

Alfred University tennis courts getting a brand new look

8/14/15

The tennis courts adjacent to Alfred University's Health and Wellness Center will be closed from Sunday, Aug. 16, through Tuesday, Aug. 25, to allow for resurfacing, giving them a brand new look.

The work is being made possible through a gift from a newly elected member of the Board of Trustees Eric Bershada, a 1969 alumnus of Alfred University, and his wife, Susan, residents of Boca Raton, FL.

"The Athletics Department, and specifically the Saxon tennis teams, are incredibly grateful for this very important and timely gift from the Bershada family," said Paul Vecchio, director of Athletics. "Our courts are both a University and community asset. The Bershadas' generosity will bring our courts back to optimal level and allow our tennis programs to compete and practice on a championship level surface."

The University has six courts, located between the new Health and Wellness Center and Harrington Softball Complex. The new surface will sport Alfred University purple on the playing area.
