explains Position

Under an amendment to the present constitution of the Student Senate, the office of National Student Association Coordinator has been designated as one which will require an all-campus election to fill. I feel that this is one of the most important changes because of the importance of the effect of N.S.A. on the campus population. The entire program of N.S.A. is directed toward the student body as a whole, and as such the N.S.A. coordinator position should be filled by a person who is elected by the entire student body.

During my term of office as N. S.A. Coordinator, one of the main things I have attempted to do is to publicize the important works of N.S.A. on the campus. I feel we have met with much success in this program through such methods as the Student Senate assembly and the Hungarian relief and student drives.

This is not enough, however, and the job will not be completed until each and every student fully realizes the significance of what N.S.A. is doing for him or her.

N.S.A. is the main organ of communication we have for contact with our fellow student bodies throughout the nation. Through N. S.A. we learn of the problems, plans, and programs of other schools. Many of these difficulties are similar to those which confront us on our own campus, and through mutual exchange of ideas and plans, we can, many times, arrive at a solution to these problems.

We also receive much valuable information on many varied campus activities and problems through contact with the national office of N.S.A. To cite a specific example, several of the important parts of the proposed new constitution of the Senate were worked out as a result of reading numerous pamphlets and articles sent to us by the national offices at Philadelphia.

I could continue to list many things here which Alfred gains as a result of its association with N. S. A. But I am sure that by now the fact must be evident that through close cooperation with N. S.A., steps will be taken which will lead to still better campus government; this will of course benefit directly the whole campus community.

Visiting Potter Is Wildenhain

Mrs. Marguerite Wildenhain of Guerneville, California, potter, teacher and lecturer on contemporary arts and crafts, will be a guest instructor in the design department of the College of Ceramics from March 18 through March 22.

Mrs. Wildenhain is a graduate of the Bauhaus School of Design in Germany, and for a number of years before coming to America she designed ware for European industry and operated her own pottery studio in Holland.

In 1940 she moved to Guerneville and began making her "Pond Farm Pottery." Each year she takes a few weeks from her busy production schedule to share her thoughts and experiences with student potters on college campuses.

C. A. Chipman, Univ. Trustee, Dies in Florida

Charles A. Chipman of Bolivar, president of the Pennsylvania Grade Crude Oil Association, died last Thursday near Deland, Fla., where he had been vacationing.

He was a trustee of Alfred University, president of the Bolivar Board of Education and a Past County Commander of the American Legion.

Born in Clayville, he was 65 years old. He had lived in Bolivar since 1918. He attended Yonkers schools, Alfred Academy and Alfred University.

Most of you, at one time or another, have expressed what you would like to have the Student Senate accomplish on campus. What you have felt and what I believe are not that far removed.

Essentially student government on this campus is a vague, theoretical institution, expressly designed to keep the student happy and make him believe a governmental organization is functioning for him. By this I do not mean that many things have been done in the past by this governmental organization. What I do mean by it is that if a student government is to exist at all it should reflect the attitudes and desires of the students on the campus and not be directed towards individual groups.

I could list a series of high-sounding promises about what I plan to do if elected, but essentially I think this would be a waste of your time as well as mine. The only point that I would like to stress is that I would work towards representative student expression on campus and try to apply what I have learned from my experiences with student government on this campus for the last two years. If I didn't meet the primary qualifications for the office of President of the Student Senate I wouldn't find myself writing to you now. My total experience with student government, including high school, amounts to approximately five years. This past year I have been treasurer of the Student Senate and served as head of a committee investigating the possibilities of greater student representation on disciplinary boards.

A politician said, once, that campaign promises were the things you told them you'd do and forgot about the day after you were elected. I won't make any of these meaningless statements as to policy. I will work towards effective student government.

Joseph L. Stein

How well do you, the voters, realize the present condition of your student government, the Student Senate? Do you realize what it has done in the past or what it can do?

I have seen the Senate from the inside and from the outside, have benefited from being a member and an observer, and feel that I have a full awareness of the problems and capabilities of student government.

The role of student government is to develop a relationship between the student body and the Faculty-Administration, so that the student, his student government representative, and the faculty administration will be striving for the best possible education for the student.

The Senate is in better condition than it has been since I have been here. It has improved in its major functioning and has extended its capabilities. Capabilities of the Senate and of student government like the Senate have no visible limitations. If functions of student government like the Orientation Week, Moving-Up Day, and others too numerous to mention, are continually improved and new functions like Student-Faculty-Administration orientation to student government, money raising campaigns for foreign students, and entrance into fields such as course evaluation are indications of what Student Senate can do. It shall continue along the pathway of giving the student what he wants and needs.

The Student Senate must not now rest upon its past good works. It must continue to present its programs, plans, and activities to the students and faculty in a manner which can be easily understood by both groups to better insure their cooperation for our mutual benefit.

These then are my ideas and thoughts, stated as simply as I am able, concerning our student government and its role on the Alfred campus. I do not deny that there is room for still more improvement in our Student Senate; but I feel that we are fortunate to have a strong basic organization, and interested participants which will insure these improvements. Because of this strong basic organization I feel that student government can continue to rise in importance and respect on this campus.

To sum it up: Student government has come of age on our campus; now it needs only firm and enlightened guidance along the right paths, which I feel I am well qualified to give with your cooperation and support.

James Sproul

Thursday, you are going to choose a man for the most important student position on Alfred's campus; the office of Student Senate President. The importance of selecting the right candidate for this post cannot be over-emphasized. In the coming year, this leader is to represent you, and to serve as your most direct voice to the student body, to the faculty, and to other campuses.

As President, a man must give his best for the student body. His every thought, word and deed must be for you, the students whom he represents. If elected, I am prepared to do all in my power to effect this end.

Our Senate functions as an intermediary between you, Alfred's students, and your university. In order that you will have an effective channel for expression of wishes and opinions, I shall, if elected, actively strive toward stimulating interest in the operation of your government. I intend to encourage all clubs and residential units to utilize, to the maximum, all powers of representation granted them by our Senate constitution. I heartily believe that the key to a centralized and united government lies in the fact that any group of individuals must be kept fully informed on all matters which concern them in order that they remain most qualified to act in their own behalf.

Should I be elected to this high position of leadership, I will strive to form a more powerful Senate, through the fulfillment of your wishes, I shall endorse students opinion against all arbitrary decisions and at all times shall insure that the desires of the students predominate. I therefore pledge to give my all for your University—for your government—and primarily, FOR YOU!

Samuel F. Hulbert

Fellow students, you have certainly bestowed upon me a great honor, nominating me as a candidate for the highest student office in Alfred University.

In my school I take a deep pride, but without vain glory: to it I owe solemn obligations that I am eager to fulfill. If elected I shall do my utmost to accomplish the following objectives:

1. Master whatever job that is assigned to me by the student body.
2. Learn all that can possibly (and properly) be learned about campus problems.
3. Follow the advice of the Student Senate in all of my duties.
4. Refrain from stating an opinion to the Administration or promoting an undertaking until all the facts have been presented to the student body.
5. Speak up and express your opinions and promote your ideas at every opportunity that is afforded me.
6. Before asking for approval of any major actions I will have a definite plan and program worked out to support it.
7. Keep the student body informed of all significant developments within faculty-student committees.
8. Student requests will take top priority.
9. Never invade the domain of Women's Student Government, Interfraternity Council, Inter-Sorority Council without their knowledge and consent.
10. Whenever I am dissatisfied with the services of a Senate member I will make my complaint to the individual most directly responsible.
11. I will strive to protect the interests and the good name of any Alfred University student I know to be deserving, but will not shrink should any duty dictate from disclosing the truth regarding anyone that by unscrupulous acts has shown himself unworthy of the honor of being a student at Alfred University.

In closing, my fellow students, I pledge in the same full measure I ask of you, integrity and fair dealing, tolerance and respect, and devotion to the standards and the dignity of our school.

W. S. G.

Camille Crofoot

A coed on the Alfred University campus is given both a major privilege and a great responsibility. Your privilege is a voice in your own government and the price you pay is an active participation in the organization you create. In short, you are your own Women's Student Government. Your elected representatives are a reflection of your opinions. The council as a whole must necessarily represent wour varied views, while the president must organize and coordinate, aiming always to transform your ideas into practical and satisfactory action. I am running for the presidency of the Women's Student Government because I believe that I can fulfill this requirement.

While student government has made much progress on this campus, it is still far from perfect. Here are my suggestions for future improvement:

1. One of the major problems now existing rests in a basic misunderstanding of the job of your representative. We tend to think of her mainly as the person who heads the hall councils and hands out campuses, forgetting that her more important function is to serve as your spokesman to the administration. If you understand your rules, this instructive and disciplinary phase of her work can be reduced, leaving more time for constructive representation. This understanding can be better achieved a) through a more extensive system of talks to the freshmen women during their first weeks on campus and b) through a revision and reclarification of the WSG handbook so that it truly serves as a source of relevant information. This would eliminate the old cry, "I didn't know."
2. A program of informal orientation for mid-year transfer students is a necessary addition to the WSG program. By so doing, these coeds will be spared the ordeal of learning campus regulations the hard way.
3. Increased participation in the National WSG would result in further improvement in our local organization. Through support of the National, we can a) get new ideas, b) hear other solutions to our problems, and c) be of benefit to other groups.
4. Increased integration with the Student Senate will enable us to present a more united voice to the administrations. This could be accomplished by the simple procedures of sending a non-voting WSG representative to Senate meetings.
5. There has been progress made in revising the hours, but there is still more to be done. Even in so basic a question as what time to be in, there is a variety of opinion. Personally, I would like to see more liberalization of week-end hours, specifically one o'clocks for freshman women.

By thinking seriously of whom you sincerely believe can best represent you in the position of president, you insure for yourself a continued and more extensive voice in your own government. Elected by your votes, I would do all I can to make your voices heard.

Joyce Jividen

The purpose of the Women's Student Government is to insure the integrity of true self-government of the women on the college campus. To be a true representative body. It must reflect the attitudes of everyone under its jurisdiction and conversely all must actively participate in its achievements.

As a candidate for W.S.G. president, I wish to present the following proposals to give an indication of my plans to fulfill the purpose of W.S.G.:

1. To establish a closer working relationship between the W.S.G. and the women it represents. This can only be accomplished if every woman feels it her duty and privilege as a student of Alfred University to uphold the regulations that she herself has actively participated in making. I propose therefore, that each W.S.G. representative feel obligated to encourage the members of her house or dormitory to suggest constructive ideas to her. She could then make a report of their ideas at the W.S.G. meeting.
 2. To organize a committee to analyze the problem of women's closing hours on the campus. This committee may consist of representatives from each social class, from the administration, and from the W.S.G.
 3. To publicize the decisions and recommendations of the W.S.G. so that not only the women on campus, but the male students and faculty members as well would have a better knowledge and understanding of its activities. This should help to encourage the women to participate in and support the W.S.G.
 4. To standardize the procedure of all Hall Councils of the respective houses. I feel this procedure should follow the basic rules used in law courts in order to protect each individual's rights and give her a fair "trial."
- In addition to these proposals, I pledge to support any future progressive measures which reflect the sincere wishes of the women on this campus.

The Women's Student Government in Alfred formulates rules to provide a uniform government for the women on campus. Whenever necessary these rules are changed; thus with each new president, there are several new ideas to blend in with the old.

You may be shocked to learn that our treasury now has several hundred dollars that we can never use strictly for the expenses of W.S.G. Although suggestions were made to use this money for a student loan fund or for library books, little was ever done about this. Instead of building up a huge treasury, I propose that the dues be lowered to one half the present rate or $.50 per semester.

I feel that it is possible to achieve more cooperation between the Council and the Administration, for example, perhaps after a discussion some agreement on the hours for women can be reached.

Last year there was a W.S.G. Area Conference here in Alfred. I feel we need more conferences of this type in order to get the best government through comparison with other schools. This year we could send a representative away to a conference.

There has been some talk about the Honor System. It is really quite simple. Each woman is on her honor to obey the regulations of W.S.G. and at the same time report others who disobey. If everyone does this, the honor system will be very effective. There is not much else that can be done as it is a matter of personal integrity.

Almost every girl on the Council has ideas concerning W.S.G. This year, with Gretta Hanson as our leader, we tried to better W.S.G. and its Council. However, we can use your ideas, too. If you have a good idea don't toss it aside; give it to your representative or better yet come to our meetings and tell us yourself. This is one way you can help us improve our Women's Student Government.

"Teahouse" Scores at AU Audience Moved by Play

by Bonnie Gross

John Patrick's "Teahouse of the August Moon" is a thoroughly delightful play whose bright, often pungent humor is an excellent vehicle for presenting more basic ideas concerning human relations.

The Footlight Club's production of this play—on Saturday, March 16, as part of the St. Pat's Festival, and on Monday, March 18—was well received by exceptionally enthusiastic audiences.

Orestes Mamalis gave a sensitive, warm portrayal of Sakini, the roguish Okinawan interpreter. Myron Perquin played the hapless Capt. Fisby who is sent to teach American culture and democracy to Tobiki villagers, and instead, is himself disarmed by their graciousness and candid logic. At times Perquin's loose-limbedness and mobile facial expression made him appear too bright-eyed and boyish, and he should also try to avoid patterns of action; nevertheless, he was generally credible.

Col. Purdy, the chauvinistic, blustering prototype of all American army officers was given an especially convincing characterization by Jesse Owens; while Yien-Koo Wang, as Lotus Blossom, was ever so delicate and expressive in a role that is particularly demanding because it contains on English spoken lines.

Richard Phelps displayed his customary exuberance as Capt. McLean, the analyst who, perhaps, himself, ought to be analyzed; he occasionally overplayed his part but his stage presence compensated for this.

Dickson Shaw, Myron Koch, Ilene Waxler, and George Yokoi—although they depicted more minor characters: Mr. Oshira, Sgt. Gregovich, Miss Higa Jiga, and Mr. Seiko, respectively—stood out for a facile competency in their roles.

Others in the cast were: Diane Brown, Vincent Capo, Robert Cohen, Chester Landau, Warren Mintz, Thomas Randall, Mira Rubenstein, Michael Selseley, Gina Shamus and Judy Weber.

The play, directed by C. Duryea Smith III, showed good staging, especially in the scenes involving large crowds. Warren Mintz was assistant to the director, and Ronald Brown technical director. The sets, designed by David Morris and Linda Rahl, were well-planned, and the color contrast between the intense greens and rusts of Army HQ and the delicate shadings of the teahouse was beautifully drawn. Originally composed by Dai-Keong Lee for the London production of "Teahouse," the music lent unity to the play's structure; Norman Massey operated the sound equipment. One last note of praise is deserved by Victor Babu for his thematic program designs.

On one issue at least, men and women agree; they both distrust women. —H. L. Mencken Delta Sig started off their weekend with open house Friday evening, at which the Seneca Stompers were featured. Saturday, there was a buffet in the afternoon, a cocktail party before the dance, and open house afterwards.

Kappa Nu's new basement finally got initiated, and in grand style, last weekend. With original paintings by Jerry Reicher (upstairs and down) a dozen booths and a large dance floor, a party couldn't help but be a success. (But Junior still looked bored.) There were parties Friday and Saturday nights.

St. Pat got pinned last weekend—really Ernie Taylor, who pinned Letty Buss; and Don Lyman pinned Soph nurse Polly Viner. Kappa Psi had a party at the house Friday afternoon, a buffet dinner Saturday afternoon, and a party before and after the ball.

Klan had a buffet dinner Saturday afternoon, and a party before and after the ball.

Lambda Chi had a buffet dinner before the open house Friday and a party after. Saturday, there was a punch party before and after the dance. Frank Gilbert was married Sunday to Barbara Bright in Middletown, New York.

Tau Delta held their initiation dance Friday night at the Hornell Country Club. Stu Bednoff was presented with a gift from the brothers for his work during his term as president. Other awards were also presented.

Jerry Wuttke pinned Connie Jansen, of the Brick, a Pi pledge. She was serenaded at the dance and at the Brick.

RATS back for the weekend included Larry Mass, Dan Brownstein, Irv Schwartzman and Dale Smith.

Anita de Cuello, of Krusen, is engaged to Hank West of Westfield, New Jersey.

Omicron got the good word from Ann Straka Green last week—she's had twin boys, David and Kenneth.

Comedy Highlights Cage Clash

was McLane, Will Lawrence, McWilliams, Don Dickens and at center, Fred Gertz, opposed by Al Siegel, Barney liBeneditto, Moe Kotick, Dick Errica, and Frank Finnerty.

The clash featured a conversion attempt for a free throw at the start, and wound up with a throw-back to the good old days as two ten man squads were prancing around the court.

In between there was lots of clowning and excitement with some basketball thrown in. At the half the score read 16-6 for the oldtimers. A quick start by the students put the edge at 18-16, when Dick Brown and Len Rapkin led a spurt and insured victory. They led their team with 13 and 8 respectively while Sid Smith took high for the losers with 6.

The rare show, staged for the Hungarian appeal put the drive well over the halfway mark toward the goal of $500.00. All in all it was quite an evening, one that will long be remembered in the hearts and minds of all true lovers of basketball.

Don't Read This But...

... a lot of people were nice enough to make fools of themselves Wednesday night to the tune of $120.00.
... congratulations to the new queen.
... where there's smoke there's Dean Gertz.
... watch your step, the next person you see may be the author of this column.
... Burdick Hall will collapse before they get around to tearing it down.
... Steinheim time is getting closer.
... we would like one person to point out to us a pair of nicely shaped legs in bermudas.
... is it seniority or priority which determines how a person gets into the infirmary?
... go Pogo if you must, but vote !!!
... nightly travelers find their way to the submarine races once again.
... most people who wander through the FIAT office usually contribute nothing but noise.
... disa reporter hears John has had many "conferences" recently.
... during November, 1954, this column asked how mature are people who accuse others of being immature—; times haven't changed.
... we admire the beautiful camouflage thrown up by people sleeping in the library.
... just try and write a column like this at 4 in the morning.
... the campus should soon be flooded by the socks and stuff produced by nurses during their classes.
... freshmen will get a taste of their soph slump after Moving Up Day.
... people are saving their cuts for the spring. That's a lot of cuts for one day.

Tennis Positions Open For Seven-Game Sched

Openings on the Varsity Tennis Team are now being considered by Coach Jay McWilliams. All candidates who are interested in playing this year should report at the gym as soon as possible.

The basketball demonstration for the Hungarian Student Scholarship drive gave lots of laughs to the many who attended. Unfortunately there were many who didn't get in on the fun, and also aid in the drive.

As a result of it the drive is now well over the half way mark, but still more is needed. Apathy will not help . . . let's not bog down, the way the Hornell fans did with the Dodgers . . . they went down with the count of ten and lost the club . . .

Any and all contributions will be accepted . . . we'd also like to thank all who aided in making the athletic endeavors a success . . . it really was lots of fun . . .

NIGHT BEAT NOTES—The annual indoor interclass track meet is just around the corner . . . It's about time to think about entering to aid in bringing home the crown . . .

Congratulations to Judy Dryer—word has it that she is now wearing Bill Johnson's ring!!!
Intramural volleyball is now the focus of attention after Kappa Psi took both the A and B leagues in basketball . . .
