Internet Connection Concerns

ITS is aware that the available Internet bandwidth has become saturated and that students are having great difficulty connecting to resources off campus. As a result, we are fast-tracking the deployment of a new server that will allocate bandwidth in a highly efficient manner.

We do not believe that this will entirely solve our issues, but we believe that it will somewhat alleviate the problem.

For the last 18 months, Alfred University has been working with ION (Independent Optical Network) which is currently building a state-wide network that will bring new and great connectivity to All of Western New York, including Alfred University. We anticipate that ION will be online and providing service to Alfred University sometime in December or January. This new connectivity will triple our current bandwidth and provide a much better environment for cost-effective broadband in the coming decades.

We appreciate your patience as we work through this challenge.
