

All eyes on Isabel

9/17/03

Alfred University faculty, staff and students are tracking the progress of Hurricane Isabel as it approaches the U.S. coast. Forecasts at this point say the path Isabel may take as it moves inland could bring it over Western New York by late Thursday night or early Friday. For updates on the progress of the storm, and for information on how to prepare for a storm-related emergency, please check the following websites: Hurricanes/Flooding/Disaster Preparedness

Links: Red Cross: <http://www.nyredcross.org...> (Federal Emergency Management Agency):

<http://www.fema.gov/hazar...> <http://www.fema.gov/hazar...> York State Emergency Management Office:

<http://www.nysemo.state.n...> National hurricane center home page: <http://www.nhc.noaa.gov> National Weather Service Forecast Information for Buffalo Region (including Allegany County): <http://www.wbuf.noaa.gov/>