

Turner Gallery hosting two student art shows during February

2/04/15

The Robert C. Turner Gallery at Alfred University (AU) will be a busy place on Friday, Feb. 13, when it will host two show openings from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

Art and design students Kyrie Berezuk, a senior from Chester; Samantha Case, a senior from Rushville; Ava Carney, a junior from Chicago; and Isaiah Palmeri, a senior from Putney, VT will present their work collectively in “Memory Space,” while, simultaneously, artists Autumn Newcomb, a 2014 graduate from Cheswick, PA, and Vin Feng, a senior from the People&s Republic of China, will present “We Have to be Very Strong if We Want to be Very Wrong.”

“Memory Space” seeks to explore the interactions between humans, objects, space, and time through installation and video collage.

The second show provides viewers with a different perspective to think about the definitions of wrong and right. It encourages them to consider whether these are differing concepts or if they are one and the same. The work plays with this idea and suggests that nothing is really that serious.

Both shows run through Friday, Feb. 20 and are free and open to the public.
