

Environmental speaker to discuss biofuels, agriculture, and public policy

11/08/06

Alfred University's Environmental Studies Speaker Series continues on Friday, Nov. 17, at 12:10 p.m. in Room 228 of the Science Center with discussion on biofuels, agriculture and public policy. The public is invited free of charge; refreshments will be served. The 50-minute program will feature Jeff Williams, legislative director and principal lobbyist for biofuels issues for New York Farm Bureau, who will discuss "Biofuels, Agriculture and Public Policy - How High Oil Prices Can Save Family Farms." New York Farm Bureau, is the state's largest agricultural business/trade association with over 30,000 members statewide and five million members in the nation.
