William Underhill, emeritus professor of sculpture, passes away

William Underhill, renowned sculptor and emeritus professor at Alfred University who cast the King Alfred Statue located in the center of campus, passed away on Wednesday, Feb. 16. Underhill, was 88 and living in Wellsville, NY, at the time of his death.

Underhill taught sculpture in the Alfred University School of Art and Design, Division of Sculpture and Dimensional Studies, from 1969 until his retirement in 1997. In 1990, he installed the King Alfred Statue, cast in bronze, in the center of the Alfred University campus between Alumni Hall and what is now Powell Campus Center.

Wayne Higby, director of the Alfred Ceramic Art Museum, said the museum will open an exhibition of Underhill's work on April 21, 2022. The exhibition, Higby said, will in large measure focus on vessel forms Underhill created from the early 1960 until early 2000.

Underhill earned his bachelor's (1960) and master's (1961) degrees in art from the University of California, Berkeley, studying under legendary ceramic artist Peter Voulkos. In 1965, he and his family moved to Brooklyn when Underhill began teaching at the Pratt Institute. In 1968, he was invited to conduct a workshop at Alfred University and a year later the University offered him a teaching position. Underhill, who helped establish a bronze foundry at Berkeley, did the same for Alfred University's School of Art and Design.

Underhill was the recipient of grants from the Tiffany Foundation, the National Endowment for the Arts, and the New York State Council for the Arts. His work is held in numerous permanent collections including the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh, PA; the Oakland Art Museum, in Oakland, CA; the Museum of Arts and Design, in New York City; the Racine Art Museum, Racine WI; the Cooper-Hewitt Museum, New York City; and the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, Los Angeles, CA.

Funeral arrangements will be posted when announced.

Alfred Ceramic Art Museum

On April 21, 2022, the Alfred Ceramic Art Museum will open an exhibition of sculptor William Underhill's extraordinary work. In large measure it focuses on vessel forms made from early 1960 to early 2000. Underhill is quite clear: I make metal bowls, bronze vessels cast by the lost wax process. The vessel is a primary form, irreducible and complete.
